WITH OUR WILDLIFE

By John Wood, State Game Warden

Snakes

In this short article the author would like to present some interesting facts concerning one member of our reptile family, the snakes. There are many who have the wrong impression of the snakes of this country. Many shudder at the mention of this word. But inasmuch as they are dreaded by many they play a very important part in our wildlife structure.

Snakes, compared with the closely related Saurina, exhibit a greater variability of form. For instance take the twenty-five foot python, weighing three hundred pounds and compare it to a bar-tongued snake but five or six inches long and not thicker than a goose-quill. This will picture the ranging differences between the species.

Some snakes are equipped with fangs for the purpose of injecting poison into the prey, and this works with a big degree of success. The fang is a hollow tooth which leads to a poison sack in which the poison is stored, and from here it is injected into the prey of the snake. Healthy snakes are covered with a thin layer of skin on the outer surface which is shed once every two months. This skin is released at the head and an oily secretion releases it from the rest of the body and it is turned wrong side out as the snake sheds it. After this shedding the snakes take on a very bright color and the eyes are very clear.

Litman in his "Reptiles of the World" states: That ophidians either lay eggs or produce their young alive. The young of poison snakes are provided at birth with perfectly formed fangs and glands; they are just as dangerous in proportion to their size, as the parents. All young snakes at once shift for themselves after birth or hatching. The story of the female snake swallowing her young in time of danger is purely fallacious. It originated from observations of cannibal species making a meal of young reptiles.

Four Poison Snakes in United States

Of all the species of snakes that there are in the United States there are only four that are poisonous. They are the Copper Head, several species of the Rattle Snake, the Water Moccasin (all water snakes are not Water Moccasins as some believe) and the Coral Snake (very few in this section of Texas). In India where most natives go bare legged, there are about 20,000 human lives lost each year. It is much different in the United States because there is seldom a record of snake bites in this country.

Be Prepared. For the next six or seven months many will be out in the open on creek banks, lakes and in the woods on fishing trips and vacationing. Every fisherman should equip himself with an approved snake bite outfit, which can be purchased at most drug stores, and keep this with him on outings, because they are very handy in case you are one of the few that are bitten each year. It is better to say "I got a snake bite outfit" than to say "I wish I had a snake bite outfit," so be prepared.

I GIVE YOU TEXAS BY BOYCE HOUSE

"Carrying coals to Newcastle" has been a saying that, for generations, has meant doing something foolish and unnecessary—because Newcastle is the coal-mining center of England.

Yes that is exactly what the people of Texas are permitting to happen! Texas is the greatest oil-producing state in the Union; its wells, if turned loose, could supply all the petroleum needs of the world. But because the world has too much oil, Texas has its wells shut down six days a month and even when the gushers are opened, it is only for a few minutes each day. Yet oil is being brought to Texas—as silly a thing as carrying coals to Newcastle.

Companies that have clamored for prohibition in Texas are bringing oil into this state from Louisiana, Illinois and elsewhere if all is needed in Texas, why not produce it in Texas and give employment to Texas workers, business to Texas merchants and more revenues for our schools and other government needs?

Texas has promoted more heavily than other states have. If prohibition is a good thing, the others ought to promote on the same basis that we do. Texas has been "holding the sack" for some of the other states.

There is one way to get justice for Texas—and that is to turn loose every well in the State; let 'em flow wide open. Then those states and those companies that haven't been doing square with Texas will be glad to yell "Calif ropes!" And that, in a nutshell, is the way we size up the proposal of Jerry Sadler, State Railroad Commissioner and possessor of plenty of intellectual fortitude. It's time that Texas, the biggest oil-producing state, should receive fair treatment. The tail has got to quit wagging the dog.

Do you remember glamorous Fay Cotton of Borger, who was Texas Sweetheart No. 1 at the Fort Worth Frontier Centennial, and who wore a gown of gold valued at $5,000 and was serenaded nightly at Casa Manana by Everett Marshall with "The Night is Young and You're So Beautiful"? And no doubt you recall vivacious and charming Grey Downs, who was Texas Sweetheart No. 1 the next year. Well, there is to be a new Texas Sweetheart No. 1. National fame will be given to some beautiful and gifted girl and she will be featured in the 1939 Casa Manana in Fort Worth with a chance at stardom on stage and screen.

Lon Wolfson, executive director of Casa Manana, and Miss Loretta Jefferson, dancing and costuming director, will hold tests in many cities and towns over the state. Only one girl can be Texas Sweetheart but the other local contest winners will be offered

Stocky, bushy-headed spectacled Maury Maverick spoke in Austin the other night—the first speech the fiery ex-Congressman had made since his come-back through election as San Antonio's mayor. His address bristled with such epigrams as:

"There are two kinds of Democrats—standstill Democrats and go-ahead Democrats." "Constitutional government is your inalienable right to pray, talk and think as you please—and eat regular!"

This and that: The Supreme Court of the United States has reversed the decision of a Texas federal judge and has ruled that the brother of a former governor and an ex-assistant attorney general must face trial on a hot oil charge.

There is one way to get justice for Texas—and that is to turn loose every well in the State; let 'em flow wide open. Then those states and those companies that haven't been doing square with Texas will be glad to yell "Calif ropes!"

Newest rumor around Austin is that James V. Allred may run next year for the United States Senate seat now held by Tom Connally. Allred attended the recent North and East Texas Press convention in Greenville, judged an old fiddlers' contest in Athens and joined a whittlers' club in Houston, according to the papers.

Sally Quilt Club Has Celebration

Members of the Sally Quilting Club celebrated their third anniversary with a picnic near Webb's ranch on May 25th.

The day was enjoyed by fishing and swimming. A few fish were caught. Those bringing in the catch were Donald Clark, Mrs. C. E. Atwood, Mrs. F. A. Lane and Mrs. Jackie Davidson.

At noon lunch was spread beneath large shady trees and such a beautiful lunch. They returned home about five o'clock. Wishing many more anniversaries, Mrs. Webb and son joined them in the afternoon.

The club will meet with Mrs. Mamie Swafford on June 8th.

Methodist W. M. U. Entertain Monday

Members of the Methodist Missionary Society entertained members of other societies in a fifth Monday meeting at the church today afternoon.

The program for the afternoon was as follows: Opening song by the audience. Prayer, by Rev. Paul W. Thrash. Welcome address, Mrs. F. B. Porter, president of the society. Song by Clara Jean and Mary Jane Thrash. Evangelistic talk, Rev. J. D. Smoot. Violin solo, Neal Smith and a song Mrs. G. Underwood.

A social hour followed the program at which time refreshments of ice cream, cake, and lemonade were served to 35 guests.

CARDS OF THANKS

To neighbors and friends who were so kind during the extended loss of our beloved mother we send our profound thanks. The many expressions of sympathy and beautiful flowers proffered following mother's passing will ever linger in our memories as a ray of sunshine during those sad hours. Words fail miserably to convey the appreciation that is on our hearts but our prayer is that each and everyone of you will be blessed abundantly.

Strict Rules For Operation

Garrison. The rules are designed to insure proper illumination of the lake at night, to curb driving, provide for safety, prevent overloading and otherwise protect property.

Boat operators are urged to observe the rules in an effort to halt water accidents which have already taken several lives in Texas this spring.

Col. Homer Garrison, director of the state safety department has announced from Austin that there were 347 drownings in Texas last year, many of them growing directly out of fishing trips.

The Brown County Water Improvement District is authorized under an act of the 44th legislature to enforce rules regarding boats. Authority for such regulation on other bodies of water has been upheld in an opinion by the attorney general, according to Col. Garrison.
