LOCAL WOMAN MEETS TRAGIC DEATH

HOME TOWN GOSSIP

Feeling that business men were better than average interpreters of the news, your columnist prepared a questionnaire interview this week in which the opinions of our local "thinkers" were sought concerning the Italy-Ethiopia controversy, which threatens to become a war.

Five questions were asked. They were:

1. Do you consider the controversy existing between Italy and Ethiopia similar to that in Europe preceding the World War?
2. Do you think these countries will actually go to war?
3. If so, to what extent do you opine the United States will be involved?
4. Are you inclined to sympathize with Italy?
5. Are you inclined to sympathize with Ethiopia?

Many of our local business leaders failed to make any answer at all. Others evaded all but the last two questions. Out of the 25 interviews, one man was found who sympathized with Italy, the remainder who had an opinion at all were in accord with Ethiopia.

The general sentiment, however, was that the United States should remain neutral.

These opinions will, of course, in no way effect or arbitrate the difficulty but it is interesting to note the feeling here.

And now back to the original text of this column—gossip. It is rumored about that "Boots" Harlow has rented a house and is about to take unto himself a bride. A check up with vital agencies and "Boots", however, reveals that the rumor is without foundation. It is merely a hoax at the good natured ice man, which was in all probability started by Ralph Carner and Orba Booth.

We have "Boots" word to the effect that this column will be the first to announce his matrimonial intentions, in the event they become serious.

Margaret Robbins and Charnel Harlow handed this department a choice surprise Friday in slipping off to Coleman and reciting their "I do's".

Two fine kids and here's our choice blessing and sincerest good wishes for many years of happiness.

Melba Mitchell and Gordon Burns also made their sojourn to Hyman's altar without the advance notice of this column. Our only claim to knowledge in this affair was that nearly a year ago we reported the Mitchell-Burns match was "approaching serious proportions."

To Tom Bryant goes this week's nomination for public spiritedness. Wednesday afternoon he selected a bushel of choice elberta peaches from his orchard and brought them to town for refreshments for pedestrians.

A sign "Take One" was placed on the sidewalk, which was situated on the sidewalk, and needless to say, we—fellow street walkers—complied with the request.

This columnist hereby gives notice to all cigaret smokers, from whom we have been bumming "fags" for years, that if they expect our continued "patronage" it will be necessary to purchase only Chesterfields.

Next week we begin an advertising campaign for the makers of that brand and being loyal, to our advertisers, we'll promptly refuse all other kinds.

Here's Warning To Weatherford

Review Photo

Weatherford, DeLeon, Clyde and other towns throughout this section famous for their fruit, melon and berry production, may as well be warned now as later on that the Cross Plains trade territory is rapidly becoming a prosperous orcharding area.

C. M. Garrett orchard, located one mile South of Cross Plains. The tree, laden with fruit, is only about average in yield with others in the orchard. The Garrett fruit farm is only one of the many new orchards in this trade territory beginning profitable yields.

AUTO ACCIDENT IS FATAL MONDAY FOR MRS. WILLIS BROWN

Braving a deluge of rain, one of the largest corteges of friends ever to attend a funeral in Cross Plains assembled at the Baptist church Wednesday afternoon to pay final respects to Mrs. Willis Brown, 42, who was killed in an automobile accident near Nashville, Arkansas, Monday afternoon.

Dr. C. A. Voytes, pastor of the local Baptist church of which Mrs. Brown was a member, officiated. He was assisted by Rev. S. P. Collins.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown left Cross Plains early Monday morning enroute for Glenwood, Arkansas, to visit in the home of Mrs. Everett Herring, who formerly lived here.

The accident occurred about nine miles this side of Nashville. Mr. Brown was driving the car. In front a short distance was a truck which tended to obscure the vision of a steel bridge. Noticing that the car was dangerously close to the bridge Mr. Brown applied the brakes. Loose gravel caused the car to swerve and hit protruding railings broadside. Two of the railings pierced through the right side, one of which struck Mrs. Brown in the head.

Hailing an automobile Mr. Brown rushed his wife to the next town—Mineral Springs—where a physician administered treatment, before taking her on to Nashville. Mrs. Brown succumbed a few minutes after reaching the Nashville hospital.

News of the tragedy reached here shortly after five o'clock Monday afternoon casting a pall over this entire community. Higginbotham funeral coach left immediately for Nashville and returned with the body Tuesday night.

W. R. Wagner, Jr., and Babe Wood left here early Tuesday morning to join Mr. Brown and the funeral party but missed them somewhere in the City limits of Greenville.

Funeral services were held at the Baptist church Wednesday afternoon and interment was made in the Cross Plains cemetery, in a plot adjoining that where Mrs. Brown's parents are buried.

The auditorium of the Baptist church was sufficient to accommodate less than half of the friends who gathered to pay respects to the bereaved family and the woman so publically esteemed. Floral offerings blanketed virtually all of the front center section of the church.

Pall bearers were: W. R. Wagner, Jr., George R. Neel, Oak Lewis, M. G. Underwood, J. T. Freeman and Harlon Lacy, all employees of Higginbotham Brothers and Company here and co-workers with both Mr. and Mrs. Brown. Honorary pall bearers were: Babe Wood, S. R. Jackson, Lewis Placke, Arthur Mitchell, Harlie Neel and Jack Scott.

The flower escort was made up of: Mrs. Babe Wood, Mrs. M. G. Underwood, Mrs. J. E. Henkel, Mrs. J. W. Lacy, Mrs. Arthur Mitchell, Mrs. C. R. Cook, Mrs. Everett Wright, Miss Juanita Vestal, Mrs. S. R. Jackson, Mrs. Louis Helms, Miss Ruth Kemper, Miss Wilda McClain, Miss Louis Placke, and Miss Loreta Vestal.

Mrs. Brown who was before her marriage Miss Eunice Irvine, was a member of one of the oldest families in this section. Besides the husband she is survived by four sisters; Mrs. Harry Vestal, Mrs. Davis Montgomery, Mrs. Ben Pierce, all of Cross Plains, and Mrs. George Forbes, of Cisco; three brothers, Burris Irvin, of near Cross Plains, Lyn Irvin, of Lamb county, and Al Irvin, of Oplin.

Cross Plains business houses closed during the funeral and interment service and Higginbotham Brothers and Company remained closed a full half day.

County Agent Prescribes Riddance For Leaf Worms Which Are Threatening Cotton Crops

"Infestation by leaf worm has become very severe and threatens destruction of the cotton crop," said county Agent Ross B. Jenkins to the Review yesterday, who is issued the following statement.

"This pest is easily controlled, the best method being to use calcium arsenate, otherwise known as arsenate of lime. This is the same material as is ordinarily applied for the control of boll weevil. Under ordinary conditions and where dusting machinery is available, it is applied in dry form. It should be applied in an even dust cloud. 5 pounds per acre will ordinarily be sufficient, although in cotton of large growth it may be necessary to apply 10 lbs. per acre. It should be applied preferably in the early morning while there is dew on the plant, although it is quite effective when applied in midday provided there is no wind. Those who are equipped with some kind of spraying machinery insist that it is more conveniently applied with water as a spray. If this method is preferred, the poison should be mixed with water in the proportion of 3 lbs. to 50 gallons of water. The poison will quickly settle out of this mixture, and while application is being made, the mixture should be kept agitated so as to keep the poison suspended in the water. It should be applied in sufficient quantity merely to get a reasonably even covering of the mixture on the foliage."

Callahan's Centennial Preparations

Men, women, and boys are beginning to lay plans for the Texas Centennial that will be next year. The Dallas News carried the first Callahan demonstrators who had signified their intentions to enter the contest with their county agents. The list includes: Mr. and N. M. George, entire ranch; Mrs. Earl Hays, poultry; Mrs. Harry Berry, yard; Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Nichols, garden; Ovina Black, poultry; W. E. McCollum entire farm;

J. Frank Browning, orchading; J. H. Burkett, nursery; Mrs. G. S. Sherrill, pantry; Mrs. Paul Shanks garden; Gene Finely and Bobby Williams, 4-H Club calves; E. R. Beck, bees; Virgil Jones, Pecans and strawberries.

Bankhead Highway

The Bankhead highway is designated as the Centennial route through Callahan county. It is hoped to especially get farmers on this route to join the group and make their farms the most attractive of any on the routes to Dallas. There are many good prizes being offered for the best demonstrators and Callahan farmers must be among the winners. This agent notices such outstanding places as those owned by the Tyler Brothers near Iona, the Appleton farm near Clyde also the Morgan farm on the turn of the highway from Clyde coming toward Baird. The Ashbury farm near the N. M. George ranch the Finley ranch; the Boatwright ranch; the Dr. Clark farm; and probably others who should be in this contest. The aim is to show the tourists the advantages of Callahan and also to help each home owner to have more beautiful and attractive home surroundings. These are not the only ones who can enter but those along the highway will be especially in the limelight.

Plant Flowers Now for the Centennial

Whether for the centennial or not, those who wish to have pretty flowers for the coming year should plant all perennials now and they will bloom next year. The South is admirably adapted to the growing of the hollyhock and it is a sunloving perennial. It will bloom next year if planted now. Along with it should be planted Shasta Daisies, Sweet William, phlox, hardy pinks, scabiosa, carnation, poppy, golden glow, chrysanthemum gaillardia, fox glove, Japanese iris, and peonies. Anyone wishing other varieties will be given such by asking the county agent. Nothing making akesm]mP oMNVBepw w. es a farm home or city home show to such advantage as well grouped flowers.

Save Callahan's Feed Surplus

Indications now point to the largest feed crop to be grown in Callahan County. Every farmer planted as much feed land as ordinarily planted and probably even more and in addition planted practically every acre known as Government Rented acres. As a result of such planting and with nature giving a bountiful supply of moisture, thousands of tons of feed are going to be raised.

It is the desire of every Extension agent of the state to encourage every pound of this valuable feed to be saved. The first suggestion, and the one that is growing by leaps and bounds in popularity, is the Trench Silo. By this method all the row crops can be saved as no time is given to cure. The crop is cut and put immediately into the silo. It can be put in the silo without being chopped up or cut by a silage cutter as is needed in the regular above ground silo. The bundles are placed lengthwise in the trench and that which has heads should be so placed as to alternate the heads so none will lie directly over each other, each other. In this way when the ensilage is taken from the trench in the Fall or Winter there will be a gradual mixture of grain and forage in each section taken out.

The bundles are stacked in the trench until it is filled to about 6 inches above the level of the ground; straw is then placed over the fill to a depth of about 6 inches, then dirt is piled on to securely seal the top. About a foot of soil will usually be sufficient.

Germany reports that feed so cared for has been in good preservation for 200 years. That is long enough to hold over for any drought in Callahan. This county agent is so anxious that these be made all over the county that any person so wishing to construct one and not understanding the construction he will come out and supervise the building. A bulletin is ready for all wishing it, which explains every step, by calling for it in the office.

Miss Winnifred Barton of Clyde and Mr. Herman Phillips of Baird were entered into the bonds of wedlocks Saturday, July 20, 1935, at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. Will Barton of Clyde. The couple is now on a wedding trip and will return to make their home in Sweetwater where Mr. Phillips has employment. Rev. V. W. Every day people are making applications for loans at the office of M. H. Lester Easterling of Fluvaanna was in Clyde a few days this week visiting his parents and saying hello to old friends.

Oscar Pyeatt and Earl Slater were in San Angelo Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week attending a mail Carriers and Postmasters convention.

The rainfall within the week has amounted to about 1 inch and about an equal amount last week. This is an ideal season for growing anything, but if it keeps on there is no question but that the insects will begin to make inroads on the cotton, but the feed crop seems assured. The rain has been very beneficial to the fruit and truck crops. This is evidenced by the quantity and quality of same being brought in for market.

Milton McClain is spending a few days visiting in Fort Worth.

Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. James Dennis entertained at their home to celebrate the 13th birthday of their son, James Dennis. Games were played on the lawn and cake and ice cream were served to Messrs Tom and Dee McClure, Fanell Cotton, Joe Ross, James Thomas, Dockery and Toots Taylor.

The machinery will be pulled by a 70 horse power motor and the press by a 10 horse power motor. Everything will be electric, and when completed will be the most complete gin in this part of the State. Completion is expected within 30 days or before the cotton begins to move.

State Income Taxes

The State income tax, that chief enemy of the expert intent on ironing out conflicts in tax systems as among the various levels of government, continue to strengthen their hold in the tax structure of the Nation.

The state income tax is being invoked in large measure to make up losses sustained by declines in collections of property taxes, the commission staff points out.

Of the new income-tax laws passed, the corporation tax laws of California and Pennsylvania and revisions in the New York law are of special interest because of the large sums involved.

The Pennsylvania measure impress a 6 per cent tax on income of corporations for two years. The act does not apply to banks or mutual and certain other insurance companies.

An unusual feature of the New York law is the application of the business income tax to unincorporated business at a rate slightly lower than that applying to corporations.

Amendments Explained

Probably chief interest in the August 24th election on the seven proposed Constitutional Amendments will center on Proposition Number 3 on the ballot—the repeal of Prohibition, according to Secretary of State Gerald C. Mann.

The Constitution, at present, prohibits the sale, manufacture and transportation of alcoholic liquors except 3.2 beer. This prohibition would be stricken out by addition of the Repeal Amendment.

The proposed amendment specifically prohibits the return of the open saloon—and it would be up to the Legislature to define the term "open saloon."

No machinery is set up for the sale of liquor. The Legislature would have the authority to determine just who and just how liquor is to be sold. This could be done by State monopoly or through private channels.

If the amendment is adopted all counties, cities and precincts that were dry in 1919 when statewide prohibition was adopted would be dry now—at least until local option elections were held determine otherwise.

It is well to remember, Secretary Mann points out, that there will be an election next year in November to determine whether the State shall sell liquor through a State Monopoly system. If the repeal amendment is adopted in August the State May establish a state control and monopoly system.

Cream and Blue

Lovers of the dainty and the decorative will welcome the news that Texas automobile license plates next year will be blue letters on a field of cream.

Just why the highway commission abandoned the practice of alternating the colors of Texas University and A.&M.—the latter holds the current honors with its maroon and white—was not stated.

But the he-man state of Texas will find itself, in its centennial year, with a color scheme of cream and blue. Hot-dog! And do have another cup of tea.

Hardened Arteries Normal arteries are soft, elastic and responsive to every impulse whether of food, drink, emotion or toxin.

It is no less than disaster when arteries become hardened from any cause, though few people who live long escape some degree of "arteriosclerosis."

I saw a man of most exemplary habits all his life, achieve his octogenarian degree and pass it, whose arteries seemed as hard as sticks.

Alcohol and tobacco are credited with causing hardened arteries. Your family doctor is the only man within your reach, who can tell you accurately of your condition and guide you safely.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Rev. Charles E. Dunn Lesson for July 28th. Amos 7:7-17 Golden Text: Amos 5:24.

Amos preached during the prosperous reign of Jeroboam II, who ruled Israel from 783 to 743 B. C.

To such a care-free, self-satisfied populace Amos, the rough shepherd of Tekoa, came with a stern, uncompromising message of doom.

No wonder he was unpopular! For his message ran counter to all the cherished convictions of his hearers.

Lovers of the dainty and the decorative will welcome the news that Texas automobile license plates next year will be blue letters on a field of cream.

How greatly we need prophets of Amos' fibre today! How modern and timely is his message! Our times call loudly for prophetic denunciation in his realistic, forthright style.

The Story of the Constitution by CALEB JOHNSON

THE SEED FROM WHICH GREW THE CONSTITUTION

Somehow the states struggled through the first five years of the Revolution under their loose and ineffective alliance, centering in the Continental Congress.

The Articles of Confederation were ratified by the thirteen states in 1781. The smaller states, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Maryland and Delaware, had held back, fearing that the other states, all of whom claimed territorial, rights extending westward to the Mississippi River, would dominate by their mere size.

Under this new form of government each State remained completely independent. Congress could act only on:

- 1. Declaring war or peace, and superintending the conduct of war. 2. Building a navy. 3. Controlling diplomatic relations. 4. Coining money and emitting bills of credit. 5. Establishing Post Offices. 6. Regulating trade with the Indians. 7. Adjusting boundary disputes between the States.

It is almost past understanding how women can remain loyal to husbands who prove to be bandits of the worst type. Probably they each have a great deal of respect for the other, but for some reason a sudden attachment has sprung between members of two virulent species at the Gene's Tire shop. The two are a rattlesnake and a Black Widow spider.

Nothing did. The spider simply crawled over the snake with persistent devotion to his sinuous, scaly body and the snake endured the affectionate attention without a hint of displeasure, attention without a hint of displeasure, even when the spider walked over its head.

Livius left the two together Saturday night. He was waiting to see what would happen by Sunday morning. (Cisno Citizen Free Press)

W. R. Yowell, minister of the Graham Street Church of Christ, was confronted with somewhat of a problem Wednesday morning. A young man and woman came to him and conveyed the impression that it was their heart's desire to travel down the turbulent sea of matrimony together.

All of which is natural and human, but the problem arose when it was learned that both the prospective bride and groom were deaf and dumb. But Mr. Yowell, who is quite a resourceful evangelist, was equal to the occasion and wrote the ring ceremony on paper. The wedding took place at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning at the home of the bride's parents.

The newlyweds are Lewis Draper of Parker county and Miss Ida Clark, Stephenville.

The DIVORCE COURT MURDER

By MILTON PROPPER

Seventh Instalment

SYNOPSIS—Six persons are in an inner office of the law firm of Dawson, McQuire and Locke at Philadelphia. A master hearing in the divorce case of Rowland vs. Rowland is under way. Mrs. Rowland, represented by her lawyer brother, Mr. Willard; Mr. Rowland, the defendant, and his attorney, Mr. Trumbull; the court clerk and Mr. Dawson, the master, are the six persons. There is a new development in the case. After failing to defend himself against the charge of adultery in earlier hearings, Mr. Rowland digs up evidence and asks the court's permission to produce witnesses and resist the suit. Judge Dawson overrules the heated objections of Mr. Willard, and orders Mr. Trumbull to bring in the first witness. Mr. Trumbull has just gone to an outer office to bring the witness.

NOW, GO ON WITH THE STORY

According to the Court reporter's record, that was all he said—namely, that at 11:30, a stranger who Mr. Willard later informed him was Mortimer Keith, husband of the murdered woman, appeared unexpectedly from the hall, looked about as though puzzled and then left quickly without a word.

To Rankin, now, the incident was of utmost significance. Months before it could even have been conjectured that his murdered wife would be a leading witness to Mrs. Rowland's own infidelities, Mr. Keith had been present at the scene of Rowland's apprehension! What could his interest in that intrigue possibly have been? How was he apprised of the rendezvous at the Inn, and what did he expect to find there?

Instinctively, Rankin perceived that an immediate answer to these questions was essential to the solution of the crime. Going to the office door, he called Jenks to summon Miss Edmond.

When the secretary appeared, he motioned her to a seat and returned to the lawyer's swivel chair.

"Sit down, Miss Edmond," he said brusquely. "You know, of course, that I have charge of the investigation of this crime. I am questioning everyone connected with the divorce hearing. You are the correspondent, I believe; I suppose then that you recall all that happened the night of Wednesday, February first, at the Sunset Inn."

Perfectly composed, the girl smiled quietly. "Yes, quite clearly, she admitted freely. 'I could hardly forget it as I was unfortunately involved.'"

"You've also been told," the detective pursued, "that the dead woman is Mrs. Keith—Mrs. Mortimer Keith. Are you acquainted with her or her husband?"

Though Jill Edmond's tone did not change, he caught an expression of wariness in her gaze before she could veil it.

"No, not personally, Mr. Rankin. As Mrs. Rowland's secretary, I never had occasion to deal with them. Of course, I've vaguely heard of them as people prominent in Philadelphia society."

"I have here the complete story of the—er—escapade at the Inn," Rankin tapped Mr. Simpkins stenographic report. "Among other facts it states that at eleven-thirty just after Mrs. Rowland invaded the bedroom, Mr. Keith arrived and entered behind her. At least, you remember that?"

As he paused, the girl merely nodded, her very silence an indication of her vigilance.

"What I want to learn, Miss Edmond, is why he appeared like that. How was he connected with this affair between you and the Rowlands?"

The secretary shook her head. "I don't think I can tell you that, sir," she answered. "I don't know why he came. In fact, he was a total stranger to me until some time later Allen—Mr. Rowland identified him as Mortimer Keith."

"Surely he must have offered some explanation for his intrusion into an embarrassing domestic scene in which he had no concern Rankin pressed.

"I don't believe he said a word," Miss Edmond returned. He didn't remain over a minute; he just came in from the hall and looked about then he seemed to realize he was meddling and turned and went out silently."

Rankin sensed that she chose her words carefully. "You have no idea what brought him to that particular place at that time?"

Imperceptibly the secretary hesitated, but her reply was positive and direct.

"Not the least Mr. Rankin. He probably had no reason. If he happened to be stopping at the Inn that night, he couldn't help coming forward when he heard the commotion."

The detective placed small stock in this idea.

He retired to the library where Dr. Sackett waited, impatient to present his report and get away. His examination of the body confirmed Dr. Clark's original diagnosis.

"Thanks very much, doctor," Rankin said, when the physician completed his summary. "Now, I'd appreciate it if you'd do one more service for me before you leave. Attend to shipping the body to the morgue."

Grumbling, Dr. Sackett nevertheless proceeded to supervise the disposal of the corpse. Hardly had he gone when Johnson appeared from 1505, trying his fingerprint kit together.

"I'm just about finished in there, Tommy," he said. "I've located plenty of prints all over the place, on the table, the desk and the bookcase. All I need now is to find out who owns them."

"Well, I've had the entire staff detained," Rankin returned, "so you can take their prints. And practically every visitor who entered fifteen-o-five is here too. Get Jenks to help you with that." He paused. "How about marks on the doors and windows, Johnson, Did any come from there?"

The expert shook his head. "Nothing doing, I'm sorry to say. I examined the sills and knobs thoroughly, but they were as clean as a whistle."

"And the chloroform bottle? Were there any prints on that?" Again Johnson shook his head and the detective pursed his lips in disappointment.

The expert raised a hand and smiled quizzically. "One moment, Tommy, not so fast. Have you searched the office that held the body at all?"

"No, I haven't had time," Rankin replied.

I made a pretty complete canvass of the place while collecting my prints; and I located something I supposed you had missed. These were stuffed way down in the bottom of the wastebasket under the desk—out of sight."

Johnson produced a pair of yellow sport suede gloves, of expensive quality. Turning back the cuff, the detective disclosed the label of an exclusive haberdashery on Chestnut Street. They were clean and little worn and he eagerly noted their size, 7.

The expert started to leave. "All right, Tommy, I'll do the best I can," he promised. "I rather expected you'd be interested in my find."

Now he returned to Mr. Dawson's office, switched on the central light and summoned Allen Rowland.

He motioned the young man to a chair. "Now I'm ready to discuss more important matters with you," he said; "primarily about your evidence of your wife's infidelity with Campbell."

Rowland made himself comfortable, lit a cigarette and offered Rankin one.

"My lawyer doesn't know anything about it personally," he returned easily. "Only what Mrs. Keith and I were lucky enough to discover two weeks ago; we both went to him and gave him the details."

"Well, exactly what was this occurrence that gave you the chance to defend? And how did Mrs. Keith happen to be a witness to it?"

"Only accidentally; when I needed some one to hear out my story, she was fortunately in a position to help me." Rowland plunged into his account. "But long before my affair with Miss Edmond, my wife and I disagreed because of her friendships with other men. I knew she had many admirers; but I had no reason to believe she was misbehaving with any of them. After she brought suit, however I moved into my own apartments and began to watch her closely. What was sauce for the goose, I decided, was sauce for the gander and I hoped, in the end, to get evidence that she was being unfaithful. I was my own detective. First, I paid her chauffeur, Donald Finley, to keep me posted as to when she went out in the evening—both when he drove her himself, and when she dismissed him, because some one else was taking her. On those nights, for the last two months, I waited outside the estate in my car. When she and her visitor left, I would follow them all over town—to parties, theaters and dinners. And Hugh Campbell was her most frequent companion."

"How long has he been acquainted with your wife?" Rankin asked. "Where did they meet?"

"At Saratoga last summer. Adele bets on the races regularly, and Campbell had a couple of horses entered on which she placed bets. They won, and afterward mutual acquaintances introduced them; that was the beginning. Then, last winter, we were at Palm Beach where he had taken a villa; she attended his parties and they saw much of each other at the casino and on the beach. He visited Philadelphia fairly regularly and has been a guest at the Willard home."

"Was the divorce entirely Mrs. Rowland's wish? You opposed it and would have done all in your power to prevent it?"

The young man spread his hands to emphasize his reply. "Certainly I opposed it," he declared vehemently. "I had everything to lose by it—the income Adele settled on me, plenty of leisure, and social position. And I was trustee of my wife's first husband's estate; that was most important. For that I was as anxious to stay married as Willard was to force us apart."

Rankin's voice held a note of fresh interest. "Mr Willard? How did it affect him? Had he a personal concern in the divorce besides his professional desire to win the case?"

"He benefited by it decidedly!" Rowland gave a short, scornful laugh. "The minute Adele was single, the executorship of Tom Marshall's estate—and with it the power to manage its income—reverted to him. But as long as the marriage lasted, I had charge. It was all part of Marshall's clever arrangement to make it difficult for Adele to marry a second time."

"Difficult?" The detective frowned his perplexity. "You'll have to explain, Mr. Rowland. How did he expect to accomplish such a purpose?"

The other shrugged. "Quite simply, through his will, Rankin. You see, Tom Marshall was a smart man and understood his wife as well as I do. And a jealous husband. It seemed inevitable that at his death she would marry again and he intended to forestall that. So in his will, he fixed it that whoever she married next would be independent of her. In fact, he would actually manage her financial affairs and, through them, her at least with regard to his property."

"Exactly what did the terms of the will provide?" Rankin inquired.

On July 16th, death claimed for its victim our good friend, Dr. R. E. Longbotham. He was 41 years of age, was a true Christian, belonging to the Baptist Church.

He was always at his post, always kind to his family and everyone ready to lend a helping hand to those in need. He had many friends who will mourn his loss—weep not dear ones he has gone on before.

It is in Heaven since he lingers there.

And you oh you who will always yearn for the sound of his voice that will never return.

Think of him sleeping peaceful in a land so fair, where Jesus and the Angels will always care.

He slumbers on through the break of dawn.

For there is peace, comfort and joy where he has gone. We will miss his voice, and his foot step dear, for when in trouble he was ever near.

He was ever ready for that was his creed.

To lend a helping hand to those in need.

He has answered the great call that came from above,

He has gone home to Jesus to dwell in a land of love.

And now he is there in a land of rest.

TRAFFIC DRIVING PROVES AMAZING "LIFT" in SINCLAIR H-C GASOLINE say

Dealers, Motorists. For quicker pick-ups and more miles per gallon you need a gasoline with extra power. In engineering terms, a single gallon of Sinclair H-C Gasoline has the potential energy to lift 99 million pounds one foot in the air—the equivalent of lifting a 75-ton whale 660 feet.

What this amazing "lift" means in extra power for your car has been shown in automobile road tests. These tests proved H-C gives 15% to 20% more smooth power and from 1 to 3 more miles per gallon.

Ceaseless hammering on the same spot helps win prize fights—it is the essence of advertising success. Not until enough individuals in the same neighborhood have been sufficiently saturated with a certain slogan, say, to cause them to react on one another does advertising become a social phenomenon.

The modern business man realizes that his best customers wear out at a rate of nearly 3 per cent per year. Advertising-made prospects disappear far faster. Casual impressions, however favorable, dry like dew in the heat of competition.

"Cumulative" effects of advertising come not from one advertising paving the way for another. This is negligible, to say the least. Cumulative effect, on the contrary, comes from salvaging as customers half finished prospects.

Each advertiser is in much the same plight. If he loses money. If he quits unsuccessful, he tosses away an equity in public recognition far more valuable than the money: So many thousand partly manufactured customers. The second group are spending as little money as they can and still keep their names before the public. They believe themselves wise spenders because they spend so very cautiously—or perhaps reluctantly is a better word—The bald truth is that these reluctant spenders are, as a class, the real over spenders in advertising.

THRILLS APLENTY IN "OLD SANTA FE"

Ken Maynard, in his latest action-thriller, "In Old Santa Fe" will be offered at this theatre for 2 days beginning next Friday and Saturday. It is with pleasure that we tell you this for it is our firm belief that this is by far the best picture Maynard has ever made and that's going some.

"In Old Santa Fe" has everything that the thrill seeker looks for and to break the breath taking sequences here and there a delightful love story has been interwoven into the pot with beautiful Evalyn Knapp as the girl of Ken's heart.

Among some of the many outstanding thrills in "In Old Santa Fe" might be mentioned the hair-raising cross country horse race with the cowboys risking their necks to win; the blood-chilling fist battle between Ken and the "menace" from the East; the fast-riding and the almost human intelligence of Ken's wonder horse, Tarzan.

In addition to Ken Maynard, Tarzan the wonder horse and Evalyn Knapp, the supporting cast includes H. B. Warner, Wheeler Oakman, Kenneth Thomson and George Hayes, the latter as "Cactus" a delightful characterization.

LETTER BOX

Cross Plains, Texas

Editor Cross Plains Review,
Cross Plains, Texas.

Self-confidence is one of the basic requirements, along with industry, hope, desire, ambition and understanding, it is acquired by a man having the proper proportion of all of the latter qualities. It can only be had when one enjoys individual liberty and independence. To have confidence we must have faith in the good Earth, the laws of nature and the progress of mankind. If we have no confidence in our governing bodies life is untenable, if the government places no confidence in her people, its subjects, her rule is intolerable. Just in the proportion that we believe in one-another, is our business relations pleasant and profitable. Mutual confidence between the governing and the governed, today is at the lowest ebb since the Dark Ages.

Ninety nine percent of all laws passed in this country in the last fifteen years have been in restraint of individual liberty and there has been from five to fifteen hundred at every session of every legislature. Every law is a glaring announcement to the World that the law makers have no confidence honesty, integrity or ability of the people. Every good citizen is legislated against as if he were a criminal, and even his signature is not accepted except under oath. Today I talked with a man cutting flowers and weed along the highway, (it is all right for the Highway Commission to cut the wild flowers by the ton on the highway, but if I should pluck so much as a single daisy I have committed a crime). The weed cutter said, "This is the first year I have been made to take an oath." I asked the nature of the oath. He replied "what do you mean?" I said why did they make you take an oath, what did you swear to do. "Oh," he replied I do not know! Ponder that if you please; forced to take an oath and does not know why. That the case can you imagine any good it done? I cannot. I do not know why I am forced to swear to every fool report I send to Austin, and there are many, and every one of them is just as necessary to our well-being as the Weed Cutter's oath. Of course our swearing interferes much more with business than his, because he only had to take an hour or two to hunt a notary to take his acknowledgement, and twenty five cents, in a year, and we have to do it every week.

The remarkable thing is that we have any self-confidence or confidence in our fellow man, left. We have very little confidence in our governing body the feeling is entirely mutual there.
