Scores of other local boys are in the various branches of the service stationed along both the East and West coast, as well as many in camps in all parts of the nation. It was impossible, however, to learn the role that each is playing in the recent emergency. The purpose of this story was to tell as accurately as possible the names and assignments of those in the "hot spots" created by the recent outbreak of war, particularly those located in the Pacific. The magnitude of the task of learning what each of the boys is doing is so great that it is highly possible that the Review staff has over-looked several who are playing important roles in the defense of their country, however, additions to this story will be carried from time to time in the Review, as the old home town paper Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Price and makes a serious effort to keep its what local boys are doing.
