USO Executives To Banquet In Baird Friday ANY USE IT MAY BE TO WAR DEPARTMENT

Baird Leaders Compiling Information On Other Tracts For Studying

A tract of land of approximately 1,000 acres between Atwell and Scranton, in Callahan county, has been mapped and briefed and sent to the war department in Washington. Although very little authentic information regarding plans is available, rumor has it that there is a slight possibility of some type of air training field being located in that vicinity. The Cisco Chamber of Commerce and the Texas & Pacific railroad are known to have worked together in preparing the

The Callahan county luncheon club at Baird also named a committee last week to get up data on some tract of land in the Baird trade area for submission to Washington. It is pointed out that so many training fields are being built and since Callahan county is strategically located, something might be 'dropped" here as a bonanza if the proper information is on file with the war department.

Water supply is believed to be a vital factor in receiving military grants for it is known that the government requires 100 gallons of water per man per day. On the other hand it is pointed out that in some cases where the supply of water has been found inadequate the government has built its own reservoirs and lakes. Such was the case at Killeen, the Review is told.

Many people feel that due to the fact that Callahan county is located virtually equidistant between Camp Bowie and Camp Barkeley that the strategic location might be advantageous in securing a military Baccalaureate service for gradu- grant of some nature. Harvest Seed from Spring Pastures Faces with a shortage of commercial grass seed, it is most important for farmers to harvest home-grown rescue and rye grasses, and any of M. College Extension Service.

"Pasture, which provides the highest quality food at lowest cost and with least labor," he explains, "is imperative to produce meat and milk products for the armed forces and civilian population abundantly and economically. The only substitutes for grass are expensive grains and proteins. More and long or grazing by mature animals saves grain and cottonseed meal for growing and fattening young stock, and for poultry." Pasture seed most needed and of highest value risens in April and May, As seed will shatter when too mature, it should be harvested at the earliest date possible. Some green and moist seed may get in, and care will be necessary to prevent heating and molding in the curing. Small quantities may be harvested with hand strippers, or by stripping with hands alone. Rescue grass seed, especially sensitive to moisture, should be spread out an inch or so deep and turned daily for at least two weeks. The same method may be used in burs and vines are dry. Vines may be gathered with a horserake with or without mowing, and burs with large stable brooms when pods are thoroughly dry. Raking and sweeping is another way to get rescue and rye grass seed for home use. Generally, white dutch clover is harvested by mowing with a woodrow attachment on the cutterbar and allowed to cure before thresh-

A fish story, a little late, but still of interest is that of Jake and Hardy Strickland, in which the "big fish got away." Jack Brown agrees with the fishermen that it must have been an enormus fish, since they both pulled on the line together and the only result they got was to get themselves all wet as the water boiled up in their faces and the big fish went its way. Jack says they will both agree they can lift 75 pounds each and so judging the fish must have weighed one hundred and fifty pounds or more!

Our Problems - - and Your Problems -

Through the Air Through the air-through the mails-by word-from man to man- you hear day by day of Government regulations restricting the purchase-and sale of various merchandise items.

Uninterrupted Flow of Merchandise

From this seeming confusion of Government regulations-many have formed the opinion that they cannot purchase their daily merchandise needs. To the contrary, we are fully prepared to meet your requirements - almost 100% - and too at surprisingly low prices considering present unsettled conditions.

Frozen on Our Floors While there are many articles in staple merchandise which have been withdrawn from the market-many now on our floor-but not offered for sale at any price ... yet the great bulk of our stocks are for unrestricted sale at prices which will please you.

Great Stock of New Merchandise You'll find here our usual full stocks of seasonal merchandise in Dry Goods - Ladies' Wear - Shoes -Men's New Clothing - Furniture, etc. Read our advertisements in The Review each week giving details of our seasonal offerings of choicest merchandise from our various departments. You'll appreciate our merchandise - and our fair prices. We will appreciate your continued patronage.
