Nature Program Coming

Area residents interested in wildlife observation in general and birds in particular are invited to a meeting at the Clarendon Library at 2:00 p.m., Saturday, March 4, 1995. The meeting will feature a talk by Kenneth Seyffert of Amarillo, who is affiliated with the National Audubon Society. For more information call 874-3271.

Time to Feed and Weed Lawn

Donley County residents who want the best-looking lawn need to start now. This is the time to fertilize and apply herbicide, especially for early-season grasses. So far this winter has been relatively mild, so there is likely to be an insect problem this coming spring and summer. This is a good time to visit with your lawn and garden supplier, to plan how to deal with six-legged chewers and suckers.

CPR Class Offered

The Clarendon EMS announces that a CPR class will be offered. This class will be on March 16, at the Fire Station and will begin at 7:00 p.m. Anyone interested may attend. There is no charge for the class, but donations to the EMS will be accepted.

Family Sermons Scheduled

A series of messages focusing on the family will be preached beginning February 26, at the Clarendon Church of the Nazarene by Pastor Grady Roundtree, Each Sunday morning for the next five weeks, a different aspect of the family will be centered upon. This week's message will be entitled "Questions to the Married". Baby Day will also be celebrated February 26; the family with the youngest baby will be given a gift.

Today's modern marriage is on unsteady foundations. Psychologists and marriage experts often have conflicting opinions that change frequently. The only reliable and solid foundation for marriage is God's word. Scripture connects marriage with the most important relationships of all—our spiritual unity with God. God's faithfulness to us is our model for faithfulness in marriage. Pastor Roundtree invites all: The married parents, The single parents, and those planning for marriage to attend this series on the family. The Church is located at Third and Hawley.

Bike-A-Thon on the Way

Memphis, TN--St. Jude Children's Research Hospital has announced plans for the Clarendon "Wheels for Life" Bike-A-Thon to be held on May 20, 1995. Mrs. Gail Tuttle will serve as coordinator of the event and encourages all residents to support this important community effort.

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, founded in 1962 by the late entertainer Danny Thomas, is the largest non-profit childhood cancer research center in America in terms of the number of patients treated and treatment success. All findings and information gained at the hospital are shared freely with doctors and hospitals all over the world. Thanks to St. Jude Hospital, children who have leukemia, Hodgkin's disease, sickle-cell anemia, and other child-killing diseases now have a better chance to live.

This year's Bike-A-Thon poster child, eight-year-old Shauna Richters, represents all of the patients treated at St. Jude's. Shauna was diagnosed with Wilms' tumor, a malignant growth on her kidney, in December, 1990. Shauna is in remission from her cancer and completed her chemotherapy in June, 1991. She is doing well and returns to the hospital every six months for checkups. Shauna celebrated her last chemotherapy treatment with a present she had eagerly looked forward to: a new bike.

All residents and businesses are encouraged to lend their support to the hospital by making a contribution or by becoming a rider.

THE MEDICAL CENTER PRESENTS 1995 Valentine Prince; Fred Patterson and Valentine King; Neil Smith. Resident's enjoyed candies, cookies, fudge, popcorn and punch.

BS* Bob's Scribbles

The Case of the Rising Paper

The first hint of coming wonders occurred in January of 1994. That was when The Clarendon News got a letter from the Texas Natural Resources Conservation Commission stating that all newsprint used for printing 1993 newspapers would have to contain X percent recycled paper. Now since the last newspaper of 1993 had been printed and mailed a couple of weeks before the Commission wrote their letter, it looked as though complying with this ex post facto regulation might be a little bit difficult.

Fortunately the fine folks who print the paper resolved that problem. They were already using paper with 5 percent more recycled content than required by the regulators.

It was tempting to jump on the bureaucrats at the Texas Natural Resources Conservation Commission for requiring people to do something after it was too late to do it. But they were simply doing what Washington required.

The mandates originated in Congress, and they continue in force today. Every year, for several years to come, your Clarendon News will have to be printed on paper that has a higher and higher recycled content. And every ton of recycled paper saves several dozen trees. Everyone should like that, even the termites.

Now it would appear that the direct and logical way to encourage recycling would be to end the government subsidies and tax loopholes that reward industry for cutting new trees when they could be utilizing waste paper. That is not how Washington proceeded, however. Congress passed legislation mandating recycled content while leaving the subsidies and tax write-offs in place for the big paper oligopoly.

The paper company built a new $30 million plant to make paper from paper, and then turned around and raised the price of newsprint by a big percentage. Yes, it is cheaper to make paper from paper than to make paper from trees, but isn't this new regulation a dandy excuse for a price hike!

Now prices at the printing plant have increased. And next time you buy an ad, it will cost a little bit more, too.

Who is the bad guy in this story? Good question. The tree huggers are right to object to the wasteful use of pulpwood when landfills are filling up with paper. The congressmen and senators in Washington did not want to offend either the paper industry or the environmentalists. The paper companies want to recover their costs as quickly as possible because there is no predicting what Washington will do next. The printer's biggest cost is newsprint, so he had no choice but to go up. The newspaper's biggest cost is printing, so the paper had no choice either.

Nobody gets a Nobel prize for brilliance on this one. But not all the news about the paper situation is bad news.

The WWII generation had to pay a large economic and social price for the ruthless extraction and processing by the Robber Barons in the late 19th Century. The baby boomers are now paying for the costs of putting scrubbers on factory smokestacks and building settling ponds behind the foundries that won WWII, as well as for the jobs lost when many of those facilities were closed instead of modernized.

Now, maybe—just maybe—this present muddling will leave the next generation a little bit less cleanup work.

Oh, something else. The experts say that the cost of paper should decline in a few years, as soon as the cost of the new equipment is paid. I'm not sure I believe that. But I still hope it's true.

Soup to Nuts

Here is a chocoholic version of the Red Velvet Cake. It's easy to make and less expensive than the Red one.

Brown Velvet Cake

- 1 Milk Chocolate Cake Mix
- 1/3 cup cocoa
- 4 eggs
- 1/3 cup oil
- 1 1/4 cup buttermilk
- 2 tsp. cinnamon

Mix everything together and bake in prepared 9" layer cake pans for 25-30 minutes or until done at 350 degrees. Cool 10 minutes in pans and turn onto racks to cool completely before frosting.

Brown Velvet Frosting

- 3 Tbs. flour
- 1 Tbs. cocoa
- 1 tsp. cinnamon
- 1 cup milk

Mix using a wire whip in a small saucepan and cook over medium heat until thick and smooth. Cool to lukewarm.

- 2 sticks oleo
- 1 cup granulated sugar
- 1 Tbs. vanilla

Beat with electric mixer until light and fluffy. Add the cooled mixture above and whip until it is the consistency of whipped cream. Will generously frost the two layer cake above.

Your patience in waiting for the flour and milk concoction to cool is essential to success. Impatience will be rewarded with disaster!

The extras added to the cake mix result in a much more moist cake which has a more compact texture than if you made the cake by package directions.

If you are looking for a recipe or would like to see one of yours in print, come by the newspaper office in Clarendon, or drop a line to Lynne Williams, Box 807, Clarendon, TX 79226.

COMMUNITY QUIZ

10 Signs of a Safe, Secure City; How Does Yours Rate?

(NU) - People all across America are concerned about safety in their communities — but what constitutes a "healthy," safe community?

Councilwoman-at-Large Carolyn Long Banks of Atlanta, president of the National League of Cities, says "respect and responsibility" are two key ingredients.

The following is a list of 10 elements compiled by the NLC that make up a healthy, secure community. How many does yours contain?

1. Strong and loving families with high expectations for their children's personal and community behavior.

2. Education that prepares students to perceive their responsibility toward the community and individuals within it.

3. Streets, parks, public facilities and shopping areas that are safe, clean, well-lighted and provide adequate parking.

4. A variety of activities for local citizens and visitors that are exciting, intelligent, wholesome alternatives to boredom, vandalism and violence.

5. Neighborhoods that take friendly pride in themselves. Plus a public works philosophy that engenders neighborhood pride with excellent attention to cleanliness, maintenance, design and safety.

6. Emergency services and disaster relief plans that are coordinated and work quickly when a crisis occurs.

7. Workplaces that are healthful and promote safety.

8. A steady supply of decent and rewarding jobs, with opportunities for increased personal skills, fulfillment or wages.

9. People who agree among themselves to obey and uphold the laws, combined with laws that are fair and criminal justice that is both prompt and fair.

10. A community strategy with positive public safety goals to make people stakeholders and give them something to work for, rather than against.

The new NLC "Rethinking Public Safety" report provides dozens of helpful ideas about how the leaders and citizens of America's communities can rethink public safety to improve the quality of city life.

The 30-page report is available for purchase by calling 301-725-4299.

Strategies for Safer Communities

- Understand that public safety is an individual, family and social responsibility, not just city hall's job.
- Emphasize that both enforcement and prevention are necessary and each can incorporate elements of the other.
- Realize that behaviors are learned, and the United States has more violent crime than other industrialized nations.
- Establish policies and publicity that promote strong families and friendly, stable communities.

Facts or Feelings

The best business manager I ever worked for, said the best decisions are made using facts, not feelings. To make good decisions you must set aside personal prejudices and personalities, and have access to accurate information.

Over the years, we have consulted with, and provided training to thousands of business men and women. A common characteristic of the most successful owners and managers is their ability to make good decisions. Most of them can separate the facts from their opinions and thoughts.

Information, knowledge and facts are the foundation of good decision making. You've often heard someone lament, "Oh, if I'd only known then what I know now." Usually, they utter this statement after a plan or decision produces negative results.

The premise that we should base our best decisions on facts, is

Postal Service Warns of Scam

The U.S. Postal Service is hiring for full time and part time employment. Hourly salaries start at $25 an hour. For employment information, call 800-555-5555."

Postal inspector Linda Kirksey of Fort Worth warns that if you call these promoters, you are likely to get clipped. In most instances, you find out that you are going to have to pay about $30 to receive information of dubious value. They may lead you to think you are talking to someone from the U.S. Postal Service, but no postal jobs will be offered.

Frequently, the con artists promoting this service offer to provide you with training which is supposed to help you pass a required entrance examination. Further, graduates are often promised placement in postal service jobs upon successful completion of the training. This training will cost extra money for tuition and books.

Postal inspectors say that other promoters offer job opportunities that guarantee that you will be placed on a register with the postal service from which new hires will be selected. Beware of any opportunity to get postal jobs which costs you money.

Inspector Kirksey also warns the public to beware of the enticement of fantastic salaries and benefits which seem too good to be true. For accurate information about application procedures for jobs with the U.S. Postal Service, call your local Postmaster. It won't cost you a dime.

especially easy to prove in the area of financial management. We've monitored dozens of businesses in recent months. We find that the more they know the better they grow.

Knowledge increases profits

Recently, a small-business owner pointed out that as he learned more about his business his profits kept improving. Another savvy owner said she increased her profits by more than 10 percent last year simply by learning to read and understand her financial statements. Without exception, we've found that knowledge leads to higher profits and better decision making.

In many areas of business you must make some decisions without all the facts. You don't always have the luxury of waiting until you know. However, even in these areas the more you know the more easily you can blend your experience, wisdom and facts into solid decisions.

In the area of financial management there is little excuse not to have the facts you need. Every business has the opportunity to gather basic operational information and to organize that information effectively. Not all do, and that is often the difference between success and failure.

Small business assistance focus of state office

Where can small businesses go for information on financing and training resources?

Small businesses always want to know who can help them and how. The Texas Department of Commerce's Office of Small Business and Community Economic Development is the answer. The OSB/CED offers assistance ranging from information and referrals to financing and training. With 97 percent of Texas' businesses having fewer than 100 employees, it is the office's job to advocate for this vital segment of the state's economy.

The U.S. Department of Labor estimates that small businesses are creating 80 percent of the nation's jobs. Because these businesses often need training and development assistance, Commerce advocates and collaborates with Small Business Development Centers and other statewide service providers to better serve the state's 400,000 small businesses. The OSB/CED also focuses on community economic development and conducts regional workshops on topics pertinent to small businesses.

Information is a key growth necessity, and small businesses can access the information highway with TEXAS-ONE. This on-line service is accessed through the Internet, and offers a quality-checked menu of state, national, and global information services of value to small businesses and communities. The Internet address is: gopher.texas-one.org. Small businesses without access to the Internet can receive assistance from Texas Small Business Development Centers statewide.

Financial assistance is available through programs such as Commerce's Linked Deposit Program, Capital Certified Development Program, SBA 504 Loan Program, Texas Capital Fund Small Business Incubator Program, and Texas Exporters Loan Program.

The OSB/CED works with business service providers throughout Texas to identify appropriate resources, development tools, financing options, or general hands-on help. A team is also available to help with obtaining required licenses and permits. For more information, contact Commerce's OSB/CED at 512/936-0296.

The Texas Department of Commerce's mission is to serve its customers by building partnerships that create economic opportunity and prosperity for all Texans. Business Matters is provided as a free service. If you have any questions about Commerce's programs and services, send them to:

Texas Commission On Children And Youth

Austin-With juvenile crime escalating at an alarming rate, it is clear that many children and youth in Texas are troubled or in trouble. But the Texas Commission on Children and Youth, after a year-long study and statewide public hearing, believes it has some answers.

The Commission, chaired by Senator Jim Turner (D-Crockett), has just released its recommendations to help stem the rising tide of juvenile crime by improving conditions for Texas' young people. In its 262-page report entitled "Safeguarding Our Future: Children and Families First," the Commission has laid out a blueprint for addressing the root causes of juvenile crime, strengthening the juvenile justice system, and changing the way children and youth receive services in Texas.

"We cannot ignore the fact that many of our problems with juvenile offenders are rooted in poor schooling, child abuse and neglect, and family violence," Senator Turner said.

With one in four children living in poverty, the seventh highest dropout rate in the nation, and more than a quarter of a million children involved in child abuse or neglect investigation last year, the Commission concluded that Texas is failing to meet the needs of its youngest citizens. The costs of not meeting these needs is enormous in the long run, the Commission said.

The 18-member Commission, composed of legislators and public citizens. The group advocated statutory changes to ensure swift and certain punishment and longer sentences for violent and habitual offenders. But they also point out that this alone will not solve the problem of increasing juvenile crime.

"The juvenile justice system is forced to deal with a host of problems that go well beyond juvenile crime," said Representative Allen Hightower, Commission Vice-Chairman and Chairman of the House Correction Committee. "We must so more on the front end to stop the flow of youth entering out criminal justice system," he said.

Though many problems are similar across the state, the Commission found that local communities were in the best position to determine the needs of their children and families and how to meet those needs. The Commission recommends establishing county-level Commissions on Children and Families, which could take on more authority and decision-making in planning and delivering services to children and families.

Recognizing fiscal constraints, the Commission made two sets of proposals. The long-term "wish list" includes more than $1 billion in human service programs to improve conditions for children in the state.

The second proposal recommends increased funding in three key areas:

$50 million in matching grants for local prevention and early intervention programs for children and families.

$25 million in matching funds to make public schools safer by developing alternative education programs for expelled students, to keep them from getting into further trouble in the streets.

$56 million for 576 additional Texas Youth Commission beds for violent and habitual juvenile offenders. This proposal would expand the list of offenders for which serious offenders can be sentenced to TYC, and then transferred to adult prison if they cannot be rehabilitated.

Other recommendations include:
Increasing the maximum sentence for juvenile capital offenders to 60 years;

Authorizing juvenile court judges to order parents of juvenile offender to perform community services along side their children;

Loosening restrictions on juvenile record, by including them in a central data base and removing age restrictions on fingerprinting and photographing;

Take actions to draw an addition $22 million in federal funds for child care and Prekindergarten classes for low-income families;

Increasing parental involvement in schools;

Allowing students to receive public school and college credit for community service;

Requiring anti-violence/peer mediation curricula to be included in the public schools and as part of the juvenile justice system;

Tightening enforcement of the sale of tobacco products in minors;

Creating a public awareness campaign about the importance of prenatal care;

Requiring the state to refocus dental services for low-income children to most effective preventive care to reduce costly restorations and crisis treatment; and

Using local commissions to expend parent education programs.

"Texas cannot afford to neglect its children, said Senator Turner. If we are to move forward into the next century, we must do so with a healthy, well educated population. Simply maintaining the status quo and building more prisons to absorb our failures will not work in the long term."

direction of Todd Baker. SuFran Bass will lead the Third Grade class in an exercise routine.
