Broncs Journey To McLean Fri. Nite To Battle The McLean Tigers

The Clarendon Bronchos will take to the road again Friday night to pit their skill against the McLean Tigers, a team that has been way down this season but has real good capabilities that may come to life at any time. Game time will be 7:30 p.m.

McLean was defeated last week by Silverton, another cellar team, 36-6 while Clarendon was eeking out a close win over Shamrock 22-18.

Eventhough McLean is considered a weaker team, this is expected to be a real good game as all teams that play the Broncs usually play just a bit harder than usual and sometimes a lot more efficiently in an effort to upset the Broncs. This can always be true so the Broncs will need to hustle as usual if they want to bring home another district win.

It's not far to McLean so make your plans to go along and give the Broncs your full support.

There will be lots of football here this afternoon (Thursday). The seventh grade plays Childress at 5 o'clock; the eighth grade plays McLean at 6 o'clock and the Junior Varsity plays Wellington at 7:30 p.m.

This means at least four hours of real interesting football so go for all or pick out the game you prefer most but give these future Bronchos your wholehearted support also.

Weatherwise

We have just concluded the wettest month of the year according to Tommie Saye, Official Weather Observer. A total of 4.55 inches was recorded for September. This brings the total for the year to 15.79 inches to date with the addition of .08 inch for this month.

Moisture totals for the year show: January, .59; February, .27; March, 1.50; April, 1.91; May, 2.12; June, 2.06; July, .65; and August, 2.74. Cotton and grain sorghum farmers are looking for sunshine and drying days to allow crops to mature. Wheat farmers have welcomed the light moisture as have ranchers with pasture land.

Joy Roberson and Bonnie Davis visited Friday afternoon with Quata Phillips.

New Administrator Named For Medical Center Hosp. Dist.

Gerry D. Knight assumed his duties as Administrator of the Donley County Hospital District Medical Center Monday morning of this week. He is experienced in his field and since the age of 14 has been associated with hospitals and the medical profession. At that age he began working in a hospital.

Mr. Knight served as Administrator of the Archer County Hospital at Archer City from November 1971 to November of 1973. Prior to that time he attended school at West Texas State University and Amarillo College. He has since served as Director of Laboratory and X-Ray at Giddings, Texas at Lee Memorial Hospital and is a Registered Lab Technician.

During his training period in Amarillo he worked with doctors and at St. Anthony's Hospital and High Plains Baptist Hospital. He is a native of Donley County and lives West of Memphis.

Board members feel that Mr. Knight with his knowledge and experience is capable of carrying on the duties of Administrator.

Dennis Rattan was in Clinton, Arkansas several days last week attending to business. He was accompanied by a nephew, Ricky Rattan of Clarendon.

TYPEWRITERS & ADDRES AT THE LEADER

Colts Vs. McLean Here Tonight, Thurs.

Coach Pete Bromley reports the Junior High Colts ready for their game with McLean in Broncho Stadium Thursday night. In fact there will be a triple header Thursday night with the 7th grade playing at 5 o'clock, the Colts (8th graders) at 6 o'clock to be followed by the J. V. game.

A Pep Rally will be held at 1 o'clock in the High School Gym preceding the game. Everybody is invited to come out and boost the Colts to victory. The support of fans is always appreciated by these boys.

Thursday night of last week the Colts played at Shamrock. They were defeated by a two point margin. The final score was 18-14. Johnny Jaramillo scored the first TD and Billy Gardner's try for the extra point was good. Gary Thomas took a pass from Dan Brandes for the second counter but the try for extra points failed.

Coach Bromley reports over-all improvement. Larry Davis, Gary Thomas, John Clifford, Shawn Baker, Billy Hightower, and Glendale Hearn all played a good game. Cheerleaders had a cute skit and led a good rally at 1 o'clock Thursday and the Band and twirlers did a great job. Plan to attend this week's game.

The Freedom Of Old Clarendon

Dr. James O. Brandon
Pastor First Baptist Church

As I have talked with many people who recall the life-style around the first of the century, I have gathered a sense of appreciation for the free wilderness of those days.

They enjoyed real freedom. Of the freedom of America in yesterday an Indian once said: "If our fathers wished to hunt in that field, they did; but now it is marked, 'Keep Out.' If they wished to fish in that stream, they did; but not if it is marked, 'Posted' or 'no trespassing;'"

The share exuberance of freedom and liberty seems to shine through the eyes of those who recall the days of Old Clarendon. The clomp of horses hooves in the dusty street, the shrill yell of the cowboy piercing the silence, the hustle and bustle of ladies in their long dresses rushing hither and yon, the wild yelp of the coyote echoing through the night, the call of the Bob White in the rushes down by the creek, the old home place where children romped and played, the milk cow lowing in the meadow, the sage brush glistening with the fresh dew of heaven, the squeak of saddle leather, the song of the Meadow Lark, the flies buzzing around the back door, a mother's call to supper in the evening, the church bells ringing on a clear Sabbath's morn; these and hundreds of other things seem to glisten through the eyes of those who look back to those days.

Freedom is the word best used to describe it all. They were free. They were close to God's creation, unpolluted, wild and rugged, and unstained by what we call civilization. Yes, free, is the word. There is something about being close to God's good earth that brings a person closer to God. The wide open spaces before them. There was a sense of purpose and direction in their souls. They had something to do. They arose early, worked hard all day, and retired early. They welded an empire out of a wilderness. They were free.

Freedom characterized those early days. They were not tied down to materialism. They realized the value of spiritual ties. They did not work just to make money, but worked to live; therefore, they missed a lot of things that make slaves out of people today.

We can't recapture those days. We wouldn't want too. In fact, some remember these so called good - old days as not so good. Time stands still for no man. It is good to recall pleasant memories and good times and to dig around in the principles that brought about good times, but we have to leave the things which are behind and press on.

Lets review several of the principles which gave them freedom in the midst of a wilderness. They believed in God and each other. They were basically honest. They worked hard. They didn't feel that the world, the government, or anybody else owed them a living. They loved, played, worked, and studied hard. They went to church on Sunday. "Everybody went," said one settler.

The Bible says that "the righteous is an everlasting foundation" (Prov. 10:25); and that "the house of the righteous shall stand" (Prov. 12:7). God says that "righteousness exalteth a nation: but sin is a reproach to any people" (Prov. 14:34). You can't be free without God.

Make Every Wardrobe Addition Count

With clothing costs rising so rapidly, every wardrobe addition needs to be carefully considered. Mrs. Becky Culp, area clothing specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, noted last week.

"If a new item isn't exactly right for your wardrobe and you could live without it, don't waste your money," she said. Before shopping, analyze your current wardrobe in relation to your needs and existing fashion trends.

The specialist suggested asking yourself what you have that can be mixed and matched for a new look and what basics or accessories need to be added. "Separates lead the lineup for versatility. Try a big skirt in a new longer length. Wear a sweater rather than a typically more expensive jacket or coat. Detachable or reversible hoods, capes, belts or bows are magic wardrobe extenders. Turning to fall fashion accessories, she noted that several Reva W. McGuire, Principal of Landergin Elementary School of Amarillo will serve as Co-Regional Director October 12 at the Regional meeting of Delta Kappa Gamma to be held in Canyon. Mrs. McGuire is a Charter member of Eta Phi Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma and among many other honors holds a Life Membership in Texas State Teachers Association and Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers.

major contributors include scarves, mufflers, clutch handbags and soft, dark printed or muted crepe blouses with bow necklines.

"Switching opaque hose or patterned knee socks to coordinate with hemlines and shoes adds variety. Several pairs of hosiery fall far short of the cost of several pairs of shoes," she pointed out.

Another way to stretch the clothing budget with style is to make your own trimmed hats or berets and handbags from the numerous synthetic leather - look fake fur, or sweater knit fabrics available.

Irish Give Bronchos A Close Shave Only To Lose 22-18

It was a beautiful evening and the Bronchos started off with a bang in their game with the Shamrock Irish but the tune changed considerably toward the end of the game with the locals having to come from behind in the final minutes to win their first conference encounter 22-18.

The Bronchos hit the scoreboard with 6 points early in the first quarter with Kenneth King taking a 40 yard pass from David Lewis. King kicked his extra point. Shamrock followed with 6 points but their extra failed.

In the second quarter Eddy Eads tucked in a Lewis pass for 51 yards and added an additional 6 points and King kicked the extra to put the Bronchos out front 14-6. Shamrock was not to be denied and put another 6 points on their side of the ledger but failed again to convert the extra point. The half ended 14-12.

The third period went scoreless but Shamrock came back with an additional 6 points in the fourth quarter to really put the pressure on the Bronchos. It was a see-saw affair until the last three minutes when Coach Noonkester moved Randy Croslin from his tackle position to the quarterback slot and things began to really move. He placed a perfect throw to Kenneth King who carried to the 9 yard line. Three plays later the ball was on the 1 and King went over the top for the score. In order to keep the Irish from tying the game, the Bronchos went for two extra points. Croslin took the ball on a keeper and powered his way over for the two points.

Shamrock made a valiant comeback try but their drive was ended when Monroe intercepted a pass and the game ended.

A Personal Encounter

By: Weldon Rives, Pastor
First United Methodist Church

Isaiah 6:7b — Behold, this has touched your lips; your guilt is taken away, and your sin forgiven."

Each prophet of the Old Testament presents the proclamation of the Gospel out of his cultural heritage. For example, Amos who was a humble herdsman from the back country presented his proclamation with descriptive language of his trade. Then, Hosea seems to have been a country gentleman and his proclamation reveals this in his nature. Isaiah, on the other hand, must have been of the aristocracy and related to the ruling house. Probably he was a man of at least modest wealth, for nowhere does he indicate the necessity to earn a living as did Amos or Paul in the New Testament.

In spite of any special privilege Isaiah may have enjoyed, his real worth came when he recognized, and admitted that in comparison to the righteousness of God he was unclean and at the same time asserted his shame. One thing that continues to amaze me is the number of persons who will admit quite freely that they are not perfect, but who give no evidence of being ashamed of their imperfection. It is as though they are taking pride in their sinfulness rather than seeing any wrong in it. And for those persons I can only say that they harm the work of God in the world more than they help it.

Isaiah's ministry began when he was willing to admit that he was unclean and that he was ashamed of his condition; and when he was willing to be changed by God and then continue to purge his life as he became aware of evil in it.

When you look closely at Isaiah's personal encounter with God, in the 6th chapter of the Book of Isaiah, you become aware of three basic elements which are a part of every man's personal experience with God. First, there is adoration and praise. Man best expresses this by the use of a hymn. The Psalmist was a man who adored God and praised his holy name in song. Jesus and his disciples on the occasion of the Last Supper "When they had sang a hymn, they went out" (Mark 14:26). When Paul and Silas were thrown into the Philippian jail, about midnight they prayed and sang hymns (Acts 16:25).

Second, there was contribution and confession, a sense of unworthiness, an admission that we have failed to live before God as we should. Isaiah made such a confession when he said that he was a man of "unclean lips" (Isaiah 6:5) and that he dwelled among a people of similar taint. Paul affirmed Isaiah's confession by declaring that "None is righteous, no, not one" (Romans 3:10). We have to recognize our own inability to save ourselves.

Third, there is consecration as it was with Isaiah when he responded to God's query by saying "Here am I, send me" (Isaiah 6:8). One of the main ideas of Christianity is that God is capable of speaking to the individual and calling him to service. A wise preacher once responded to the question of how you identify or know that a "call" has come to you: "First of all, you must recognize a need. And then you must have a desire to see that need satisfied. Thereafter you must be willing to answer the cry of need if it is laid upon your ears, and if the door opens, you can rather well believe you have been called."

GRACE AND PEACE:
THINK ON THIS. The crisis of self - surrender must always be regarded as the vital turning point of the religious life.

—William James.

Q—What is VA's attitude toward charges that the Vietnam veteran is not getting a fair shake?

A—Vietnam era veterans make up 24.2 per cent of the U. S. veteran population, and 30.3 per cent of VA's $13 billion plus annual budget is spent in their behalf. While small bands of veterans claim wholesale alienation for the young veteran population, nearly five million of these veterans are now at work in the civilian labor force and millions more are in training. In fact, 2.6 million Vietnam veterans have trained at college level under the GI Bill - topping the 12 year record of the World War II program.

Q—How many veterans and servicemen have received education benefits under the three GI Bills?

A—Nearly 15 million have trained, beginning with the enactment of the World War II original GI Bill. The cost of all three GI Bills through April 1974 was $29.6 billion.

Q—What state pays the highest bonus to its Vietnam era Veterans?

A—According to information available to the Veterans Administration, North Dakota's $1,600 is the highest maximum bonus paid in 16 states and Guam.

Q—Where can I obtain a pamphlet on CHAMPVA, the Veterans Administration's medical care program for dependents and survivors of veterans and servicemen?

A—Copies are available at VA hospitals, clinics, domiciliaries, BOVINE PUZZLER Ever Wondered Why Cow Jumped Over The Moon?

Bossy The Socialite

The social status of cows is coming in for scientific scrutiny these days. And already, agricultural scientists have learned that "Bossy the Cow" is not just an affectionate title dreamed up by writers of children's literature. It's an accurate name for cows who rank highest in the bovine social register by virtue of their bossiness.

Cows, it seems, achieve "status" by literally throwing their weight around—butting and pushing their way up the social ladder. As a matter of fancy, the cow who jumped over the moon probably got it in the rear from her socially superior sisters.

While the cow's techniques to establish social superiority may not be quite as subtle as those used by her human counterparts, they pay off in corresponding measure.

Cows with social status, for example, actually walk only about one-third as far for their food as those on the lower end of the totem pole do.

They also enjoy undisputed "right of way" in certain instances, and a place of honor in others.

Cows grazing in a pasture will invariably protect their eating space from those lower in the social scale. But let a cow who's above them in the social order approach, and they vacate the space without murmuring so much as a "moo-moo."

When it's time to enter the milking parlor, cows organize themselves into a specific order. Ladies with status go in first.

It may sound like bull, but you can lead a cow to the milking parlor and she won't go in unless she's socially superior. One scientific experiment involved a month-long training period during which cows were forced to enter in a different order. As soon as they were allowed to enter the milking parlor without interference, the cows reverted to their original order.

Cow watchers also have learned that the bovine beasts are subject to a sort of mass psychology that leads them all to do the same thing at just about the same time.

When one cow leaves a grazing area and heads for the barn or the water, the rest of the herd will follow in a few minutes. In this instance, the cows usually string out in single file, heads up, and look neither to the right nor the left.

Each cow walks briskly, as if under orders, and there's no misbehavior, eating, or casual fighting in the ranks.

Cows with the most status usually have the place of honor in the middle of the pilgrimage. Leading the procession are mid-dominant cows and bringing up the cow's tail are the most submissive members of the herd.

What does all of this have to do with the price of milk? More than it appears.

By studying the behavior patterns of dairy cattle, scientists hope to come up with new management plans to enable dairy-men to get more efficient milk production and growth.

While studies of animal behavioral patterns have been going on since before Aristotle's days, most of them have dealt with wild rather than domestic animals.

A new research program on group management of large animals is now under way at Utah State University in cooperation with the USDA's Agricultural Research Service. Initial studies will focus on dairy cattle, but findings also are expected to prove helpful in management of beef cattle.

The first inkling that cows had a "pecking order" similar to chickens came as early as 1853 when a boss-follower relationship was noted in Swiss cow herds.

Now, with concentration of animals per farm increasing and management practices changing, animal behavior studies are becoming more important factors in improving production efficiency.

One of the first problems scheduled for study in Utah is how to best group cows to facilitate management for maximum milk yields. Other questions will involve optimum group size, transfer of animals between groups, and the amount of space needed per cow.

Q—The Veterans Administration operates the largest single hospital system in the United States. Are its hospitals accredited?

A—All 171 hospitals are fully accredited by the Joint Commission on Hospital Accreditation which represents the combined judgment of the American Medical Association, the American College of Physicians and the American College of Surgeons.

Q—When was the last time service disabled veterans received an increase in compensation, and how much was it?

A—Benefits for the most severely disabled were raised from $1,232 to $1,454 monthly recently. PL 93-295 on May 31, 1974, authorized the Veterans Administration to increase compensation 15 per cent for veterans rated 10 to 50 per cent disabled, and 18 per cent for those rated 60 to 100 per cent disabled.

Fifteen per cent of the fatal accidents on the rural highways of Texas occurred last year when some body was driving on the wrong side of the road, according to the records of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

A recent outbreak of ornithosis among turkeys in Central Texas has stimulated a thorough investigation into the source of the disease which can affect humans.

The disease — also known as psittacosis and parrot fever — is worldwide in occurrence and is an occupational hazard of persons associated with pet shops, aviaries, pigeon lofts, poultry farms, and poultry processing and rendering plants, according to the Bureau of Veterinary Public Health of the State Health Department.

In humans it produces a pneumonia-like illness which may include fever, headache and cough. Human infections may be fatal but most often are mild in character if diagnosed and treated promptly. Those at high risk should be aware of the possibility of infection.

The visible signs of ornithosis are similar to other poultry diseases, and a positive diagnosis can be made only by laboratory tests. Apparently healthy birds can transmit the disease.

Human infection is acquired usually by inhalation of the organism. It may be from the dust of dried droppings of infected birds in an enclosed space. Dust lingering in feathers also can be a source. The greatest incidence of infection among workers in past outbreaks occurred in the killing, picking and eviscerating operations, where the organisms are concentrated in the air. Exposure apparently has occurred also through direct contact with infected birds. Transmission from man to man is rare, say health authorities.

The incubation time following exposure may range from four to 15 days, says the American Public Health Association's booklet, "Control of Communicable Diseases in Man." It says that diseased birds may shed the agent intermittently throughout the infection period and sometimes continuously for weeks or months.

As far as is known, ornithosis has not occurred through household use of a poultry product which had been inspected for wholesomeness.

Texas housewives and restaurant operators can take heart in this. State Health Department officials say there is little possibility of a consumer contracting ornithosis while preparing a turkey or other fowl. Cooking temperatures destroy the organism.

Every effort is being made to protect plant workers and the public from contact with infected birds. This is accomplished primarily by flock inspections and quarantine and treatment of flocks of birds in which ornithosis is found.

A task force was set up following the illness of federal employees who were inspectors in processing plants. The US Department of Agriculture initiated the task force at Texas A&M University, and it came up with recommendations which became effective July 29.

Under the guidelines, poultry flocks must be certified as free from disease before they are shipped to slaughter. Within 10 days of the proposed shipment of a flock for slaughter, a veterinarian inspector makes a visual inspection of the flock and also takes 10 selected blood samples. The blood samples are sent to the laboratory at the Texas A&M College of Veterinary Medicine for evaluation. If blood samples are negative, the flock is certified for shipment. If a blood sample proves to be positive, the flock is guaranteed and put on an antibiotic — administered in feed — for 21 days. At termination of the treatment period, the birds can be moved to slaughter immediately.

The task force established by the USDA and Texas A&M University continues to work in close co-operation with the Texas Animal Health Commission, the US Public Health Service, and, of course, your State Health Department. Their efforts are aimed at learning and applying the best methods for controlling ornithosis.

"A great deal has been discovered about the disease, but there still is much to be learned about ornithosis before it can be considered a controlled communicable disease.

Q—I quit school at age 17 and entered the Navy. I stayed there 4 years and just after my discharge had a serious car accident which will probably keep me from working for a couple of years. Is there any way I could get disability from social security?

A—It sounds like you may be eligible. Since you were disabled before age 24 you will only be required to have 1½ years of work — you have 4 years. If the medical board determines you will be unable to do any work for 12 full months, you should be eligible for social security.

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. I work full time, but this fall during the congressional race I will be taking off some time from my job to serve as an election official helping to register new voters and assisting at election booths. I will receive a fee for these services. Is this kind of income taxable?

A. Yes, and you must include in your gross income all fees paid to you as an election official.

Q. I am a registered nurse and I plan to return to work this fall after a three-year break. I will be at home with my young daughter. In order to go back to work, I plan to enroll her in a day care center where she will take meals and play supervised learning games as well as receive care. Can I deduct the entire cost of the day care or must I exclude the expenses for food and education?

A. Expenses for nursery school or day care for pre-school dependent children may be deducted, subject to certain limitations, if paid to enable you to be gainfully employed.

Benefits incident to the care, such as food and education, are not child care expenses. But, if the manner of providing care is such that your payment covers other benefits that are inseparably a part of the care, then the entire cost is deductible as a child care expense. For example, if a nursery school charges a flat fee that includes lunch, recreational activities, and other benefits, the full amount paid would be deductible. However, benefits will not be considered an inseparable part of the care if the expense includes education in the first or higher grade level. Such expenses must be apportioned between the cost of care for the child and the cost of education. For further information on this subject including limitations on the amount of deductions for child care, consult IRS Publication 509, "Child Care and Disabled Dependent Care." It's available free at many IRS offices.

Q. I am a college student majoring in education. My school has deferred my tuition payments until I graduate and begin teaching in the state.

and the social security contribution to the Internal Revenue Service within one month after the end of the quarter. The report may be made on Form 942, Report of Wages Paid Household Employees. This form can be obtained from any Internal Revenue Service Office. The amount of the social security contribution is 5.85% of the employee's gross wages and a matching amount by the employer.

Social Security Schedule Thru Dec.

The Social Security schedule has been released for the period of October through December.

A representative of the Amarillo Social Security Office will be at the Courthouse in Clarendon on the following Thursdays from 9:15 a.m. to 12:00 o'clock noon: October 3, 17, 31; November 7, 21; and December 5, 19.

How does this affect my income tax?

A. Deferral of a student's tuition obligation to a college or university until the student's later working years is not income to the student and no tax is involved. However, if the debt is eventually forgiven, there is a tax on the amount of the loan in the year the loan is forgiven.

Q. I rent out a house that I own. Recently, the tenants requested me to patch some cracks in the cement patio and build a fence across the back of the property. Can I deduct the cost of these projects as rental expenses?

A. To be deductible, a repair to rental property you own must not appreciably add to the value, utility or useful life of the property. Incidental repairs which keep the property in efficient operating condition, such as mending leaks, or in your case, fixing the patio, are deductible. Building the fence would add to the value of the house and such an improvement would not be deductible. The cost of the fence, however, may be depreciated over its useful life. For more information on depreciation, see IRS Publication 534, "Tax Information on Depreciation," available free from most IRS offices.

Help may be obtained in matters relating to Social Security, Supplementary Security Income or Medicare.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

Many consumers in the market for a new car are wondering just what it is that the new emission control devices do, why they are needed, and most of all how they will affect a car's performance and cost.

First of all, the controls are needed to make the new car emissions come within the standards set by the Environmental Protection Agency under the Clean Air Amendments passed by Congress in 1970.

These amendments set strict limits for the hydrocarbons, carbon monoxide, and nitrogen oxides emitted by cars. Although the EPA hasn't required any particular devices in order to meet these strict standards, most of the new cars will be using catalytic converters to neutralize polluted emissions by trapping and treating them after they leave the car's combustion chamber.

How will these emission controls affect the performance of this year's car models? The EPA says that some new cars may be a bit harder to start in cold weather and somewhat slower to warm up. They may also be a little more hesitant in operation.

The new cars will require the use of a different type of gas, one that is unleaded and phosphorus-free. Unleaded gas is expected to reduce the health hazard of lead emitted in auto exhaust, especially in many urban areas, where cars are the major source of lead in the air. This new gas will cost more, but its extra cost may be offset by the fact that its relative cleanliness compared to standard gasoline means sparkplugs and mufflers should last longer.

Some '75 models may get better gas mileage with emission controls and unleaded gas, others may not. The main factor in determining gas mileage is the car's weight. A car weighing one-half as much as another will get about twice the gas mileage as the heavier car. Air conditioning and automatic transmission may also lower gas mileage. On heavier cars, the new controls may lower gas mileage slightly, but the fuel economy of smaller, lighter cars won't really be affected.

The Attorney General's Environmental Protection Division lawyers say that consumers who are serious about getting better gas mileage should plan fewer short trips, avoid fast "jack-rabbit" starts, keep cars tuned up, consider purchasing radial tires, and drive at a steady speed of between 30 and 50 m.p.h., depending on driving conditions. All of these can result in a more efficient use of gas.

As for price of the '75 cars with emission controls, a National Academy of Sciences report estimates that the new equipment will raise the sticker price about $140. Inflation and any optional equipment would be additional.

The EPA cautions that tampering with the emission control system of a new car can hamper performance and fuel economy and could cause engine damage. Also, under the Clean Air Amendments, auto manufacturers must provide a five-year or 50,000 mile warranty on emission control systems in new cars, and tampering with the system might void this warranty.

In addition, the Clean Air Amendments make it illegal for anyone to remove or render inoperative the emission control system of a car before its sale, or for the manufacturer or dealer to do so after the sale. A fine of up to $10,000 can be assessed for each violation.

Texas Air Control Board regulations also prohibit tampering with emission control devices. The Attorney General's Environmental Protection Division, which represents the Board, warns that violation of these rules are punishable by civil penalties of up to $1,000 a day.

Both the Environmental Protection and Consumer Protection Divisions of the Attorney General's Office recently notified garagemen, service station owners, and publishers of a book on emission control bypass methods of such penalties. They also pointed out that additional civil penalties could be assessed for violations of the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices-Consumer Protection Act if misleading claims are made regarding fuel economy for bypassed systems.

Consumers who believe their car's emission control system has been tampered with should contact the Attorney General's Environmental Protection and Consumer Protection Divisions.

Q—I was separated from military service in April 1973. Am I eligible for Veterans Group Life Insurance issued by the Veterans Administration?

A—Probably yes. But under provisions of PL 93-289 (May 1974) which established this five-year, nonrenewable term insurance as of Aug. 1, 1974, you must apply to VA for it within one year of its effective date.

Q—I understand the Veterans Administration has plans for use of the powerful communication satellite launched in May from Cape Canaveral, Fla. Will you explain how?

A—Briefly, the agency plans to use the spacecraft and 10 of its hospitals to explore for 11 months new methods of exchanging medical information for education and clinical purposes.

Q—What's this "Man on the Campus Program" I keep hearing about?

A—It's an all-out effort by the Veterans Administration to insure prompt delivery of GI Bill educational assistance checks, and otherwise "trouble shoot" other problems which arise on college campuses between the veteran, the school and the VA regional office. Veterans benefits counselors, veterans themselves and called "vets-reps," will function as expeditors, assisting veterans in the program which begins in fall 1974.

Q—Since the last Civil War veteran died several years ago, aren't the veterans of World War I the senior living veterans group?

A—No. As of July 1, 1974, according to the Veterans Administration statistical publication, "America's Wars," there were 1,372 living veterans of the Spanish-American War.

Q—Is the Veterans Administration helping blind veterans through technical research?

A—Yes. Among some of the projects are ultra-sonic eyeglasses that indicate to the blind person his distance from an object, a lesser cane that emits beams to direct obstacles and two machines that enable the blind to read.

Q—With all the GI Bill help for veterans who want to go to college, why can't the government do something for the kids who dropped out of high school to go to war?

A—Increasing numbers of so-called educationally disadvantaged have trained since enactment of the current GI Bill in 1966. In fact, a recent check showed a total of 555,000 had trained—a sizeable 38 per cent jump in the number who had trained a year earlier.
