Sherman Reports Bill Thru Senate Creates Area Diagnostic Lab

Senator Max Sherman passed through the Senate May 23 a bill creating a diagnostic laboratory that would greatly aid the cattle industry. A similar bill is sponsored in the House by Representative Bryan Poff, and the House must concur in Senate amendments before the bill goes to the Governor for signature.

The bill, H. B. 1643, creates and establishes the Texas Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratory to be located in either Potter or Randall County. The laboratory is to be established in connection with Texas A&M, and will be located on land made available or acquired by the Board of Directors of the Texas A&M University System. An appropriation of $950,000 is made for the planning, construction, equipping, maintenance and other expenses of the laboratory.

When the new diagnostic laboratory becomes operational, it will allow area ranchers and feedlot operators to immediately test for a suspected disease or to obtain any needed analysis in a very short time. The immediate availability of such facilities will be invaluable in the areas of disease prevention and cure.

Mr. and Mrs. James Bain spent the holiday week end with her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Dayton Sandlin at Iola, Kansas. Dayton, who was injured in a car accident some months ago, is now at home and improving as well as can be expected.

Surviving are her daughter, Mrs. Bill Mathers of Miles City, Montana; 11 grandchildren, and four step-grandchildren.

Clifford Johnson of Hedley was a visitor in the Leader Office Monday.

The tearing down and cleaning up of the old House of Supply Co. is almost completed. Only the front part of the structure remains and the clean-up crew is working diligently to see that it gets done. Only a few seconds before this picture was taken, a large part of the building fell from the top story into the street breaking the lines that supplied power to the streetlights on the north end of main street. Fortunately, there were no injuries in the mishap. It will certainly be a relief to have this eyesore cleared from main street. The building in early days, housed the J. H. Headrick Hardware Store and later, Household Supply when it was destroyed by fire. Pat Robertson—Staff Photo

Everyone Concerned With Conservation

By Douglas E. Cunningham
Area Conservationist
SCS - Pampa

Good soil conservation practices today is the only way an adequate supply of nutritious food can be assured for tomorrow. Soil Conservation touches everyone, whether it be the farmer, merchant, teacher, lawyer, doctor, banker and the old and the young.

Man's struggle with soil erosion is as old as agriculture itself. Records of his effects to adjust himself to the land are written on landscapes around the world. Ruined land and starving people show us he failed to care properly for nature's great natural resource, "The Topsoil."

The conservation and development task in years directly ahead is going to be formidable. For example, the population of the United States will require over twice as much production from its agricultural land by the year 2000. We now use about 350 billion gallons of water daily; by 1980 we will need 600 billion gallons of water per day. Each year more than a million acres of land are taken out of agriculture and used for highways, housing projects and other urban uses.

Soil erosion affects the happiness and the welfare of the individual farmer and his family, and through them, the welfare of the community of which they are a part and the town where they buy and sell. From decreased business in the towns, the influence of soil losses widens and spreads until it is felt by manufacturers and mill workers in distant states.

A trip across almost any state will furnish one the opportunity to observe the relationship of the soil and the well being of people. In areas where conservation has been practiced; one may see good crops, good fences, good buildings, painted and well cared for, a happy and prosperous people living on the land, and thriving towns or cities serving those who live there. In regions where soil conservation has not been practiced one finds poor crops, poor fences, dilapidated buildings, bad roads, poor schools, poor churches and a low level of human well being. How does erosion affect you? It affects everyone, directly or indirectly whether farmer, merchant, teacher, lawyer, doctor, banker, old or young.

It influences not only the United States, but touches, sometimes quite tangibly, the interests of foreign countries with whom we do business. Soil is the basic source of wealth and no one, however remote from the farm, is entirely unaffected by soil erosion.

Teacher Turned The Mules Out

By Rev. Weldon Rives

School is out . . . and that's a fact! When I was but a youngster there was a rhyme that was often sung by those who got out of class early. It was to taunt the others as they came out of the building and it said:

School's out, School's out;
Teacher turned the mules out;
and it quite often caused a foot race - but always in good fun. No one ever really got mad and we ended up in a big pile having a big laugh.

Remember, for the next three months or so, our streets throughout the day will have children in them. Greater caution will be needed by everyone because of the increased hazard of a youngster darting out into the streets. Remember, we don't have one youngster to spare;

we need each and every one. You know, there are many experiences that belong to the life of a youngster which help determine his character and how he will cope with situations in the future as he struggles to build his life in the world he inherits from we adults. There must be occasions of joy and pleasure - without which the child will develop a cynical attitude of life. There will always be occasions of pain and defeat - and he will need a strong person to help him accept the grief and use it as an instrument of growth or there will never be the joy in this life that he needs to know. No one denies the necessity for a good education in the world in which we live. If our children are going to find happiness, prosperity and fulfillment in their world, they must have a solid education. That's why we have a structured system of education - and who today would deny a child the advantage of education? Why, we resort to all sorts of efforts to make sure that they are prepared to face life the best that man today is able to make available to them.

You know, too much of our concern for their education leaves out a very significant part of their preparation - that of the Spirit. We don't always show forth the same intensity for their Spiritual development as we do their physical and intellectual development. Let me suggest that while our children are taking their well earned recess from the school rooms, let's not let them take a recess from God in Christ Jesus. And, the only way we can do that is to be sure that we as adults do not neglect God and our commitment to discipleship. Come, and let us worship together in the house of the Lord.

Grace and peace in Christ Jesus.

Well, graduation is over and school is finally out for the summer and we are all looking forward to long, warm, lazy days of swimming and sun bathing, bike riding, and water skiing. Naturally, some of us have summer jobs, but we will all still try and find time for having fun and being with our friends.

The all night Senior Party was a big success. From all reports, the entire night was spent in fun and games. The dance after graduation was held in Lions Club Hall until 12 o'clock. Then the Seniors had one hour to take their dates home and get to the Arcade. They all enjoyed themselves and then at 4 a.m. they left the Arcade and went out to the home of Ann and Chauncey Hommel for breakfast. It was a bunch of tired, but happy and well fed people that left the breakfast for home—and bed around 7 a.m. that morning.

The Cheerleaders held their car wash last Saturday and what a day it was with the wind, sand and cold but everyone braved it through and reported a better day than was expected. The girls are getting their suits made and getting ready to go to Cheerleading Camp in Dallas later on in the summer.

The twirlers have their suits made and are getting ready for camp too. Sounds like a busy summer for all of them.

Driver's Ed is also in full swing. It will be turning out a whole new batch of drivers before the summer is over. The kids are really enjoying this. Hope the teachers can say the same.

Laurie S. reports she is glad to be home but will be off on a trip to Europe with her parents before long. Welcome home, Laurie. Gina K. did John H. really make you fix his flat for him?

Debbie R., we hear that Danny H. cheats when he plays pool so when you play with him, watch it.

Russell K., does the floor under the pool table really make a good bed?

If anyone doesn't know what Ward P. got for graduation, they are pretty dumb. Right, Ward?

Mitzi C. changes cars as often as she changes clothes. How lucky can a girl get?

Tommy H. has a new job. Seems like Tom likes the wide open spaces better.

David O. was a good samaritan the other night but he lost two good ropes in the deal. That's O.K., David. You did the right thing. Cathy O. found out the other night that Ray F. can sleep through anything.

Katrina M. was seen wearing blue rouge the other night. Is this the new thing, Katrina, or just a little help from Eddie H.?

Laura H., who was your date at the show the other night? Speaking of the show, Barbara S. is going to have to find a new place to sit when she goes to the show now. The old one is gone!!!

Terry E. loves to go to the show but the prices sure do get to him!!!

Before summer is over, several of our friends will be married. Good luck to all these couples.

Carrie N., what did you lose graduation night? Did you finally find "HIM"?

Joni M. is glad to have Scotty L. home. Right, Joni?
Pat T. resents being asked questions that are "out of order."

Poison Ivy Potent Throughout The Year

"Leaflets three, let it be."

That's not just a children's rhyme but some good advice to all outdoorsmen who suffer from the torments of poison ivy.

Learn to identify the plant on sight and save yourself some agony this spring.

As the verse goes, poison ivy grows with three leaflets on each stalk.

This is the only dependable characteristic of the plant. Leaves can vary in size, shape and color, the plant can be only a little shrub or it can grow into a 75-foot vine reaching into the tops of trees or covering a stone wall.

Another means of identifying the plant are its kinky, brown aerial rootlets which cover the vines and attach themselves to crevices in rocks or small openings in the tree bark. The rootlets make the vine look like fuzzy rope.

Clusters of small, five-petaled flowers appear on the ivy in late summer. Don't be tempted to pick the yellowish-green berries or the resulting green flowers which ripen into an ivory color.

Autumn turns the glossy leaves yellow, red and orange.

Poison ivy's toxic ingredients is an oily substance called urushiol which occurs in the sap and is found in all parts of the plant. Urushiol packs an itchy wallop any time of the year and lingers on even when the plant is dead.

Ivy branches cut and left outdoors on a garage roof for 18 months were found still to be dangerous.

Urushiol can be transferred to the skin by handling tools or camping equipment which has come in contact with poison ivy. Even petting the family dog after it has romped in ivy-infested woods can transmit the oily toxin and cause infection.

Oil droplets in the smoke of burning ivy can penetrate light clothing and irritate exposed parts of the body.

Exposure to poison ivy calls for a thorough scrubbing with heavy-duty soap several times during the first half-hour after contact.

Cloths worn in the woods should be washed before being worn again.

Calamine lotion will help ease the itching in mild cases of poison ivy infection but severe blistering must be treated by a doctor.

Remember the rhyme and steer clear of the three leaflets.

Keep garages well lit, and provide light switches near the doors, advises Patricia A. Bradshaw, housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University.

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation for all of your visits, calls, flowers cards, and other remembrances but most of all for your prayer which sustained us. May God bless each of you.

Highlights and Sidelights FROM YOUR State Capitol

By BILL BOYKIN
Texas Press Association

The 63rd Legislature wound down at midnight Monday (May 28) with opinions sharply divided as to how much or how little it accomplished.

While new reform rules slowed down consideration of bills, much major legislation was passed, some of which had failed previously.

Both houses completed work on a record $9.7 billion, tax-free budget four days before adjournment, then with money left over, began to fashion an emergency aid bill for "poor" school districts.

The big job of revising school finance formulas, as anticipated, was left for a future session following additional studies and careful weighing of property values.

Legislative redistricting was another job left for the future—possibly under court direction.

Lawmakers did manage to agree on a competitive auto insurance rate bill — something they couldn't do in a special session devoted to that purpose alone last September - October.

They also came to terms on far-reaching revision of the penal code — first in 117 years — although the House bogged down on a court reform constitutional amendment.

House Speaker Price Daniel Jr. managed to get some of his reform measures, including open meetings law strengthening and better access to public records, finally passed. Agreement on a tough code of ethics was difficult.

While they were at it, legislators asked again for a pay raise — to $15,000 a year — and a constitutional amendment permitting them to meet in annual sessions to better handle an ever-increasing work load.

Whether or not they are called into special session this year, they will be back next January — to have a try at revising the state constitution.

NEWSMEN'S MEASURE DIES IN CONFERENCE — The "free flow of information" measure — called the newsmen's privilege bill — died in a conference committee. Compromise language that might have been acceptable to both the House and Senate would have made it a "qualified" privilege for newsmen — and it looked for a time that the conference committee was going to vote it out.

Publishers, editors and broadcasters told their legislators that they preferred "no privilege at all" if it could not be "unqualified" — and the conference committee members let it "R.I.P."

Representatives of the Texas Joint Media Committee — members of professional press groups — expressed disappointment that the Senate would not accept the original House bill — which included no qualification except in cases of "libel or right of privacy" law suits.

Some felt the Watergate case had taken the "heat off the press" and fewer subpoenas would be issued in the future to obtain information from newsmen.

Unless Texas newsmen have problems with grand juries and the courts in future years, it will be difficult to get press support for a "newsmen's privilege" measure in this state, said Don Coppedge, president of the Texas Press Association.

GAS RATE SUIT FILED — Atty. Gen. John Hill filed the first big test case — against Exxon Corporation — to recover full market value of royalty gas produced on state lands for the school fund and University of Texas.

The suit alleges the state's price is not limited to amounts agreed to in contracts, nor to the low ceiling price set by Federal Power Commission.

Hill has estimated many millions of dollars rest on outcome of the litigation. Current FPC ceiling price is in some cases less than 20 cents per 1,000 cubic feet of gas, while actual market value is estimated at 45 cents per 1,000 cubic feet in recent sales.

The suit seeks to compel Exxon to pay the current market value or, alternatively, to allow the state to take its royalty gas "in kind" for use or resale. The state claims it is due not less than $500,000 from Exxon, and many other producers are expected to be made defendants soon.

LAND PROGRAM EXTENSION ASKED — One of the proposed constitutional amendments to be voted on November 6 would extend the veterans land loan program, pumping another $100 million (for a total of $500) into it.

Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong applauded submission of the new amendment to continue the low-interest, long-term loans for veterans to buy land.

Among other recent Briscoe appointments were:

Frank E. Medina (reappointed) to the Texas Board of Athletic Trainers.

Robert G. Schleiter of Kilgore, Neal E. Velvin of Athens and Jack Morgan of Kaufman to the board of directors of Tyler State College.

Mrs. Travis McNair of Big Lake (reappointed) to the State Board of Tuberculosis Nurse Examiners.

REDFISH RECLINING—Parks and Wildlife Department marine biologists fear the reddish population may be declining along the Texas coast.

First sign is said to be reduction in the number of large redfish.

PWD officials say that if further evidence gathered by staff biologists confirms a decline, remedial measures may be ordered that could affect activities of both sport and commercial fishermen.

WATER-SKIING SAFETY

1. State law requires that ski boats are equipped with a rearview mirror and that a ski boat always carry one passenger in addition to the driver. His job is to observe the skier at all times.

2. Skiers should wear Coast Guard approved lifesaving devices. Ski belts are generally considered inadequate.

3. Never ski near swimmers, fishermen or other boats. The driver is responsible for keeping his skier clear of these hazards as well as out of shallow water, fallen trees and rocky places.

4. Never turn the boat without checking the position of the skier.

5. If you are in the presence of a person in danger of drowning, don't jump in after him unless you are trained in life-saving. Extend a pole, life buoy, or anything that will float.

About half the drowning victims in the United States last year were reluctant swimmers—they had no intention of going in the water when they set out. Palmer noted that these accidents are easily prevented, if some basic boating rules are observed.

WILDLIFE

Another Reason For Conservation

Saving soil and water and improving the land means saving our wildlife, too. Our wild birds and animals and the fish in our lakes and streams need the better food, cover and water supply which result when we check erosion.

Gully control, windbreaks, streambank plantings, re-seeding of eroded lands and other soil and water conservation practices all contribute to the welfare of wildlife.

You can help protect our heritage of wildlife by conserving soil and water. See your soil conservation district supervisors or the U.S. Soil Conservation Service for information.

Warm Weather Can Bring Water Tragedy

Warm spring weather and water sports go together. But water, and the excellent recreation it provides, is a source of tragedy each year to the thousands who die by accidental drowning.

Last year, 601 Texans lost their lives in water-related accidents. The vast majority of these deaths occurred in the spring and summer months.

Pointing up the problem, in Mid-April, two brothers, age 6 and 13, perished in the Colorado River near Austin, despite warnings that they were playing in hazardous place.

Lloyd F. Palmer, general manager of the Texas Safety Association, said that most water accidents can be prevented by attention to the basic rules of water safety.

The Texas Safety Association hopes that Texans will take time to bone up on water safety rules as they bring their bathing suits, boats and water skis out of winter storage.

Palmer listed elementary safety tips for swimmers, boaters, water skiers and home swimming pool owners.

SWIM SAFETY

1. Now is the time to enroll any non-swimmers in the family in swimming courses which are usually offered in the summer by the Red Cross, the YMCA or YWCA and various other community groups.

2. Never swim alone. Know the area in which you are swimming. Even a strong swimmer can be undone by strange currents, tides or sudden drop-offs.

3. Supervise small children constantly.

4. Don't swim if chilled, overheated, overtired or if a thunderstorm threatens.

Speaking of New Orleans many things crowd back into our thoughts. For instance, facing the north in the thick of the city was a statue of General Robert E. Lee . . . The story that had lived to this day was that his friends faced him toward the north — that even in death he would not want to turn his back on the enemy.

In most homes you would find a record album by Justin Wilson, a modern day Cajun humorist that seems to have almost reached the local popularity that we gave to some of the great humorists of yesteryear. His talking records tell the stories loved by the people who know and cherish his knack for preserving the Cajun Humor. We liked his story about the government man who came to his uncles house and showed his card and demanded his way around the place. Pretty soon the old bull was after the government man and after a few rounds of the lot his uncle yelled for him to show the bull his identity card.

By nature we love to eat and good fish held a top priority on our list of good food . . . Shrimp are not normally our choice but we could go for the fresh ones you get in this country . . . Everywhere you looked almost in the direction of a drive-in eating place you saw the ads about the Po-Boy sandwiches we all had to try one and poor as one is after traveling this far home these tasted good and like mighty rich food to us.

 We were amazed by one thing and that was that in spite of large groups of low income groups in the area it was said that the cost of living was higher in New Orleans than in most cities in the United States. Homes seemed to be at least fifty percent higher than here on the high plains. The cost of a building site seemed to account for a large part of this. The only thing that seemed low was the property tax. Rough and ready politics had at least done this for the people. We closed out our trip with a good visit in one of their friendly churches, and came home with the warmth of the love of our loved ones glowing in our hearts.

2, 4-D Users Warned To Control Drift

Users of 2, 4-D and other hormone-type herbicides are reminded to be especially careful during this time of year, Agriculture Commissioner John C. White has stated.

"We are getting several reports throughout the state of 2, 4-D drift damage to tomato plants, cotton, and other broad-leaf crops. The herbicide is a valuable ally to our agricultural producers, but it should be used only according to directions," Commissioner White said.

He suggested that users be especially on guard not to use 2, 4-D when wind speeds are in excess of 10 miles per hour. "The problem with 2, 4-D is that it drifts from the field on which it is applied when wind is blowing and can cause considerable damage," Commissioner White said.

About a third of the state's counties are under regulations for herbicide control which is administered through the Texas Department of Agriculture. The rules are designed to protect measures for both users of 2, 4-D and producers who have susceptible crops.

In regulated counties, a permit must be obtained for applying any herbicide on plots of 10 acres or more. Smaller plots, the operator must notify the same office of his intent to spray before making application.

TFBF Seeks Relief To Fuel Shortage

SPL (Spl) — Texas Farm Bureau President J. T. (Red) Woodson on May 23 reminded the Texas Delegation in Congress that tractor fuel is "absolutely vital" to the feeding of this nation and suggested possible ways of easing the fuel crisis. Woodson said the Texas Farm Bureau is now surveying county leaders to find out the extent of the fuel problem in Texas. "We are getting reports from around the state that harvest equipment and farm tractors are being idled due to the shortage of fuel, the state farm leader

Woodson said in a letter, "This could be a forerunner of a chronic problem in the future." Woodson told the Texas representatives and senators in Congress that people in agriculture regard the fuel shortage as one of the most urgent problems facing the nation. He added the farmers and ranchers are ready to cooperate in any way "that will enable us to continue supplying food to this nation."

Armstrong Medical Facility At Claude

The Board of the Armstrong County Medical Center worked diligently for more than eighteen months in attempting to fill the vacancy at the clinic. Just when this seemed to be an impossible task the board was fortunate enough to secure the services of two doctors through the auspices of the National Health Service Corps. This is possible in counties where no doctors are located.

The many patients who will be treated by the doctors at the clinic will pay for visits and treatment just as they would for medical care received at any other facility. The board of the clinic will use the fees that are collected to maintain the clinic, pay the clerical and professional personnel, purchase clinic supplies and reimburse the N.H.S.C. for the salaries which it pays the doctors.

It is essential that the financial operation of the clinic be self supporting. John Wanamaker originated the saying, "The customer is always right."

NEWS FROM Congressman Bob Price 13th District, Texas

WEEKLY NEWS REPORT
Ever since first being elected to the Congress nearly eight years ago, I have warned of an impending energy crisis. In speeches delivered on the House of Representatives floor, in news releases, and in legislation which I have introduced and reintroduced, I have pointed to the need for new incentives and a comprehensive plan of action to avert the fuel shortage that is now upon us. Enactment of my bills would:

Provide for tax credits and incentives for expenditures made in the exploration and development of new reserves of oil and gas.

Derregulate the price of natural gas at the well head currently controlled by the Federal Power Commission, and Establish a Council on Energy Policy to evaluate and adequately provide for the long-term energy needs of the Nation.

At the present time I am also giving serious consideration to co-sponsoring legislation to complete the construction of the trans-Alaskan pipeline, as I believe the development of this fuel reserve is of vital importance to the Nation.

Very recently, my office has begun to receive numerous inquiries from farmers, businessmen, and independent petroleum suppliers in rural areas about a lack of fuel supplies. Of course I can again emphasize my efforts of the past several years to avert such an unfortunate dilemma, but that is small comfort to the farmer who cannot plow his fields because of a lack of gasoline to run his tractor.

For this reason, I have personally contracted the Office of Oil and Gas in the Department of Interior to ask that immediate action be taken to give a top priority in the distribution of available fuel resources to those who produce our Nation's supplies of basic foods and fiber. A shortage of fuel products is extremely serious, but a shortage of food would be disastrous.

I can only hope that after all these years the Congress will face up to the issue of an energy crisis and take action on the legislation I have sponsored. This week as a sign of things to come gasoline companies are warning motorists that supplies may not be adequate to cover the demands of the approaching Memorial Day holiday. I am encouraged that President Nixon has recently proposed actions similar to the legislation I have introduced to deal with the Nation's energy needs. Failure to act by the Congress can only have the most serious consequences for us all.
