Federal agency now going after our BB guns

While we've all been focused on the events following the September 11 attacks on our nation, here is a bit of news you may have missed. The federal court of appeals in New Orleans found last month that the Second Amendment of the United States Constitution does preserve an individual citizen's "right to keep and bear arms whether or not they are a member of a select militia or performing active military service or training."

This is no surprise to those of us who are literate enough to read plain English, but it must surely come as a blow to those liberals and anti-gun nuts who like to interpret rather than read the Constitution.

The case in question revolved around a San Angelo man who was arrested for buying a gun after his wife had a restraining order put on him. A Lubbock judge dismissed the indictment against Timothy Emerson, saying his rights under the Second and Fourth Amendments were violated.

The appeals court overturned the lower court's ruling, saying a person's gun rights can be limited by "narrowly tailored... exceptions or restrictions" (i.e. the restraining order) but agreeing with the Lubbock judge that the Second Amendment protects individual rights. That's bad for Mr. Emerson but good for gun owners - at least those of us living under the Fifth Circuit's jurisdiction.

Gun control advocates are not happy and say the ruling goes against established judicial precedent. But that's the beauty of our judicial system - given time, bad decisions are righted - just like in 1954 when Brown v. Board of Education overturned the 1892 case Plessy v. Ferguson and ended racial segregation.

Still, all is not well in America as Safety Nazis and leftists still seek to undermine our personal freedoms. And some of those folks - vestiges of the Clinton admin istration - are still running bureaucracies in our nation's capital.

You may remember the situation with a gal named Ann Brown. Until recently she headed up the Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) - a federal busybody panel that is in no way authorized by our federal on, which prides itself on "protecting children." (Ah, yes. The children. Where have we heard that phrase

During her career, Brown tried to save the little ones from the dangers of such evil capitalist products as bean bags, babywalkers, highchairs, strollers, halogen lamps, and wooden bunk beds. She also sought to remove drawstrings from children's outer garments, which were supposedly a strangling hazard. (Personally, my mother never killed me by tying the hood of my jacket. Maybe Brown is just a paranoid psycho.) Not long after he took office - but not before the Senate fell into the hands of the liberals - President Bush tried to give this witch the old heave ho by appointing a replacement for her. Unfortunately, the woman he chose likes free markets and believes in capitalism and was therefore not confirmed. The result: Brown stayed in office, and America's attention got distracted from little things like her when the terrorists attacked.

Brown quit her post last Thursday. But before she flew off on her broom, she left America with a little present. The day before Halloween, her commission voted 2 to 1 to issue a recall of 7.5 million Daisy BB guns. The CPSC claims Daisy's air rifle pellet guns can fire pellets, even when they seem to be unloaded, and cause injury. (Of course they wouldn't really be unloaded then,

Brown promoted the recall after a Pennsylvania teenager pointed what he supposedly thought was an empty air rifle at a friend and pulled the trigger. The gun went off and "permanently disabled" his friend.

The government is focused on Daisy's PowerLine 856 model. In the last 30 years, 28 people have died in incidents related to that gun.

Let me repeat those facts for those of you from Florida. In 30 years, 28 people - less than one per year - have been killed. So the government is going to force a recall of 7.5 MILLION Daisy BB guns. Seven and onehalf million BB guns; 28 deaths. 7,499,972 Daisy BB guns never killed anybody.

This is stupid beyond belief. And yet, now more than ever. Americans trust their government and want to give the federal behemoth even more power.

Most of the boys in my generation grew up with a Daisy BB gun. We killed sparrows mostly. We blew holes in a lot of beer and Coke cans. A few knuckleheads would have BB wars, but that never seemed like a smart idea to me. Still, it was part of growing up, and nobody got hurt. Twenty years later, I'm told my BB gun is defective because some idiot in Pennsylvania shot his friend with one.

Folks, just because there is a flag flying on every corner and the circuit court of appeals has ruled in favor of the Second Amendment and a conservative is in the White House, don't think for one minute that the enemies of freedom are only living in Arab nations or sending white powder in the mail.

The Ann Browns, Sarah Bradys, and Ralph Naders of the world are still right here at home. They still hate capitalism. They still hate your right to keep and bear arms. And they still think they are better qualified to protect you from yourself than you are. That much has not changed since September 11.

USA Patriot Act of 2001 is unconstitutional

While Congress' desire to carry out their constitutional duty of providing for the common defense of the people of the United States is commendable, their approach is un-constitutional. The USA Patriot Act of 2001 violates the 4th Amendment rights against unreasonable searches and seizures.

In this new act, law enforcement authorities have been given the authority to enter a person's home without prior notice, proven themselves worthy of more powers. or notice after entering, if the owner is not present. The act significantly reduces judicial oversight. In fact, most of the provisions have nothing to do with terrorism. While congress has tried to quiet the protests of some Civil Liberties organizations by touting the sunset aspect of the new act, the sunset provision doesn't include the above-mentioned new capabilities, thus leaving law enforcement with these intrusive powers permanently.

Secrecy in carrying out activities under issues to combat terrorism, then maybe this new act is a key part of the new powers given to law enforcement. This is something more closely associated with a repressive government than with a democratic republic. The potential for abuse of these new "law enforcement" capabilities is huge. The FBI, CIA and ATFB have shown over the last decade that they have handled the powers they already possess in a questionable manner, and they have not

The federal government has stated they were going to war against terrorism, but their actions appear more as if they have declared war on American citizens. These violations of our constitutional rights will not stand up in court, and therefore are a waste of Congress' time and our tax dollars. The country would be better served if Congress focused on external aspects of terrorism. If Congress feels the need to meddle with internal Economy falters; Investment incentives need boost

By Raymond J. Keating, Chief Economist

The news on the economy released by the U.S. Department of Commerce on Halloween was pretty scary, but not surprising. Later in the week, the latest employment numbers increased the economic horror.

As measured by real gross domestic product (GDP), the economy actually shrank by 0.4% in the third quarter. Any time the economy contracts, it's not good news. In addition, this is only an "advance" estimate based on incomplete data. As the picture becomes clearer, and the data from post-September 11 solidifies, it is quite likely that further revisions to third-quarter GDP will show that the economy contracted by an even larger percentage. This was largely confirmed by the numbers released on Friday, November 2, showing that private-sector payrolls plummeted by 439,000 jobs in October, the largest one-month decline in a generation.

Most economists, including myself, expect the development of a full-blown recession. A recession officially is defined as two straight quarters of economic contraction. The real question is: How long will the recession last, and how robustly will the U.S. economy emerge? Prior to the September 11 terrorist attacks, the economy already had been slowing. Starting in the third quarter of 2000, economic growth fell off, and was barely moving ahead at a slow crawl by the second quarter of this year.

The main culprit was a decline in capital investment, particularly by businesses. Real gross private domestic investment already had declined by 2.8% in the third quarter of last year, by 2.3% in the fourth quarter, and then plummeted by 12.3% in the first quarter of 2001 and by 12.1% in the second quarter. The bad news continued in the third quarter of 2001, with real gross private domestic investment down by

While many economic policymakers focus on the consumer, it must be recalled that consumption is the end point in the market process. Investment and risk taking come first. When investment falters, growth slows or perhaps a recession develops. In turn, jobs are lost, and consumer confidence and consumption falter. Since the middle of last year, the drop off in investment has simply been staggering, and tions. Short of elimination, at the very we are now seeing the full effect of this investment dearth, as well as the impact of 10% and gains fully indexed for inflation.

As usual, when the economy falters, the causes, at least in part, can be traced to bad government policy. Today is no dif- expenditures in the year they are made ferent. The Federal Reserve's interest rate hikes in 1999 and 2000 were quite damaging, and record levels of federal revenues, including personal income tax receipts, as a corporate alternative minimum tax (AMT), share of the economy have taken a real toll on the economy. Plus, there was a clear build up in regulatory costs throughout the Clinton administration.

Policymakers in Congress and the White House need to move ahead on a bold economic growth package. That means moving far beyond what has been discussed in the U.S. Senate thus far, and adding substantially to the "stimulus" measure passed by the House of Representa-

What needs to happen? First, the Bush income tax cut passed earlier this year needs to be fully implemented for all tax brackets immediately, as opposed to being phased in by 2006 as passed earlier this year. This will boost critical supply-side incentives for working and risk taking.

Second, the capital gains tax, a direct and destructive levy on investing and entrepreneurship, simply should be eliminated for both individuals and corporaleast, the capital gains tax should be cut to

Third, make the expensing of capital investment a permanent option for all businesses. The ability to write off capital would provide a major incentive to boost

Fourth, the House bill eliminates the which clearly will help investment. However, the individual AMT also needs to be disposed of to help individuals and nonincorporated businesses.

Finally, to help family businesses, speed up and make permanent the elimination of the death tax. This also is a pro-investment, pro-jobs measure. These measures clearly would help shorten any recession and provide a significant boost to the following economic recovery. Many uncertainties continue to swirl around our economy. To the extent that Congress and the White House can boost key incentives for working, investing and entrepreneurship, they should take those steps without further hesitation.

Clarendon High School senior Carrie Helms has won the VFW's Voice of Democracy contest and will represent Donley County in the $25,000 competition.

Helms, the daughter of Eddy and Joburta Helms, entered this year's contest by writing and recording a short essay on the theme "Reaching Out To America's Future."

Applications were sent to Hedley, Clarendon, Claude, and Memphis high schools. Students had the opportunity to enter the contest to win scholarship money leading up to the first place prize - a trip to Washington, DC, and a $25,000 scholarship.

Helms will receive a $100 savings bond from VFW Post 7782, a Certificate of Merit from the National VFW, and a VOD Medal. She will advance to the next step, which is the district competition, with the chance of winning a $650 scholarship.

"We wish Carrie the best of luck," said local VFW Quartermaster and VOD Chairman William Holden. "Carrie represents the best of our high schools, and we hope to see her shining bright in the upcoming judging. I hope to escort her up on stage in Washington to receive the $25,000 scholarship."

An e-mail from a concerned reader prompted an investigation by this paper, which now shows that that information was faulty.

An official with the New Mexico Museum of Space History tells the ENTERPRISE that Finch was in fact interviewed for the museum's Oral History Project for his contributions in the field, but Finch has not been inducted into the Hall of Fame.

We regret any confusion the article may have caused.

ABILENE - Cotton harvest is under way, and some growers may believe the boll weevil traps around fields are no longer needed

In some cases growers have removed traps, possibly because they believe the traps interfere with harvesting equipment or because their fields have been harvested.

"Because the traps are very effective in eliminating boll weevils, especially as the weevil populations are reduced to low levels, leaving functional traps in the vicinity of cotton fields helps the eradication program eliminate weevils more quickly and at a lower cost to growers," said Charles Allen, program director.

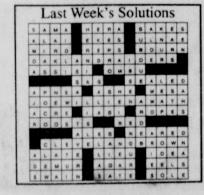

If the traps are interfering with harvest, growers should contact their field unit supervisors to determine a new placement for the traps. Supervisors will work with growers to move the traps so they don't interfere with operations. Traps that have been taken down should be replaced as soon as possible after the fields have been harvested. Foundation personnel will be happy to assist with replacing the traps.

Growers may contact their field unit supervisors or their district office for more information

Roll Your Dollars Over at Home

We owe it to our friends and family to keep all of the money we spend working for us here at home. If local dollars were spent with hometown merchants, our standard of living would be better, and our community would be more prosperous.

One of the most common and least sensible forms of giving is the making of donations to the growth of other communities. Experts say that every dollar you spend turns over up to seven times. That means that a dollar spent somewhere else will take away $7 in trade, wages, local taxes, and many other benefits. A one-hundred-dollar day is, in most cases, a minimum day for the gas, food, and shopping that you do in the city. That becomes $700 for that community, not ours.

The attack on America is not just a strike at people and buildings, it is an attack on our economic way of life.

Our enemies want to steal our optimism. They want us to approach the future with fear, uncertainty and hesitation.

If we do, they win.

Americans have responded quickly with generous support for rescue and relief efforts. We also must invest in our freedom by investing in our local economy. A strong economy could be our strongest defense against the forces of terror and destruction.

We must show the world our confidence in our own economy is high. We must bolster that confidence with strong, bold economic actions. Instead of cutting back, we should push forward boldly with investments in our community.

Buy at home, support America now.

Buying something now is a way to stand up for our country. There are many ways to make your investment, but we all must act now to keep our economy strong.

This message is supported by Panhandle area cities and chambers of commerce.

CHS pair run at c-c regionals

Sophomore Drew Sell and freshman Jessica Hernandez competed in the Regional Cross Country Meet at May Simmons Park in Lubbock Saturday, November 3.

Both runners ran against a field of over 150 runners from other 2A Districts in our Region. Sell's time for the three-mile course was 18:45 and was good enough to finish in 37th place. Cross-country coach Mary Karr was happy with Sell's effort in

"He did a good job; it was a tough race with a lot of runners." Sell's finish put him in the top 75% of the total competitors.

Jessica Hernandez finished 52nd with a time of 13:45 for the two-mile course. She also ran against a field of 150+ runners. This was Hernandez' first Regional competition, and Karr was pleased with her time.

"Jessica did a great job representing our District." said Karr. "She ran well for her first time. And it was an honor for both of them to be able to compete at that level."

The top ten finishers from the Regional meet will advance to the State meet to be held next week.

As for Sell and Hernandez, they'll be back next year to give it another go. Congratulations!

Lady Bulldogs topple Ranger

By Sandy Anderberg

It's a new game for the Clarendon College Lady Bulldogs, which includes a new coach and a new season. And they're starting things out right by defeating their first opponent 78-64.

The Clarendon College women's basketball team traveled to Ranger, Texas, last Thursday to face of against Ranger Junior College.

The Lady Bulldogs got things rolling in the first half as they led 41-32 at the break. They continued to keep the momentum going and handed Ranger a loss.

Coach Wade Scott was pleased with their effort.

"For our first game, the ladies played exceptionally hard," said Scott. "We're a young team, and we've got a long way to go, but the team battled hard and kept their composure."

The Lady Bulldogs did play hard and had two players in double figures. Sophomore guard Ravon Justice form Atlanta, Texas, was the leading scorer for the Lady Bulldogs with 21 points. She was perfect from the free throw line and was also three for three from the three-point line. Returning sophomore Nidia Garcia, who calls El Paso home, was the next highest point scorer with 20 points. Sophomore Esther Chavez, also from El Paso, added four points and four assists, and freshman Lana McCandless from Floydada helped with eight points and seven rebounds. As a team the Lady Bulldogs shot very well, hitting 78% of their free throws and threepoint shots.

The Lady Bulldogs will continue to work hard in practice this week. They will travel to Altus, Okla., this Thursday to participate in the Western Oklahoma State Classic Basketball Tournament.

Also scoring for the Lady Bulldogs was freshman Colby Davis from Seymour with eight points; freshman Vasha Adams from St. Vincent, SVG, had five points; freshman Heather Black from Dimmitt helped with four points; freshman Rachel Fabela also from Dimmitt had three points; sophomore Nivia Garcia from El Paso had two points; and freshman post player Sancho Lyttle also from St. Vincent, SVG; added one point. Also on the Lady Bulldog roster are freshmen Kim Woods from Valley; Cheryl Audain from St. Vincent, SVG; and Haley Hugley from Olton. Sophomores Tabitha Garrett from Channing and Quandra Riddley from Plainview complete the 15-member Lady Bulldog squad.

TxDOT adds new hybrid cars to fleet

AUSTIN – Increasing its commitment to clean air initiatives, two hybrid vehicles have been added to the Texas Department of Transportation's (TxDOT) alternative fuels fleet – the largest among state agencies.

TxDOT, with a fleet of 5,214 alternative fuel vehicles, will put these hybrid, low-emission vehicles into its Austin-based fleet.

"Clean air is everyone's business," said Rep. Warren Chisum, chairman of the House Environmental Regulations. "This is a fine example of TxDOT doing its part for clean air in Texas."

The gasoline-electric vehicles were purchased for $20,000 apiece and average 48 miles per gallon. The vehicle's 38 individual batteries, which make up the electric motor, are recharged when excess energy from braking or slowing down is directed to the batteries.

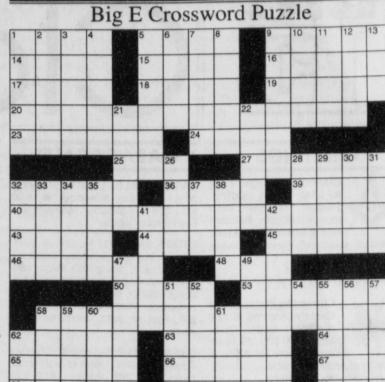

Since 1993, TxDOT has continued to increase use of alternative fuels, resulting in a 50 percent decrease in gasoline.
