Clarendon Head Start looking to fill openings

The Clarendon Elementary Head Start class has seven openings to fill with children who will be four on or before September 1 and who meet eligibility requirements.

Parents need to call the school office at 874-3855 and make an appointment to fill out an application.

Appointments will be taken from 1:00 to 4:00 on the afternoon of August 19. You will need to bring several months of income verification or W-2 form, public assistance verifications including WIC and HUD, the child's shot record, birth certificate, Social Security card, and verification of disability if applicable.

Christian Men to hold breakfast August 21

The United Christian Men's Breakfast will be held August 21, 2003, at 7:00 a.m. at the First United Methodist Church Fellowship Hall in Clarendon.

Steve Cook, Regional Associate of the International Commission, will present the program. He will share with them information on past and upcoming mission trips for foreign countries.

All men, women, and children are invited.

Girl Scouts schedule activities August 16

The Girl Scouts - Five Star Council will host an Archery and Swimming Event for all high school Girl Scouts and those interested in Girl Scouts on August 16, 2003, from 8:30 to 2:30 at the Memphis City Park.

Participants will enjoy a fun day of archery, hot dogs, and swimming.

Every girl must have a completed permission form signed by a parent or guardian. Registration forms are attached and will be available at the park. The $5.00 fee includes archery supplies, hot dogs, drinks, pool pass, and insurance. Girls who want to join Scouts may join for a $10.00 membership fee. Financial assistance is available if needed.

For more information, call Denise Bertrand at 806-874-3372 or 1-800-687-8740.

Shot clinic to be held here on August 19

An Immunization Clinic offering vaccines that give protection against several childhood diseases is scheduled in Clarendon at the Texas Department of Health (TDH) office on August 19, 2003.

The clinic will be held 9:00-12:00 and 1:00 to 4:00 p.m. at the TDH Clinic, which is located at Medical Drive #5 by the Medical Center Nursing Home.

Work underway on new hotel

A new three-story Best Western hotel is on Clarendon's horizon and should be completed early next year following groundbreaking ceremonies last Wednesday.

Construction crews went to work this week, and local businessman Jimmy Sindha says he and his partners are excited to see the project get started.

"The city needs this," he said. "It came up last year in a discussion at the college. I knew we needed it, and the city agreed to help us."

The Clarendon Economic Development Corporation is providing more than $31,000 to assist with the project. The new facility will employ ten people including the manager and should be completed by a target date of March 2004.

Contractor Forest Snyder of FLS Enterprises said the facility will be a three-story building with 51 rooms just west of the old state highway barn at the intersection of US 287 and SH 70 North. The hotel will enclose 32,000 square feet and be accompanied by a 29,000 square foot parking lot.

The building will be oriented north and south, be situated over 100 feet from the highway, and should be very pleasing to the eye.

"Best Western has very high standards," Snyder said, "and they will review and approve all the designs and colors."

The exterior is to be an earthtone synthetic stucco with lighter colored ornamental accent designs.

The interior of the hotel is also expected to meet high standards with imported granite countertops throughout and granite surrounds for the bathtubs. There will be an indoor swimming pool and spa, a business center with Internet access, a fitness center, a breakfast area, and an elevator. Six rooms will have Jacuzzis.

"I think this is something you will welcome to the community," Snyder said.

Sindha has partnered with his relatives - Mike Mahida and Ricky Sindha - to form 786, Inc., which is named for their lucky number. The new motel will be a family operation, and the partners are no strangers to the hotel business. Jimmy has owned and operated the Western Skies Motel here since June 1999, Ricky has been in the business in Amarillo for 11 years, and Mike has been in the business in Childress for more than 15 years.

The Western Skies will remain open after the completion of the new hotel.

Groundbreaking ceremonies for a new Best Western hotel were held last Wednesday. Participating were contractor Forest Snyder, part owner Jimmy Sindha, Clarendon EDC President Bob Watson, part owner Mike Mahida, Safiq Sindha, Riyaz Mahida, part owner Ricky Sindha, banker Mark Marrs, and Maz Garysia.

Party time!

Sarah Scrivner and Jessie Howard show off their Mardi Gras attire as part of the Clarendon Family Medical Center's booth at the Relay for Life last Friday on the Clarendon College track. The pair gave each passing runner their own necklace of Mardi Gras beads.

EMS responds to high volume of weekend calls

Emergency medical personnel in Donley County were kept on their toes this past weekend as a steady stream of life-threatening calls came in.

Associated Ambulance Authority Director Anita Aaron said the first call came in shortly after 8 a.m. on Saturday, and she didn't get home until 2 a.m. the next day.

"It was the busiest weekend this year," Aaron said. "There was no time to eat or rest and no time to even fuel up the ambulances in two cases."

During the two-day period, the ambulance service responded to 13 calls and transported 12 patients to facilities in Amarillo.

Three times the service ran out of ambulances, and first responder personnel went out on calls in personal vehicles to treat patients until one of the three ambulances could become available.

"I'm so proud of all our people," Aaron said. "Our emergency personnel are first rate, and they really stepped up to the plate."

Calls ranged from a car wreck to a skiing accident to an accidental shooting to respiratory problems. Most of the calls were very critical patients, and Aaron was happy to report that there were no fatalities this weekend.

The Associated Ambulance Authority, which operates under the Donley County Hospital District, has four full time medical personnel, two part time paramedics, and 25 volunteers from the community. The levels of participation and qualifications are much higher than other towns of similar size.

"I want the community to know just what a jewel we have in our paid and volunteer service," Aaron said. "This is a good, good service, and every one worked really well together with the guys from the [Donley County] Sheriff's Office, the [Greenbelt] Lake Patrol, and [Clarendon Volunteer] Fire Department."

Aaron also commended the Claude EMS, which assisted the local service this weekend.

"They're having trouble staffing their service, but they put together a team to help us."

On top of responding to the emergency calls this weekend, the Associated Ambulance Authority also gave a hand to Gray County's service, which had been scheduled to teach a bandaging and splinting course to thirty-five 4-H members at the Bar H Dude Ranch on Saturday. Gray County had to cancel, and local personnel filled in.

"The very nature of our people is to do these things because they want to help people," Aaron said. "Most of these people don't get paid, but they love Clarendon and Donley County and want everyone to be safe and cared for."

The weekend was also busy for Donley County fire fighters with the Hedley Volunteer Fire Department battling a blaze in the northeast part of the county and the Clarendon department fighting fires on the JA Ranch.

"They were all grass fires caused by lighting," said Clarendon Fire Chief Delbert Robertson. "It was a very busy weekend."

Approximately two dozen Clarendon firemen battled three fires on the JA and one near FM 1260 on Sunday. One of the JA fires re-ignited Monday.

Robertson said he estimated between one and one-half of a section was burned.

Hedley, Groom, and Memphis firefighters assisted Clarendon with the weekend blazes.

Relay for Life generates $17k

Volunteers in the second annual Relay for Life last week raised more than $17,276 to fight cancer.

Twelve teams participated in the event, which was held August 1-2 at the Clarendon College track.

Grumpy's Gang from the Donley County Hospital District was the most successful team, raising $3,122.44 during the event.

Second place went to the team from Clarendon College, which raised $1,402.32; and in third place was the Patriot Dawgs from Herring National Bank with $1,331.02.

Other teams included the Senior

Crusaders from the Donley County Senior Citizens Center, workers from the local USDA offices, the Lone Star Steppers, the Clarendon Family Medical Center, Howard's Hoehands, the BBQ Babes, the Bunco Angels, and the Church of Christ teams One and Two.

The Clarendon Family Medical Center won first place for the Most Creative Campsite, and Howard's Hoehands were second.

The title of Most Patriotic Campsite went to the local USDA offices, and second place went to the HNB Patriot Dawgs.

Local cancer survivors had the honor of taking the first lap around the track, and teams then kept at least one member on the track from 7 p.m. to 7 a.m.

This year's total was about $2,000 below last year's, but it was still a very impressive amount.

Funds raised from this event will support the American Cancer Society's programs to provide services to Donley county cancer patients, to continue education and risk reduction programs in schools and businesses, and to fund valuable cancer research.

Donley jury sentences man to 20 years

A Donley County Jury sentenced a Memphis man to 20 years in prison last week for escaping while under arrest for a Hall County driving while intoxicated charge.

Joe Perez Martinez, Jr., appeared in Judge David McCoy's District Court on July 30, and the jury returned its guilty verdict after just 15 minutes of deliberation.

The jury reconvened on July 31 and heard evidence of two prior felony convictions out of Hall County and four prior misdemeanor convictions. The jury levied the maximum sentence which included assessing a fine of $10,000 against the defendant.

"This was an example of an individual who had been to prison, had two prior felonies, several misdemeanors, and was only 28 years old," said District Attorney Stuart Messer.

"The jury sent a very clear message that there comes a time when there are no more breaks to be had. The jurors in this case returned a just verdict that was designed to protect the community from someone who had shown he was going to drink and drive no matter what."

No other word but massacre will fit Goliad

Down in South Texas lies a town about the size of our own. It is a community of some 2,000 souls; and while Clarendon has rich heritage, it is nothing compared to the history that unfolded at Goliad 167 years ago. But sadly, not everyone appreciates that history, including some of the town's own residents.

At issue is the famed Goliad Massacre. Some Mexican-American residents there now want the historic event referred to as "the Goliad Execution" because, they say, it is more legally accurate and less hostile to Mexicans.

THE NEW YORK TIMES quotes Goliad citizen Benny Martinez as saying that many Anglos "still hate Mexicans and using 'massacre' is a subtle way for them to express it."

Whether or not Anglo-Americans "hate" Mexicans should really be immaterial in this. To purposefully obscure historical events with modern day sentiments diminishes the impact of history itself and sacrifices the virtue of accuracy for the sake of political correctness.

Let's take a look at what happened in Goliad. During the Texas Revolution, Mexican General José de Urrea accepted the surrender of Col. James Fannin's forces on March 20, 1836, under the terms that the Anglos were to be treated as prisoners of war. Urrea assured Fannin that no prisoner of war of Mexico had ever lost his life. One of Urrea's majors even reportedly told the Texans, "Well, gentlemen! In eight days, home and liberty!"

Between 230 and 240 of Fannin's men gave themselves up and were marched to nearby Goliad, where they were imprisoned. Two days later, they were joined by William Ward and some 80 members of his Georgia Battalion. Gen. Urrea wrote to Mexican dictator Antonio López de Santa Anna and recommended clemency for the Anglos.

This is where the modern "Execution" proponents make their case. At the behest of Santa Anna, the Mexican Congress had passed a law - known as the Decree of December 30, 1835 - which basically called for the execution of any foreigner who took up arms against Mexico.

The dictator responded on March 23 to Urrea's letter with an order to shoot the prisoners. The letter was delivered to Col. José Nicolás de la Portilla, whom Urrea had left in charge at Goliad. Urrea himself was apparently never comfortable carrying out the Decree of December 30, and he sent contrary orders to Portilla, telling him to "treat the prisoners with consideration, and especially their leader, Fannin."

Meanwhile, Fannin was allowed to accompany a group of Mexican officers to the port of Copano where he was led to believe they were trying to acquire ship passage for the Anglos. He later told his fellow prisoners about the "arrangements," and they all sang "Home Sweet Home" on the night of Saturday, March 26.

But they would not be going home. Portilla ordered the shooting of the Anglos on Palm Sunday, March 27. At dawn, the men were divided into three groups and marched in three different directions. They were not at all uneasy since they had been told varying stories of either going to Copano to board a ship for New Orleans or going out to do manual labor for the day. At a certain point, the march was stopped, and the guards unceremoniously opened fire. The Texans who weren't killed immediately were hunted down and slaughtered. Back at the presidio in Goliad, Fannin and those wounded Texans who were not able to go on the march were killed.

It is estimated that 342 of Fannin's men were murdered on March 27, 1836. Their bodies were burned and left exposed to be consumed by nature's beasts.

An "execution" has a certain orderliness to it - a certain legal air that signifies the state is carrying out a lawful action. Part of that orderliness is that those who are about to die know their fate and are under no pretense that liberty may be just around the corner. The events at Goliad carry none of the distinguishing marks of an execution.

Would we ever deign to call the slaughter of American colonists by British troops on March 5, 1770, the Boston Execution? Since we now love the British, should we rename that event the Boston Accidental Shooting? No.

Likewise, the Goliad Massacre infuriated the Texans and their American allies and rightly so. "Remember Goliad!" became the rallying cry alongside "Remember the Alamo!" when General Sam Houston's forces routed Santa Anna's army the following month at San Jacinto and won Texas' Independence.

"For so long in Texas history classes it's been drilled into us that Mexicans were the demons and Anglos the enlightened heroes," Emilio Vargas III, an assistant principal at the Goliad elementary school told THE NEW YORK TIMES. "On this point we're no longer going to accept it without a fight."

The fact of the matter is that the brutal dictator Santa Anna was a demon, and so were those who carried out his bloodthirsty orders. Instead of denying that, Vargas and other educators should accept it.

As the Hispanic population of our state continues to grow, it is important that we do not allow the history of Texas to be diluted by political activists. We should rather teach our young people not only about our legendary Anglo figures, but also about the enlightened Tejano heroes - such as Juan Seguine and Lorezo de Zavala. For despite racial tensions in the years that followed, together in 1836 Anglos and Tejanos secured a nation's freedom and defeated a brutal tyrant.

The fight for Texas Independence is something we should know by heart, and we should never forget the path to victory was propelled by the Goliad Massacre.

editor's commentary by roger estlack

Simple rules to live by for all freshmen

It's that time again. Back-to-school. I always know it's coming because I can no longer stand to be living in my house. My mom gets anxious about school starting and is suddenly so dissatisfied with our housekeeping abilities that she completely wigs out.

In two weeks I will be loading up the car and heading back to my beloved HSU. Now that I am on the other side of the freshman year and the first summer home, I am considering putting together a book of wisdom for entering freshmen - a sort of handbook for higher education. I will give you just a small sneak preview.

First things first and I cannot stress this enough: Simplify. Simplify your wardrobe, simplify your hairstyle, simplify your morning routine. Simplify. You don't have the time, energy, or resources to be complicated. I mean that when you wake up in the morning, you should take no more than 20 minutes to be fully prepared to face your day. After cramming until 3 a.m., you don't want to get up at 6 a.m. to get through the shower and perfectly curl each piece of your hair just the right way. It won't work. It will kill you.

The things that you will really need and will become invaluable to you are laundry baskets. I recommend having three. One for dirty clothes, one for the fresh washed, and one that is portable enough to take home. That way you can wear stuff out of the clean basket without getting them confused with the dirty ones, and you can bring it all home in one trip. Your mom will love that.

Be prepared to eat a lot of not good food. Ramen Noodles and Easy Mac will be your best friends. Unless you become a psychotic workout freak, you will gain weight. That is a fact. Be emotionally prepared for it.

Don't bring stuffed animals, your letter jacket, or clothes that you do not wear at least once a month. Use your house as a sort of borrowing library. Each time you come home, bring a load and take a smaller one back.

Surround yourself with things that remind you of home. Decorate with the things that you kept in your room at home. Bring pictures of friends, family, and pets. I recommend leaving your stolen street signs at home. As cool as it sounds, they really do frown on that at most institutions.

You can use decorating as a sort of bonding activity between you and your roommate. I would warn you not to invest too much in matching stuff. You may not be roomies forever. Don't expect your first roommate to be a perfect fit. You may not be best friends. Don't be disappointed if it doesn't work out. I say try to live with the first one but hand pick the second one.

My parents got married right out of high school, so they feel left out at Sunday School parties because they don't have any roommate horror stories to tell. So look on the bright side; if your first roommate isn't your best friend, it could at least be your best story.

The number one rule that everyone

life's lessons by carrie helms

will tell you is to date no one your freshman year. I repeat, date no one. If you are currently dating someone from home, kick that fool like a bad habit or expect the "Turkey Drop." If you are in a serious relationship now, you can expect it to die of natural causes by Thanksgiving. That is not me being mean; that is the honest truth. It's statistically proven.

You are about to enter a world of brand new people and brand new opportunities, and the last thing you need is a dumb guy (or girl) clouding your judgment and distracting you from your studies. You definitely want to keep your options open, too.

The greatest piece of advice that I can give you (besides no dating) is to get involved. It can be easy to get lost in the shuffle at any size school. You will never feel at home and it will never be your school until you've made yourself a part of it. I recommend getting involved in intramural sports, a local church, or some sort of on-campus organization. It is a great way to meet new people (whom you cannot date) and to make a name for yourself on your campus.

For the first time in your life, you will be away from all things familiar and thrust into a place you've never been before; and you may feel unprepared to cope with it. Look at it as an opportunity to reinvent yourself. All the labels and rumors and preconceived ideas that followed you can stay at home. Question everything and keep what is real, keep what is true, and throw the rest away.

Congress working for working people

Unlike the rest of the year, August is a quiet month in our nation's capital. Members of Congress leave Washington to head home and spend time listening to their constituents, hearing their views and concerns firsthand. For your "light" summer reading, I will give you a mid-year report on what Congress has accomplished.

Economic Growth: In May, Congress passed the 2003 Jobs and Growth package to provide the American people with $350 billion more in tax cuts, building on the 2001 tax relief. The legislation accelerates many of the reductions from 2001 that were being phased in over several years. Taxpayers will immediately benefit from the lower marginal rates, marriage penalty relief, expansion of the 10-percent tax bracket, and an increase in the child tax credit. In July, the IRS began issuing $400 per child advance refund checks to approximately 25 million families. Taxpayers also experienced an increase in their paychecks because of the lowered marginal rates. The bill also provides important relief for small businesses and $20 billion to states where many are facing difficult budgetary shortfalls. I increased Texas' share of this state aid from what had been originally proposed, knowing the severe budget crunch Texas is in. Texas received $1.3 billion.

Medicare Reform: After many years of unfulfilled promises, each house of Congress passed Medicare reform including a prescription drug benefit. It is now in a conference committee to work out the differences. Medicare has not kept pace with the times. The 38 year-old program does not take into account the modern miracles afforded by new medical technologies and pharmaceuticals. By bringing this venerable program into the 21st century, we will better meet the needs of our nation's seniors and help ensure that Medicare will be solvent for generations to come. Energy Independence: For three years the Senate has been working to pass a comprehensive policy to make our nation energy independent and to create jobs for American workers. The clock ran out in 2002, and we were unable to pass a bill that balanced production, delivery, and conservation. I'm pleased that this year Congress finally passed an energy bill, which is now in conference committee. The legislation will help protect and create more than half a million American jobs and provide for a number of diverse options from ethanol to crude oil production to meet our nation's growing energy needs. It will also go a long way in releasing us from the grip of dependence on the Middle East.

National Security: September 11th crystallized how vulnerable our nation is to terror and showed what the enemies of freedom and democracy are willing and able to do. The president promised he would not stand idly by while the American people were menaced. In March that promise brought us to Baghdad to eliminate the threat of Saddam Hussein and his weapons of mass destruction. Saddam possessed and used weapons of mass destruction, repeatedly defied the will of the international community, and sponsored and harbored known terrorists and terrorist groups. Thanks to the might of the U.S. military and the support of allies like Great Britain and Australia, his regime is dead. Our troops are still in danger, and we pray daily for their safety and the stability of the region as Iraqis begin to take control of their own destiny.

Looking Forward: When Congress returns to Washington, D.C., in September, it again assumes a heavy load. Among the many agenda items, finding more ways to bolster our economy and put Americans back to work tops the list. This August, as you enjoy the last weeks of summer, know that Congress is gearing up for a busy fall and making our voices heard on behalf of the people we represent.

Duncan to serve on interim higher education committee

AUSTIN - Lt. Gov. David Dewhurst named Sen. Robert Duncan, R-Lubbock, last week to the Interim Joint Committee on Higher Education, a 16-member body of the Legislature charged with studying the structure and organization of higher education in Texas.

This interim committee will evaluate a wide variety of elements within the state's higher education system, including equity and adequacy; cost and student income levels; and administration.

Duncan said he is honored to take this duty on behalf of his West Texas constituents. Senate District 28 features many important institutions in the state's higher education future - among them,

Texas Tech University, Angelo State University, South Plains College, Howard College, Clarendon College, Texas State Technical College, Western Texas College, Lubbock Christian University, and Wayland Baptist University.

"It is vital to the future of this state that we keep higher education on track, and I look forward to working with the many dedicated, talented leaders who will also strive to benefit those seeking higher education in this state," Duncan said. "We each have Texans' best interests at heart, and I am excited about the good things we can do as a team."

The committee will prepare a report of its findings no later than November 1, 2004.

Field day to focus on grazing

AMARILLO - Area ranchers and farmers interested in sorghum and sudan grass grazing and silage hybrids should attend a morning field day on August 26.

Event sponsors include Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and Texas Cooperative Extension, units of the Texas A&M University System Agriculture Program.

The event begins at 9:30 a.m. and ends by 11:30 a.m. Travel one-half mile north of Bushland on Jim Line Road and to the test sites which are part of the James Bush Farm, a field laboratory operated by the Experiment Station's Amarillo headquarters.

The event includes presentations by Dr. Ted McCollum, Extension beef cattle specialist; Dr. Wayne Greene, Experiment Station beef cattle nutritionist; and Dr. Brent Bean, Extension and Experiment

Long-term grazing studies, started in 1999, involve many types of sorghum and sudan grass hybrids. Current tests include the new brown midrib and photoperiod sensitive varieties. Results have shown stocker cattle gains have consistently been above 2.25 pounds per day with several selections under study.

Discussions will feature stocking rates and frequency, gains per acre, seeding rates and other cultural practices, using mineral supplements, comparisons of brown midrib versus conventional hybrids, and strategies to avoid nitrate and prussic acid problems.

Other topics include an overview of photosensitive hybrids and their role in grazing regimes.

Three years of forage sorghum silage trials include over 90 hybrids. Most varieties will fit a producer's hay or silage needs. Several are high yielders; others produce little grain.

"Participants can see all the hybrids up close," Bean added. Presenters will cover sorghum varieties for tonnage or for quality. Sorghum silage production requires less water than corn.

By comparing a wide range of varieties, Bean said, silage users and growers can make selections for silage crops that approach the value of corn.

Producers will also hear tips on managing their operations to include increased hay and silage production. Water use efficiency will be addressed, as well as ways to reduce phosphorus buildup in soils from manure application by using selected sorghum-sudan hybrids.

For more information, contact Bean at (806) 677-5600, or a local extension office.

Addition:

Last week's article concerning the activities at the July 22 meeting of the Clarendon College Board of Regents inadvertently left out one item of business.

The Board considered depository bids from the Herring National Bank and the Donley County State Bank, and the deposit was awarded to the Herring National Bank. Regents Charles Deyhle and Ruth Robinson abstained from the vote since they both serve on Herring's local board of directors, and Regent Susie Shields, whose husband serves on Herring's board, also abstained.

Board of Regents Chairman Mike Butts expressed his appreciation for the support of both local banks, and the presidents of both banks pledged to continue that support.

From Our Exchanges

The Shamrock Texas Cowboy Rodeo Association (TCRA) Rodeo will be held August 15-16, 2003, at the Shamrock Rodeo Arena produced by Hext Rodeo Company and the Shamrock Rodeo Association.

The Memphis Chamber of Commerce is now taking reservations for both spaces during the Hall County Picnic, September 18-21.

The National Park Service announced a ban on all open fires at Lake Meredith National Recreation Area beginning July 27.

DPS Troopers and Wheeler County Deputies seized 75 pounds of marijuana on I-40 at mile marker 157 eastbound.

Colorado vacation a reminder of childhood

This column is coming to you from colorful Colorado. I came up with the family to help celebrate my parents' 50th wedding anniversary.

Both of my sisters and our brother were here with their families, except for my two nephews currently serving in the military, and the nephew in college in Austin.

I first started coming to Colorado when I was seven, almost eight.

in the process of building a house together on this same mountain back then, and since my family lived in Idaho at the time, we visited all the cousins in Colorado.

We rode those horses all over the mountain. We roamed down to the creek at the bottom of the hill behind the house, up the mountain as far as we could hike, and down as far as the big mill-pond where, if you were lucky, you could see beaver working.

And then we'd be hollered in by the aunts and head off for a picnic lunch. I just learned this year that all those picnics weren't just for fun. We had to picnic at lunch, because the house was still under construction, and they didn't need all those hordes of kids underfoot.

This year, all those little boys found long sticks they used for swords. Fortunately, no one got whacked on the head or poked in the eye while they were swinging those "swords" around.

And at the anniversary party, down at the church the parents attend while they're staying in Colorado, (there were only six more people at the party than we'd been feeding

Patsy and Delbert Robertson

Robertsons mark 50th anniversary

Delbert and Patsy Robertson will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary at a reception in their honor on Friday, August 8.

Hosts for the event are Patrick and Vicky Robertson and Debbie and Michael Thompson.

Robertson married the former Patsy Darlene Wallace on August 8, 1953, at the First United Methodist Church in Clarendon.

Robertson is self-employed and serves in numerous community and area roles. Mrs. Robertson assists in the family-owned business.

Children of the couple and their spouses are Patrick and Vicky Robertson of Clarendon and Debbie and Michael Thompson of Clarendon.

The couple has three grandchildren: Greg Collins of Amarillo, Tiffanie Hollan of Clarendon, and Chuck Robertson of Clarendon; and three great grandchildren.

Friends of the couple are cordially invited to attend the reception in honor of Delbert and Patsy on Friday, August 8, from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. at the Fellowship Hall of the First United Methodist Church in Clarendon.

Hedley residents enjoy company of visitors

It tried to rain one day last week but didn't quite make it. I talked to Jon Leggett and he said his gauge showed 0.10 inch.

Michael and Schelli Moore, Lauren and Hayden, of Dumas visited with her grandparents, Buford and Jerry Holland, Sunday.

I'm not sure where Lisa lives but think it might be Houston.

Pick and LaQuita Cox celebrated their 56th wedding anniversary Sunday. Congratulations, Pick and LaQuita.

Juanita Brown had her grandson Wade Brown and his family visits, recently. Wade, his wife, and sons are being transferred by the navy to Norman, Oklahoma, where Wade will be a recruiting officer.

Guy and Cathy had a friend and her son with them, so they spent the night at Su-San's. Sunday afternoon they came, and we went up to Greenbelt Lake, where they were going to camp for a few days.

Burton Library offers large print selections

Burton Memorial Library extends a very special "thank you" to former librarian Carolyn Blackerby. Carolyn's interest and concern for public library education is evident through her dedicated efforts while serving as Clarendon's librarian to maintain valuable past and current reading materials while securing the most updated information and modern technology resources for our community and county.

For readers who prefer large print, numerous varieties from favorite authors are available in Burton Memorial Library.

If you are looking for light reading, When Calls the Heart by popular Christian fiction writer Janette Oke is one of her best. With a Canadian Northwest setting, Oke presents her courageous heroine from a wealthy eastern upbringing, determined not to be influenced by the Canadian frontier.

Additional large print romantic novels include Rosamunde Pilcher's End of Summer and The Carousel; Diana Noble's Heart of Glass against a late 1880's background; and Lauren Paine's Tears of the Heart, among others.

Outstanding western writer Will Cook presents a touch of western romance in Until Day Breaks, A

Saga of Texas. Shade of Grey, If You've Got the Saddle, and Flowers for Rebecca are three of nine short stories written and compiled by author John D. Nesbitt in his book, One Foot in the Stirrup.

And who can resist a good mystery? Nicholas Blake, Nora Roberts, Anne River Siddons, Mary Higgins Clark, and V.C. Andrews are just a few of the authors whose thrilling suspense is in large print.

story of an antique quilt appearing under mysterious circumstances in a clothing shop. The crafted heirloom legacy will captivate readers.

Reader's Digest condensed books contain authors Grisham, Herriot, Edison, Harrison, and Evans. Billy Graham's Christian classic, Peace With God, is also in large print.

If you are familiar with the remarkable humor of well-loved newspaper columnist Erma Bombeck, who died a few years ago, you will delight with her hilarious Aunt Erma's Cope Book, How to Get From Monday to Friday... in 12 Days, and Family... The Ties that Bind... And Gag!

Did I say a collection of "numerous varieties"? There are more! Why not check it out?

Martin Church to hold barbecue, revival August 9

Martin Baptist Church will be celebrating the close of summer with the annual chicken barbecue and revival.

The celebration begins on Saturday, August 9, with the chicken barbecue. During the day there will be all sorts of activities going on with the cooking of the chickens and various fellowship and games.

They will be prepared and cooked for the evening meal.

Along with the barbecue, Martin Baptist will also hold revival services beginning on Sunday morning. Todd and Darla Keller and family will be providing the praise and worship with Todd bringing the inspiring message each service.

The Kellers are a family devoted to leading God's people to the throne of grace through worship. Their truest desire is to see people respond to God's call in Revelation 3:20. "...if anyone hears My voice and opens the door, I will come in and eat with him, and he with Me."

Todd is a graduate of Wayland Baptist University. Todd and Darla have served in West Texas churches for over ten years. Their goal is to see the church renewed through an openness in worship. Their children, Grant, Bristol, Paige, and Brooklyn, take an active roll in worship through voice, instrument, and drama.

The Kellers are in their fifth year of full time evangelistic work and are members of the First Baptist Church in Plainview and of the Conference of Texas Baptist Evangelists.

The invitation is extended to the entire community of Clarendon to join with Martin Baptist Church in welcoming the Keller family and joining in fellowship and worship.

The Texans to perform in Turkey's Gem Theatre this Saturday

The Texans will be performing at the Turkey Gem Theatre on Saturday, August 9, beginning at 7:00 p.m.

The band is from Quitman, Texas, originally organized in 1971 at Dallas Christian College as "The Master's Four," a full time traveling quartet.

In Branson, they performed one year at the Starlite Theatre, three years at the Plummer Family Theatre, two years of Sunday evenings at Silver Dollar City's Echo Hollow, one year at the Bob-O-Links, one year at the Kirkwood Theatre, one year at the Memory Lane Theatre, and two years at the Dogwood Theatre.

Some of the awards they have received are "Texas Group of the Year" from 1975 through 1982.

They were awarded the Ozark Music Awards distinction "Group of the Year" in 1985, 1986, 1987, and 1988. They were voted "Entertainers of the Year" for 1987 and 1988.

For the past three years they have been traveling on road full time and sing over 300 concerts a year. Their performance is more than just a gospel concert; it is an evening of inspiration, laughter, fun, and great Christian family entertainment.

The group consists of Sam Ray - lead vocalist and emcee; Brenda Ray - tenor; Curtis Ray - baritone; and Jamie Jameson - bass. Jamie's voice has been described as mineshaft deep and a cross between Tennessee Ford and George Younce.

Tickets are $10 for adults and $5 for kids twelve and under. Tickets are available at the door.

Annual Blackeyed Pea Festival to be held August 9 in Hollis

"Our Kids, Our Future" is the theme for the 15th annual Blackeyed Pea Festival which will be held Saturday, August 9, in Hollis.

The event is sponsored by the Harmon County Historical Museum in Hollis.

The Blackeyed Pea Opry, an all new variety show, is on tap this year in the Hollis High School Auditorium on Friday and Saturday evening at 7 p.m. To reserve tickets, call 580-688-9545.

The parade begins at 8:30 a.m.

Immediately following the parade, the Western Players will present an action packed show at Jackrabbit Junction with gunfights, fist fights, and lots of giggles.

A Peas 'n Ham complete meal including cold drinks and dessert will be served from 11 to 1:30 p.m. in the Hollis Civic Center. This is one of the most popular attractions on the festival agenda.

Join this once a year extravaganza to support Harmon County's Museum.

Red Hat Society to meet

Come experience the "Dog Days of Summer" with the Scarlet Saints Chapter of the Red Hat Society on Thursday, August 14, at 11:30 for lunch at the Bar H Dude Ranch in Clarendon.

The hostess, Lea Tyler, stated that all should "come as your are" wearing their red hat for a time of relaxation.

If you would like a ride, meet at the First Baptist parking lot at 11:15. For more information, contact Mary Douglas at 874-9366.

Local teachers develop teaching skills at NASA

Andrea Hall and Tammi Lewis of Clarendon Jr. High in Clarendon were two of 80 Texas eighth-grade teachers spending six days at NASA Johnson Space Center in Houston learning new ways to incorporate the wonder of space into their classrooms.

The Middle School Aerospace Scholars (MAS) shares space-age tools with teachers involved with students in this impressionable middle school age group. The teachers participate in one of three one-week summer sessions at Johnson Space Center (JSC) during June and July. JSC education specialists, flight directors, scientists, and engineers taught the educators about the latest technology used in the space program.

MAS is a one-year professional development program for teachers and includes an opportunity for their students to participate in a series of distance learning events in their own schools. During the summer workshop, teachers develop an "action plan" outlining various ways to integrate NASA resources into the middle school curriculum throughout the school year.

As part of Texas Aerospace Scholars, the MAS program was created through a joint venture between JSC and the State of Texas to encourage students to pursue future careers in science, engineering, and technology.

The students of these teachers are also encouraged to participate in future high school and community college aerospace scholars' programs. Additional funding for the program is received in part by other educational institutions, Rotary, NASA, and the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo.

For additional information on MAS or any of the Texas Aerospace Scholars programs, please visit our website at <http://aerospacescholars.jsc.nasa.gov/>

YOU'VE FLOWN THE FLAG. NOW WHAT?

In the months since September 11th, 2001, we have all witnessed a powerful resurgence of the American spirit. But now, in a climate of new threats, it's clear that patriotism alone is not enough. We must also learn to protect ourselves and our families against future terrorist attacks. There are three steps toward readiness. These steps are fairly simple and inexpensive. And they work.

MAKE AN EMERGENCY SUPPLY KIT

In a sturdy container like a plastic trash can or duffel bag, pack the items you and your family may need in an emergency and set them aside.

Your kit should contain 72-hours' worth of supplies: A gallon of water per person, per day. A three-day supply of non-perishable food. A first aid kit. Clothes, sleeping bags and toilet articles. Flashlight, extra batteries, scissors, plastic sheeting, duct tape. Also, a battery-powered radio is essential. Be sure to write down the frequencies of radio stations in your area that will broadcast emergency announcements.

It's also helpful to have a second, smaller kit with a few essential items, something you can grab in a hurry in case you're asked to leave your home for a few days.

MAKE A FAMILY COMMUNICATIONS PLAN

If your family knows where to go and what to do in an emergency, they'll save time and remain calm. Here's what your plan should contain: The name and phone number of out-of-state relatives to contact. (Long-distance calling may be easier than local calling.) A family meeting place near your home and another one away from the neighborhood. An evacuation plan using alternative routes. A designated room in your house in case authorities instruct you to "shelter-in-place."

BE INFORMED

If there's a terrorist attack on your city, local authorities will broadcast information as quickly as possible concerning the nature of the emergency and what you should do next. Be sure to keep listening for updates. What can you do right now? Get information, educate yourself and your family. For more details on emergency preparedness, visit our website at www.ready.gov. Or get a free brochure by calling 1-800-BE-READY (1-800-237-3239).

TO THE CITIZENS OF CLARENDON

The City Council of the City of Clarendon has called an election for the issuance of $2,500,000 Certificates of Obligation. The proceeds from these Certificates will be used to make street improvements throughout the City.

How will the Certificate proceeds be used?

If the Certificates are approved by the voters, proceeds will be used to make the following improvements throughout the City:

The project includes but is not limited to crowning of streets, laying down two-course penetration paving, and installing curbs and gutters. The plan calls for six-inch curbs and two-foot gutters on both sides of the streets. The streets will be 31 feet wide measuring from the backs of the curbs. Streets to be paved are as follows:

Jackson Street between Cooke and Wood
Hawley Street between Cooke and Barcus
McClelland Street between Cooke and Montgomery
Goodnight Street between Cooke and Montgomery
Carhart Street between Browning and Second
Gorst Street between Burkhead and Fourth
Kearney Street between Wood and Fourth
Jefferson Street between Eighth and Fifth
Parks Street between Ninth and Second
Taylor Street between Eighth and Second
Ellerbe Street between Eighth and Third
Bond Street between Eighth and Fifth
McLean Street between Eighth and Clarendon Ave.
Collinson Street between Eighth and Clarendon Ave.
Johns Street between Eighth and Sixth
Leroy Street between Eighth and Fifth
Cottage Street between Seventh and Fifth

Cooke Street between Goodnight and Jackson
Browning Boulevard between Carhart and Jackson
Burkhead Street between Gorst and Jackson
Barcus Street between Gorst and Jackson
Montgomery Street between Kearney and Goodnight
Wood Avenue between Kearney and Goodnight
Eighth Street between Cottage and Bugbee and between Koogle and Jefferson
Seventh Street between Cottage and Bugbee and between Koogle and Kearney
Sixth Street between Cottage and Bugbee and between Koogle and Goodnight
Fifth Street between Gorst and Hawley
Fourth Street between Koogle and Jefferson
Third Street between Collinson and Bugbee
Repair and paving of additional streets if funds are available following the letting of bids.

What will the Certificates cost the citizens of Clarendon?

In order to pay for the Certificates, the ad valorem tax rate would be increased by 15 cents. In addition, the sewer rate would increase by $10 per month, the base water rate would increase by $1.10 per month, and the City would use a portion of the sales tax to make payments. All rates are proposed. Final rates will depend on the interest rate for the Certificates and be subject to the approval of the Board of Aldermen.

The table below illustrates the impact of the 15-cent tax rate to homeowners:

Home Value	Annual	or	Monthly	or	Weekly
$20,000	$30		$2.50		$0.58
$40,000	$60		$5.00		$1.15
$60,000	$90		$7.50		$1.73
$80,000	$120		$10.00		$2.31
$100,000	$150		$12.50		$2.88

Who can vote?

You must be a registered voter with a current address in the City. You must be a resident of the City at least 30 days prior to the election.

Where and When can I vote?

Election day is Saturday, September 13, 2003, at Clarendon City Hall, located at 119 South Sully, Clarendon, Texas. The polls will open between 7:00 am and 7:00pm. Early voting will be conducted from Wednesday, August 27 to Tuesday, September 9, between the hours of 8:00am and 4:00pm, except of Saturdays, Sundays and legal holidays. Early voting will be conducted at City Hall.

A message from the City of Clarendon. Tex Selvidge, Mayor. Sean Pate, City Administrator.

Protein: Getting to the meat of an essential element

COLLEGE STATION – Mention protein and, chances are, thoughts go to meat or a mother lecturing her children about the importance of getting enough of it to grow strong and healthy.

Protein. Think also about cancer, allergies, autoimmune diseases, lupus, transplant rejection, dwarfism, menopause, and a host of other ailments. These turn on or off in a body based on what protein, extremely complex bundles of amino acids, are doing in a given moment.

The problem is, living organisms operate with a variety of tens of thousands of protein structures and, though much research has been done on individual protein systems, little is understood about how different protein systems interact.

Now an effort at Texas A&M University is bringing together all known information in an extensive, searchable Internet site called Binding Interface Database.

"No one understands the rules of protein interaction," said Dr. Jerry Tsai, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station bioinformatics researcher. "So we are bringing all that is known together in one place."

After one year, the Binding Interface Database, <http://tsailab.tamu.edu/BID>, has 245 interacting protein pairs with more than 1,500 "hot spots," or key interaction areas, documented.

"It's like moving a sitting elephant," Tsai said. "It's enormous. We spent about nine months just planning how it would be done."

Tsai's research is what scientists have dubbed "bioinformatics." That is, information technology applied to biology – software programs that process information derived from biological systems such as DNA sequence, cell images, and protein crystal structures.

"A researcher can come to the site, look at a protein or related protein, and get a clue to what proteins relate," said Tiffany Fischer of Dallas, a doctoral biochemistry student who is managing the project with Dr. Tsai.

Tsai said others have attempted to create a protein binding database before but never in easy-to-manuever format with searchable data. That's where Fischer, whose bachelor's degree is in genetics, lends expertise. She oversees a team of students who glean research papers for the useful and accurate information to enter into the database.

Fischer said the team is targeting the most biologically significant, widely researched proteins and systems initially.

"The MAPK system, for example, is important because it is a proposed cancer-causing pathway associated with cell death and cell proliferation," she said.

"That has been widely documented, so by putting what is known in the database, a researcher can come to one place to find out all that is known about the interactions of this system."

Still, less than 500 structures of proteins that interact are known, she added, though there are about 20,000 in the protein structure database.

One can search the system by protein or by system to get complete descriptions of proteins and their interactions. Also included is reference information that points to the source of the information.

Adding to what's already in the database, Tsai said, the project now will focus on inputting information on adaptor/adaptin proteins, and apoptosis (programmed cell death such as when the tissue between fingers of a fetus goes away) and tumor suppressors.

Senior Krusaders raise funds for cancer society in Relay

By Vida O'Neal

First of all I would like to let everyone know how much the Senior Krusaders appreciate all the help and contributions that were donated to our Relay for Life Team to benefit the American Cancer Society.

We had bakers, donations, quilters, banner makers, makers of homemade ice cream, the use of a golf cart throughout the walk, and all those that helped set up our tents and walked all night for our team and supported us in any way.

We had a great turnout for our Birthday/Anniversary Supper last week. We had great food and entertainment. Jay Riley and Gene Jones were our entertainment, and everyone enjoyed their music and cutting up. We appreciate these guys coming again to the center and playing for us.

Mark your calendars for the August Fundraiser. On August 14, we will be having a hamburger and homemade ice cream supper. The hamburgers will be cooked outside so they will be great. We will have all the trimmings and a variety of homemade ice creams to top them off. We will serve 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. and the charge will be $5 per plate. Takeouts will be available.

Our Dance Club has a change in their organization. Jean Baten has retired as their leader. She has moved to Amarillo, and the Dance Club as well as the center will miss her. She is a very active and energetic volunteer and we will all miss her. The Dance Club will be led by Mary and Maurice Meyer and Ruby Dell Estlack. The dance practice is now meeting at 7 p.m. on Monday nights.

We appreciate the fresh vegetables and fruit brought in by Arlis Thomas, Joyce Davis, and Dawn Watson.

Our condolences to Ailene McElroy on the loss of her sister. Get well wishes to Jane Hillman. Reminders:
Aug. 11, 18, 25: Dance Club, 7 p.m.
Aug. 12, 19: Game Night, 6 p.m.
Aug. 12: Hearing Aid, 9 a.m. – noon
Aug. 14: Hamburger and ice cream supper
Aug. 26: Birthday/Anniversary Supper, 6 p.m.

planting date for small grain grazing is October 1, 2003. The final planting date for small grains for forage is November 30, 2003. The acreage reporting date for small grain grazing is October 16, 2003. The acreage reporting date for small grains for forage is May 15, 2004.

If you are interested in insurance coverage, go by the FSA office. For appointments call 874-3561.

the lion's tale

Clarendon Lions Club held their regular Tuesday noon meeting August 5 with Boss Lion Marvin Elam in charge.

We had 17 members and two guests. Our guests were Johnny Treshel, guest of Lion Myles Shelton, and Scarlet Estlack, guest of Lion Russell Estlack.

The new college dorms are about finished with open house scheduled for August 14. The Equine Center is about one month behind schedule. The Alumni Courtyard is presently under construction. The new library is scheduled to be started this fall and will have approximately 11,000-sq. ft. of floor space. This building will be located between the Hamed Sisters Fine Arts Center and the Administration Building.

There will be a wine and dine for swine evening at the Bar H Dude Ranch this Saturday night, and the proceeds will go to equipment for the stockshow.

The public school is getting ready to start up in two weeks. They are painting and putting the finishing touches on the old gym.

This Saturday morning will be the Kid Fish at the Lake. This is a great project for our town.

There being no further business, we were adjourned.

Donley County retired educators hold meeting

The Donley County Retired School Employees Association met on July 28, 2003, with sixteen present.

The minutes were read by Renee Duncan. Connie DeBord gave the treasurer's report and the committee report was given by Jack Hall. Freida Tucker gave a reading for the entertainment.

During the meeting, certificates of appreciation were passed out to Roger Estlack, Freida Tucker, Thelma Shields, Renee Duncan, Carroll Duncan, and Cula Jo Trout.

Ashlee Kidd was introduced. She was the recipient of their scholarship this year.

After the reports, the group enjoyed homemade ice cream and cookies, and then they closed the evening by playing some fun games.

Breast Center receives funds from Komen Foundation

The Greater Amarillo Affiliate of the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation, formerly the Amarillo Race for the Cure, awarded $35,000 to the Comprehensive Breast Center of the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center for mammography services for medically underserved women age 30-50.

Last year the Comprehensive Breast Center screened 545 medically underserved women. Twenty-five percent of these women were between the ages of 30 and 50.

Indigent funding sources primarily provide mammograms and diagnostic follow-ups for women age 50 and older. However, many medically underserved women between the ages of 30 and 50 need a mammogram or diagnostic work-up, but traditionally there has been no funding available for these women.

This grant from the Komen Foundation will provide screening mammograms and diagnostic follow-ups as appropriate for 135 medically underserved women age 30-50.

"We are very fortunate to have this funding from the Komen Foundation," said John L. "Chip" Coscia, MD, Director of the Comprehensive Breast Center. "Early detection is extremely important in predicting breast cancer survival."

The Comprehensive Breast Center of the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center operates the second largest mobile mammography program in the country, serving over 10,000 women at 144 different locations throughout the High Plains.

Crusade organizers seeking volunteers

The task force for the Rick Gage Go Tell Greenbelt Crusade will be meeting Tuesday, August 12, 2003, at 7:00 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall of the First Baptist Church Clarendon. There will be refreshments and air-conditioning.

The crusade is one year away from coming to Clarendon and the surrounding area. This may seem to be a long time for the planning and preparation for the crusade, but major events will be taking place in December and January. Leadership for the committees need to be in place no later than the first of October.

Rick Gage Ministries are based in Atlanta, Georgia. Rick Gage is the son of Freddie Gage, a well-known evangelist in the Southeast. Gage has been involved in evangelism for a number of years following a coaching career, which brought him through the Panhandle while he coached at Texas Tech.

Gage has felt the call to have a number of crusades in the Panhandle area over the next several years. The Ministry has had two crusades so far in the area, one in Wheeler and one in Borger. There has been a great response from all denominations in these two crusades.

The task force is in need of your help. Those wanting to be involved in any way – no matter how great or small – are urged to attend this meeting. The task force is open to all; it is an equal opportunity organization.

Charity hunting, golf tourney to be held

The first annual Donley County Birds and Birdies Charity Hunting and Golf Tournament will be held September 13, 2003.

The charity event, which is presented by All American Outfitter, will donate a portion of the proceeds to the Donley County Meals on Wheels and to Donley County After-School Programs.

The contest will be begin at the Clarendon Country Club at 7:00 a.m. with a day filled with plenty of wing-shooting and 18 holes of golf. Lunch, dinner, and snacks in the field are provided along with golf carts. Transportation to and from the dove hunting field will be the participant's responsibility. Prizes and awards will be presented at the end of the day at dinner.

The cost for the event is $135 per person and is limited to 24 paid entrants.

For more information or to register, call 806-676-4610.

CC to host basketball camps August 11 - 14

Head Bulldog basketball coach Tony Starnes has reserved August 11-14 as the date for this year's elementary basketball camp for boys and girls and the Junior High girls' basketball camp.

Both camps will be held at the bulldog Gym and will cost $30.00 per camper, and will include a camp T-shirt. The elementary camp will be held from 9 am-12 noon and includes boys and girls in grades 1-5. The Jr. high girls' camp will be held from 6:00-9:00 p.m. and is for incoming sixth through eighth grade girls. The camp will offer basketball fundamentals with individual and team related work.

The elementary camp requires no pre-registration; you may register the first day of camp on August 11. Players interested in the Jr. High girls' camp may leave a message with Coach Starnes at 874-3571, ext. 276.

Broncho season tickets going on sale August 18

Clarendon CISD has announced the selling of Reserved Seating/Season Tickets for the 2003-2004 football season.

The cost of each football reserved seating/season ticket is $25. This price allows admission into the five home games and reserves your seat in the prime viewing location.

Reserved seating/season tickets will go on sale to the public at 8:30 a.m. on August 18, 2003. Reserved seating/season tickets can only be purchased at the CISD Administration Building at 416 S. Allen Street.

No other word but massacre will fit Goliad

Down in South Texas lies a town about the size of our own. It is a community of some 2,000 souls; and while Clarendon has rich heritage, it is nothing compared to the history that unfolded at Goliad 167 years ago. But sadly, not everyone appreciates that history, including some of the town's own residents.

At issue is the famed Goliad Massacre. Some Mexican-American residents there now want the historic event referred to as "the Goliad Execution" because, they say, it is more legally accurate and less hostile to Mexicans.

THE NEW YORK TIMES quotes Goliad citizen Benny Martinez as saying that many Anglos "still hate Mexicans and using 'massacre' is a subtle way for them to express it."

Whether or not Anglo-Americans "hate" Mexicans should really be immaterial in this. To purposefully obscure historical events with modern day sentiments diminishes the impact of history itself and sacrifices the virtue of accuracy for the sake of political correctness.

Let's take a look at what happened in Goliad.

During the Texas Revolution, Mexican General José de Urrea accepted the surrender of Col. James Fannin's forces on March 20, 1836, under the terms that the Anglos were to be treated as prisoners of war. Urrea assured Fannin that no prisoner of war of Mexico had ever lost his life. One of Urrea's majors even reportedly told the Texans, "Well, gentlemen! In eight days, home and liberty!"

Between 230 and 240 of Fannin's men gave themselves up and were marched to nearby Goliad, where they were imprisoned. Two days later, they were joined by William Ward and some 80 members of his Georgia Battalion. Gen. Urrea wrote to Mexican dictator Antonio López de Santa Anna and recommended clemency for the Anglos.

This is where the modern "Execution" proponents make their case. At the behest of Santa Anna, the Mexican Congress had passed a law - known as the Decree of December 30, 1835 - which basically called for the execution of any foreigner who took up arms against Mexico.

The dictator responded on March 23 to Urrea's letter with an order to shoot the prisoners. The letter was delivered to Col. José Nicolás de la Portilla, whom Urrea had left in charge at Goliad. Urrea himself was apparently never comfortable carrying out the Decree of December 30, and he sent contrary orders to Portilla, telling him to "treat the prisoners with consideration, and especially their leader, Fannin."

Meanwhile, Fannin was allowed to accompany a group of Mexican officers to the port of Copano where he was led to believe they were trying to acquire ship passage for the Anglos. He later told his fellow prisoners about the "arrangements," and they all sang "Home Sweet Home" on the night of Saturday, March 26.

But they would not be going home. Portilla ordered the shooting of the Anglos on Palm Sunday, March 27. At dawn, the men were divided into three groups and marched in three different directions. They were not at all uneasy since they had been told varying stories of either going to Copano to board a ship for New Orleans or going out to do manual labor for the day. At a certain point, the march was stopped, and the guards unceremoniously opened fire. The Texans who weren't killed immediately were hunted down and slaughtered. Back at the presidio in Goliad, Fannin and those wounded Texans who were not able to go on the march were killed.

It is estimated that 342 of Fannin's men were murdered on March 27, 1836. Their bodies were burned and left exposed to be consumed by nature's beasts.

An "execution" has a certain orderliness to it - a certain legal air that signifies the state is carrying out a lawful action. Part of that orderliness is that those who are about to die know their fate and are under no pretense that liberty may be just around the corner. The events at Goliad carry none of the distinguishing marks of an execution.

Would we ever deign to call the slaughter of American colonists by British troops on March 5, 1770, the Boston Execution? Since we now love the British, should we rename that event the Boston Accidental Shooting? No.

Likewise, the Goliad Massacre infuriated the Texans and their American allies and rightly so. "Remember Goliad!" became the rallying cry alongside "Remember the Alamo!" when General Sam Houston's forces routed Santa Anna's army the following month at San Jacinto and won Texas' Independence.

"For so long in Texas history classes it's been drilled into us that Mexicans were the demons and Anglos the enlightened heroes," Emilio Vargas III, an assistant principal at the Goliad elementary school told THE NEW YORK TIMES. "On this point we're no longer going to accept it without a fight."

The fact of the matter is that the brutal dictator Santa Anna was a demon, and so were those who carried out his bloodthirsty orders. Instead of denying that, Vargas and other educators should accept it.

As the Hispanic population of our state continues to grow, it is important that we do not allow the history of Texas to be diluted by political activists. We should rather teach our young people not only about our legendary Anglo figures, but also about the enlightened Tejano heroes - such as Juan Seguin and Lorezo de Zavala. For despite racial tensions in the years that followed, together in 1836 Anglos and Tejanos secured a nation's freedom and defeated a brutal tyrant.

The fight for Texas Independence is something we should know by heart, and we should never forget the path to victory was propelled by the Goliad Massacre.

editor's commentary by roger estlack

Simple rules to live by for all freshmen

It's that time again. Back-to-school. I always know it's coming because I can no longer stand to be living in my house. My mom gets anxious about school starting and is suddenly so dissatisfied with our housekeeping abilities that she completely wigs out.

In two weeks I will be loading up the car and heading back to my beloved HSU. Now that I am on the other side of the freshman year and the first summer home, I am considering putting together a book of wisdom for entering freshmen - a sort of handbook for higher education. I will give you just a small sneak preview.

First things first and I cannot stress this enough: Simplify. Simplify your wardrobe, simplify your hairstyle, simplify your morning routine. Simplify. You don't have the time, energy, or resources to be complicated. I mean that when you wake up in the morning, you should take no more than 20 minutes to be fully prepared to face your day. After cramming until 3 a.m., you don't want to get up at 6 a.m. to get through the shower and perfectly curl each piece of your hair just the right way. It won't work. It will kill you.

The things that you will really need and will become invaluable to you are laundry baskets. I recommend having three. One for dirty clothes, one for the fresh washed, and one that is portable enough to take home. That way you can wear stuff out of the clean basket without getting them confused with the dirty ones, and you can bring it all home in one trip. Your mom will love that.

Be prepared to eat a lot of not good food. Ramen Noodles and Easy Mac will be your best friends. Unless you become a psychotic workout freak, you will gain weight. That is a fact. Be emotionally prepared for it.

Don't bring stuffed animals, your letter jacket, or clothes that you do not wear at least once a month. Use your house as a sort of borrowing library. Each time you come home, bring a load and take a smaller one back.

Surround yourself with things that remind you of home. Decorate with the things that you kept in your room at home. Bring pictures of friends, family, and pets. I recommend leaving your stolen street signs at home. As cool as it sounds, they really do frown on that at most institutions.

You can use decorating as a sort of bonding activity between you and your roommate. I would warn you not to invest too much in matching stuff. You may not be roomies forever. Don't expect your first roommate to be a perfect fit. You may not be best friends. Don't be disappointed if it doesn't work out. I say try to live with the first one but hand pick the second one.

My parents got married right out of high school, so they feel left out at Sunday School parties because they don't have any roommate horror stories to tell. So look on the bright side; if your first roommate isn't your best friend, it could at least be your best story.

The number one rule that everyone

will tell you is to date no one your freshman year. I repeat, date no one. If you are currently dating someone from home, kick that fool like a bad habit or expect the "Turkey Drop." If you are in a serious relationship now, you can expect it to die of natural causes by Thanksgiving. That is not me being mean; that is the honest truth. It's statistically proven.

You are about to enter a world of brand new people and brand new opportunities, and the last thing you need is a dumb guy (or girl) clouding your judgment and distracting you from your studies. You definitely want to keep your options open, too.

The greatest piece of advice that I can give you (besides no dating) is to get involved. It can be easy to get lost in the shuffle at any size school. You will never feel at home and it will never be your school until you've made yourself a part of it. I recommend getting involved in intramural sports, a local church, or some sort of on-campus organization. It is a great way to meet new people (whom you cannot date) and to make a name for yourself on your campus.

For the first time in your life, you will be away from all things familiar and thrust into a place you've never been before; and you may feel unprepared to cope with it. Look at it as an opportunity to reinvent yourself. All the labels and rumors and preconceived ideas that followed you can stay at home. Question everything and keep what is real, keep what is true, and throw the rest away.

Congress working for working people

Unlike the rest of the year, August is a quiet month in our nation's capital. Members of Congress leave Washington to head home and spend time listening to their constituents, hearing their views and concerns firsthand. For your "light" summer reading, I will give you a mid-year report on what Congress has accomplished.

Economic Growth: In May, Congress passed the 2003 Jobs and Growth package to provide the American people with $350 billion more in tax cuts, building on the 2001 tax relief. The legislation accelerates many of the reductions from 2001 that were being phased in over several years. Taxpayers will immediately benefit from the lower marginal rates, marriage penalty relief, expansion of the 10-percent tax bracket, and an increase in the child tax credit. In July, the IRS began issuing $400 per child advance refund checks to approximately 25 million families. Taxpayers also experienced an increase in their paychecks because of the lowered marginal rates. The bill also provides important relief for small businesses and $20 billion to states where many are facing difficult budgetary shortfalls. I increased Texas' share of this state aid from what had been originally proposed, knowing the severe budget crunch Texas is in. Texas received $1.3 billion.

Medicare Reform: After many years of unfulfilled promises, each year of Congress passed Medicare reform including a prescription drug benefit. It is now in a conference committee to work out the differences. Medicare has not kept pace with the times. The 38 year-old program does not take into account the modern miracles afforded by new medical technologies and pharmaceuticals. By bringing this venerable program into the 21st century, we will better meet the needs of our nation's seniors and help ensure that Medicare will be solvent for generations to come. Energy Independence: For three years the Senate has been working to pass a comprehensive policy to make our nation energy independent and to create jobs for American workers. The clock ran out in 2002, and we were unable to pass a bill that balanced production, delivery, and conservation. I'm pleased that this year Congress finally passed an energy bill, which is now in conference committee. The legislation will help protect and create more than half a million American jobs and provide for a number of diverse options from ethanol to crude oil production to meet our nation's growing energy needs. It will also go a long way in releasing us from the grip of dependence on the Middle East.

National Security: September 11th crystallized how vulnerable our nation is to terror and showed what the enemies of freedom and democracy are willing and able to do. The president promised he would not stand idly by while the American people were menaced. In March that promise brought us to Baghdad to eliminate the threat of Saddam Hussein and his weapons of mass destruction. Saddam possessed and used weapons of mass destruction, repeatedly defied the will of the international community, and sponsored and harbored known terrorists and terrorist groups. Thanks to the might of the U.S. military and the support of allies like Great Britain and Australia, his regime is dead. Our troops are still in danger, and we pray daily for their safety and the stability of the region as Iraqis begin to take control of their own destiny.

Looking Forward: When Congress returns to Washington, D.C., in September, it again assumes a heavy load. Among the many agenda items, finding more ways to bolster our economy and put Americans back to work tops the list. This August, as you enjoy the last weeks of summer, know that Congress is gearing up for a busy fall and making our voices heard on behalf of the people we represent.

Duncan to serve on interim higher education committee

AUSTIN — Lt. Gov. David Dewhurst named Sen. Robert Duncan, R-Lubbock, last week to the Interim Joint Committee on Higher Education, a 16-member body of the Legislature charged with studying the structure and organization of higher education in Texas.

This interim committee will evaluate a wide variety of elements within the state's higher education system, including equity and adequacy; cost and student income levels; and administration.

Duncan said he is honored to take this duty on behalf of his West Texas constituents. Senate District 28 features many important institutions in the state's higher education future — among them,

Texas Tech University, Angelo State University, South Plains College, Howard College, Clarendon College, Texas State Technical College, Western Texas College, Lubbock Christian University, and Wayland Baptist University.

"It is vital to the future of this state that we keep higher education on track, and I look forward to working with the many dedicated, talented leaders who will also strive to benefit those seeking higher education in this state," Duncan said. "We each have Texans' best interests at heart, and I am excited about the good things we can do as a team."

The committee will prepare a report of its findings no later than November 1, 2004.

Field day to focus on grazing

AMARILLO — Area ranchers and farmers interested in sorghum and sudan grass grazing and silage hybrids should attend a morning field day on August 26.

Event sponsors include Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and Texas Cooperative Extension, units of the Texas A&M University System Agriculture Program.

The event begins at 9:30 a.m. and ends by 11:30 a.m. Travel one-half mile north of Bushland on Jim Line Road and to the test sites which are part of the James Bush Farm, a field laboratory operated by the Experiment Station's Amarillo headquarters.

The event includes presentations by Dr. Ted McCollum, Extension beef cattle specialist; Dr. Wayne Greene, Experiment Station beef cattle nutritionist; and Dr. Brent Bean, Extension and Experiment

Station agronomist.

Long-term grazing studies, started in 1999, involve many types of sorghum and sudan grass hybrids. Current tests include the new brown midrib and photoperiod sensitive varieties. Results have shown stocker cattle gains have consistently been above 2.25 pounds per day with several selections under study.

Discussions will feature stocking rates and frequency, gains per acre, seeding rates and other cultural practices, using mineral supplements, comparisons of brown midrib versus conventional hybrids, and strategies to avoid nitrate and prussic acid problems.

Other topics include an overview of photosensitive hybrids and their role in grazing regimes.

Three years of forage sorghum silage trials include over 90 hybrids. Most varieties will fit a producer's hay or silage needs. Several are high yielders; others produce little grain.

"Participants can see all the hybrids up close," Bean added. Presenters will cover sorghum varieties for tonnage or for quality. Sorghum silage production requires less water than corn.

By comparing a wide range of varieties, Bean said, silage users and growers can make selections for silage crops that approach the value of corn.

Producers will also hear tips on managing their operations to include increased hay and silage production. Water use efficiency will be addressed, as well as ways to reduce phosphorus buildup in soils from manure application by using selected sorghum-sudan hybrids.

For more information, contact Bean at (806) 677-5600, or a local extension office.

Addition:

Last week's article concerning the activities at the July 22 meeting of the Clarendon College Board of Regents inadvertently left out one item of business.

The Board considered depository bids from the Herring National Bank and the Donley County State Bank, and the deposit was awarded to the Herring National Bank. Regents Charles Deyhle and Ruth Robinson abstained from the vote since they both serve on Herring's local board of directors, and Regent Susie Shields, whose husband serves on Herring's board, also abstained.

Board of Regents Chairman Mike Butts expressed his appreciation for the support of both local banks, and the presidents of both banks pledged to continue that support.

No other word but massacre will fit Goliad

Down in South Texas lies a town about the size of our own. It is a community of some 2,000 souls; and while Clarendon has rich heritage, it is nothing compared to the history that unfolded at Goliad 167 years ago. But sadly, not everyone appreciates that history, including some of the town's own residents.

At issue is the famed Goliad Massacre. Some Mexican-American residents there now want the historic event referred to as "the Goliad Execution" because, they say, it is more legally accurate and less hostile to Mexicans.

The NEW YORK TIMES quotes Goliad citizen Benny Martinez as saying that many Anglos "still hate Mexicans and using 'massacre' is a subtle way for them to express it."

Whether or not Anglo-Americans "hate" Mexicans should really be immaterial in this. To purposefully obscure historical events with modern day sentiments diminishes the impact of history itself and sacrifices the virtue of accuracy for the sake of political correctness.

Let's take a look at what happened in Goliad. During the Texas Revolution, Mexican General José de Urrea accepted the surrender of Col. James Fannin's forces on March 20, 1836, under the terms that the Anglos were to be treated as prisoners of war. Urrea assured Fannin that no prisoner of war of Mexico had ever lost his life. One of Urrea's majors even reportedly told the Texans, "Well, gentlemen! In eight days, home and liberty!"

Between 230 and 240 of Fannin's men gave themselves up and were marched to nearby Goliad, where they were imprisoned. Two days later, they were joined by William Ward and some 80 members of his Georgia Battalion. Gen. Urrea wrote to Mexican dictator Antonio López de Santa Anna and recommended clemency for the Anglos.

This is where the modern "Execution" proponents make their case. At the behest of Santa Anna, the Mexican Congress had passed a law — known as the Decree of December 30, 1835 — which basically called for the execution of any foreigner who took up arms against Mexico.

The dictator responded on March 23 to Urrea's letter with an order to shoot the prisoners. The letter was delivered to Col. José Nicolás de la Portilla, whom Urrea had left in charge at Goliad. Urrea himself was apparently never comfortable carrying out the Decree of December 30, and he sent contrary orders to Portilla, telling him to "treat the prisoners with consideration, and especially their leader, Fannin."

Meanwhile, Fannin was allowed to accompany a group of Mexican officers to the port of Copano where he was led to believe they were trying to acquire ship passage for the Anglos. He later told his fellow prisoners about the "arrangements," and they all sang "Home Sweet Home" on the night of Saturday, March 26.

But they would not be going home. Portilla ordered the shooting of the Anglos on Palm Sunday, March 27. At dawn, the men were divided into three groups and marched in three different directions. They were not at all uneasy since they had been told varying stories of either going to Copano to board a ship for New Orleans or going out to do manual labor for the day. At a certain point, the march was stopped, and the guards unceremoniously opened fire. The Texans who weren't killed immediately were hunted down and slaughtered. Back at the presidio in Goliad, Fannin and those wounded Texans who were not able to go on the march were killed.

It is estimated that 342 of Fannin's men were murdered on March 27, 1836. Their bodies were burned and left exposed to be consumed by nature's beasts. An "execution" has a certain orderliness to it — a certain legal air that signifies the state is carrying out a lawful action. Part of that orderliness is that those who are about to die know their fate and are under no pretense that liberty may be just around the corner. The events at Goliad carry none of the distinguishing marks of an execution.

Would we ever deign to call the slaughter of American colonists by British troops on March 5, 1770, the Boston Execution? Since we now love the British, should we rename that event the Boston Accidental Shooting? No.

Likewise, the Goliad Massacre infuriated the Texans and their American allies and rightly so. "Remember Goliad!" became the rallying cry alongside "Remember the Alamo!" when General Sam Houston's forces routed Santa Anna's army the following month at San Jacinto and won Texas' Independence.

"For so long in Texas history classes it's been drilled into us that Mexicans were the demons and Anglos the enlightened heroes," Emilio Vargas III, an assistant principal at the Goliad elementary school told THE NEW YORK TIMES. "On this point we're no longer going to accept it without a fight."

The fact of the matter is that the brutal dictator Santa Anna was a demon, and so were those who carried out his bloodthirsty orders. Instead of denying that, Vargas and other educators should accept it.

As the Hispanic population of our state continues to grow, it is important that we do not allow the history of Texas to be diluted by political activists. We should rather teach our young people not only about our legendary Anglo figures, but also about the enlightened Tejano heroes — such as Juan Seguine and Lorezo de Zavala. For despite racial tensions in the years that followed, together in 1836 Anglos and Tejanos secured a nation's freedom and defeated a brutal tyrant.

The fight for Texas Independence is something we should know by heart, and we should never forget the path to victory was propelled by the Goliad Massacre.

Simple rules to live by for all freshmen

It's that time again. Back-to-school. I always know it's coming because I can no longer stand to be living in my house. My mom gets anxious about school starting and is suddenly so dissatisfied with our housekeeping abilities that she completely wigs out.

In two weeks I will be loading up the car and heading back to my beloved HSU. Now that I am on the other side of the freshman year and the first summer home, I am considering putting together a book of wisdom for entering freshmen — a sort of handbook for higher education. I will give you just a small sneak preview.

First things first and I cannot stress this enough: Simplify. Simplify your wardrobe, simplify your hairstyle, simplify your morning routine. Simplify. You don't have the time, energy, or resources to be complicated. I mean that when you wake up in the morning, you should take no more than 20 minutes to be fully prepared to face your day. After cramming until 3 a.m., you don't want to get up at 6 a.m. to get through the shower and perfectly curl each piece of your hair just the right way. It won't work. It will kill you.

The things that you will really need and will become invaluable to you are laundry baskets. I recommend having three. One for dirty clothes, one for the fresh washed, and one that is portable enough to take home. That way you can wear stuff out of the clean basket without getting them confused with the dirty ones, and you can bring it all home in one trip. Your mom will love that.

Be prepared to eat a lot of not good food. Ramen Noodles and Easy Mac will be your best friends. Unless you become a psychotic workout freak, you will gain weight. That is a fact. Be emotionally prepared for it.

Don't bring stuffed animals, your letter jacket, or clothes that you do not wear at least once a month. Use your house as a sort of borrowing library. Each time you come home, bring a load and take a smaller one back.

Surround yourself with things that remind you of home. Decorate with the things that you kept in your room at home. Bring pictures of friends, family, and pets. I recommend leaving your stolen street signs at home. As cool as it sounds, they really do frown on that at most institutions.

You can use decorating as a sort of bonding activity between you and your roommate. I would warn you not to invest too much in matching stuff. You may not be roomies forever. Don't expect your first roommate to be a perfect fit. You may not be best friends. Don't be disappointed if it doesn't work out. I say try to live with the first one but hand pick the second one.

My parents got married right out of high school, so they left out at Sunday School parties because they don't have any roommate horror stories to tell. So look on the bright side; if your first roommate isn't your best friend, it could at least be your best story.

The number one rule that everyone will tell you is to date no one your freshman year. I repeat, date no one. If you are currently dating someone from home, kick that fool like a bad habit or expect the "Turkey Drop." If you are in a serious relationship now, you can expect it to die of natural causes by Thanksgiving. That is not me being mean; that is the honest truth. It's statistically proven.

You are about to enter a world of brand new people and brand new opportunities, and the last thing you need is a dumb guy (or girl) clouding your judgment and distracting you from your studies. You definitely want to keep your options open, too.

The greatest piece of advice that I can give you (besides no dating) is to get involved. It can be easy to get lost in the shuffle at any size school. You will never feel at home and it will never be your school until you've made yourself a part of it. I recommend getting involved in intramural sports, a local church, or some sort of on-campus organization. It is a great way to meet new people (whom you cannot date) and to make a name for yourself on your campus.

For the first time in your life, you will be away from all things familiar and thrust into a place you've never been before; and you may feel unprepared to cope with it. Look at it as an opportunity to reinvent yourself. All the labels and rumors and preconceived ideas that followed you can stay at home. Question everything and keep what is real, keep what is true, and throw the rest away.

Congress working for working people

Unlike the rest of the year, August is a quiet month in our nation's capital. Members of Congress leave Washington to head home and spend time listening to their constituents, hearing their views and concerns firsthand. For your "light" summer reading, I will give you a mid-year report on what Congress has accomplished.

Economic Growth: In May, Congress passed the 2003 Jobs and Growth package to provide the American people with $350 billion more in tax cuts, building on the 2001 tax relief. The legislation accelerates many of the reductions from 2001 that were being phased in over several years. Taxpayers will immediately benefit from the lower marginal rates, marriage penalty relief, expansion of the 10-percent tax bracket, and an increase in the child tax credit. In July, the IRS began issuing $400 per child advance refund checks to approximately 25 million families. Taxpayers also experienced an increase in their paychecks because of the lowered marginal rates. The bill also provides important relief for small businesses and $20 billion to states where many are facing difficult budgetary shortfalls. I increased Texas' share of this state aid from what had been originally proposed, knowing the severe budget crunch Texas is in. Texas received $1.3 billion.

Medicare Reform: After many years of unfulfilled promises, each house of Congress passed Medicare reform including a prescription drug benefit. It is now in a conference committee to work out the differences. Medicare has not kept pace with the times. Energy Independence: For three years the Senate has been working to pass a comprehensive policy to make our nation energy independent and to create jobs for American workers. The clock ran out in 2002, and we were unable to pass a bill that balanced production, delivery, and conservation. I'm pleased that this year Congress finally passed an energy bill, which is now in conference committee. The legislation will help protect and create more than half a million American jobs and provide for a number of diverse options from ethanol to crude oil production to meet our nation's growing energy needs. It will also go a long way in releasing us from the grip of dependence on the Middle East.

National Security: September 11th crystallized how vulnerable our nation is to terror and showed what the enemies

Duncan to serve on interim higher education committee

AUSTIN - Lt. Gov. David Dewhurst named Sen. Robert Duncan, R-Lubbock, last week to the Interim Joint Committee on Higher Education, a 16-member body of the Legislature charged with studying the structure and organization of higher education in Texas.

This interim committee will evaluate a wide variety of elements within the state's higher education system, including equity and adequacy; cost and student income levels; and administration.

Duncan said he is honored to take this duty on behalf of his West Texas constituents. Senate District 28 features many important institutions in the state's higher education future - among them,

Texas Tech University, Angelo State University, South Plains College, Howard College, Clarendon College, Texas State Technical College, Western Texas College, Lubbock Christian University, and Wayland Baptist University.

"It is vital to the future of this state that we keep higher education on track, and I look forward to working with the many dedicated, talented leaders who will also strive to benefit those seeking higher education in this state," Duncan said. "We each have Texans' best interests at heart, and I am excited about the good things we can do as a team."

The committee will prepare a report of its findings no later than November 1, 2004.

Field day to focus on grazing

AMARILLO - Area ranchers and farmers interested in sorghum and sudan grass grazing and silage hybrids should attend a morning field day on August 26.

Event sponsors include Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and Texas Cooperative Extension, units of the Texas A&M University System Agriculture Program.

The event begins at 9:30 a.m. and ends by 11:30 a.m. Travel one-half mile north of Bushland on Jim Line Road and to the test sites which are part of the James Bush Farm, a field laboratory operated by the Experiment Station's Amarillo headquarters.

The event includes presentations by Dr. Ted McCollum, Extension beef cattle specialist; Dr. Wayne Greene, Experiment Station beef cattle nutritionist; and Dr. Brent Bean, Extension and Experiment

Station agronomist.

Long-term grazing studies, started in 1999, involve many types of sorghum and sudan grass hybrids. Current tests include the new brown midrib and photoperiod sensitive varieties. Results have shown stocker cattle gains have consistently been above 2.25 pounds per day with several selections under study.

Discussions will feature stocking rates and frequency, gains per acre, seeding rates and other cultural practices, using mineral supplements, comparisons of brown midrib versus conventional hybrids, and strategies to avoid nitrate and prussic acid problems.

Other topics include an overview of photosensitive hybrids and their role in grazing regimes.

Three years of forage sorghum silage trials include over 90 hybrids. Most varieties will fit a producer's hay or silage needs. Several are high yielders; others produce little grain.

"Participants can see all the hybrids up close," Bean added. Presenters will cover sorghum varieties for tonnage or for quality. Sorghum silage production requires less water than corn.

By comparing a wide range of varieties, Bean said, silage users and growers can make selections for silage crops that approach the value of corn.

Producers will also hear tips on managing their operations to include increased hay and silage production. Water use efficiency will be addressed, as well as ways to reduce phosphorus buildup in soils from manure application by using selected sorghum-sudan hybrids.

For more information, contact Bean at (806) 677-5600, or a local extension office.

Addition:
Last week's article concerning the activities at the July 22 meeting of the Clarendon College Board of Regents inadvertently left out one item of business.

The Board considered depository bids from the Herring National Bank and the Donley County State Bank, and the deposit was awarded to the Herring National Bank. Regents Charles Deyhle and Ruth Robinson abstained from the vote since they both serve on Herring's local board of directors, and Regent Susie Shields, whose husband serves on Herring's board, also abstained.

Board of Regents Chairman Mike Butts expressed his appreciation for the support of both local banks, and the presidents of both banks pledged to continue that support.

Colorado vacation a reminder of childhood

This column is coming to you from colorful Colorado. I came up with the family to help celebrate my parents' 50th wedding anniversary. My parents don't live here, at least not all the time. Their official home is in Austin, but they have a house on a mountain in Colorado they share with one of Mother's sisters and her husband.

Both of my sisters and our brother were here with their families, except for my two nephews currently serving in the military, and the nephew in college in Austin. And all of us crowded into the house together. The body count was either 26 or 27 - I never was quite sure which, and I think it depended on whether we were counting babies. I know we had eight little boys age 10 and under (counting the baby) and one little girl, plus a few sundry teenagers. (And if you know teenagers, that you know how sundry they are.) It was a time for making memories.

I first started coming to Colorado when I was seven, almost eight. My mother's other two sisters were in the process of building a house together on this same mountain back then, and since my family lived in Idaho at the time, we visited all the cousins in Colorado. (There were eventually eighteen of us in all.) That first summer, the older cousins made stick horses for all the "little kids" by nailing triangular wedges of wood - left all around the house by the construction workers - to sticks (also left by the construction). That was it. Nothing fancy. No paint, no reins, no even faces drawn on with pencil.

We rode those horses all over the mountain. We roamed down to the creek at the bottom of the hill behind the house, up the mountain as far as we could hike, and down as far as the big mill-pond where, if you were lucky, you could see beaver working. We played cowboys and Indians, King Arthur and his knights, sheriff and outlaws - anything that you could play with a stick horse and a lot of imagination.

And then we'd be hollered in by the aunts and head off for a picnic lunch. I just learned this year that all those picnics weren't just for fun. We had to picnic at lunch, because the house was still under construction, and they didn't need all those hordes of kids underfoot.

This year, all those little boys found long sticks they used for swords. Fortunately, no one got whacked on the head or poked in the eye while they were swinging those "swords" around. One of them found a big piece of what we eventually decided was elk fur and hauled it back to the house for all the boys to pick up and inspect. (And all the moms to go "ick" over, which may have been its biggest appeal.)

And at the anniversary party, down at the church the parents attend while they're staying in Colorado, (there were only six more people at the party than we'd been feeding at every meal up at the house), we watched a slide show of my parents' life, full of pictures of those old, good times. There was even one with all the kids holding their stick horses.

Aunt Joyce and Aunt Margaret were busy trying to identify every person in every picture and discussing which bald baby was which according to the ages of the other kids in the picture.

My sister's three-year-old twins got tired of sitting and had to be carted to the restroom, even though they didn't have to go.

My 8-month-old grandbaby crawled around the floor while his two-year-old cousin ran in circles, eventually chasing after the three-year-olds who were playing "Oh, no, it's the baby!" and running from him. The "big" kids found a dirt pile behind the church to play on, and the teen and college set organized a volleyball game while some of the older folks played ping-pong or sat and talked.

All in all, it was a great time. I wish such great times for all of you.

Patsy and Delbert Robertson

Robertsons mark 50th anniversary

Delbert and Patsy Robertson will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary at a reception in their honor on Friday, August 8.

Hosts for the event are Patrick and Vicky Robertson and Debbie and Michael Thompson.

Robertson married the former Patsy Darlene Wallace on August 8, 1953, at the First United Methodist Church in Clarendon. They are lifetime residents of Donley County.

Robertson is self-employed and serves in numerous community and area roles. Mrs. Robertson assists in the family-owned business. The couple belongs to the Church of the Nazarene.

Children of the couple and their spouses are Patrick and Vicky Robertson of Clarendon and Debbie and Michael Thompson of Clarendon.

The couple has three grandchildren: Greg Collins of Amarillo, Tiffanie Hollan of Clarendon, and Chuck Robertson of Clarendon; and three great grandchildren.

Friends of the couple are cordially invited to attend the reception in honor of Delbert and Patsy on Friday, August 8, from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. at the Fellowship Hall of the First United Methodist Church in Clarendon.

Carson County Museum showcases photographs of the Texas Panhandle

The Panhandle of Texas has long been a focus of photographers. The wide-open expanse of prairie sparked by the glitter of playa lakes of the unusual flora twisted by the wind have provided subject matter for numerous photographers and other artists.

The Carson County Square House Museum is excited to welcome two of the area's best and most prestigious photographers to the Hazlewood Gallery during the month of August.

Louise Daniels, a former instructor at Amarillo College, and her colleague, Jim Jordan, director of the Southern Lights Gallery on the campus of AC, have combined in what is the summer's most awaited exhibit. Louise's panoramas and Jim's landscapes and natural objects create a dynamic polarization of perspectives.

A reception on Sunday, August 10, 2003, from 2:30 until 4:00 p.m. in the Gallery hosted by Norma O'Neal, who is a Panhandle native and longtime benefactress of the arts in the region, caps off this exhibit.

Come by and meet these artists, their friends, and fans and listen to the stories associated with the art.

For more information, call 806-537-3524.

Red Hat Society to meet

Come experience the "Dog Days of Summer" with the Scarlet Saints Chapter of the Red Hat Society on Thursday, August 14, at 11:30 for lunch at the Bar H Dude Ranch in Clarendon.

The hostess, Lea Tyler, stated that all should "come as your ar" wearing their red hat for a time of relaxation.

If you would like a ride, meet at the First Baptist parking lot at 11:15.

For more information, contact Mary Douglas at 874-9366.

Hedley residents enjoy company of visitors

It tried to rain one day last week but didn't quite make it. I talked to Jon Leggett and he said his gauge showed 0.10 inch. That's not much, but it was enough to cool the air off.

Michael and Schelli Moore, Lauren and Hayden, of Dumas visited with her grandparents, Buford and Jerry Holland, Sunday. While they were there, they were joined by her parents, Darrell and Barbara Holland of Kirkland, and her brother, Calvin Holland. Jerry told me that during the last few weeks, they had all their grandchildren except Whitney Holland of Turpin, Okla., and Lisa Hill visit. I'm not sure where Lisa lives but think it might be Houston.

Pick and LaQuita Cox celebrated their 56th wedding anniversary Sunday. Congratulations, Pick and LaQuita. Their son-in-law and daughter, Joe and Lucy Poole, and grandson Billy Ray Cates and his wife Chris came from Amarillo to help them celebrate.

Juanita Brown had her grandson Wade Brown and his family visits, recently. Wade, his wife, and sons are being transferred by the navy to Norman, Oklahoma, where Wade will be a recruiting officer. He just returned from a tour of duty in the Persian Gulf. At least I think that's where his ship was deployed.

Linda Couch, Langly, and Mariah took me to Amarillo to meet Guy and his family Saturday; and we enjoyed an afternoon and evening at Wonderland Park. All I can say is it's not as much fun as it used to be. The best part of the day was the clouds. They kept it from being so hot. The water rides helped too.

Guy and Cathy had a friend and her son with them, so they spent the night at Su-San's. Sunday afternoon they came, and we went up to Greenbelt Lake, where they were going to camp for a few days. After they got their tent set up, Cathy cooked on a campfire, and we had dinner. I kept Christian out of the lake while she cooked. I was a nervous wreck when she finished. He wanted to go in the deep water with the big boys.

Burton Library offers large print selections

Burton Memorial Library extends a very special "thank you" to former librarian Carolyn Blackerby. Carolyn's interest and concern for public library education is evident through her dedicated efforts while serving as Clarendon's librarian to maintain valuable past and current reading materials while securing the most updated information and modern technology resources for our community and county. You are much appreciated, Carolyn. Best wishes for your future plans.

For readers who prefer large print, numerous varieties from favorite authors are available in Burton Memorial Library. And what a collection!

If you are looking for light reading, When Calls the Heart by popular Christian fiction writer Janette Oke is one of her best. With a Canadian Northwest setting, Oke presents her courageous heroine from a wealthy eastern upbringing, determined not to be influenced by the Canadian frontier. However, a Canadian Mountie, a confirmed bachelor, interferes with her determination. All of Oke's books contain interesting conflicts, which her characters, realizing their deep faith in God, are able to resolve in surprising ways.

Additional large print romantic novels include Rosamunde Pilcher's End of Summer and The Carousel; Diana Noble's Heart of Glass against a late 1880's background; and Lauren Paine's Tears of the Heart, among others.

Outstanding western writer Will Cook presents a touch of western romance in Until Day Breaks. A

Saga of Texas. Shade of Grey. If You've Got the Saddle, and Flowers for Rebecca are three of nine short stories written and compiled by author John D. Nesbitt in his book, One Foot in the Stirrup. Among other favorite western authors in large print are L'Amour, McMurtry, Brand, and Lemay.

And who can resist a good mystery? Nicholas Blake, Nora Roberts, Anne River Siddons, Mary Higgins Clark, and V.C. Andrews are just a few of the authors whose thrilling suspense is in large print. Barbara Michaels' Stitches In Time relates the story of an antique quilt appearing under mysterious circumstances in a clothing shop. The crafted heirloom legacy will captivate readers.

Reader's Digest condensed books contain authors Grisham, Herriot, Edison, Harrison, and Evans.

Billy Graham's Christian classic, Peace With God, is also in large print.

If you are familiar with the remarkable humor of well-loved newspaper columnist Erma Bombeck, who died a few years ago, you will delight with her hilarious Aunt Erma's Cope Book, How to Get From Monday to Friday... in 12 Days, and Family...The Ties that Bind... And Gag!

Did I say a collection of "numerous varieties"? There are more! Why not check it out?

Martin Church to hold barbecue, revival August 9

Martin Baptist Church will be celebrating the close of summer with the annual chicken barbecue and revival.

The celebration begins on Saturday, August 9, with the chicken barbecue. During the day there will be all sorts of activities going on with the cooking of the chickens and various fellowship and games. Fellowship will begin at 7:00 p.m. that night with barbecue chickens and all the trimmings. The entire community is invited to this event. Chickens can be purchased at B&R Thriftway. They will be prepared and cooked for the evening meal.

Along with the barbecue, Martin Baptist will also hold revival services beginning on Sunday morning. Todd and Darla Keller and family will be providing the praise and worship with Todd bringing the inspiring message each service.

The Kellers are a family devoted to leading God's people to the throne of grace through worship. Their truest desire is to see people respond to God's call in Revelation 3:20, "...if anyone hears My voice and opens the door, I will come in and eat with him, and he with Me." Through songs of praise and worship and in sharing the Word, Todd and Darla along with their children are leading churches to open themselves up to God's fellowship.

Todd is a graduate of Wayland Baptist University. Todd and Darla have served in West Texas churches for over ten years. Their goal is to see the church renewed through an openness in worship. Their children, Grant, Bristol, Paige, and Brook'lyn, take an active roll in worship through voice, instrument, and drama.

The Kellers are in their fifth year of full time evangelistic work and are members of the First Baptist Church in Plainview and of the Conference of Texas Baptist Evangelists.

The invitation is extended to the entire community of Clarendon to join with Martin Baptist Church in welcoming the Keller family and joining in fellowship and worship.

The Texans to perform in Turkey's Gem Theatre this Saturday

The Texans will be performing at the Turkey Gem Theatre on Saturday, August 9, beginning at 7:00 p.m.

The band is from Quitman, Texas, originally organized in 1971 at Dallas Christian College as "The Master's Four," a full time traveling quartet. In 1983 they relocated to Branson, Missouri, to perform in the family entertainment shows. It was at this time they changed their name to "The Texans."

In Branson, they performed one year at the Starlite Theatre, three years at the Plummer Family Theatre, two years of Sunday evenings at Silver Dollar City's Echo Hollow, one year at the Bob-O-Links, one year at the Kirkwood Theatre, one year at the Memory Lane Theatre, and two years at the Dogwood Theatre.

Some of the awards they have received are "Texas Group of the Year" from 1975 through 1982.

They were awarded the Ozark Music Awards distinction "Group of the Year" in 1985, 1986, 1987, and 1988. They were voted "Entertainers of the Year" for 1987 and 1988.

For the past three years they have been traveling on road full time and sing over 300 concerts a year. Their performance is more than just a gospel concert; it is an evening of inspiration, laughter, fun, and great Christian family entertainment.

The group consists of Sam Ray - lead vocalist and emcee; Brenda Ray - tenor; Curtis Ray - baritone; and Jamie Jameson - bass. Jamie's voice has been described as mineshaft deep and a cross between Tennessee Ford and George Younce.

Tickets are $10 for adults and $5 for kids twelve and under. Tickets are available at the door.

For more information, call 806-423-1273.

Annual Blackeyed Pea Festival to be held August 9 in Hollis

"Our Kids, Our Future" is the theme for the 15th annual Blackeyed Pea Festival which will be held Saturday, August 9, in Hollis.

The event is sponsored by the Harmon County Historical Museum in Hollis.

The Blackeyed Pea Opry, an all new variety show, is on tap this year in the Hollis High School Auditorium on Friday and Saturday evening at 7 p.m. To reserve tickets, call 580-688-9545.

The parade begins at 8:30 a.m.

Immediately following the parade, the Western Players will present an action packed show at Jackrabbit Junction with gunfights, fist fights, and lots of giggles.

A Peas 'n Ham complete meal including cold drinks and dessert will be served from 11 to 1:30 p.m. in the Hollis Civic Center. This is one of the most popular attractions on the festival agenda.

Join this once a year extravaganza to support Harmon County's Museum.

Local teachers develop teaching skills at NASA

Andrea Hall and Tammi Lewis of Clarendon Jr. High in Clarendon were two of 80 Texas eighth-grade teachers spending six days at NASA Johnson Space Center in Houston learning new ways to incorporate the wonder of space into their classrooms.

The Middle School Aerospace Scholars (MAS) shares space-age tools with teachers involved with students in this impressionable middle school age group. The teachers participate in one of three one-week summer sessions at Johnson Space Center (JSC) during June and July. JSC education specialists, flight directors, scientists, and engineers taught the educators about the latest technology used in the space program.

MAS is a one-year professional development program for teachers and includes an opportunity for their students to participate in a series of distance learning events in their own schools. During the summer workshop, teachers develop an "action plan" outlining various ways to integrate NASA resources into the middle school curriculum throughout the school year.

As part of Texas Aerospace Scholars, the MAS program was created through a joint venture between JSC and the State of Texas to encourage students to pursue future careers in science, engineering, and technology.

The students of these teachers are also encouraged to participate in future high school and community college aerospace scholars' programs. Additional funding for the program is received in part by other educational institutions, Rotary, NASA, and the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo.

For additional information on MAS or any of the Texas Aerospace Scholars programs, please visit our website at <http://aerospacescholars.jsc.nasa.gov/>

YOU'VE FLOWN THE FLAG. NOW WHAT?

In the months since September 11th, 2001, we have all witnessed a powerful resurgence of the American spirit. But now, in a climate of new threats, it's clear that patriotism alone is not enough. We must also learn to protect ourselves and our families against future terrorist attacks. There are three steps toward readiness. These steps are fairly simple and inexpensive. And they work.

MAKE AN EMERGENCY SUPPLY KIT

In a sturdy container like a plastic trash can or duffel bag, pack the items you and your family may need in an emergency and set them aside.

Your kit should contain 72-hours' worth of supplies: A gallon of water per person, per day. A three-day supply of non-perishable food. A first aid kit. Clothes, sleeping bags and toilet articles. Flashlight, extra batteries, scissors, plastic sheeting, duct tape. Also, a battery-powered radio is essential. Be sure to write down the frequencies of radio stations in your area that will broadcast emergency announcements.

It's also helpful to have a second, smaller kit with a few essential items, something you can grab in a hurry in case you're asked to leave your home for a few days.

MAKE A FAMILY COMMUNICATIONS PLAN

If your family knows where to go and what to do in an emergency, they'll save time and remain calm. Here's what your plan should contain: The name and phone number of out-of-state relatives to contact. (Long-distance calling may be easier than local calling.) A family meeting place near your home and another one away from the neighborhood. An evacuation plan using alternative routes. A designated room in your house in case authorities instruct you to "shelter in place."

BE INFORMED

If there's a terrorist attack on your city, local authorities will broadcast information as quickly as possible concerning the nature of the emergency and what you should do next. Be sure to keep listening for updates. What can you do right now? Get information, educate yourself and your family. For more details on emergency preparedness, visit our website at www.ready.gov. Or get a free brochure by calling 1-800-BE-READY (1-800-237-3239).

TO THE CITIZENS OF CLARENDON

The City Council of the City of Clarendon has called an election for the issuance of $2,500,000 Certificates of Obligation. The proceeds from these Certificates will be used to make street improvements throughout the City.

How will the Certificate proceeds be used?

If the Certificates are approved by the voters, proceeds will be used to make the following improvements throughout the City:

The project includes but is not limited to crowning of streets, laying down two-course penetration paving, and installing curbs and gutters. The plan calls for six-inch curbs and two-foot gutters on both sides of the streets. The streets will be 31 feet wide measuring from the backs of the curbs. Streets to be paved are as follows:

Jackson Street between Cooke and Wood
Hawley Street between Cooke and Barcus
McClelland Street between Cooke and Montgomery
Goodnight Street between Cooke and Montgomery
Carhart Street between Browning and Second
Gorst Street between Burkhead and Fourth
Kearney Street between Wood and Fourth
Jefferson Street between Eighth and Fifth
Parks Street between Ninth and Second
Taylor Street between Eighth and Second
Ellerbe Street between Eighth and Third
Bond Street between Eighth and Fifth
McLean Street between Eighth and Clarendon Ave.
Collinson Street between Eighth and Clarendon Ave.
Johns Street between Eighth and Sixth
Leroy Street between Eighth and Fifth
Cottage Street between Seventh and Fifth

Cooke Street between Goodnight and Jackson
Browning Boulevard between Carhart and Jackson
Burkhead Street between Gorst and Jackson
Barcus Street between Gorst and Jackson
Montgomery Street between Kearney and Goodnight
Wood Avenue between Kearney and Goodnight
Eighth Street between Cottage and Bugbee and between Koogle and Jefferson
Seventh Street between Cottage and Bugbee and between Koogle and Kearney
Sixth Street between Cottage and Bugbee and between Koogle and Goodnight
Fifth Street between Gorst and Hawley
Fourth Street between Koogle and Jefferson
Third Street between Collinson and Bugbee
Repair and paving of additional streets if funds are available following the letting of bids.

What will the Certificates cost the citizens of Clarendon?

In order to pay for the Certificates, the ad valorem tax rate would be increased by 15 cents. In addition, the sewer rate would increase by $10 per month, the base water rate would increase by $1.10 per month, and the City would use a portion of the sales tax to make payments. All rates are proposed. Final rates will depend on the interest rate for the Certificates and be subject to the approval of the Board of Aldermen.

The table below illustrates the impact of the 15-cent tax rate to homeowners:

Home Value	Annual	or	Monthly	or	Weekly
$20,000	$30		$2.50		$0.58
$40,000	$60		$5.00		$1.15
$60,000	$90		$7.50		$1.73
$80,000	$120		$10.00		$2.31
$100,000	$150		$12.50		$2.88

Who can vote?

You must be a registered voter with a current address in the City. You must be a resident of the City at least 30 days prior to the election.

Where and When can I vote?

Election day is Saturday, September 13, 2003, at Clarendon City Hall, located at 119 South Sully, Clarendon, Texas. The polls will open between 7:00 am and 7:00pm. Early voting will be conducted from Wednesday, August 27 to Tuesday, September 9, between the hours of 8:00am and 4:00pm, except of Saturdays, Sundays and legal holidays. Early voting will be conducted at City Hall.

A message from the City of Clarendon. Tex Selvidge, Mayor. Sean Pate, City Administrator.

Protein: Getting to the meat of an essential element

COLLEGE STATION - Mention protein and, chances are, thoughts go to meat or a mother lecturing her children about the importance of getting enough of it to grow strong and healthy.

Protein. Think also about cancer, allergies, autoimmune diseases, lupus, transplant rejection, dwarfism, menopause, and a host of other ailments. These turn on or off in a body based on what protein, extremely complex bundles of amino acids, are doing in a given moment.

The problem is, living organisms operate with a variety of tens of thousands of protein structures and, though much research has been done on individual protein systems, little is understood about how different protein systems interact.

Now an effort at Texas A&M University is bringing together all known information in an extensive, searchable Internet site called Binding Interface Database.

"No one understands the rules of protein interaction," said Dr. Jerry Tsai, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station bioinformatics researcher. "So we are bringing all that is known together in one place."

After one year, the Binding Interface Database, <http://tsailab.tamu.edu/BID>, has 245 interacting protein pairs with more than 1,500 "hot spots," or key interaction areas, documented.

"It's like moving a sitting elephant," Tsai said. "It's enormous. We spent about nine months just planning how it would be done."

Tsai's research is what scientists have dubbed "bioinformatics." That is, information technology applied to biology - software programs that process information derived from biological systems such as DNA sequence, cell images, and protein crystal structures.

"A researcher can come to the site, look at a protein or related protein, and get a clue to what proteins relate," said Tiffany Fischer of Dallas, a doctoral biochemistry student who is managing the project with Dr. Tsai.

Tsai said others have attempted to create a protein binding database before but never in easy-to-manuever format with searchable data. That's where Fischer, whose bachelor's degree is in genetics, lends expertise. She oversees a team of students who glean research papers for the useful and accurate information to enter into the database.

Fischer said the team is targeting the most biologically significant, widely researched proteins and systems initially.

"The MAPK system, for example, is important because it is a proposed cancer-causing pathway associated with cell death and cell proliferation," she said.

"That has been widely documented, so by putting what is known in the database, a researcher can come to one place to find out all that is known about the interactions of this system."

Still, less than 500 structures of proteins that interact are known, she added, though there are about 20,000 in the protein structure database.

One can search the system by protein or by system to get complete descriptions of proteins and their interactions. Also included is reference information that points to the source of the information.

Adding to what's already in the database, Tsai said, the project now will focus on inputting information on adaptor/adapters/adaptin proteins, and apoptosis (programmed cell death such as when the tissue between fingers of a fetus goes away) and tumor suppressors.

Senior Crusaders raise funds for cancer society in Relay

By Vida O'Neal

First of all I would like to let everyone know how much the Senior Crusaders appreciate all the help and contributions that were donated to our Relay for Life Team to benefit the American Cancer Society.

We had bakers, donations, quilters, banner makers, makers of homemade ice cream, the use of a golf cart throughout the walk, and all those that helped set up our tents and walked all night for our team and supported us in any way.

We had a great turnout for our Birthday/Anniversary Supper last week. We had great food and entertainment. Jay Riley and Gene Jones were our entertainment, and everyone enjoyed their music and cutting up. We appreciate these guys coming again to the center and playing for us.

Mark your calendars for the August Fundraiser. On August 14, we will be having a hamburger and homemade ice cream supper. The hamburgers will be cooked outside so they will be great. We will have all the trimmings and a variety of homemade ice creams to top them off. We will serve 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. and the charge will be $5 per plate. Takeouts will be available.

Our Dance Club has a change in their organization. Jean Baten has retired as their leader. She has moved to Amarillo, and the Dance Club as well as the center will miss her. She is a very active and energetic volunteer and we will all miss her. The Dance Club will be led by Mary and Maurice Meyer and Ruby Dell Estlack. The dance practice is now meeting at 7 p.m. on Monday nights.

We appreciate the fresh vegetables and fruit brought in by Aris Thomas, Joyce Davis, and Dawn Watson.

Our condolences to Ailene McElroy on the loss of her sister. Get well wishes to Jane Hillman.

Reminders:
Aug. 11, 18, 25: Dance Club, 7 p.m.
Aug. 12, 19: Game Night, 6 p.m.
Aug. 12: Hearing Aid, 9 a.m. - noon
Aug. 14: Hamburger and ice cream supper
Aug. 26: Birthday/Anniversary Supper, 6 p.m.

Clarendon Lions Club held their regular Tuesday noon meeting August 5 with Boss Lion Marvin Elam in charge.

We had 17 members and two guests. Our guests were Johnny Terschel, guest of Lion Myles Shelton, and Scarlet Estlack, guest of Lion Russell Estlack.

The new college dorms are about finished with open house scheduled for August 14. The Equine Center is about one month behind schedule. The Alumni Courtyard is presently under construction. The new library is scheduled to be started this fall and will have approximately 11,000-sq. ft. of floor space. This building will be located between the Harned Sisters Fine Arts Center and the Administration Building.

There will be a wine and dine for swine evening at the Bar H Dude Ranch this Saturday night, and the proceeds will go to equipment for the stockshow.

The public school is getting ready to start up in two weeks. They are painting and putting the finishing touches on the old gym.

This Saturday morning will be the Kid Fish at the Lake. This is a great project for our town.

Here being no further business, we were adjourned.

Donley County retired educators hold meeting

The Donley County Retired School Employees Association met on July 28, 2003, with sixteen present.

The minutes were read by Reneé Duncan. Connie DeBord gave the treasurer's report and the committee report was given by Jack Hall. Freida Tucker gave a reading for the entertainment.

During the meeting, certificates of appreciation were passed out to Roger Estlack, Freida Tucker, Thelma Shields, Reneé Duncan, Carroll Duncan, and Cula Jo Trout.

Ashlee Kidd was introduced. She was the recipient of their scholarship this year.

After the reports, the group enjoyed homemade ice cream and cookies, and then they closed the evening by playing some fun games.

Breast Center receives funds from Komen Foundation

The Greater Amarillo Affiliate of the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation, formerly the Amarillo Race for the Cure, awarded $35,000 to the Comprehensive Breast Center of the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center for mammography services for medically underserved women age 30-50.

Last year the Comprehensive Breast Center screened 545 medically underserved women. Twenty-five percent of these women were between the ages of 30 and 50.

Indigent funding sources primarily provide mammograms and diagnostic follow-ups for women age 50 and older. However, many medically underserved women between the ages of 30 and 50 need a mammogram or diagnostic work-up, but traditionally there has been no funding available for these women.

This grant from the Komen Foundation will provide screening mammograms and diagnostic follow-ups as appropriate for 135 medically underserved women age 30-50.

"We are very fortunate to have this funding from the Komen Foundation," said John L. "Chip" Coscia, MD, Director of the Comprehensive Breast Center. "Early detection is extremely important in predicting breast cancer survival."

The Comprehensive Breast Center of the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center operates the second largest mobile mammography program in the country, serving over 10,000 women at 144 different locations throughout the High Plains.

Crusade organizers seeking volunteers

The task force for the Rick Gage Go Tell Greenbelt Crusade will be meeting Tuesday, August 12, 2003, at 7:00 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall of the First Baptist Church Clarendon. There will be refreshments and air-conditioning.

The crusade is one year away from coming to Clarendon and the surrounding area. This may seem to be a long time for the planning and preparation for the crusade, but major events will be taking place in December and January. Leadership for the committees need to be in place no later than the first of October.

Rick Gage Ministries are based in Atlanta, Georgia. Rick Gage is the son of Freddie Gage, a well-known evangelist in the Southeast. Gage has been involved in evangelism for a number of years following a coaching career, which brought him through the Panhandle while he coached at Texas Tech.

Gage has felt the call to have a number of crusades in the Panhandle area over the next several years. The Ministry has had two crusades so far in the area, one in Wheeler and one in Borger. There has been a great response from all denominations in these two crusades.

The task force is in need of your help. Those wanting to be involved in any way - no matter how great or small - are urged to attend this meeting. The task force is open to all; it is an equal opportunity organization.

Charity hunting, golf tourney to be held

The first annual Donley County Birds and Birdies Charity Hunting and Golf Tournament will be held September 13, 2003.

The charity event, which is presented by All American Outfitter, will donate a portion of the proceeds to the Donley County Meals on Wheels and to Donley County After-School Programs.

The contest will be begin at the Clarendon Country Club at 7:00 a.m. with a day filled with plenty of wing-shooting and 18 holes of golf. Lunch, dinner, and snacks in the field are provided along with golf carts. Transportation to and from the dove hunting field will be the participant's responsibility. Prizes and awards will be presented at the end of the day at dinner.

The cost for the event is $135 per person and is limited to 24 paid entrants.

For more information or to register, call 806-676-4610.

CC to host basketball camps August 11 - 14

Head Bulldog basketball coach Tony Starnes has reserved August 11-14 as the date for this year's elementary basketball camp for boys and girls and the Junior High girls' basketball camp.

Both camps will be held at the bulldog Gym - will cost $30.00 per camper, and will include a camp T-shirt. The elementary camp will be held from 9 am-12 noon and includes boys and girls in grades 1-5. The jr. high girls' camp will be held from 6:00-9:00 p.m. and is for incoming sixth through eighth grade girls. The camp will offer basketball fundamentals with individual and team related work.

The elementary camp requires no pre-registration; you may register the first day of camp on August 11. Players interested in the Jr. High girls' camp may leave a message with Coach Starnes at 874-3571, ext. 276.

Broncho season tickets going on sale August 18

Clarendon CISD has announced the selling of Reserved Seating/Season Tickets for the 2003-2004 football season.

The cost of each football reserved seating/season ticket is $25. This price allows admission into the five home games and reserves your seat in the prime viewing location.

Reserved seating/season tickets will go on sale to the public at 8:30 a.m. on August 18, 2003. Reserved seating/season tickets can only be purchased at the CISD Administration Building at 416 S. Allen Street.
