Clarendon tax rebate declines in September

Texas Comptroller Carole Keeton Strayhorn recently delivered $208.9 million in sales tax rebates to Texas cities, up 2.5 percent compared to September 2002.

Clarendon received a rebate of $19,901.59, a 2.59 percent drop from last September. Hedley's rebate of $497 reflected an increase of 12.85 percent. Howardwick received $1,290.47, down more than four percent.

Clarendon and Hedley are up 3.28 percent and 14.75 percent for the year to date, and Howardwick is down 1.90 percent.

So far this calendar year, local sales tax rebates statewide are down 0.5 percent compared to the same period in 2002.

September's sales tax rebates include local sales taxes collected in July and reported to the Comptroller in August.

Donley County SWCD taking orders for trees

The Donley County Soil and Water Conservation District is currently taking orders for trees. The deadline to order is March 3, 2004.

Pecan trees are available for $29 each. Orders for pecan trees are due by November 15, 2003.

Trees offer benefits few other cover plantings can match. Because of their extensive root systems, trees are as effective, and in many cases more effective, than other types of vegetation for keeping soil where it belongs.

To order your trees, call 874-3561, ext. 3. Trees are limited, so order your trees today.

Immunization Clinic to be held in Clarendon

An Immunization Clinic offering vaccines that give protection against several childhood diseases is scheduled in Clarendon at the Texas Department of Health (TDH) office on October 21, 2003.

The clinic will be held 9:00 to 12:00 and 1:00 to 4:00 p.m. at the TDH Clinic, which is located at Medical Drive #5 by the Medical Center Nursing Home.

Greenbelt Peanut facility opens

A new $500,000 peanut processing facility came online last week with producers bringing in the first loads from the 2003 harvest.

Greenbelt Peanuts, which is owned by the Clint Williams Company, began operations Thursday at its 45-acre location at the end of Ayers Street just outside the northeast city limits of Clarendon. Landon Shields brought the first crop to the Clarendon facility.

The new facility is used to dry, handle, and grade peanuts on large semi-trailers using high capacity loading and unloading systems.

"We will be running a 24-hour crew, and we hope to be unloading a semi load every 20 minutes," said Tony Maxwell, who manages the Greenbelt plant and its sister plant in Quail.

As peanuts come in, they are weighed, moved to a shaker that sifts out most of the dirt, and then put into one of Greenbelt's 28 modified semi-trailers, which are then connected to one of 20 forced-air dryers. The amount of time needed to dry each load will depend on the condition of the peanuts and the weather.

"These 20 dryers will run all the time," Maxwell said. "They are newer and quieter than the ones at Quail."

After the peanuts are dried, they are moved to another part of the facility where probes take 15 samples from each load. A USDA official oversees this part of the operation as the peanuts are graded and a price is fixed to them.

Greenbelt is expected to employ 10 to 15 people during the harvest season and will be managed from the company's facility in Quail.

Farmers in Donley County should see significant savings by the availability of the Clarendon facility. Previously they had no option but to haul their peanuts to either Quail or Memphis. Producers were losing travel time and having to pay some $200 per truckload to go to Quail.

It's too early to know much about the 2003 harvest, but Maxwell says, "We're looking at an average or slightly better than average season."

The Clint Williams Company, a division of Texhoma Peanut Company, is based in Madill, Okla., and has been in operation since 1968. In addition to the Greenbelt plant and the Quail plant, which opened in 1989, the company currently operates eight other buying points.

Greenbelt Peanut workers watch as one of the first trailers of the 2003 harvest is unloaded last week.

Southland wagon sweeps awards at ninth cookoff

The Stirrup Ranch of Southland, Texas, swept the awards during the ninth annual Col. Charles Goodnight Chuckwagon Cookoff last Saturday.

It was the Stirrup's first appearance in the Clarendon cookoff, although the team has been competing for several years. The team placed in four out of five food categories Saturday, was third in the Best Wagon & Camp competition, and took first place in both the Overall Cooking and the Overall Wagon & Cooking categories.

The cookoff, which benefits the Saints' Roost Museum, was hailed as a great success by museum board members. Tickets for the authentic Chuckwagon supper sold out by early Saturday morning. Just as last year, extra tickets were prepared and divided among the wagons along with additional food to meet the high demand.

Officials estimate more than 1,000 people attended the daylong event.

Breakfast and lunch concessions on the museum grounds were provided by Boy Scout Troop 433. A trade show was held throughout the day, and live entertainment was provided by local and area talent. Relatives of legendary cattleman and Chuckwagon inventor Charles Goodnight also were on hand for their annual family reunion.

For the first time, a Gun & Knife Show was held in conjunction with the cookoff. This activity was held at the Clarendon Community Center with concessions provided by the Clarendon College Bulldogs basketball team.

Justin Hagel and Oscar Aufer provided cowboy poetry following the presentation of awards Saturday, and a cowboy church service closed the cookoff on Sunday morning.

Fourteen wagons competed in this year's cookoff and served a menu of chicken fried steak, mashed potatoes, gravy, biscuits, beans, and cobbler. Prizes totaling more than $3,000 were paid out to the winners.

Complete results are as follows:
Overall Wagon & Cooking: 1st - Stirrup Ranch of Southland, 2nd - Adamah Ranch of Amarillo, 3rd - Break-Away Wagon of Stamford, and 4th - C Bar C Ranch of Hartley.
Overall Cooking: 1st - Stirrup Ranch, 2nd - C Bar C Ranch, 3rd - Adamah Ranch, and 4th - JA Ranch of Clarendon.

Best Wagon Camp: 1st - Adamah Ranch, 2nd - Break-Away Wagon, 3rd - Stirrup Ranch, and 4th - Noble Ranch of Wayland.

Best Meat: 1st - Double Diamond Ranch of Silverton, 2nd - C Bar C Ranch, 3rd - Noble Ranch, and 4th - Break-Away Wagon.

Best Potatoes: 1st - High Card Ranch of Clarendon, 2nd - Noble Ranch, 3rd - Stirrup Ranch, and 4th - JL Cattle Company.

Wagon Judges this year were Shirley Creacy, Billy D. Bowman, and Greg Henley. Food Judges under the direction of Virginia Patten were Lyta Darsey, Jerry Gage, Mike Butts, Jewell Houston, Jerri Ann Shields, Eddy Eads, Jesus Hernandez, Susie Shields, Bruce Ferguson, and Melinda McAnear.

Among the other winners during Saturday's activities was Charla Crump of Clarendon, who won a pair of James Owens handmade boots.

Good eatin'

Head cook Ken Cunningham samples the beans from his C Bar C Ranch wagon as Jean Cates looks on during the ninth annual Col. Charles Goodnight Chuckwagon Cookoff last Saturday. Cunningham did not place in the bean competition but did take honors in the meat and bread categories.

City approves $1.3 million budget, includes $100k for streets

The Clarendon Board of Aldermen adopted a $1.3 million municipal budget for the 2003-2004 fiscal year during a called session last Thursday.

The budget calls for increases in water, sewer, and sanitation fees, totaling $8.80 per month, and a three-cent per $100 valuation increase in the city's ad valorem tax rate. The higher tax will cost the owner of a $50,000 home $15 per year.

The budget includes approximately $100,000 for street maintenance and improvements.

Mayor Tex Selvidge said the city had heard from the voters with regards to issuing debt to pay for street improvements, and he said the new budget reflects a "pay as you go" approach to street improvements.

Five citizens attended the public hearing on the budget and tax rate. Two ladies had questions concerning the streets.

Aleta Thompson said she wasn't against street improvements but thought the city should address waterlines before taking on a paving project. Dianne Chisum asked about having city employees do the paving with city equipment. She also raised the issue of trying to collect some of the back taxes owed to the city and mentioned that property owners on the streets to be paved might be asked to help with that expense.

The board voted unanimously to adopt a tax rate of $0.48555 for the coming year. Alderman Michael Tibbets said he had been opposed to raising the tax rate during his three terms in office but said he voted for the increase this year to help keep the funding for the sheriff's department.

Aldermen discussed the budget line by line. Tibbets questioned the budgeted amount for raises for municipal employees and sought assurances that there was no money for merit raises.

The board voted 3-1 in favor of the new budget with Tibbets voting "no."

"It's no secret that I was against the airport grant and against hiring a city administrator," Tibbets said. "It would be hypocritical of me to vote for this budget which contains both of those things."

In other city business, the Board of Aldermen met in regular session last Tuesday, September 23.

Bids for health insurance were reviewed, and the aldermen voted to stay with the city's current provider, First Care, with a premium increase of nine percent.

Debra Hill from the Associated Ambulance Authority addressed the board concerning her efforts to purchase an Evacu-Splint - an inflatable full-body splint used to transport people with conditions, such as osteoporosis, which makes use of the customary stretcher painful.

Hill had previously addressed the board on September 9, and the city had voted to challenge the county to pay half the remaining cost of the device, but county commissioners did not go along.

Mayor Selvidge was disappointed in the county's lack of action. See 'City' on page three.

Republicans should return to their roots

I always enjoy hearing from our readers, especially those with a conservative bent similar to my own. It was just such a reader who introduced himself to me this weekend and expressed his disappointment with some of our elected officials in Washington.

"Yes, I know what you mean," I responded. "I thought we had elected some Republicans, but I guess I was wrong."

I had high hopes for the GOP after the 2000 election and again after the Republicans re-captured the Senate in 2002. Each time it seemed we would be treated to the type of sweeping changes which followed when Newt Gingrich and his boys took over back in '94. But instead we have gotten nothing but higher spending and bigger government.

The Senate is a particularly sad case. Texans Kay Bailey Hutchison and John Cornyn have their moments, but neither seems to possess the conservative zeal embodied by former senator Phil Gramm. Lackluster Republican performances combined with Democrats in elephants' clothing (i.e. John McCain and Lincoln Chaffey) weaken any hope for a conservative agenda in the Senate.

The handwriting was on the wall when the GOP selected Sen. Bill Frist as the party leader. Frist is an uninspiring Majority Leader, and like Trent Lott before him, he has shown himself incapable of doing battle with the opposition.

Former US representative Bob Barr (R-Georgia) is one of the diehard conservatives who is unimpressed with the Senate and its leadership.

"I think some (Republicans) think if they are very nice to the Democrats, they will be nice in return — that never happens," Barr said in a report on FoxNews.com.

In addition to failing to stop or curtail runaway government spending, the Republican Senate is repeatedly proving itself incapable of confirming Bush's nominees to the federal bench. This is especially frustrating since liberal judges are currently busy making such ludicrous decisions as throwing the Boy Scouts out of a city park in California and ruling that citizens voluntarily signing a "do not call" list some how is a violation of telemarketers' free speech rights.

Miguel Estrada, Priscilla Owen, and William Pryor would have all been excellent judges who would have actually interpreted the law in the light of the Constitution rather than pursuing the agenda of the left. But the Republican Senate has allowed these people to have their nominations filibustered by the Democratic minority — an act which was simply unheard of previously and is a complete bastardization of the framers' intent with regards to the advise and consent process.

"Whatever was done or not done is because the [Republican] leadership decided not to do it," Barr said.

Frist tried to bring Estrada's nomination to a vote on the floor of the Senate several times before the nominee finally became fed up and withdrew his name from consideration. But Frist wasn't really serious in his efforts, and he — or some other leader — needs to get serious about dealing with the Dems.

Gingrich and his allies were controversial in their time, and they took a lot of hits from the left and the media. But the actions they took helped America and set the nation on the path of growth and prosperity.

If the GOP is to have any future with conservative voters, it must stop the politics of compromise and appeasement and return to the conservative philosophy of limited government and fiscal responsibility. Otherwise, the party will lose its base and find itself out of favor and out of power.

'Applied Ethics' is a very selfish course

One of my toughest classes this semester is Applied Ethics. I wanted to take Ancient Philosophy for my Humanities course, but my advisor advised against it. Applied Ethics was the way to go.

If I had known what I was in for, I probably would have turned a deaf ear to her advice.

I have always felt that I was a fairly ethical person. I mean, I think I have pretty rock solid morals. I don't enjoy causing others pain. I try to help others when I can. I do my best to do the right thing most of the time.

It seems, however, that if you take ethics long enough, anyone or anything can be ethical. It just depends on what theory you buy into.

For example, I am currently working on a paper on Egoism. The basic premise is that everyone and every action no matter how noble or seemingly selfless is actually motivated by selfishness.

Egoists would argue that Mother Teresa was so kind and generous because it gave her great publicity for the church and it made her feel good. She was really working for a reward in heaven. She should be ashamed. That is so selfish.

When I heard this in class I sat up and almost audibly said, "What! Are you kidding me?"

It not only says that every action is essentially selfish, but that every action should be selfish. If everyone did what was best for themselves, this would solve every problem! We'd all be happy and well taken care of.

I had my doubts. Here's a fantastic example. Let's say I walk out of the dorm and I see my friend Whitney being attacked! Oh no! What will I do?

I call for help, and I go and get in the middle of it. I'm throwing Tae Bo everywhere! It's amazing!

In the process, unfortunately, I get horribly maimed. Whitney's life is saved, and we both can identify the attacker. He is brought to justice, and the streets are safe again.

How much more selfish can I get? I threw myself into the fray so I could have the feeling of being a hero. I did it all life's lessons

by carrie helms

for banquets and publicity and the keys to the city. I defended Whitney so she would be forever indebted to me. I got myself maimed so I could have attention. I did it all to go to the hospital and get out of ethics class.

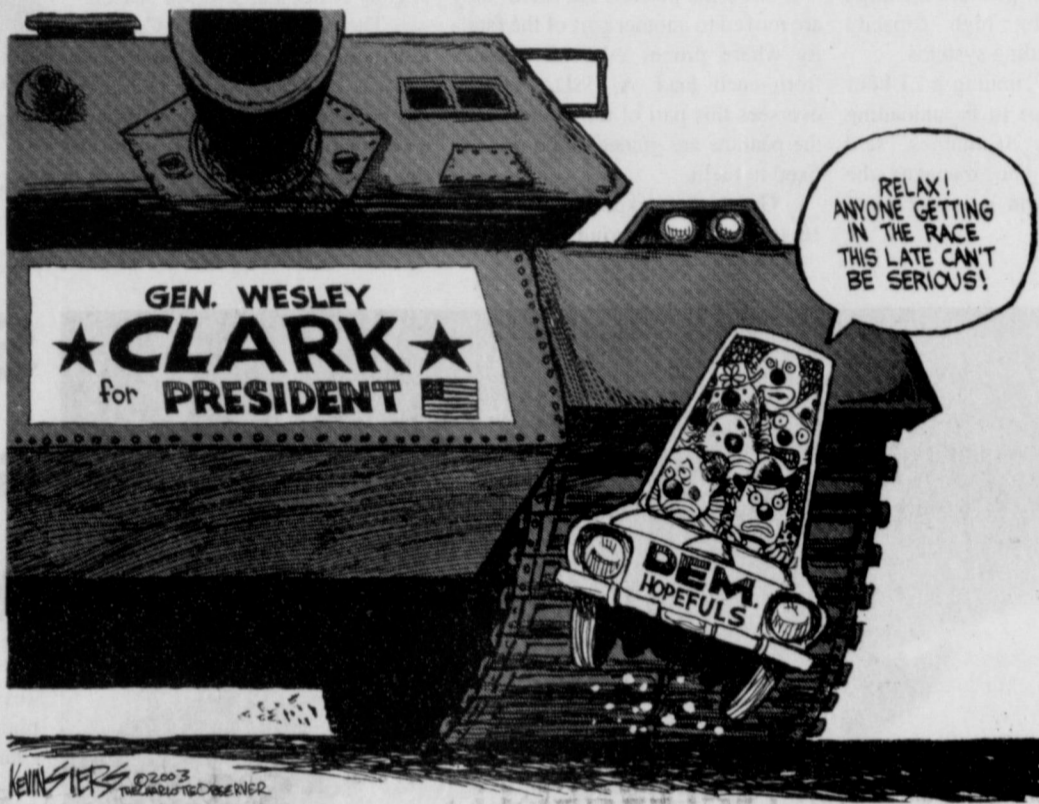

How do you argue with that logic? How do I know I really wasn't thinking that? It was a split second decision. How can I really know all of my motives?

This theory is fail-proof. It absolutely cannot be disproved. When you are talking about a person's inner motives, there is no scientific way to measure them. I can't know everything that goes on in my subconscious. That's why it's called a subconscious.

This has gotten me analyzing my actions and motives very closely.

Putting on make up in the morning? I want to look nice so people think I'm pretty. Selfish. Not doing it anymore. Taking a shower? That's completely selfish. No more.

Writing ethics papers? Oh, I'm only doing it so I can graduate, get a job, and make money for myself. That is excusably selfish. I am definitely going to stop doing that.

More patients receiving care from PAs

By David Dickinson, FRIT, PA-C

For more than 30 years, the physician assistant (PA) profession has had a major impact on the delivery of quality medical care in this country. Approximately 183 million patient visits were made to PAs in 2002, according to the American Academy of Physician Assistants. That figure is up more than 30 percent from five years ago, from 140 million visits in 1998.

PAs are licensed professionals who practice medicine as delegated by supervising physicians. They provide patient care services that would otherwise be performed by physicians. As part of their comprehensive services, PAs take medical histories, perform physical examinations, order and interpret lab tests, diagnose and treat illnesses, suture lacerations, assist in surgery, and write prescriptions.

Currently there are about 3000 PAs practicing within the state of Texas.

PAs are employed by solo physician practices, health maintenance organizations, group practices, nursing homes, and hospitals. PAs also serve as commissioned officers in all branches of the military and practice as members of the White House medical team caring for the President and Vice President.

A national report on physician assistants, working with physicians as a team, showed that solo physicians who utilize PAs can increase the number of patients seen. Studies conducted by the Kaiser Permanente Center for Health Research found patient satisfaction levels with physician assistants high, ranging between 89 and 96 percent. Aspects of patient satisfaction examined by the study included interpersonal care, confidence in provider, and understanding patient problems.

On October 6, PAs around the United States, including Clarendon Family Medical, will recognize the importance of Physician Assistants in American health care on National Physician Assistant Day. It was on that day in 1967 that the first class of PAs graduated from Duke University in North Carolina.

To learn more about physician assistants, visit the American Academy of Physician Assistants Web site at www.aapa.org.

David Dickinson is a Physician Assistant at Clarendon Family Medical Center.

Street project would have saved money

I appreciated your retort to this letter ["What would God say?" September 25, 2003]. What rationale are people employing to shore up the argument that paving streets is equivalent to stealing from the poor? The rejected proposal was not intended to be a "poor man's" project. The proposal did not require the lower income families and individuals in Clarendon to pay for a larger share of the cost than those people above the poverty line.

Is anyone moaning about the recent increase in ad valorem taxes to compensate for the budget shortfall for Clarendon College? I suppose the reason is the college brings jobs to Clarendon and students who spend money and pay rent. I would, however, pose this question: Would property values for property located on unpaved streets increase if the streets were paved? Would revenue for the city subsequently increase? The condition of streets correlates with property values.

I will never understand the logic of spending an exorbitant amount of money to repair and perform "quick fixes" when spending a substantial amount of money at once will save more in the long term. There is not enough Southern Engineering in the world to save the streets as they are today, but the city can spend a great deal of money to find the "solution" that will keep the inevitable at bay. It's just too bad the voters did not recognize the necessity of resorting to something a little more substantial (and cost-effective) than makeshift paving and periodic attempts at repair.

Noel Devin,
College Station

Enterprise exemplifies freedom of speech

I truly do enjoy your editorials. I think you were very correct on your position about the city streets. I am having my journalism students who are going into editorial writing read your articles. This is something new for Hedley. I am creating a journalism and speech program for students who are not into science and math.

I believe in free speech, and I think your paper is good example of what it means to be the embodiment of a free society. Keep up the good work.

Tangela Copelin,
Hedley

Why pave streets now?

I usually don't express my opinion publicly, but I feel this needs to be addressed. The streets in Clarendon do need to be repaired. In fact, they have needed it for years. Timing is everything. My question is: Why now? If the roads have been bad for years, why weren't they repaired earlier?

I am not virtually against everything.

We were informed our electricity is going up, our gas is increasing, our water bill is going to be higher, and fuel for our cars has steadily gone up. Insurance is almost unaffordable. That is just car insurance; forget about life or health. Who can afford it?

Do you know what I don't see going up? Wages. It's hard enough trying to make it without all of these increases. If our taxes go up much more, we'll have to forget about sleeping and take on another job. This is not just some sob story. Those who think it is are like ostriches who bury their heads in the sand. Reality is hard to accept, and it's been staring me in the face for years. If you don't have extra, how can you pay for extras?

I'm not against change or progress, but my pocketbook won't allow for anymore. And, oh yes, we are paying a quarter more for our paper now.

Julie Sides,
Clarendon

Editor's Response: Why now? Because — as we have stated numerous times — interest rates are at 40-year lows. Anything we do in the future is going to cost more. It was a once in a lifetime shot, and Clarendon blew it because of mass myopia.

Kudos for being the first to mention the newspaper price hike; but you know, you could get the paper for as little as 39¢ per week if you take out a subscription.

City: Mayor signs contract with sheriff

Continued from page one. and entertained a motion to purchase the device with city funds. The board voted unanimously in favor of the proposal.

Other donations for the Evacu-Splint were made by the Clarendon Lions Club, White's Feed & Seed, Med-Link Services, and THE CLARENDON ENTERPRISE.

Jarrett Atkinson and Colby Waters from the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission addressed the board regarding services offered by the commission and the expiration of PRPC's contract with the city for consulting services. Mayor Selvidge presented Waters with a plaque for his service to the city over the last two years.

Sheriff Butch Blackburn presented the contract between the city and his department for law enforcement services for the sum of $130,000, and Mayor Selvidge signed the contract. Blackburn also addressed the board concerning his belief that a teen curfew is needed. This matter will be considered during an October meeting.

The board approved a letter of engagement with Gordon Maddox to do the municipal audit for the 2002-2003 year.

A contract with the Federal Bureau of Investigation to rent space on the city's radio tower was reviewed and approved.

Ordinance No. 343, which sets sanitation charges, was discussed, and aldermen determined that the charges for sanitation services outside the city limits needs to be clarified. The issue will be brought up again at the October 14 meeting.

City Administrator Sean Pate reported work was progressing on the paving under the NRCS and ORCA grants. He said city crews had also been busy at the recycling center and doing patching on city streets.

Cookoff attendees enjoy perfect weather

We've been having some gorgeous fall weather, haven't we? Unfortunately, for many of us, this means that the instant we walk out the front door, we start sneezing. I've never seen (or heard) so many sniffling people as I did last week, myself among them.

So did you enjoy the Chuckwagon Cookoff? Sometimes, the event has taken place in blistering heat. Other years, the weather has been cold enough to freeze the beans in the cook pot. This year, it was gorgeous. So of course, I didn't pay any attention to the fact that the sun hasn't yet lost any of its hot and sunburned my face for the first time since the 4th of July parade in 1999. It's a good thing that make-up can hide a lot of pink.

I saw most of Clarendon wander by during my time at the cook-off. A few people even admitted this was their first time to attend, though I have to admit, I can't remember which ones they were. I did see Betty Ann Sansing there in her first outing since her foot surgery. (Bill Sansing won one of the door prizes.) She was glad to get out, even though she was in a wheelchair - and will be for three more weeks. Jerry and Nelda Woodard were there with their daughter Trina, who's just relocated from Dallas to Amarillo, much to her parents' delight.

There was entertainment for everyone from the 12-year-old re-haired little girl who could belt out a country song with the best to the Saints' Roost Jamboree Band who've been around as long as anybody I talked to could remember. We had Broadway show tunes and gospel music, a little Elvis, and a lot of country. It was a great, good time, and if you weren't there, you missed it all.

Oh, and Charla Crump won the cowboy boot raffle, so y'all be watching her feet. I want to see those boots myself.

As for the rest of the winners, Roger's sure to have a listing somewhere in the paper.

I have to confess to lusting in my heart after the Texas Rangers book door prize and was sorely disappointed to see it go elsewhere, but I suppose I will just have to get over it.

The book club met at the library this last week and had a great time talking about books, birds (someone's been reading a birdwatcher's biography), and soap operas. Some books do seem to have a lot in common with the soaps, have you noticed? If you like to read and like to talk about

around town
by gail shelton

books, come join us next month.

Keep your eyes open for the local nursing home residents around town. They've been zipping around on all sorts of field trips lately - to the Dairy Queen for ice cream, out on a drive in the country. And the kindergarten class from the elementary school is going out to show off their nursery rhyme costumes.

Or maybe they've done it already. You know how this deadline stuff confuses me. But I know they were (or will be) all just precious. Nothing cuter than a 5-year-old in a costume.

This coming Friday is the Art Club meeting at Zell SoRelle's home. I know everyone is looking forward to lunch there and to seeing all the wonderful treasures Zell has collected through her long life.

Y'all have a good time this week and be sure to let me know what you've been up to.

Hedley Seniors mark birthdays

By Patsy Spier

Our September birthday dinner turned out very nice. Our birthday people were Doc Ford, Pam Casteel, and Shorty Crawford.

There were 17 people attending the dinner. The potluck was very good, and we followed it with birthday cake and ice cream. Everyone played "42" after supper and seemed to really enjoy it.

We will not have the October birthday supper due to the Cotton Festival. We will double up in November for both months. The next supper will be held on November 15 at 6:00 p.m. Everyone is invited and asked to bring potluck dishes unless it is your birthday month.

Several people are enjoying playing dominos. We have at least two tables and would like to have more. We play at 2:00 p.m. Monday through Friday. Come and enjoy.

We have enjoyed a very successful exercise class on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 6:30 p.m. We hope everyone will come at least once to experience it.

We are still accepting homemade items for our Gift Shop that we will have at the Cotton Festival. If anyone is interested in donating a handmade item, the center would greatly appreciate it. We are hoping this will bring some extra money for us. Our Gift Shop is building up, and during the Cotton Festival we will be serving hamburgers, so come on down and eat with us.

Hedley Lioness Club to raffle quilt

The Hedley Lioness club will display a quilt that they will be raffling off at the Hedley Cotton Festival, which is set for October 11.

The quilt will be displayed at various businesses in the area including Donley County State Bank, B&R Thriftway, Herring National Bank, and Community Bank. Tickets are 50¢ each or $5 for a book of 10.

Tickets are available from any Hedley Lioness Member, or call one of the following members: Mary Ruth White, 856-5398; Anita Mitchell, 856-5327; Susie Shields, (874-3793); Louise Stewart, 856-5406; Pamela Casteel, 856-0047; or Patsy and Kathy Spier, 856-5302 or 0143).

Retired teachers hold September meeting

The Donley County retired school personnel met September 22, 2003, at 6:00 p.m. in the Family Life Center.

The meeting was called to order by their president, Carol Duncan. The invocation was given by Sam Lowry, the Pledge of Allegiance was led by Jack Hall. Everyone enjoyed a potluck meal.

After the meal, an interesting project was presented by David Lowrie on the homeless and children of the homeless. A business meeting was held and a drawing of the door prizes.

The meeting of twenty-three people was brought to a close and was enjoyed by everyone.

Bivens will be speaker at Fellowship Church

Community Fellowship Church will have Elmonette Bivens as their guest speaker Wednesday, October 1. Bivens talk will begin at 7 p.m., and the topic will be "Women's Health."

Senior Citizens name Marable as new director

By Vida O'Neal

As you all know, this past week was my last week to work at the center. The new director will be Cathy Marable. I know you will show her the love and knowledge you all have and make her welcome at the Center.

We are still exercising Monday, Wednesday, and Friday mornings at 9:00 a.m. We have new members all the time. Come join the fun and see how much better you will feel. We appreciate Dawn Watson for getting these exercises started, and we will all miss her. She has done a lot for our center.

Get well wishes go to Sharon Thomas, and to Melville and Ruth Mills.

Our condolences to Louise Horton on the loss of her sister and to the family of Mrs. Avis Fain.

Goodnight Gathering

More than two dozen relatives of the late Col. Charles Goodnight gathered last Saturday at the Saints' Roost Museum during the annual Chuckwagon Cookoff which bears his name. Goodnight is credited with being the inventor of the Chuckwagon.

Hedley folks busy getting ready for festival

The weather continues to be just about perfect. The mornings are beginning to be a bit nippy, but as the day goes on, it warms up and the nights are mild. The trees are beginning to turn some.

I guess I love the autumn best of the seasons. When the trees are all gold and yellow and the air is crisp. When the geese are flying in long vees and honking. When the cowboys are getting ready to ship the calves and go out before the sun is up to start rounding the cattle up into the pens. That's when I get homesick for home.

Dorine Conatser enjoyed a visit with her brother-in-law, Al Yake, and sister-in-law, Jane Lowe, from Pampa. Al recently moved from Colorado to Pampa.

Speaking of Colorado, Keith and Leon, along with my niece Lisa Mullins, gave me a trip to Colorado last week for my birthday. It was the first time I got to go in a year. Faith, Lisa's daughter, had the time of her life. Around every bend in the road she would say, "Will you just look at that?" We took several rolls of film.

We visited the Royal Gorge and walked across the highest suspension bridge in the world. We rode a wagon to the top of the gorge and took the cable car back down. They have a huge swing that swings out over the river, but nobody would ride it with me. There were several girls waiting to ride; and when they were getting on it, one girl said, "I've changed my mind." She screamed it all the time the swing was in motion.

Faith and Christian got to ride the donkeys and pet the animals at the petting zoo. We drove up the canyon past Canyon City and had a picnic beside the river. We drove to West Cliff and saw Bishop's Castle. I wasn't too impressed with it. It gave me a spooky feeling, like someone was looking over my shoulder. Maybe thinking about pushing me over.

While we were at the Gorge, I met a man who said he knew where Hedley was and that he had a friend who grew up in Hedley. When I asked him who they were he said

watt's happening
by peggy watt
Hedley • 856-5919

he was friends with the late Johnny Ward and his wife, Joyce. Johnny was the cousin of Leon Ward and the nephew of the late Boots Ward. How 'bout that! I've heard people say that it's a small world.

Plans for the Cotton Festival are coming right along. I understand the Lioness Club plans a stew and chili supper on Friday evening, October 10.

The Senior Citizens made a quilt, and Kathy Spier is selling tickets on it. She is busy making craft items to sell at the Festival. Mrs. Ben Burrow has jars of homemade jam and jelly along with other food items.

I think the Lions Club is planning lunch on Saturday. I guess they will be serving barbecue with all the trimmings, and somebody will have a bake sale at Moffitt's Hardware.

Baxter

Cyrus Baxter, a resident of Donley County since 1998, made the transition from this life on September 29, 2003, in Amarillo.

Mr. Baxter was born April 18, 1952, the son of C.B. and Julia Jo McDonald Baxter, and spent his childhood in Comanche, Texas.

Joining a family of three sisters, each in a different Comanche school at the time, Cy quickly became known and loved by friends of all ages.

Upon high school graduation, Cy attended Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos and graduated from Tarleton State College in Stephenville, Texas, with a Bachelor of Science degree in Agriculture/Forestry/Parks and Wildlife. He joined the Texas Animal Health Commission and was stationed in South Texas. Later he worked for Brown and Root Construction, Inc., of Houston, where he met and married Lisa Sharp. They had one son, Cody Baxter, who currently makes his home in Comanche. After returning to Comanche, Cy was engaged in ranching, farming, and real estate.

In 1998, Cy joined his brother-in-law and sister, Jack and Rebecca King, in ranching, managing the Cottonwood Ranch which is located at the conflux of the Salt Fork branch of the Red River and Lake Creek, 17 miles northeast of Clarendon.

He counted many Clarendon, Donley County, and Amarillo people his friends and considered the ranch his home.

CJH Colts beaten by Claude Mustangs, 18-6

The Colts traveled to Claude to take on the Mustangs Thursday, September 25. The Colts played hard but failed in their attempt to defeat the Mustangs.

According to coach Mike Ray, the Colts just could not get things to go their way in the 18-6 loss.

"The Colts lost one where they just could not get a break," Ray said. "We missed recovering two on-side kicks and had a fumble returned for a touchdown, but scoring is not as important as the effort."

Ray was pleased with the Colts' hard work and knows they are improving in areas and overall as a team.

The only score for the Colts came from T.J. Brown with several Colts aiding in the drive. Dalton Askew, Austin Howard, and Devin Noble each made good runs and receptions to help put six points on the board.

The Colts will take on Wheeler at home this Thursday, October 2. The game begins at 5:00 p.m.

The Lady Bulldogs took on conference foe Midland College Wednesday, September 24, and lost in three sets to the Lady Chaparrals. Thursday the Lady Bulldogs defeated Lamar, Colo., and Friday they lost to Garden City, Kansas. The ladies then defeated Trinidad, Colorado on Saturday.

The Lady Bulldogs will host Vernon College on Thursday, October 2, at 6:00 p.m. and will participate in the Cable One Classic in Berger Friday and Saturday. Teams competing in the tournament are Frank Phillips, Garden City, Seward County, and Dodge City.

Playing for the 2003 Lady Bulldogs are Freshmen Chelsie Calisto, Roxton; Sara Brito, Fortaleza, Brazil; Sheena Barrett, Duncanville; Jayia Walls, Texico; Jentry Stephens, Tatum, New Mexico; Tara Haney, Peaster; Randi Alvarado, Ft. Davis; Aleia Paden, Duncanville; Megan Graham, Pattonville; Jayne Crane, Guymon, Oklahoma; Emilee Bolton, Blossom; Doraliza Dominguez, Alpine; Stephanie Bretz, Tatum, New Mexico; and Kristin King, Canyon.

Head coach for the Lady Bulldogs is Bo Pagliasotti, and assisting him is Justin Maness. Maness is from Roxton High School, where he coached volleyball for four years and had many successes. Coach Maness is also in charge of the new dorms at CC.

Broncos face WD on road this Friday

By Sandy Anderberg

The Broncos battled hard against Nazareth Friday night, but they were plagued with too many turnovers to gain their first win of the season. The final score was 30-6.

According to head coach Roger Hoeltzel, the Broncos went into the game looking to defeat the Swifts.

"We went into the game thinking we were on level ground and had a good chance to win the game," he said. "It was obvious throughout the game that we were on level ground, but turnovers kept us struggling."

Nazareth took advantage of those turnovers and took the lead. The Broncos' only score came on a pass from Quentin West to Will Betts in the fourth quarter.

The Broncos are preparing for District, which will begin in two weeks.

"We are continuing to improve offensively," Hoeltzel said. "We hope to execute well and get a win this week before we start our District run."

The Broncos will travel to White Deer to take on the Bucks beginning at 7:30 p.m.

JV Broncos claims first win over Claude

The JV Broncos came out on fire against the Mustangs Thursday night in Claude. The Broncos put a mark in the winner's column, defeating their opponent 20-14.

"The kids played an exceptional game," coach Roger Hoeltzel said. "We were evenly matched; it was a fun game to watch."

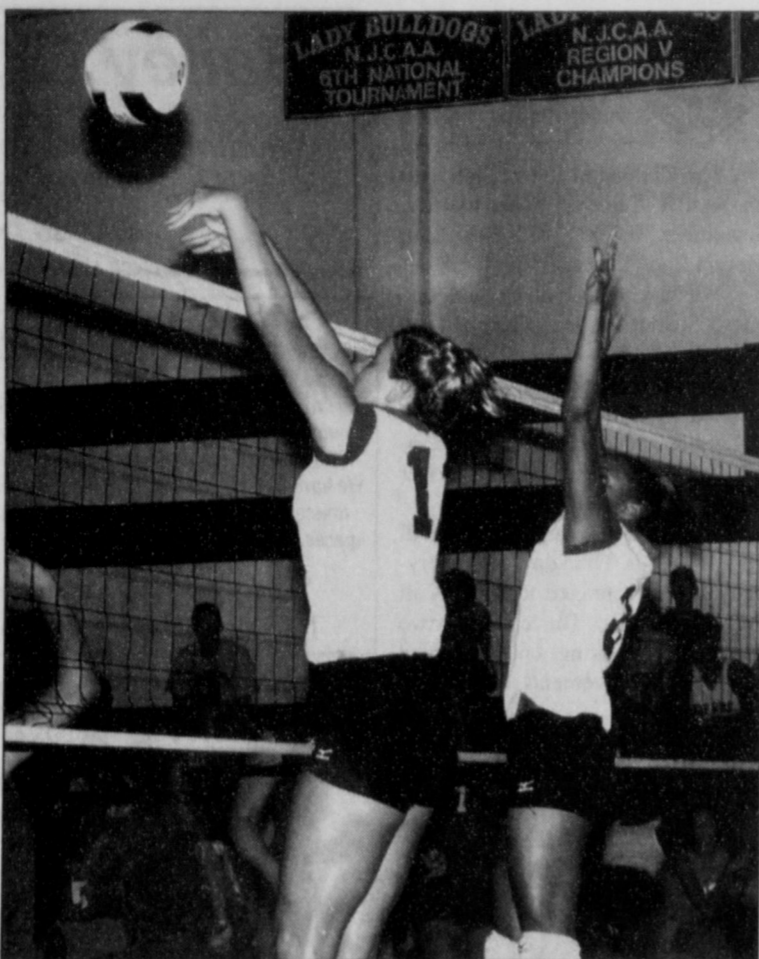

Hoeltzel gave credit to several Broncos and was very pleased with the effort.

"Michael Bruce did a great job at quarterback," Hoeltzel said. "He had a very good game as did Morgan Robinson. Stephen Ford played running back for us and did a great job as well."

Hoeltzel praised the offensive line for a fantastic job of blocking up front, and the defense played exactly the way the coaches wanted them to.

The JV Broncos are off this week but will be back in action next week.

Hedley Owls score homecoming victory

By Tangela Copelin

Plainview Christian Academy traveled to Memorial Field in Hedley to take on the Owls for their homecoming game Friday night.

The Owls started off tough and never stopped their aggressive playing, ending the ballgame in the third quarter with a 42 to 6 win.

Despite the fact that Hedley allowed all players to take to the field, including three JV boys, the opposing team felt the referees were not calling a fair ballgame. The game was called in the third quarter.

Senior Eleazar Centeno had rushing for four touchdowns and 174 yards. Centeno ran for touchdowns of 37, 8 and 27 yards in the first quarter and a 70-yard run in the second quarter.

Wesley Shields added two scores for Hedley, with one interception returned four yards for a score and a 3-yard touchdown run in the first quarter.

Other Owls contributing to this win were Casey Glasgow with 4 solo tackles, 2 assists, 1 pass deflect, and he caused one fumble. Darren Holmes came off the bench to put forth some tough playing, having one solo tackle, two assists, and one pass deflect. Cole Llewellyn had six solo tackles and one assist. Steven Howard had six solo tackles as well and two assists. These are just a few of the Owls who shined bright on Homecoming night.

The Owls will be off this Friday night but will begin district play on October 10 at 7:30 p.m. in Happy.
