McLean team wins cookoff

Good turnout seen at fifth museum benefit

The Darsey Wagon from McLean took home top honors again from the fifth annual Col. Charles Goodnight Chuckwagon Cookoff held here this past Saturday.

The McLean team also won the event in 1998.

Sixteen wagons competed in the cookoff this year, and a total of $3,000 was awarded in prize money.

Officials with the Saints' Roost Museum, which hosts the event, estimate about 1,000 people were on the museum grounds for the event.

The all-day affair was kicked off with breakfast provided by the Clarendon Chamber of Commerce, and entertainment was provided throughout the day by local and area talent. A Western trade show also accompanied the event, and the Clarendon High School Junior Historians provided valuable assistance to the museum all day. The Chamber also had the lunch concession.

Also on hand were descendants and relatives of Col. Charles Goodnight, the legendary Panhandle cattleman and inventor of the chuckwagon.

The chuckwagon meal was served at 5 p.m. — a return to the event's traditional mealtime after last year's 1 p.m. serving proved less than successful.

The Darsey Wagon won first place for overall cooking. Second place went to the Double Diamond Wagon from Silverton, the McFall Wagon from Pampa was third, and Henry Jennings Enterprises of Stinnett was fourth.

The top award for the best wagon and camp went to the B Bar S Wagon of Brownfield. Second place was Darsey, third was Henry Jennings, and fourth was Double Diamond.

Other results were as follows: Best Meat — 1) Darsey, 2) B Bar S, 3) Henry Jennings, 4) Wild Cow Ranch of Fritch; Best Beans — 1) Darsey, 2) McFall Wagon, 3) Noble Ranch Wagon of Wayland, 4) Double Diamond; Best Dessert — 1) McFall Wagon, 2) Double Diamond, 3) Darsey Wagon, 4) B Bar S; Best Bread — 1) Darsey Wagon, 2) Double Diamond, 3) C Bar C Ranch of Hartley, 4) Henry Jennings.

Production of Terex prototype on schedule

Clarendon Manufacturing is on schedule for its production of a prototype scraper ordered by Terex Equipment Limited and should have it ready by Christmas.

"We are cutting material and welding it today," said Darrell Leffew, president and general manager of Clarendon Manufacturing and Distributing Co., Inc., at a town hall meeting Monday night.

The 17-yard scraper, model number S-17E, will be attached to a tractor produced by Terex's plant in Motherwell, Scotland by early 2000. After a shakedown period, Clarendon Manufacturing hopes to land a contract for 50 scrapers, five of which would be produced next year.

In outlining his company's goals, Leffew distributed a proposed schedule calling for the production of 195 units by December 2003. He said his company would have to employ 69 qualified people in order to manufacture 60 units per year.

In addition, Clarendon Manufacturing would have to relocate to new facilities or expand its current facilities. The company's present plant on First Street will only be adequate for the first five units, Leffew said.

Leffew also said at the meeting that he wanted to make people aware of what the Terex Corporation is and who the people are that make it up.

Terex has its origins in the Euclid Company, which started in the early 1900s as a manufacturer of earth-moving equipment. In the 1950s, Euclid was purchased by General Motors. Eventually, GM divested itself of part of the Euclid line and sold the remaining line — what is now known as Terex — in the 1980s. Today, Terex has its corporate headquarters in Connecticut.

According to information presented at the meeting, Terex has doubled its production since 1991, and

Bronco Band sections score high at Lubbock

Several sections of the Bronco Band competed in the West Texas Auxiliary Championships held at Coronado High School in Lubbock on Saturday.

The championship contest was divided into four sections: flags, percussion, drum major, and twirler. Clarendon competed in three divisions.

The percussion line received first place in the 2A division. After scoring a two in the preliminaries, they qualified for the finals due to their numerical rating and the number of school entered.

Members of the percussion section are Jerod Hartman, Todd Hoeltzel, Megan Roberts, Melissa McAnear, Landon Shields, Cody Watson, Stephanie Pace, Michael Newhouse, Dee Thompson, Emily Sparks, Jacob Mondragon, Catherine Chamberlain, America Santos, Lydia Hartman, and Greg Leeper. Rachel Papa also performed a flute solo with the drums.

The flag corps received a Superrior rating in the preliminaries but did not qualify for the finals.

Members of the Flag Corps are Kara Barker, Jamee Sparks, Amanda Lorenz, Danielle Holden, Paige Bennett, Amber Carson, Ashlee Kidd, Tonya Wilson, and manager Danielle Sandefur.

Twirler Sarah Kidd also scored a Superior rating. There was no final competition in her division.

The band did not enter the Drum Major Competition this year.

This year marks the first time for members of Bronco Band to compete in the championships, and Director Todd Baker plans to enter the band in all four divisions in next year's contest.

"I'm really proud of our kids," Baker said. "They attended extra practices and put in a lot of extra hours. Their time and effort have paid off."

Assistant Director Jennifer Willison is glad to see the support the band is receiving.

"I want to thank all the parents who came to Lubbock to support these kids," Willison said.

"There were so many families from Clarendon that came, and we really appreciate it."

The entire band is scheduled to compete at the Plainview Marching Contest this Saturday at 5:45 p.m. at Bulldog Stadium.

Then they are on their way to UIL Region Marching Contest in Amarillo on October 16. If they receive a division one rating, they will continue on to Area competition in Odessa on October 23.

Big government takes a big step

That's one small step for federal nannyism; one giant leap for big government.

In January, impeached president Billy Jeff Clinton told the nation he intended to sue America's tobacco industry. Last week, his administration did just that.

In the lawsuit filed by the Justice Department last Wednesday, September 22, Attorney General Janet Reno said the federal government "alleges that for the past 45 years the companies that manufacture and sell tobacco have waged an intentional, coordinated campaign of fraud and deceit."

The federalies are now trying to recoup the approximately $20 billion the government allegedly spends each year to treat "smoking related illnesses."

The case could reportedly allow the feds to claim the profits from the tobacco industry dating back to the 1950s. An amount that one story says would be "larger than the total assets of the industry."

But if that weren't enough, the government also wants Big Tobacco to foot the bill for anti-smoking ads and programs to help smokers kick the habit.

These are clearly moves designed to destroy an American industry. If sucking all the money out of those companies doesn't get the job done, the government will force the industry to commit suicide.

But wait a minute. The federal government subsidizes tobacco farmers, and the United States itself has been making money off tobacco. One source says the federalies take in about $110 billion in excise taxes.

If the federal government is really spending $20 billion per year on "smoking related illnesses," then it has no one to blame but itself. The government set up Medicare and other socialized medicine programs. No one forced the feds to do this. In fact, one could argue that the very existence of these programs is in violation of the United States Constitution. How is it now the fault of private industry that the government spent all this money?

Keep in mind, the tobacco companies are making a legal product, which they sell to consumers who choose to smoke. Never lose sight of that.

In a continuing effort to "do what's best for you," the federal nannyism movement is urging our nation closer and closer to a totalitarian regime — a nation where the central government will tell you what to eat and how to act because the ones in power know best and because you, the people, are too stupid to take care of yourselves.

The greatest danger associated with socialized medicine — aside from the fact that it is unconstitutional — is that it allows the government to regulate your life by preventing you from engaging in activities some policy-wonk declares to be unhealthy. Industries and activities that cause an undue burden on the system will be regulated or litigated out of existence. Of course, the government hasn't really taken into consideration how much money smokers save America in Social Security payments by doing the government the favor of dying early. But I digress...

The anti-tobacco crowd is trying to win this war on tobacco through a destruction of personal and economic liberties in the court system. They know they cannot enact a prohibition of tobacco, so they are choosing to bury the industry in litigation.

This lawsuit is an abomination of everything this country stands for — personal liberty, personal responsibility, independence, and economic freedom. The industry giants in this case have vowed to fight and say they will not settle. Let us hope they win. God help us if they lose.

Autumn means more than just falling leaves

My favorite season is finally here. After a summer of sweltering heat, the crispness of fall is welcomed with open arms.

on the Mark

with Christi Ross

With fall comes some of life's best pleasures. The changing of colors of the leaves and sunny yet cool mornings are just the start of autumn.

As a rule, I turn off the constant humming of the air conditioner and open all the windows. The breeze seems to refresh both the house and my soul.

With the fresh air comes a burst of energy. I can't wait to pack away all of the summer clothes and pull out the fall wardrobe. Sweater, corduroy pants, and wool jackets all come out of storage and fill my closet.

Seeing all the warm clothes, I go from bedroom to bedroom, adding layers of quilts to each of the beds. I really wanted to put flannel sheets on all the beds, but no one wants to sweat himself to sleep. I'll wait until Thanksgiving for the flannel sheets.

Since I'm in a Martha Stewart mode, I can't kick off fall without autumn food. Just think of all the goodies — gingerbread, molasses cookies, pumpkin bread, sweet potatoes with marshmallows, stew and chili. And, don't forget the hot chocolate, Russian tea, and apple cider. They help to warm your insides on cold days.

After some searching, I find the crock pot; and after dusting it off, I put on a beef stew and whip up a pumpkin and cream cheese cake. With food like that, it's no wonder why we gain weight during the fall and winter months.

I'm on a crazy mission. The flowerbeds are my next victim. Coleus, caladiums, begonias, and impatiens are yanked out of the ground by their leggy summer tops. In the bare dirt, I plant dozens of daffodil and tulip bulbs and then add mum and pansy plants. Instant fall!

I haul all the summer lawn chairs into the garage and search for the rake. Got to be ready for those falling leaves!

My long day of preparing for fall is nearly done. After cleaning up, I slip into my thermal pajamas and fleece slippers. The stew and cornbread smell so good, and I can't wait to eat summer and then dive into a warm, cozy bed and start reading a new book.

Maybe it's the stew that's making me sweat. Whew, sure seems hot in here all of the sudden. Think I'll change out of my thermal PJs and into shorts and a t-shirt. I head out to the garage to find my packed-away summer clothes. As I stumble around in the dark to find the garage door, I stomp my toe on the rake.

By now, I'm changed and almost ready for bed. Think I'll first go sit on the porch and enjoy a cup of apple cider.

I thought the cool weather was supposed to kill off all of these mosquitos and bugs. So much for sitting down. I forgot I moved all the lawn chairs into the garage. Guess I'll just go to bed.

After a long day, I can't wait to crawl into bed and start reading. Whew, a few layers of bed coverings have to come off first. Didn't the weatherman say fall is here? I knew I shouldn't believe a weatherman. What other job can you be wrong at most of the time and still get paid? Oh, well. Maybe fall will be here tomorrow.

Congress shouldn't borrow Social Security funds

Last week, the President vetoed a tax relief bill that would have put about one quarter of the total budget surplus back into your pocket.

Among other things, this bill would have phased out the death tax, reduced the marriage penalty, and lowered income tax rates by a small amount on everyone across-the-board.

The President's veto of this bill was more a disappointment than a surprise - he said he was going to do it. Now, the President is saying that he's open to a compromise with Congress that will still provide the American people with some degree of tax relief.

issue Update

with Rep. Mac Thornberry

Well, as most everyone probably knows, I'm all for cutting taxes - particularly the inheritance tax, which I've been trying to get rid of for nearly four years now. But I've got a real concern that the President's main priority in all this has less to do with cutting taxes than raising spending.

Earlier this year, his administration sent a budget up to Capitol Hill that would create 80 new federal programs, increase spending by nearly one trillion dollars over the next decade, and place more control and authority into the hands of the federal government. There's little doubt in my mind that the President hasn't given up on these goals, which is why we need to be careful about any attempted deals.

Taxpayers need real tax relief. But if the President's idea of a compromise is nothing more than a collection of modest tax credits in exchange for an assortment of new federal programs that borrow more money from Social Security, Congress should stand firm and say "No!"

Clarendon, let's support our kids in all they do

Last Friday night, our Bronco football team and band traveled to Memphis. After a long, hard-fought game and despite injuries, the Broncos came home with a victory! They did a great job! The band performed at halftime and sounded and looked great! What a super job Todd Baker and Jennifer Willison are doing with the band!

My main purpose for writing this letter is to get the community behind what our kids are doing. For the most part, we are pretty supportive, but we can do better. I realize we haven't always had a winning football season or maybe our band wasn't what it could have been. But you know what? It doesn't matter! Win or lose, play good or bad, we should still be out there supporting our kids! And that's what it's all about — getting behind what our kids are doing, not only as parents but also as a community. It doesn't matter if you've got kids in school or not. If we don't get behind our kids, somebody else will.

Let's not let that happen — our kids are way too precious!

I thank God for the Christian teachers and coaches we have at our school. They are doing their job. How about as parents and community we start doing ours?

This Friday night is Homecoming at Bronco Stadium. It should be packed to full capacity. We should make so much noise that Sunray can't hear themselves think! Let's show our kids that win or lose, whether it be football, band, basketball, academics, or whatever, that we are behind them! Let's make some noise Clarendon! Let's make Bronco Stadium rock this Friday night and the rest of the year!

Cowboy services were highlight of cookoff

Dear Folks of Texas,

I arrived in Clarendon Tuesday evening, September 22, about 5:00. When sitting at the picnic table at Draper's RV Park and wondering what I was doing here so early for the Col. Charles Goodnight Chuckwagon Cookoff and also the Goodnight Descendents Gathering, over came the man parked to the north of me. He asked if I'd like something to eat. I answered that I didn't want to be a burden, but he insisted I come over. As my camper truck was acting up and wouldn't start all the time, I had figured there would be no going up town to get supper. So I accepted the invitation for a plate of food. Also he had fixed coffee. What a nice way to start my time in Clarendon. You will know this man if you stop in the RV camp grounds by his friendly greeting. We were on our second cup of coffee when in drove Carl [Draper]. From then on, it was fun and business.

At home people had asked me if I met a lot of people in 1998 at the cookoff and gathering, and I had always answered "yes." They would ask what the highlight was, and I had to stop and think. The chuckwagon food was really great, and there were a lot of new people to meet at the gathering. But I will say the best was the Sunday morning services that were also held at the Saints' Roost Museum in front of the old bunk house. This year's services were even better. What a lot of nice sincere people to tell you what the Good Book of His Word says!

Thanks to all. I'm glad you took the time to read this. Thanks also to the editor of this paper and to the Texas Highways magazine who took pictures of the descendants on the steps in front of the museum and to the people on the museum staff — Ruth, Judy, and all the others. See you next year if it's His will.

the company's sales in 1998 totaled more than $1.23 billion.

Last month, two officials with Terex's Scotland plant were in Clarendon for a site visit. The representatives were impressed with their reception here they said in an e-mail to Clarendon Manufacturing.

"The hospitality over our two-day visit was beyond belief," Jim Paterson and Tom McIlwain said in the e-mail. "Your community spirit, energy, and effort deserve to be richly rewarded. We see no reason why this project shouldn't be a resounding success."

Saying simply that Clarendon Manufacturing must focus on what is currently in front of it, Leffew admitted Monday night that all the details of financing the local firm's expansion and finding qualified labor are still to be worked out.

"This is a wonderful opportunity for us," Leffew said. "We're not asking for Clarendon to give us anything. But we are going to ask the [Clarendon Economic Development Corporation] to help us."

Goodnight Gathering

Relatives of Col. Charles Goodnight held their annual reunion during the Chuckwagon Cookoff last Saturday at the Saints' Roost Museum.

Week's biggest 'doings' was cookoff

All Clarendon is excited that Chance McClaren is already back in school. And Robert didn't really get that graphic, Chance. It's just that mothers have a very low "gross-out" capacity.

Russell Morris of Harlingen, Texas, and Ray Morris of Red Bluff, California, visited with Viola Graham on Friday.

Also on Friday, Jean Ledbetter, Shirley Osborne, Sue Baker, and Judy Hodges traveled to Altus to the women's Christian conference sponsored by the Altus First Baptist Church every year about this time. Becky Freeman was the featured speaker at the conference, with eight or nine others. By the time the conference ended on Saturday, the participants were able to attend most of the classes offered, and they came home "feeling like we've been on a mountain-top," as Jean said when she called me.

You see? If you call me with information, I really will put it in.

The biggest "doings" around town last week was the Fifth Annual Colonel Charles Goodnight Chuckwagon Cookoff, to give it the proper title. Our family arrived at the Saints' Roost Museum in plenty of time to look at all the campsites, and locate the McFall wagon where we would dine. The boy wandered off five minutes after we arrived, but that's what Donations were taken for a chance to guess how many marbles were in the vase. Country Bloomers of Clarendon donated a beautiful green plant as the prize.

These donations will go towards the purchase of an outdoor decorative fountain to be placed near the residents' patio area at Medical Center Nursing Home. This fountain should make a beautiful addition to the patio area. The fountain was a suggestion

Pet Peeve Week is coming.. Thank, goodness

I saw on the Internet where October 11-15 is Pet Peeve Week. Well...hurray, thank goodness...it's about time! A whole week to get it off our chest, tell it like it is, and lay it on the line. This is where the "rubber meets the road" folks. I'm already working on my list, and it should be done just in time for me to celebrate Pet Peeve Week in style.

It's hard to say what my biggest pet peeve is, so my list isn't in any particular order. I also decided not to name any names - the guilty parties know who they are!

First, let's talk about Express Lanes, shall we? In the supermarket there are serious choices to be made when you get ready to check out. These big stores have at least 50 check-out lanes, labeled with big signs "Express - 15 Items or Less," "Express - 10 Items or Less-Cash Only," "Express - 10 Items or Less-Cash or Check"... and it goes on and on. The trouble is that there are only three human beings working the checkout lanes, and not one of them is working the express lane. After about thirty minutes one of the checkers will get on the horn and ask for more help.

"Willie...check please." Oh good, Willie's coming. I wonder where Willie is. I wonder if 12-year-olds do, unfortunately. He did reappear in time to eat.

We spoke to Cenett Rhode - she seems to turn up everywhere, doesn't she? - and visited with Jerry and Nelda Woodard. This was my first opportunity to visit the museum, which I enjoyed thoroughly. It's a beautiful building, full of fascinating, well-displayed exhibits. Ruth Robinson, Judy Synek, Janet Cooper, Ruth Hancock, and the other members of the museum board deserve full credit for preserving and supporting this facility. And hats off to the Cookoff committee for putting together a terrific event.

Earl Shields won the raffle for the hand-made boots, but he sent the prize back to be auctioned off. The boots sold for $875, which will go toward medical expenses for cancer victims Donny Phillips and James Owens. Earl's heart is big as all Texas, folks.

The McFall wagon provided a delicious meal. I could have told the judges that the McFalls deserved the first prize they won for dessert even before they got to the judging; it was that good. John and Lori Howard lucked out, too. They got some of that prize-winning peach cobbler. I never spoke to anyone who got to eat the Darsey wagon's first-prize beef or beans, but I'm sure it was downright larrupin'. The local Boy Scouts sure were eyeing that cooking gear with a covetous gleam. It's the quality of the cook, boys, not the cast iron. Practice.

Despite the wonderful fiddle-playing and singing, some of the best entertainment at the Cookoff was watching the latest generation of Goodnight kids playing with their waterballoon yo-yos. Give a three-year-old a waterballoon, and sooner or later, somebody is going to get wet. I had to admire another enterprising young man who was industriously sawing away at the tent chains with his plastic knife. That kind of optimism can only be found among the kindergarten set.

I could use some of that optimism this week. Thursday, I'll be attending the Amarillo Public Library's Book and Author Dinner and book signing, my very first book signing for my very first book: Groom on the Lam is a romantic comedy set in Houston. It's electronically published on CD-ROM or Internet download from the publisher, to be read either on the computer screen or printed out, as you prefer. The Burton Memorial Library has both a CD copy and a copy on paper. Y'all wish me luck. I'm nervous.

Residents of Medical Center Nursing Home are also involved in making a quilt for the Hedley High School seniors to give away at this year's Cotton Festival. The quilt will be the top bingo prize on October 9 during Bingo Blackout.

and puts it in the back seat! What was she doing earlier in the front seat? By now, your hands have tightened on the wheel of your car. When you glance in the rear-view mirror you discover that four more cars have pulled up behind you. Things are getting tense.

Meanwhile, the little lady has made it around to the driver's side of her car, gotten in, and closed the door. You breathe a sign of relief because you are only second away from the parking space. She starts the car, the reverse lights come on, but she doesn't move. What is she doing in there? There are now six cars behind you, and the drivers are making hand signals. Finally she backs out an inch at a time. The victory is yours! You've got the space. It only took you 33 minutes. In that length of time you could have parked four blocks away, walked to the store, bought your milk, and been back at your car - unless of course you got in Willie's line!

Something else that gets my goat is gross TV commercials. Picture this: you are sitting at home on a Friday night watching TV with you mate. It's been a hard week, and now it's just the two of you. You've been thinking about a little romantic interlude -

Hedley gears up for 48th Cotton Festival

Hedley is gearing up to celebrate the 48th annual Cotton Festival on October 8-9.

First held in 1952 under the sponsorship of the Hedley Lions Club, Wanda Hansard Richards was crowned the first Cotton Festival Queen in coronation ceremonies under the direction of Miss Myrtle Reeves.

There have been four sets of sisters who won in the title in the past 47 years. They are Joan and Sandra Youree, Kathy and Beverly McPherson, Mary Finchem and Sandy Winn, and Renee and Shauna White.

The closest contest was in 1965 when Jamie Evans Buckner beat Kathy Spier by less than a dollar.

The former queens are scattered all across the United States. Jamie Evans Buckner lives in Alaska, and Judy Leggett Spier lives in Florida.

Nancy Saunders Stephens and Shauna White Monroe are the only ones who live in Hedley. Ricki Rowell Baker has a business in Hedley.

There are several former queens who are teachers, and several that are nurses. Some I have lost track of and have no idea where they are or what they're doing.

Tanya Gibson of Perryton visited with her parents Harold and Mary Ruth White recently. She said she came to help sister Renee Shields hang wallpaper and Roger stayed home because he wasn't a paperhanger.

Jan Farris received notice she had passed her State Nursing Board Test. She's employed by Crown of Life Hospice.

Della Linville had a birthday last week.

Ronnie and Carolyn Blackwell of Amarillo surprised her mother, Mrs. Dorothea Crawford with a birthday party Saturday night. Dorothea's son, Keith and Anna Crawford of San Antonio were there along with grandchildren Scott and Stacy Blackwell, Haley and Claire of Albuquerque, Steve Blackwell of Colorado Springs, Joe and Stacy Mott and Mark of Wichita, Kansas, and Chris and Shanda Hurt of Amarillo. Dorothea's sister, Pauline Knightstep, also attended.

R.L. and Marie Norton and their daughter, Debbie Stitsell of White Deer and Chubby Brown of Amarillo visited their mother, Mrs. Juanita Brown, recently. Helen Ford and Kay Miller of Clarendon and Grace Burkhalter of Hedley joined them for lunch.

Margaret Holland had some of her girls here last week and attended the party given for the bank girls.

Sandra Baggett and granddaughter Jamie Wagner of Claude and Judy Clendennen and granddaughter Kenzey of Pampa joined Nancy and Henry Stephens in the celebration.

Bill and Juanell Carson were in Amarillo recently to help their grandson, Zack Carson celebrate his third birthday. Zack is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Carson.

The community of Hedley gave an appreciation dinner for Sue Weatherly, Margaret Holland, and Kitty Asher for their time of service to the town during their years at the bank in Hedley. Approximately 75 people attended the covered dish event held at the Senior Citizens Center.

Buford and Jerry Holland went to Lelia Lake Saturday to visit their great grandson, Hayden Micheal Moore, and his parents Scheli and Micheal Moore of Dumas. Sunday they visited son Glyndol and Kathy Holland, and Lynn and Whitney of Shamrock.

During the visit they traveled to Turpin, Oklahoma, to visit the school where Glyndol is superintendent. They then went on to Liberal, Kansas so Jerry could say they'd been there.

I read with interest the letter from Margaret Wells. I remember her and Joe with fondness. She was (and probably still is) on of the finest pianist I've had accompany me. Hi, Margaret.

maybe light a few candles, turn on some music. You even go so far as to mention this thought to your mate, and the two of you are just about to set sail on the Sea of Love when up pops Bob Dole on your TV screen, telling the whole world about body parts that have gone on the blink. Talk about a romance killer! The pressure is really on now, people.

And, let's talk Catsup or Ketchup (somebody should really decide on what to call the stuff and stick with it!) What's up with those tiny little packs of Catsup we get with our hamburger and fries. Your fries are hot when you get them, but they won't be by the time you pry open enough of the little packs to get a teaspoon of Catsup/Ketchup. And I love that those packs say "Tear Here" - yeah right! When you finally get enough Catsup/Ketchup out of three fries, everything's cold, and you don't care anymore.

My kids say I worry too much about little things. "Get over it, Mom." It's not that big a deal!" they tell me.

Maybe not, but I feel a lot better knowing that I'm going to have a whole week in October to gripe, moan, and complain. It's my right as a citizen to celebrate "Pet Peeve Week," and by golly, I'm going to enjoy it!

Usenet: the world's largest bulletin board, Part 2 of 2

Last week I discussed the wonderful world of "Usenet." Billed as the planet's largest bulletin board, this system allows anyone on the Internet to view messages from anyone else.

As a little review, remember that the Usenet is divided into thousands of "newsgroups," or sub-bulletin boards. Each newsgroup exists to discuss one particular topic. The organization of these newsgroups is hierarchical. In other words, a newsgroup with the name of "rec" is for discussions on all things recreational. Rec.Humor, on the other hand would be for joke-telling.

Think of a Usenet message (posting) as "public e-mail." Usenet messages look exactly like e-mail messages except they aren't "sent" to an e-mail address; they are "posted" to a newsgroup. Because of the danger of viruses, only plain-text messages are allowed on the Usenet. Since all viruses are binary, not plain text, this seems pretty safe. After all, you can't get a virus by reading a message.

That fear, though, prevented the exchange of legitimate programs and other binary files, so someone invented the process of "uencoding" (Yes, the word begins with two U's). Uencoding allowed a binary file to be changed to a plain text format so that it could be posted to the Usenet. A person on the receiving end would download the uencoded file and, using a special program, uuDEcode it back to its original binary form.

Most Usenet readers have this capability built in, and most times, the uencoding and udecoding is invisible to the user. For instance, in the newer versions of Netscape and Internet Explorer, if you happen upon a uencoded file, they will automatically udecode them so you can view (or listen) to them. Two newsgroups that contain uencoded files are: alt.binaries.clipart and alt.binaries.sounds.mp3.

Be careful, though. Remember, anyone can post anything to newsgroups. No moderator exists. Sometimes, you might find inappropriate material in the newsgroups.

Because of this free-for-all Usenet attitude, another problem exists: spam. Unsolicited advertising is called "spam." Anytime you have received junk e-mail or seen an advertisement on the Usenet, you have been "spammed." A person that sends such drive is a "spammer."

Anyway, quite a few people are tempted by the seemingly free nature of the Internet. After all, when a person can post a message, viewed by internet 101

By Eric Spellmann

millions, at no cost, why not use it for advertising? Two California lawyers did just that. These two lawyers specialized in helping people get their "Green Cards." They posted an ad to thousands of different newsgroups hoping to solicit business. When I say "thousands of different newsgroups," I'm talking about groups such as rec.pets.cats, alt.hobbies.knitting, etc. (Newsgroups that have nothing to do with "immigration issues.")

Needless to say, they angered quite a few people on the Internet. As I've stated before, the Internet is like a wild west town with no sheriff. When a crime is committed, the "townspeople" take care of it. What these two lawyers did was anger the hackers of this world. Trust me, that's the last group of people you want coming after you.

The next day, these two lawyers came to work and discovered that their fax machine had burned up. Someone had sent a solid black sheet of paper all night long to it. They also discovered that their office phone number had been forwarded to a "1-900 Sex Line." Finally, someone had gone into their credit report and changed a few things. Granted, all of these acts are illegal, but when you anger the "defenders of the Internet," expect retribution.

My point is that, whatever you do, don't advertise in the newsgroups. Use them as they were meant to be used, to facilitate the exchange of useful information between like-minded people.

So, what do you do if your Internet Service Provider does not have Usenet access? Check out some of the free Usenet services available. My favorite is Deja.com (<http://deja.com>). You can participate in many of the discussions. However, binary files cannot be decoded here. Another good site is MailandNews (<http://mailandnews.com>). It gives free e-mail and Usenet access.

If you are brand new to the Usenet, check out the following newsgroup first: news.announce.newusers Finally, before posting to any newsgroup, read it's FAQ (Frequently Asked Questions) document. Check them out at the Internet FAQ Archive (<http://www.faq.org>) See you in Cyberspace!

Thank You

How can we even begin to express to you our gratitude and thanks for the many acts of kindness and expressions of love we have received since the beginning of Amy's illness?

It has been a long nine months and even though she is gone now, her time on earth was not wasted. In her illness, she united this community and ultimately, through the Internet, the world, in prayer to the Father on her behalf, and that touched us and gave us strength to cope with it all.

The monetary gifts were generous and greatly appreciated. Thank you.

Then at the end of her life, you kept giving and we felt the power of your love with all the memorials, visits, calls, cards, food, flowers, and hugs. Your presence at the funeral helped us as well.

So regardless of what you did, even to a passing thought, you helped us and were a comfort to us. You have truly been our burden bearers. May the Lord bless you and keep you.

Copeline, Crump perform at Koncert

Jaci Copelin, a fifth grader at Hedley High School and Tray Crump, an eighth grader at Panhandle Junior High, performed in Voices in the Wind, a storytelling festival sponsored by Storytellers of the High Plains.

They were two of five tellers in the Kidz Koncert at WTAMU on Saturday, September 18

Jacie's story "Albigail and the Beautiful pony and Tray's story "Vulture Learns the Laws of Nature" were a big success with the young and old alike.

Jaci is the daughter of Ernie and Tangela Copelin and the granddaughter of Wayne and Joan Copelin, Glenda and Marion Martin, and George Roach. Tray is the son of Junior and Londa Crump and grandson of Larry and Delores Crump and Marilyn Breland.

Jaci Copelin (left) and Tray Crump (right) performed in the Voices in the wind storytelling festival recently. Jaci is a fifth grader from Hedley, and she told the story "Abigail and the Beautiful Pony." Tray is an eighth grader from Panhandle, and he told the story "Vulture Learns the Law of Nature. Girl Scout Leader Profile

Becky McAnear was a Girl Scout in her youth and once her daughter started, she decided to become a leader. She has been a leader for five years and an adult member for nine years. She was voted Rookie of the Year in 1995. Becky has been a voting delegate for the Texas Plains Girl Scouts and is an assistant chairperson. She has a great love for the girls and girl scouting.

Becky is the leader for Cadette Troop #48 and is assisted by Joyce McQuien. Her troop members are Melissa McAnear, Kelsey McQuien, and Valerie Taylor. The events of the month for her troop is Mother/Daughter Workday. They are working on earning their Silver Awards, which is the second highest recognition for the girls. They will also be going to Canada in July 2000.

"Our girls have busy lives with many other activities in school," Becky said. "Girl Scouting teaches them to set goals and reach them. Along the way, they also learn leadership and service to others."

"We have fun and love the trips we take."

The Goodnight family thanks Clarendon, Texas, and the Saints' Roost Museum for the opportunity to hold our "family gathering" here each year. We are looking forward to the year 2000 in Clarendon, Texas.

FSA accepting emergency loan applications

Donley County was declared eligible for Farm Service Agency (formerly Farmers Home Administration) disaster emergency loans on September 1, 1999.

Generally, that means that farmers who have lost at least 30 percent of their production due to losses caused by extreme fire hazards that occurred August 1, 1999, and continuing. Proceeds from crop insurance are taken into account when determining eligibility.

FSA County Supervisor Larry J. Goetze is urging farmers who are interested in receiving an emergency loan to get their applications into FSA as soon as possible.

"We hope farmers will get their applications in early rather than waiting until near the deadline which is May 1, 2000," said FSA County Supervisor Larry J. Goetze. "The longer they wait, the more chance there is for long delays in getting their checks. If the applications come in early, we can avoid backlogs and speed up the process."

The FSA office is at 321 Sully in Clarendon and their office hours are 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. The telephone number is 806/874-3561.

Cancer Center to host prostate cancer program

Prostate cancer is the most common form of cancer diagnosed in American men. As part of the Prostate Cancer Awareness Week, the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center announces Straight Talk, a program for men with prostate cancer.

Straight Talk meets on Tuesdays throughout the month of October from 7:00-8:30 p.m. in the Harrington Cancer Center Amphitheater.

According to the American Urological Association, annual digital rectal examinations and prostate-specific antigen (PSA) measurement substantially increase the early detection of prostate cancer. These tests are more appropriate for male patients 50 years of age or older and for those 40 or older who are at high risk.

Association's Sire Evaluation Report recognizes two local Angus breeders

Richard Stotts of Clarendon and the Gunboat Mountain Ranch in Clarendon each owns one bull listed in the 1999 Fall Sire Evaluation Report published by the American Angus Association. Issued in both the spring and fall, the new report features the latest performance information available on more than 5,784 sires.

"The American Angus Association as the most complete and comprehensive beef cattle database in the world," says John Crouch, American Angus Association director of performance programs.

"Of the sires in the main report, 58 percent have expected progeny differences (EPDs) for carcass traits, which should assist cattlemen in choosing genetics that will produce a more consistent, higher quality beef product."

EPDs are generated from performance data submitted by breeders through the Angus Herd Improvement Records (AHIR) program.

Traits in which EPDs are available include birth weight, weaning weight, milk, yearling weight and height, mature daughter weight and height, and scrotal circumference, as well as carcass traits including carcass weight, rib eye area, external fat thickness, and percent retail product. The analysis for the sire evaluation report is conducted at Iowa State University by Dr. Doyle E. Wilson and Dr. Abebe Hassen.

September 22, 1999

Dear Cennet,

Please forgive me for not writing to you earlier, but we have often talked over the telephone since the earthquake. We have been all under a heavy shock with the thousands of after-shocks between 2 to 5.8 on the Richter Scale that we have been having since August 17. I know you will understand our tardiness. Thanks for all of your concerns.

I would like to thank all the friends who know us, for the concern they have showed for our family, and especially our endless thanks for your clergyman who has prayed for us in your church.

We were among the lucky ones. So far, our sturdy house has enabled us to stay alive, even after the first big earthquake on August 17, 1999, which was 7.4 on the Richter Scale and lasted 45 seconds with a force of 11. If one considers that the biggest force is 12, it is easy to understand the loss of between 15-20 thousand lives and the ruin of a few cities where 80 percent of Turkey's industry was situated. We have had nearly 2,000 continuous aftershocks for the last month. We had the last one last night with a strength of 5.00 on the Richter Scale just two hours after Taiwan's earthquake. May God help them too.

Earthquakes make the most damage on soil fundamental places and less damage on rock fundamental areas. That is why, in many neighborhoods of Istanbul, hundreds of buildings were damaged extensively like a pack of cards. The epicenter of the big earthquake was 80 KMS east of the Istanbul in Izmit. Here, half of the city lies in ruins and in debris. The second biggest loss of lives and buildings was in Adapazari, which was a city built on marshland. All the buildings there are in ruins now.

One realizes after such a tragedy how little daily worries mean and how much belief in God prayer means and how long 45 seconds can last.

We would like to thank all our friends, who have asked about us, all those who have wished us well, and all those who we know in Clarendon, especially to those who prayed for us in your church. May God protect us all from such tragedies.

With our deepest love and gratitude,
 Buket Goksaltik

Broncos slip past Cyclones

By Dean Stanzione

The Clarendon Broncos gained another win as they slid past the Cyclones this past Friday in Memphis. The win gives the Broncos a 3-1 record for the season.

The Broncos compiled 218 yards on the ground, distributed among six different players. Four of those six players rushed for more than 30-yards and together averaged 4.3-yards per rush. Leading the Bronco attack was quarterback Colt Floyd who rushed for 96-yards with one touchdown. Floyd also completed 5 of his 9 passes for 92-yards.

Dee Thompson rushed for two touchdowns before he had to sit out due to injury. Cael Shields also scored one touchdown.

The Broncos' rushing performance was attributed to the blocking performance of the offensive line. Athletic Director and Head Football coach Mark Howard feels the offensive line deserves credit.

"The offensive line did a great job. The backs can't make the holes by themselves. The line makes the holes for the backs, and that is why our ground attack has been successful."

Defensively, the Broncos performed well after the loss of two secondary players. Zach Butts, who leads the team in tackles, and Dee Thompson both sustained mild concussions as they were defending a two-point conversion in the first half. The injury left both players out the remainder of the game. Howard was pleased with how people stepped up.

"We had to make some adjustments when we lost Zach and Dee. We had people step up when we needed them to, as we have all season. I was really pleased."

The Broncos prepare for the 1999 Homecoming game against the Sunray Bobcats this Friday at 7:30 p.m. Coach Howard feels that the Broncos will have to play good to win.

"We're going to have to play well to beat them. Our goal every week is to improve and to play better than the week before, and that's what we'll have to do to win."

"We're going to concentrate on not beating ourselves, hanging on to the football, and being physically aggressive on offense and especially on defense."

JV Broncs to return to action Thursday

By Dean Stanzione

The JV Broncos will return to action against the Panhandle Panthers this Thursday. The JV game will kick-off around 7:30 p.m. in Panhandle.

The Bronco coaching staff really appreciates the junior varsity team for their contribution to the Broncos' success.

Athletic Director and Head Football coach Mark Howard states, "The junior varsity has done a great job this year in practice. They have given us great looks at what other teams are doing, which has been a big part of our success. We pat those guys on the back for the job that they do."

CJH Colts beat the Mustangs, 26-14

By Dean Stanzione

The Colts add another mark to the win column by defeating Claude 26-14 this past Thursday.

Dusty Martindale scored the Colts' first touchdown by rushing for 63-yards. Martindale scored again off a 65-yard pass from quarterback Zach Howard. Howard also contributed well to the Colts' victory, rushing for touchdowns from 20 and 38-yards out.

The Colts will be on the road this Thursday to play the Panhandle Panthers. Kick-off time is scheduled for 4:30 p.m.
