City looks at curfew for teens

Clarendon Aldermen are considering a teen curfew following a discussion with Donley County Sheriff Butch Blackburn at last Tuesday's regular city meeting.

The sheriff presented the board with a copy of an ordinance from Childress for their consideration, which sets curfew from 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. on weeknights and 12 a.m. to 6 a.m. on weekends.

"Last year I would have said that we didn't need this," Blackburn said; "but after spring break, I can tell you that we have parents who don't care where their eight- and tenyear-old kids are at 1:00 or 2:00 in the morning."

Under the Childress ordinance, a teenager 14 or older would be subject to a ticket for being out past curfew. Parents would get the ticket for teens under the age of 14.

Blackburn said his office would give one warning, and he said exceptions could be made for kids going home from school or church events. He also said he wanted to work with the Sandell Drive-In and not hurt their business during the summer.

Alderman Chris Ford suggested that if parents want their kids to see a double feature in the summer, they should take them themselves.

The maximum fine under the proposed ordinance would be $500.

The board tabled the issue and will consider it at its next meeting.

In other city business, aldermen agreed to spend $2,000 from the Motel Bed Tax Fund to promote the Saints' Roost Blowout Rodeo this September 6.

Hospital board sets deadline for MCNH sale

The Donley County Hospital Board is giving the potential buyer of the Medical Center Nursing Home until June 3 to sign a new contract with new terms.

The board approved the new deadline during a called session last Thursday and reaffirmed it Tuesday night at their regular meeting.

The sale should have closed April 1 with Community Care Management Services of Denton under the name of Clarendon Realty, LTD, buying MCNH for $1.25 million. But legal questions arose over the proposed refund of $190,000 to the buyer for use as operating money.

This week the board agreed to a sale price $1,108,500 and agreed to pay the buyer $108,500 for management services from December 1, 2007, to July 1, 2008.

Board Chairman Alan Fletcher said Thursday he believed the district needed to resume full control of MCNH until the contract was approved. He appointed new board member and former district administrator Vicky Robertson to be the board's liaison with MCNH's new administrator, Billy Ray Johnston.

Robertson will work with Johnston as this district begins planning for its new budget. The hospital district's fiscal year ends June 30, and the board wants the sale of the nursing home finalized by July 1. Also on Tuesday night, the board approved a proposal from Blue Cross Blue Shield to provide health insurance for the employees of the Associated Ambulance

Answering Uncle Sam's call to serve

Like all good Americans, I'm always ready to do my part to help the country.

As Jack Kennedy put it, "Ask not what your country can do for you. Ask what you can do for your Apparently, the best thing I can do for the country right now is go spend some money, and the good news is the government is just going to give me some cash to do that. It'll be like winning the lotto - or at least having a winning scratchoff - and I won't even have to buy a ticket.

And so it was with a glad heart and a happy bank draft (tongue firmly in cheek there) that I gleefully paid my income taxes over a month ago, taking great comfort and pleasure in the knowledge that because I had filed electronically and agreed to the digital fiscal liposuction of my checking account, my rich Uncle Sam would soon reverse the flow and put money back into my account with which I could put on my red cape and set off to save the economy from what seems like certain doom

I waited and waited; and when the requisite time was up, I called my bank only to find out that Uncle Sam had not made the deposit yet. Maybe next week, I thought. But again, there was no deposit.

By this time I was feeling dejected. Gas prices were going out of sight (they went up 30 cents while I was thinking about this column), and inflation was mounting. I was ready and wanting to help wage war on this not-quite-a-recession, but how could I do so if the government not only won't give me the tools I need but worse yet took what few tools I had away

I called again last week – twice. Both times the answer was "no." No money deposited. No little gift from my uncle.

But then Monday there was a ray of hope... a letter from my uncle! With the words "Stimulus PAY-MENT" on the envelope. At last! I would soon be girding my wallet and slaying the beastly hoses at the gas station and joining with thousands - Nay! Millions! - of other patriots as we show OPEC that we Americans are indeed masters of our own destiny.

Or maybe I would follow the advice of the "experts" and use the money to pay down debt. But then again, no. Using a check from the government to pay off debt - or for any sort of sound financial expenditure - would be sacrilegious.

Then I hit on a better idea. I'd go buy me a brandspanking new LCD flat panel television set just like Congress wants me to. After all, my old set died more than a month ago, and the substitute we've been using isn't all that great and won't be able to receive an HD signal next year. Besides, it was my son who got me an extra $300 from the government. Didn't I owe it to him to be able to watch The Backyardigans with Pablo's face spread in lifelike clarity across 52 glorious digital diagonal inches on our living room wall?

Then I took a deep breath and realized what I had to do with this money. It was obvious, and there could be no other purpose.

With great anticipation I sliced open the envelope to find... a letter. A letter saying my uncle would soon mail me a check.

"Mail me a check?" I pondered. "Who the hell uses the mail anymore?"

The letter went on. If I don't receive my check in six weeks, I should call the toll free number.

Six weeks? But, by that time it will be too late. I need that money sooner than that if I'm to do what needs to be done. I've got estimated income taxes due on the 15th. My uncle, it seems, has bills to pay and needs my money to do it. Uncle Sam, not surprisingly, is an Indian giver.

I tossed the letter on my desk and left the office to find comfort in the fellowship of friends - one of whom bought me a Seven & Seven at the country club that night.

. He had just come into some money - from his uncle, and he had found a way to help us all feel better about life - and the economy.

Meanwhile...

The Texas Department of Transportation and numerous area law enforcement agencies launched the seventh annual Click It or Ticket campaign at Clarendon College this week.

After listening to some gruesome examples of what happens in car accidents and after watching a dummy get thrown out of a simulator, I think they ought to just call the campaign "Click it or Die."

Should it be the government's place to make you wear your seatbelt? Of course not. That ought to be your personal business. But we live in an age where the government routinely treats us all like children and usurps our basic personal liberties in the process. Be that as it may and politics aside, we all ought to have the good sense to wear a seat belt. Using your seatbelt is smart, and it can and probably will save your life if you're in an accident.

Buckle up.

Town names tell a lot about history

By US Sen. John Cornyn

When pioneers made their way to Texas generations ago, many helped establish towns. From Abbott to Zorn, these smaller communities safeguard the Texas ethic, the values that have made our state great.

If you exit the major highways, you can travel to places such as Cee Vee, Tarzan, Tigertown, Ropesville, Petrolia, and Notrees. The way these towns were named often reflects the optimism and good-natured outlook of those who helped settle our vast state.

Even today, the real spirit of Texas can be found in smaller towns across our state. Texas names have inspired singers and songwriters for decades. Is there a soul alive who hasn't heard of Luckenbach? Tex Ritter sang about four East Texas towns in his hit recording of the railroad song "Tenaha, Timpson, Bobo, and Blair."

Texans often showed considerable flair in naming their towns. The inspiration for Tigertown apparently came from a circus poster in a saloon. Tarzan was named by a fan of Edgar Rice Burroughs out. Citizens of one East Texas community wanted to name their town Walker. but it was already taken, so they reversed the spelling and called their town Reklaw. It was the same story in nearby Sacul, where residents originally sought the name Lucas.

The name Cee Vee, in West Texas, originated with the nearby CV Ranch. Postal officials rejected using the initials

Cowboys from the Spade Ranch asked to name the railroad depot Ropes. Postal officials told them there was a Texas town called Ropers but accepted the name Ropesville. Oil has funded Texas education for decades, and it also inspired Skellytown, after the Skelly Oil Co., Oilton, Petrolia and Joinerville. That was named for C.M. "Dad" Joiner, an Alabaman who discovered oil and started the East Texas oil boom in 1930.

Notrees in West Texas got its name after the town's sole tree was removed to make way for a new gas plant. But nature was honored elsewhere: "When the townspeople gathered to name the community, a thunderstorm broke out, followed by a rainbow," notes the Handbook of Texas. Rainbow, Texas, survives

As cities and suburbs expand, small towns in Texas are under increasing pressure. And with agriculture now big business, even as we work to protect for the town's name but agreed to spell it family farms, the viability of some smaller communities has declined.

Small town values figured in this year's presidential race, when one candidate told a San Francisco fundraising audience that workers in rural areas were "bitter" and "cling to guns or religion.... as a way to explain their frustrations."

In my view, this remark showed an amazing misunderstanding of a vital part of our population. As anyone who's traveled in Texas knows, residents of smaller towns are optimistic and proud of our state and nation. And they know that our first and second amendment rights are critical to America's exceptionalism. Small town Texas, where faith and moral principles are deeply held, is an ideal place to raise a family. The ethic that made Texas great - hard work, individual initiative, plain talk, independence, and an innate sense of fairness - remains firmly entrenched.

Sometimes lost in today's fastpaced world is the importance of ultimate values, including justice, truth, freedom, human dignity, and respect for human life.

These were the credo of many earlier Texans. Maintaining these values is the most important legacy we can leave for our children and grandchildren.

America must renew cancer fight million Americans will be diagnosed with cancer. Nearly 96,000 Texans will receive this sobering news. And 35,000 Texas patients will lose their battle against cancer this year.

Since the War on Cancer was declared in 1971, we have amassed a wealth of knowledge on the disease. Some of the greatest strides have been made in prevention and early detection, with a heavy emphasis on screening, including mammographics and colonoscopies. Behavior modifications, like smoking cessation, better eating habits, regular exercise, and sunscreen use, have helped prevent cancer.

But increases in information and prevention measures haven't always translated into meaningful progress for those with cancer. In the 37 years since the War on Cancer was declared, the cancer mortality rate has decreased only 6 percent. By comparison, since 1970, age-adjusted mortality rates have sharply declined for heart disease (by 56 percent) and stroke (by 66 percent). Today, cancer is the second leading cause of death in the U.S., surpassed only by heart disease. Within the next decade, the National Cancer Institute (NCI) forecasts that cancer will become the leading killer of Americans. And it will impact millions of us. One in two men and one in three women will be diagnosed with cancer in their lifetimes.

To reduce those numbers, we must identify and remove barriers that obstruct our progress in cancer research and treatment. First, we must improve early detection measures and cancer care. Lack of health insurance and other impediments to healthcare comment providers can prevent many Americans from undergoing routine screening for some of the deadliest forms of cancer. With early screening, the chances of catching the disease at a treatable stage are greater and improve the rate of survival. We must focus on on providing screening to underserved populations. Patients diagnosed with cancer often need someone to help them navigate the health care system, assess treatment options, and coordinate their care. The Patient Navigator Program, which I authored and was signed into law in 2005, provides these beneficial services decreasing the number of uninsured and and should be expanded. We need to raise awareness about clinical trials so that more cancer patients know they are available. Clinical trials expand treatment options and also serve as a critical resource for the discovery of new prevention, diagnostic, and treatment methods for researchers. Yet, less than five percent of the 10.1 million adults with cancer in the U.S. participate in clinical trials. Disincentives to enrolling in clinical trials in the health insurance market must be elimi-

We also must also reevaluate how much we are willing to invest to eradicate this disease.

I have worked in the Senate to more than double our commitment to the National Institutes of Health from $13.6 billion in 1998 to $29.89 billion in 2008. with $4.9 billion allocated to the NCI.

We must prioritize spending and also explore non-government fundraising options. For example, the Breast Cancer Research Stamp, which I worked hard to move forward in the Senate, has generated $56 million for breast cancer research, all through volunteer contribu-

Finally, our 21st Century strategy should renew our focus on the collaborative goal of finding cures. The culture of isolated career research, often dedicated to small treatment modifications, must shift toward cooperative strides to achieve breakthroughs. We must encourage all stakeholders in the War on Cancer to work in concert toward cures.

Senator Edward Kennedy and I are heading a bipartisan effort to reinvigorate this fight. We will introduce legislation to begin removing barriers to research and treatment. Joining us in this effort are the Lance Armstrong Foundation, the Susan G. Komen for the Cure, and many others from across the cancer community. Most importantly, we must support those on the front lines of the War on Cancer - the men, women, and children bravely waging their own personal battles against this ruthless and relentless disease.

Clarendon Church of Christ A GREAT DAY

Acts 2 is the hub of the New Testament. It is when the first gospel sermon is preached and is one of the greatest days of recorded history. Why?

It was a great day because of the opportunity to teach so many. Verse 11 tells us that it was the day of Pentecost and there were many Jews in Jerusalem to observe this day. Also the Holy Spirit came as promised by sus to the Aposti It was a great day because there was a great crowd (vs. 5-11). There were thousands of people there, that if converted, could spread God's word throughout the world.

It was a great day because they had a great speaker (vs. 14ff.). Peter was very passionate as we well know. Sometimes he was a little misguided and excitable, but none could doubt his passion.

It was a great day because of a great sermon. Peter points out prophesies that had been fulfilled (Vs. 17-21; 25-28). He reminded them of the miracles that they had witnessed (vs. 22). Peter didn't pull any punches with the message, he convicted some of their sins (vs. 22-24; 36). Peter told them what to do to be saved, (Acts 2:38-40) Then Peter said to them "Repent, and let every one of you be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins; and you shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. "For the promise is to you and to your children, and to all who are afar off, as many as the Lord our God will call." And with many other words he testified and exhorted them, saying, "Be saved from this perverse genera-

My brother, Jack, will be here for the Memorial Holiday. He is coming down by himself after his physical therapy on Friday. He has been doing so well after his surgery. He will be here through Monday, and he wants to see all of his old friends. Please say a prayer for him on the road.

Hedley Senior Citizens welcome all visitors By Patsy Spier

I want to take this opportunity to ask if anyone needs the service of the Hedley Senior Citizens program. We would like to help as many people as we can.

You don't have to be a senior citizen to come eat with us. We really need your support. If anyone would like our home delivered service or know of anyone, call me, and I will set them up.

We are in need of financial help, and we are hoping you can send a donation to help us with the costs of food, fuel, and utilities. All of the smaller senior citizen centers and Meals on Wheels need help in these trying times. The cost of everything just keeps going up as you well know in your own lives. Please help in anyway you can.

It would be a shame if one of these days small organizations like Hedley, Clarendon and Memphis have to close their doors and believe me, that day may be coming sooner than you think. The elderly in all small communities need this ser-

Popular Stimulant May Help Prevent Falls

A drug that has long been used to treat attention deficit disorder (ADD) in children may, according to a recent study, be helpful in preventing falls in older individuals. The drug is methylphenidate, better known by its brand name Ritalin. According to the results of the study published in the April, 2008 issue of the Journal of the American Geriatrics Society, older persons who took one dose of the drug walked with a more even gait and did better on a standard test that is used to screen for risks related to falling. Researchers connected with the study determined that gait control in the elderly may involve higher level mental function, especially thought processes that are involved with planning and achieving personal goals as well as paying attention. They stressed that more testing needs to be done before they would recommend stimulants like Ritalin for reducing the risk of falling in the elderly.

Falling can result in significant health problems. According to data from the US Centers for Disease Control, for a recent year, the direct medical cost of treating fall-related injuries among the elderly in the US was more than $15 billion.

Notice of Application Requesting An Energy Efficiency Cost Recovery Factor and Related Relief

On May 1, 2008, Southwestern Electric Power Company (SWEPCO) filed an application with the Public Utility Commission of Texas (Commission) to authorize SWEPCO to implement an Energy Efficiency Cost Recovery Factor (EECRF) effective as of December 30, 2008, the commencement of SWEPCO's January 2009 billing month.

Section 39.905 of the Public Utility Regulatory Act and Section 25.181 of the Commission's Substantive Rules provide for the Commission to authorize a utility to implement an EECRF to ensure the timely and reasonable recovery of the utility's costs to satisfy energy efficiency goals established by the Texas Legislature. SWEPCO has requested that the EECRF recover approximately $3.8 million in energy efficiency costs which it will incur to satisfy the energy efficiency objectives for 2009. SWEPCO proposes that the EECRF apply to all retail customers in its Texas service areas who take service below 69,000 volts.

The proposed EECRF will include the following charges for electric service to the following categories of customers:

Under the requested EECRF, the amount billed to a residential customer using 1000 kilowatt hours (kWh) per month will increase by $0.70. The effect of the EECRF on other customers will vary depending on the rate schedules under which they take service and on their usage of elec-

In its application, SWEPCO also requests that the Commission include in its final order a finding that expressly confirms that SWEPCO will be permitted to recover through and include in the EECRF to be set in a future proceeding, its reasonable energy efficiency expenditures incurred in 2008 that are in excess of the amount of $400,000 that SWEPCO currently recovers through the purchased power and conservation factor (PPCF) previously approved by the Commission. SWEPCO projects that such excess 2008 amount will be approximately $2.3 million. SWEPCO further requests the Commission to confirm in its final order that it is in the public interest to encourage an electric utility to incur energy efficiency expenditures up to the expenditure limits set forth in the statute and Commission rule for cost effective energy efficiency and achieve as much demand and energy savings as reasonably possible with the objective of exceeding the minimum goals set forth in the statute and Commission rule.

Persons who wish to intervene in or comment upon these proceedings, Docket No. 35625 Application of Southwestern Electric Power Company for an Energy Efficiency Cost Recovery Factor (EECRF) and Related Relief pursuant to PURA § 39.905(b) and P.U.C. Subst. R. 25.181(f), should notify the Commission as soon as possible, as an intervention deadline will be imposed. A request to intervene or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, P. O. Box 13326, Austin, Texas 78711-3326. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission of Texas at (512) 936-7120 or (888) 782-8477. Hearing-actions and speech-impaired individuals with text telephones (TTY) may contact the Commission at (512) 936-7136.

PROPERTY TAX PROTEST AND APPEAL PROCEDURES

The law gives property owners the right to protest actions concerning their property tax appraisals. You may follow these procedures if you have a concern about:

- · the market or special appraised value placed on your property;
- the unequal appraisal of your property;
- the inclusion of your property on the appraisal roll;
- · exemptions that may apply to you;
- · qualification for an agricultural or timber appraisal;
- the taxable status of your property;
- · which local governments should be taxing your property; · the ownership of property;
- · the change of use of land receiving special appraisal;
- any action taken by the appraisal district that applies to and adversely affects you.

Your Appraisal District staff urges you to review the value records of your property at any time prior to the day of the Appraisal Review Board Hearings tentatively set for July 14, 2008, at the Donley County Appraisal District Office. Some protests result from errors or misconceptions which we are pleased to correct.

REVIEW BY THE APPRAISAL REVIEW BOARD: If you can't resolve your problem informally with the county appraisal district (CAD) staff, you may have your case heard by the appraisal review board. The appraisal review board (ARB) is an independent board of citizens that reviews problems with appraisals and other concerns listed above. It has the power to order the appraisal district to make the necessary changes to solve problems. If you file a written request for an ARB hearing (called a notice a protest) before the deadline, the ARB will set your case for a hearing. You'll receive written notification of the time, date, and place of the hearing. Prior to your hearing, you may ask to review the evidence the CAD will use to uphold their determination. The CAD may ask you for a copy of the evidence you plan to present. The hearing will be informal. You and the appraisal district representative will be asked to present evidence about your case. The ARB will make its decision based on the evidence presented. The CAD has the burden of establishing the property?s value by a preponderance of the evidence presented. You can get a copy of a protest form from the appraisal district office at 307 S. Sully or PO Box 1220, Clarendon 79226; phone 806-874-2744.

NOTE: You shouldn't try to contact ARB members outside of the hearing. The law requires ARB members to sign an affidavit saying that they haven't talked about your case before the ARB hears it.

REVIEW BY THE DISTRICT COURT OR AN ARBITRATOR: After it decides your case, the ARB must send you a copy of its order by certified mail. If you're not satisfied with the decision, you have the right to appeal. If you choose to go to court, you must start the process by filing a petition within 45 days of the date you receive the ARB's order. As an alternative and within the same time period, you may file a request for binding arbitration with the county appraisal

TAX PAYMENT: You must pay either the amount of taxes due on the portion of the taxable value not in dispute or the nount of taxes due on the property under the order from which the appeal is taken.

MORE INFORMATION: You can get more information by contacting your appraisal district at 307 S. Sully or P.O. Box 1220, Clarendon 79226; phone 806-874-2744. You can also get a pamphlet describing how to prepare a protest from the appraisal district or from the State Comptroller's Property Tax Division at P.O. Box 13528, Austin, TX 78711-3528.

DEADLINE FOR FILING PROTESTS WITH THE ARB*

Usual Deadline: 30 days after a notice of appraised value was mailed to you. Late protests are allowed if you miss the usual deadline for good cause. Good cause is some reason beyond your control, like a medical emergency. The ARB decides whether you have good cause. Late protests are due the day before the appraisal review board approves records for the year. Contact your appraisal district for more information.

Special Deadlines: For change of use (the appraisal district informed you that you are losing agricultural appraisal because you changed the use of your land), the deadline is before the 30th day after the notice of determination was mailed

For ARB changes (the ARB has informed you of a change that increases your tax liability and the change didn't result from a protest you filed), the deadline is before the 30th day after the notice of the determination was mailed to you. If you believe the appraisal district or ARB should have sent you a notice and did not, you may file a protest until the day before taxes become delinquent (usually Feb. 1). The ARB decides whether it will hear your case based on evidence

*The deadline is postponed to the next business day if it falls on a weekend or holiday
