Community service to be held Sunday

The Donley County Ministerial Alliance invites the entire community and surrounding area to a community Thanksgiving service.

The service will be held at the Community Fellowship Church in Clarendon on Sunday, November 15, 2009, at 6:00 p.m. The Thanksgiving service is a wonderful opportunity for all of God's people to come together and give thanks in a worshipful way.

The Alliance is comprised of area churches that merge efforts in order to provide ministry to individuals at various times. Some of the services that the Alliance has rendered include fuel purchases and minor auto repairs for traveling individuals and families, grocery purchases, utility payment assistance, overnight lodging for stranded persons, and assistance as needed on a case by case basis. The Alliance works with the Donley County Sheriff's office to avoid abuse and misuse.

The Alliance is not directed by doctrine but by the simple mission to serve the least or those most in need and, by doing so, serve Christ.

The funding of the Alliance is made possible by the faithful giving of those in the community to share in the blessings and the ministry of any in need. All people of all faiths are invited to worship together and have in common the goal of sharing Christ by meeting needs.

Broncos to face Nazareth in Bi-District

By Sandy Anderberg

The Broncos played their last regular game of the season at Bronco Stadium Friday night, and it was a contest that was much closer than the score revealed.

Clarendon lost to the Sky Rockets 7-28, but not before giving Wellington a huge test. Despite the loss, the Broncos have earned a spot in the playoffs and will play in the Bi-District game against Nazareth Friday, November 13 in Amarillo at Highland Park High School at 7:30 pm as the home team.

The Broncos were threatening to strike first deep in scoring range but threw an interception that Wellington ran back 99 yards for the first score of the game. Both teams remained scoreless in the second quarter, and the Rockets held the advantage going into the break.

The second score came early in the third quarter for Wellington, but the Broncos answered right back when Mike Crump and Johnny Gaines hooked up for six that went 44 yards. Coby Braughton added the bonus kick.

That would be the only score for the Broncos, but they racked up 184 total yards in the game. Rushing yards accounted for 140 of those yards, which equaled what the Rockets did with 145 yards rushing.

"We outplayed them," head coach Gary Jack said. "We played right with them and caught them off guard. I was very pleased with their effort and performance."

Minus a couple of mistakes and a few breaks to go the Broncos' way, it would have been a different game.

"We told the guys we needed to take the fight to them," Jack said. "We were ready to go. We just needed a couple key breaks to get the extra momentum going."

Wellington was able to capitalize on a couple of mistakes made by the Broncos and gain the advantage on the scoreboard. Despite the loss, the guys played solid on both sides of the ball. Stephino McCampbell had a good game defensively and so did Brayden Phillips who grabbed a crucial interception for the Broncos and also stepped in for injured quarterback Johnny Gaines.

Gaines injury is healing and he did see some playing time and Jack feels he'll be 100 percent for next week's game with Naz.

"Johnny adds a lot to our game and having him in the game helps to give us that extra momentum," Jack said.

Also playing tough defense according to Jack was Bradley Watson, Chris Crump, Mike Crump.

Donley County voters reject two propositions

By Roger Estlack

Donley County voters opposed two of eleven proposed amendments to the state constitution last Tuesday, but voters across the state approved all the propositions.

Turnout for the election was better locally than the state as a whole. Just less than 15 percent of registered Donley County voters cast ballots, while the statewide turnout hovered around eight percent.

By a margin of five votes, Donley County voters did not agree with Proposition 4, which would provide funding to emerging research universities.

Local voters also disapproved of Proposition 5, which would authorize the legislature to allow for a single appraisal review board for two or more adjoining appraisal entities that elect to provide for consolidated reviews of tax appraisals.

Proposition 11 received the largest margin of support from local voters, 291-62. That measure amends the state constitution to limit the power of eminent domain. The amendment would prohibit the taking of private property for transfer to a private entity for the purpose of economical development or to increase tax revenues. The amendment would also limit the legislature's authority to grant the power of eminent domain in the future unless it is approved by a two-thirds vote of all the members elected to each house.

The second most popular item on the ballot for local voters was Proposition 7, which they approved of by a margin of 256-96. That measure amends the constitution to allow members of the State Guard to hold civil offices.

A total of 360 people cast ballots in Donley County. There are 2,424 registered voters in the county.

Balloting begins in 2009 FSA committee election

Bruce Ferguson, Executive Director of USDA's Farm Service Agency in Donley County has announced that the 2009 FSA county committee elections start this week as ballots are being mailed to eligible voters.

December 7, 2009, is the deadline for eligible voters to return ballots to their local FSA offices.

"The FSA county committee system is unique among government agencies, because it allows producers to make important decisions concerning the local administration of federal farm programs," said Ferguson. "I urge all eligible farmers and ranchers, especially minorities and women, to get involved and make a real difference in their communities by voting in this year's elections."

Committee members apply their knowledge and judgment to make decisions on disaster and conservation payments, establishment of allotments and yields, producer appeals, employing FSA county executive directors and other local issues. FSA committees operate within official regulations designed to carry out federal laws.

To be an eligible voter, farmers and ranchers must participate or cooperate in FSA programs. A person who is not of legal voting age, but supervises and conducts the farming operations of an entire farm, can also vote. Agricultural producers in each county submitted candidate names during the nomination period held last summer.

Eligible voters who do not receive ballots in the coming week can obtain ballots at their local USDA Service Center. December 7, 2009, is the last day for voters to submit ballots in person to local USDA Service Centers. Ballots returned by mail must be post-marked no later than December 7. Newly elected committee members and alternates take office January 1, 2010.

Close to 8,000 FSA county committee members meet monthly at more than 2,300 FSA offices nationwide. Each committee consists of three to five members who serve three-year terms. Approximately one-third of county committee seats are up for election annually.

For more information about FSA county committees and FSA programs, visit: <http://www.fsa.usda.gov>.

'Reform' more about power than health

The United States took another step towards a total government takeover of the healthcare system last week when the House of Representatives approved a Democratic "reform" plan.

Our congressman, Rep. Mac Thornberry (R-Clarendon), had this to say:

"This year, we have seen an incredible growth of government, and the American people are paying the price. Speaker Pelosi's health care bill is the latest, and one of the biggest, examples. I voted against it."

editor's commentary
by roger estlack

Well, thank God there's Mac and a few people like him in Washington standing up for our Republic and our liberties. We can only hope that they can succeed in thwarting the socialization of America.

It remains to be seen what amalgamation of a reform bill could possibly come out of the Senate, but there is general agreement that it will care a price tag of about one trillion dollars - give or take two or three billion - and that it will raise taxes, include mandates on individuals and employers, violate your personal and economic freedom, take money away from Medicare, increase the cost of private insurance, and expand the role of government.

Proponents of these reforms claim they can pay for it with savings in Medicare by eliminating waste and by also reigning in costs associated with "unnecessary" tests and treatments. (And by raising taxes and imposing fees and fines, but they don't like to talk about that.)

Every politician promises to save money by ending waste, fraud, and abuse. But no politician ever accomplishes that. It's just a smoke screen to get another big spending project pushed through, and this one is no different.

The national Democrats don't give one damn about your well being. They care about power, and what could be more powerful than having control over someone's healthcare?

Healthcare reform has nothing to do with actually receiving healthcare. Everyone can receive healthcare right now. It's just a matter of who is going to pay for it, and how much it will cost. But know this, the only influence government has ever had on the cost of healthcare is to make it more expensive.

And then there is the constitutionality of all this. No provision of the United States Constitution was ever intended to give the government the ability to take over the healthcare system (or, for that matter, the auto industry or any number of intrusions into the marketplace that have occurred recently).

Your healthcare is your business and your responsibility. Whether you have healthcare through your occupation is between you and your employer. The terms of your coverage are between you and your insurance company and could be rightly influenced by choices you make in your own life. None of this is the government's business.

That's the way things are now, but what we're seeing happen in Congress is a very different vision of America. Now is the time for people to stand up and oppose these "reforms" and to demand that our leaders respect our rights. Do not let your freedom slip through your fingers.

Meanwhile...

At a time when the world is full of conflict and strife, my three-year-old son is becoming quite the little diplomat.

This talent first manifested itself a couple of months ago at the tender age of two when he defended the honor of one of his friends at daycare after she got into a disagreement with another girl. According to reliable sources, Benjamin stepped in, told the aggressor to "be nice," told both girls to "be friends," and then took his friend out of the uncomfortable situation by offering to let her go with him to eat a snack.

Since that time, Ben has begun monitoring behavior at home, telling his one-year-old sister, "No, no," and carefully monitoring her behavior and imposing peaceful sanctions before invoking the use of force to defend his territory.

He also tries to defuse situations that he feels may become tense by making helpful suggestions about language. "That's a stupid commercial," someone might say. To which Ben replies, "Don't say stupid." Don't say "dumb" either, and certainly don't say you "hate" that commercial or green beans or whatever. "We don't say 'hate,'" he will tell you.

In the last week, he has taken his diplomatic skills to a new level, brokering peace deals before conflicts arise. Take bedtime for example: "I have a deal," he says. "You and me eat some milk and cookies, then we put on our pajamas, and lay down and go to sleep. That's a deal, Daddy. I'll get the milk."

Based on what I've seen this year, I believe Ben is more than qualified to receive a Nobel Peace Prize. Sure, he's not president... yet. But you apparently don't have to have anything but good intentions to get the award, and he's got good intentions as well as concrete results, which is more than President Obama had when he won. Besides, he could use the prize money to pay for college.

E-mail updates needed for toddlers

When I was pregnant with Kyn-dall I signed up at website that sent me weekly e-mails telling me what was happening with the baby.

The e-mails told new developments and functions like, "this week your baby will develop finger nails."

The e-mails kept me entertained and I enjoyed finding out new things each week.

However, once I reached full term the e-mails stopped and I was left without my weekly tips. I can't help but think how handy they would be now though. It would be nice to get some information in advance like, "This week your child will eat nothing but bananas." That way I could stock up on bananas and there would be no emergency run to the grocery store before closing so that Kyn-dall could eat something for dinner.

It would also be nice to know that Kyn-dall's behavior is normal.

"Next week, your child will stop calling you Momma and refer to you only as 'Jubie'."

"Week 62, your child will want to wear only the zebra patterned shoes that match nothing."

"Week 78, your child will realize that your closet and hers are connected and will crawl through in the middle of the night to scare the dickens out of you."

I suppose it would ruin the fun and baby steps

by julie shields

the sweet spontaneous moments if there were tips like, "Week 65, this week your child will kiss your booboo when she accidentally slams her head into your nose."

"Week 73, your child will offer to share her half eaten slobbered on piece of candy with you."

"Week 79, your child will turn the radio on full blast and "bust a move" in the middle of the living room."

"Week 83, after sending your little one to bed this week, be prepared for her to climb out of her toddler bed, peek around the doorway and say, "Pee-boo."

I don't think I would want to know when those things were going to happen. Those are the great moments that catch me off guard, make me burst out laughing and make my day a little brighter.

Obama should represent everyone

"Remember during the campaign when John McCain attacked Obama for acting like a celebrity and we all laughed at the grumpy old shellshocked fool? Well, it turns out he was right." - Bill Maher, host of HBO's Real Time with Bill Maher

President Obama seems to be having the time of his life, rubbing shoulders with celebrities, hosting star-studded parties at the White House and jetsetting to far-flung destinations. Unfortunately, the rest of America has yet to be invited to the party.

Fifteen million people and counting are currently out of jobs, banks are folding at a record rate, businesses are going under, homes are being foreclosed on, and the looming deficit is worrisome. All the while, our new president is having a ball at taxpayer expense.

For example, during his brief time in office, Obama has:

- Entertained NASCAR Sprint Car racers on the White House lawn and talked shop about racing with the drivers;

- Thrown the first pitch at an All-Star game in St. Louis, Missouri, and flown to Copenhagen in order to personally pitch Chicago as the site of the 2016 Olympics;

- Jettied to New York City for a date night on the town with his wife (on the eve of GM's bankruptcy filing, no less);

- Hosted a luau-themed congressional picnic complete with tiki torches and potted palms and thrown a fiesta, featuring Marc Anthony, Los Lobos, and Gloria Estefan, (part of the continuing White House Music Series concerts) apparently as part of Hispanic Heritage Month;

- Welcomed the Tar Heels, the Phillies, Pittsburgh Steelers, Chicago Bulls and NBA champions to the White House;

- Enjoyed numerous rounds of golf at Fort Belvoir and countless games of basketball on his personal court at the White House, not to mention the weekend trips to Camp David with family and friends and family vacations to the Grand Canyon and Martha's Vineyard;

Flown to California to appear on the Jay Leno Show and to New York to appear on the Late Show with David Letterman (where he was presented with a heart-shaped potato);

Visited more foreign countries than any president within the first year of office (Iraq, Turkey, Great Britain, France, Germany, Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Moscow, Italy, and Ghana); he also recently announced plans to visit Japan, China, Singapore, and South Korea in November;

Attended almost 30 Democratic fundraisers in various parts of the country (contrast this with George W. Bush who attended six political fundraisers and Bill Clinton who attended five during their first nine months in office) and campaigned for various Democratic candidates, including Chris Dodd, John Corzine and Deval Patrick, among many others.

The White House provides no exact figures for the costs of presidential trips, yet consider this: the Pentagon estimates that it costs more than $100,000 per hour to operate Air Force One - and that's not even with Obama on board. As CNN reports, "Presidential travel requires much more spending. The president's armored limousine (and its double) must be transferred in advance to the destination, where Secret Service agents may have spent days making preparations. Numerous presidential, military, and security aides go with the president, and they must be housed, fed and paid." Thus, these trips cost in the millions of dollars - again, we taxpayers are footing the bill.

This isn't to say that Obama is the only president who has ever enjoyed such lavish perks of the office at taxpayer expense. Ronald Reagan took frequent trips to his California ranch to chop wood and clear brush, while Bill

speak truth to power
by john whitehead

Clinton traveled at taxpayer expense to a variety of glamorous vacation spots. However, it's time for a reality check.

What Americans need right now is a hard-working president, one who stays at his desk and does his job. We certainly don't need a president who's enjoying a jet-setting lifestyle at taxpayer expense - partying while wars rage around us, deficits soar and the economy crumbles. In fact, the money being spent on glitzy White House soirees and foreign travel would be far better spent on other much-needed programs to help the American people.

America is hurting on many fronts, but we're especially hurting for leaders who take their jobs seriously and recognize that we are grappling with critical issues. We need a president who understands the urgency of the situation and reflects that sobriety and represents all the people.

Barack Obama promised to be that kind of president. Thus far, however, he has fallen far short of his campaign promises. Instead, he is busy trying to stay in power, keep his party in power and add to his legacy, but that's not his job. His job as president is to get this country back on its feet economically and to represent all of the people - again, whether they be Republicans, Democrats, Independents, Tea Party activists or people who watch the FOX News Network (a network he has been making war with).

Thus far, a large part of Obama's presidency has been taken with attending fundraisers for the Democratic Party. It's as if he's working for the Democratic Party instead of the American people. In fact, if he's going to raise money, he should be raising money for all the parties because he should be representing all the people.

However, the point is he shouldn't be raising money for any political parties or candidates. That's not his job. That's not what we elected him to do.

Mr. President, it's high time you represented us all and focus on getting this country back on its feet.

Whitehead off the mark about FoxNews

With all due respect to Mr. Whitehead (in the October 29 ENTERPRISE), such above the 'fray' stereotyping of all cable news as the same is short sighted and contributes to the cynicism and morass of information that has this country in this state of near tyrannical rule.

While MSNBC might as well be stenographers for the White House, it is wrong to lump FOXNEWS into all cable shows. They clearly distinguish news from opinion and the opinion makers clearly cite sources through which their opinions are based. For instance, Glenn Beck usually just plays the speakers in their own words, while the rest report made up quotes about Limbaugh all day long. It is time to discriminate again between right and wrong. It is time to recognize that FOXNEWS tries to present both sides, while the other only presents one.

We have self avowed communists in the White House actively attacking free speech, and Mr. Whitehead is worried about the news and if the people are smart enough to understand. It is time to stand on principle and think for yourself, like Mr. Beck, O'Reilly regularly beg their audiences to do before picking a side. It's obvious Mr. Whitehead needs to justify his not watching FOXNEWS by misreporting it's content.

Crisis center to host volunteer training

Tralee Crisis Center, a non-profit agency providing support services for victims of domestic violence, sexual assault, and other violent crimes, will host a volunteer training beginning at 5:30 p.m., Monday, November 9, at the agency's office, 310 S. Cuyler in Pampa.

"Survivors of sexual assault, domestic violence, and other violent crimes need support, guidance and the presence of a compassionate person," said Cynthia Salazar, Tralee volunteer coordinator. "As a Tralee volunteer you can make a positive difference in the lives of hurting people in our community."

To be a direct service volunteer, candidates must complete eight three-hour sessions on Monday nights. Applicants must be at least 18 years old to volunteer at the office and resale shop and 21 years old to be a hotline/direct service volunteer.

Volunteers help answer the 24-hour hotline, accompany sexual assault victims to forensic exams, educate the public on domestic violence and sexual assault, assist with transportation for shelter clients, provide miscellaneous office support and work at the resale shop.

"Bilingual volunteers are also needed as more non-English speaking clients are being provided services," Salazar said.

Tralee volunteers may also accompany victims to court, help complete protective orders and crime victim compensation applications, provide peer counseling, facilitate women's group and work with other social services and faith-based agencies to meet client needs.

Information on child abuse, sexual assault, domestic violence and emergency response to victims will be offered at the training. The training is free to all attendees.

 UNITY

(1 Cor. 1:10-13) Now I plead with you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that you all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you, but that you be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment. For it has been declared to me concerning you, my brethren, by those of Chloe's household, that there are contentions among you. Now I say this, that each of you says, "I am of Paul," or "I am of Apollos," or "I am of Cephas," or "I am of Christ." Is Christ divided? Was Paul crucified for you? Or were you baptized in the name of Paul?

As we can see, there have been divisions among religious people forever. Also, as we can see, these divisions are wrong! Today the big word in religion is unity. The problem is people want unity in tolerance not in Bible doctrine. Recently in one denomination, there was division among members allowing homosexual priests to work in their churches. How could there be unity over that?

There are many "churches" now that "accept" all beliefs. Someone needs to explain how they have the authority to "accept" anything not found in the Bible. Obviously, 2 or more differing views can't be found in the Bible. (1 Cor. 14:33) For God is not the author of confusion but of peace, as in all the churches of the saints. The question should not be will we accept everyone's faith, but, rather will God accept everyone's faith? The answer is no! Amos 3:3 asks the question: "Can two walk together unless they are agreed?" There can be no Biblical unity if we disagree with God. Unity must be based on Biblical doctrine. We don't have the right to "accept" anything else!

CHS physics students break unique record

By Ashlyn Tubbs, Clarendon Enterprise
A record was broken recently by two Clarendon High School Physics students, using just one piece of construction paper and a foot of tape. Seniors Matt Henderson and Jadon Thornton built a free-standing structure out of these limited supplies that reached a height of 181.8 cm, beating a former Hedley student's record of 176 cm. "I think it's wonderful that these students used their creativity and were successful," said Clarendon High Physics teacher Bruce Howard. Although no other students' structures reached such an height, all 21 except for two were able to build one that was above one meter high. "We just tried different things and found the best way to build it," Henderson said. "It's cool knowing that we broke the previous record." According to Howard, this project is only one of many that the class will complete. He also plans for them to build wooden bridges and towers later in the year for class competition. "The students seem to enjoy doing special projects, and that's always fun for me to see," Howard said. Even though he has been teaching for 30 years, Howard said that he continues to learn something new from his students every year. "I enjoy teaching students a lot, and when they learn new things and teach me new things it's always exciting for me," Howard said.

Human Immune systems need sunlight for Vitamin D

By MaryRuth Bishop, County Agent

Roll up those sleeves when you're outdoors this winter: Curiously enough, studies show that light produces physiological effects by being absorbed through both the eyes and the skin. Have the gray skies of winter got you singing the blues? Do you feel tired, lost your creative spark, need extra sleep, can't get control of your appetite? If you nod in agreement to these queries, you may be one of the millions of people affected by SAD (seasonal affective disorder), also known as the "winter blues" or "cabin fever."

Time to lighten up, throw off those lowdown winter blues and step up to more enjoyable feelings. Experts who study the winter blahs now acknowledge that you can blame much of winter's crankiness, moodiness and restlessness on short, cloudy days and a lack of sunlight. Low levels of sunlight trigger changes in hormones, increasing levels of melatonin (a hormone that normally helps you go to sleep) and decreasing serotonin (a hormone that improves mood). For many people, this hormonal tumult translates into a craving for sugary foods, a need for more sleep and a reduced sex drive.

Walking in natural light can banish these problems, and research finds that natural light frequently offers the best results. In a study by the Journal of Affective Disorders, people either participated in a daily walk outdoors in natural light or were treated for half an hour in artificial light. At the end of the study, participants were tested for melatonin and cortisol (stress hormone) levels. Both were found to be lower after exposure to natural light than artificial light.

There are many different treatments for classic (winter-based) seasonal affective disorder, including bright light therapy, medication, ionized-air administration, cognitive-behavioral therapy and carefully time supplementation of the hormone melatonin.

Bright light therapy often includes the use of a lightbox. It emits far more lumens than a customary incandescent lamp but differs from a photographic lightbox in that the emission spectra is more controlled. White light, or "full spectrum" light is usually preferred, although blue light is also used. Lightbox therapy is effective at doses of 2500-10,000 lux, with the patient sitting a prescribed distance, commonly 30-60 cm, in front of the box with her/his eyes open but not staring at the light source. Most treatments use 30-60 minute treatments, however this may vary depending on the situation. Many patients use the light box in the morning, and there is evidence that morning light is superior to evening light, although people can respond to evening light as well. Discovering the best schedule is essential. One study has shown that up to 69 percent of patients find the treatment inconvenient and as many as 19% stop use because of this. Aerobic exercise during light treatment has been shown to halve the amount of exposure time necessary for therapeutic effect.

Roll up those sleeves when you're outdoors this winter: Curiously enough, studies show that light produces physiological effects by being absorbed through both the eyes and the skin. The old adage of exercise and fresh air still stands - take a walk in the sunlight.

2010 Cotton Festival hopes to draw Hedley alumni

Please keep the Othel Bolin family in your prayers. She passed away last week, and we will miss her.

The Hedley Methodist Church had a "work day" last Saturday by cleaning up the yard and pulling weeds and such. Bobbie and Ervin Emmert and Bill and Juanelle Carson did a very fine job.

All Hedley ex-students: I am trying to contact all ex-students in order to ask everyone to try to come back for a huge Cotton Festival in 2010. We want as many classes as possible to be represented in the parade.

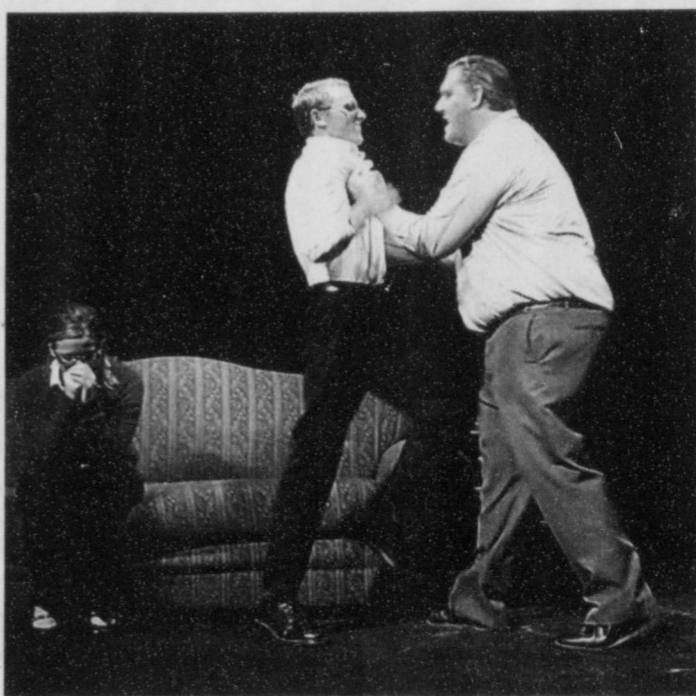

I need you to contact me with your mailing address and e-mail address. I am sending out newsletters to keep everyone informed of things happening around Hedley.

The Cotton Festival is always the second weekend in October, so please call me with your info and plan on attending. I even need your info if you live in our area. I may know who you are, but I don't have your address.

We are trying to do a few things to improve Hedley. We need everyone's help and ideas. We don't want to see Hedley die out. My address is PO Box 119, Hedley, Texas 79237, (806-856-5302) or pkspier1@windstream.net.

Memphis Meals on Wheels and Hedley Senior Citizens is starting a "Sock and Blanket" campaign to make sure that our elderly and shut-ins have something warm for Christmas.

Boil sweet potato whole in skin for 40 to 50 minutes, or until done. Run cold water over the sweet potato, and remove the skin. Break apart sweet potato in a bowl. Add butter, and mix well with mixer. Stir in sugar, milk, eggs, nutmeg, cinnamon and vanilla. Beat on medium speed until mixture is smooth. Pour filling into an unbaked pie crust. ## Christmas Cash returns for 15th season

Holiday shopping at home is easy and affordable again as all three local banks have teamed up to provide zero-percent interest "Christmas Cash" loans for the 15th year.

As in the past, anyone can make application for a loan up to $3,000 interest free with Pilgrim Bank, the Donley County State Bank, or Herring Bank.

Twenty-three local businesses are participating in the Christmas Cash program this year.

The annual program has proven popular with many consumers and is seen as way to encourage folks to shop at home.

Once a Christmas Cash loan has been approved, the borrower will be issued Christmas Cash Dollars, which may be spent like US currency toward new purchases at all of the participating businesses.

Participating Christmas Cash merchants this year are: Stavenhagen Video, Every Nook & Cranny, Henson's, Osburn Appliance, Clarendon Outpost, Mike's Pharmacy, Country Bloomers, Clarendon Veterinary Hospital, Bronco Burger, Cornell's Country Store, Floyd's Automotive Supply, J&W Lumber, The Clarendon Enterprise, Nuttin' Fancy Café, KEFH Radio, Bar H Dude Ranch, the Hitchin' Post, Lowe's Family Center, Lowe's Ace Hardware, JoBob's Piccadilly Pizza, Saye's, McKinney Motor Co., and the Clarendon Chamber of Commerce.

The Christmas Cash program began in 1995 through the cooperation of the Clarendon Chamber of Commerce, the Clarendon Merchants Association, and local banks.

Local merchants are will also be giving away $2,000 in prizes and Clarendon Gold for holiday shopping at home. Most Christmas Cash merchants will be participating in the Clarendon Gold giveaway program, and more information will be released on that next week.

CCC hosts Polar Bear tournament

By Sandy Anderberg

The team of Danny Helton and John Mark Farrell topped the 25-team field at the Clarendon Country Club in the 36-hole two-man tournament held Saturday and Sunday.

The duo posted a 124 to win the Championship flight. Butch Scholtenbarger and Mike Santos finished second at 125, and P.J. Lemons and Bruce Ferguson took the third spot with a 133.

David Majors and Doug McCaan won the first flight at 127. There was a two-way tie for second at 130 between Mike Vance and Troy Huffner and Nic Hedrick and Bubba Grey. The second flight winner was the team of Todd Curry and Jesse Lincycomb with a 135. Second place went to Bret and Randy White and Redell Johnston and Joel Layton, Kenny Black and Audie Watson, and Carlo Mendez and Armundo Torres tied for third.

John Goodwin and Jerry Baker won the third flight at 136, and Bob Permenter and Dan Luther finished second with a score of 144. Bo Morrison and Steve Jarnagin shot a 145 for third place. Doug McCaan was closest to the pin on number 15 at 1'1 1/2", and Bo Morrison had the longest putt on number nine at 6'6".

Earlier in the week, Larry Lincycomb and Bo Morrison tied for first in the Wednesday men's game with a net 69. Dan Ashford shot a net 70 for third, and Charlie Davis turned in a net 73 for fourth place.

The CCC will be offering free green fees on Fridays with the paid price of a cart and the dining room is open to the public each Saturday night and Sunday noon.

Broncos:

Tre Brown, Lee Tolbert, and Forrest Yelverton. The Crump boys had 17 tackles between them, and Chris also got a sack on the QB. Brown had six tackles and a sack and Lee Tolbert had a solid game according to Jack. Freshman Forrest Yelverton played the entire game both ways and made six tackles.

The Broncos will be preparing all week for their Bi-District game with Nazareth and Jack knows they will be ready to go.

"We're ready for them," Jack said. "It's a new season for us, and this (the playoffs) is all that matters. It will be a battle for us, because they are big. We scrimmaged them earlier in the year, and it was pretty even. They will play hard, and we are going to gear up and get ready to go."

Make plans to support the Broncos at Highland Park, Friday, November 13, at 7:30 p.m. for the Broncos' first playoff game with the Swifts.

Colts fail to Wellington

The last game of the season did not end the way the Colts wanted, but they finished with a winning record, which included only two losses and one tie.

Clarendon went 5-2-1 for the year and made great accomplishments during the year.

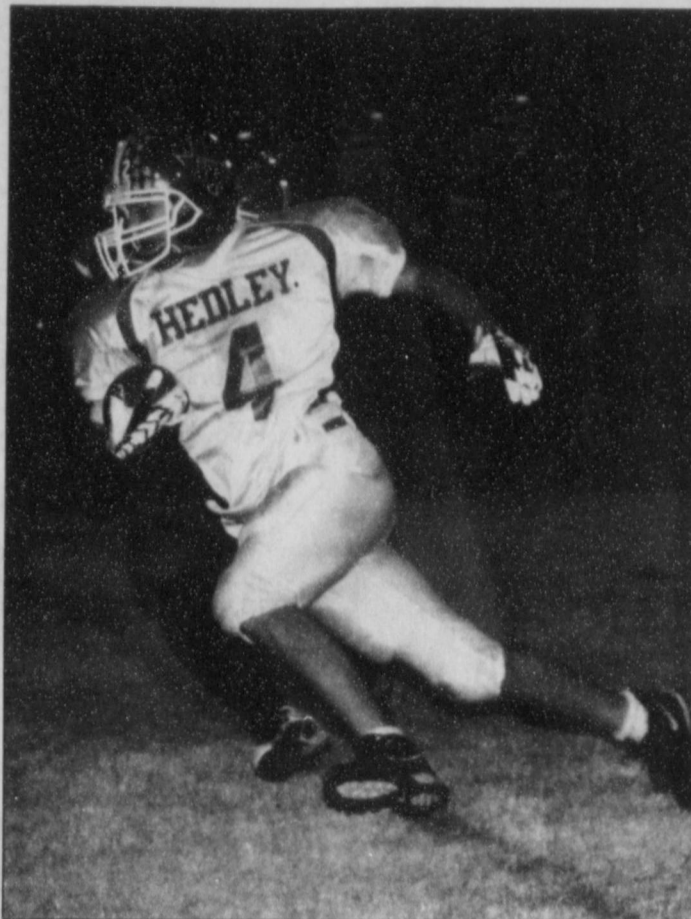

In their last game against Wellington, the Colts fell short at 12-36. Cody Harjo ran for one of the scores and Chance McAnear ran for the other. Defensively, Harjo also grabbed an interception.

"The kids played really well the second half," coach Clint Coley said. "We got ourselves in a hole early because we gave up a couple of big plays. We settled down and played much better in the second half."

Coley was very pleased with the way the boys played this year.

"I am really proud of the way these guys played this year and enjoyed watching them learn and get better," Coley said.

Lady Broncos face River Road this weekend

Sandy Anderberg

The Lady Broncos honed their skills in their last scrimmage at White Deer last week in preparation for the upcoming season. Both varsity and junior varsity squads practiced in the game-like setting with favorable results.

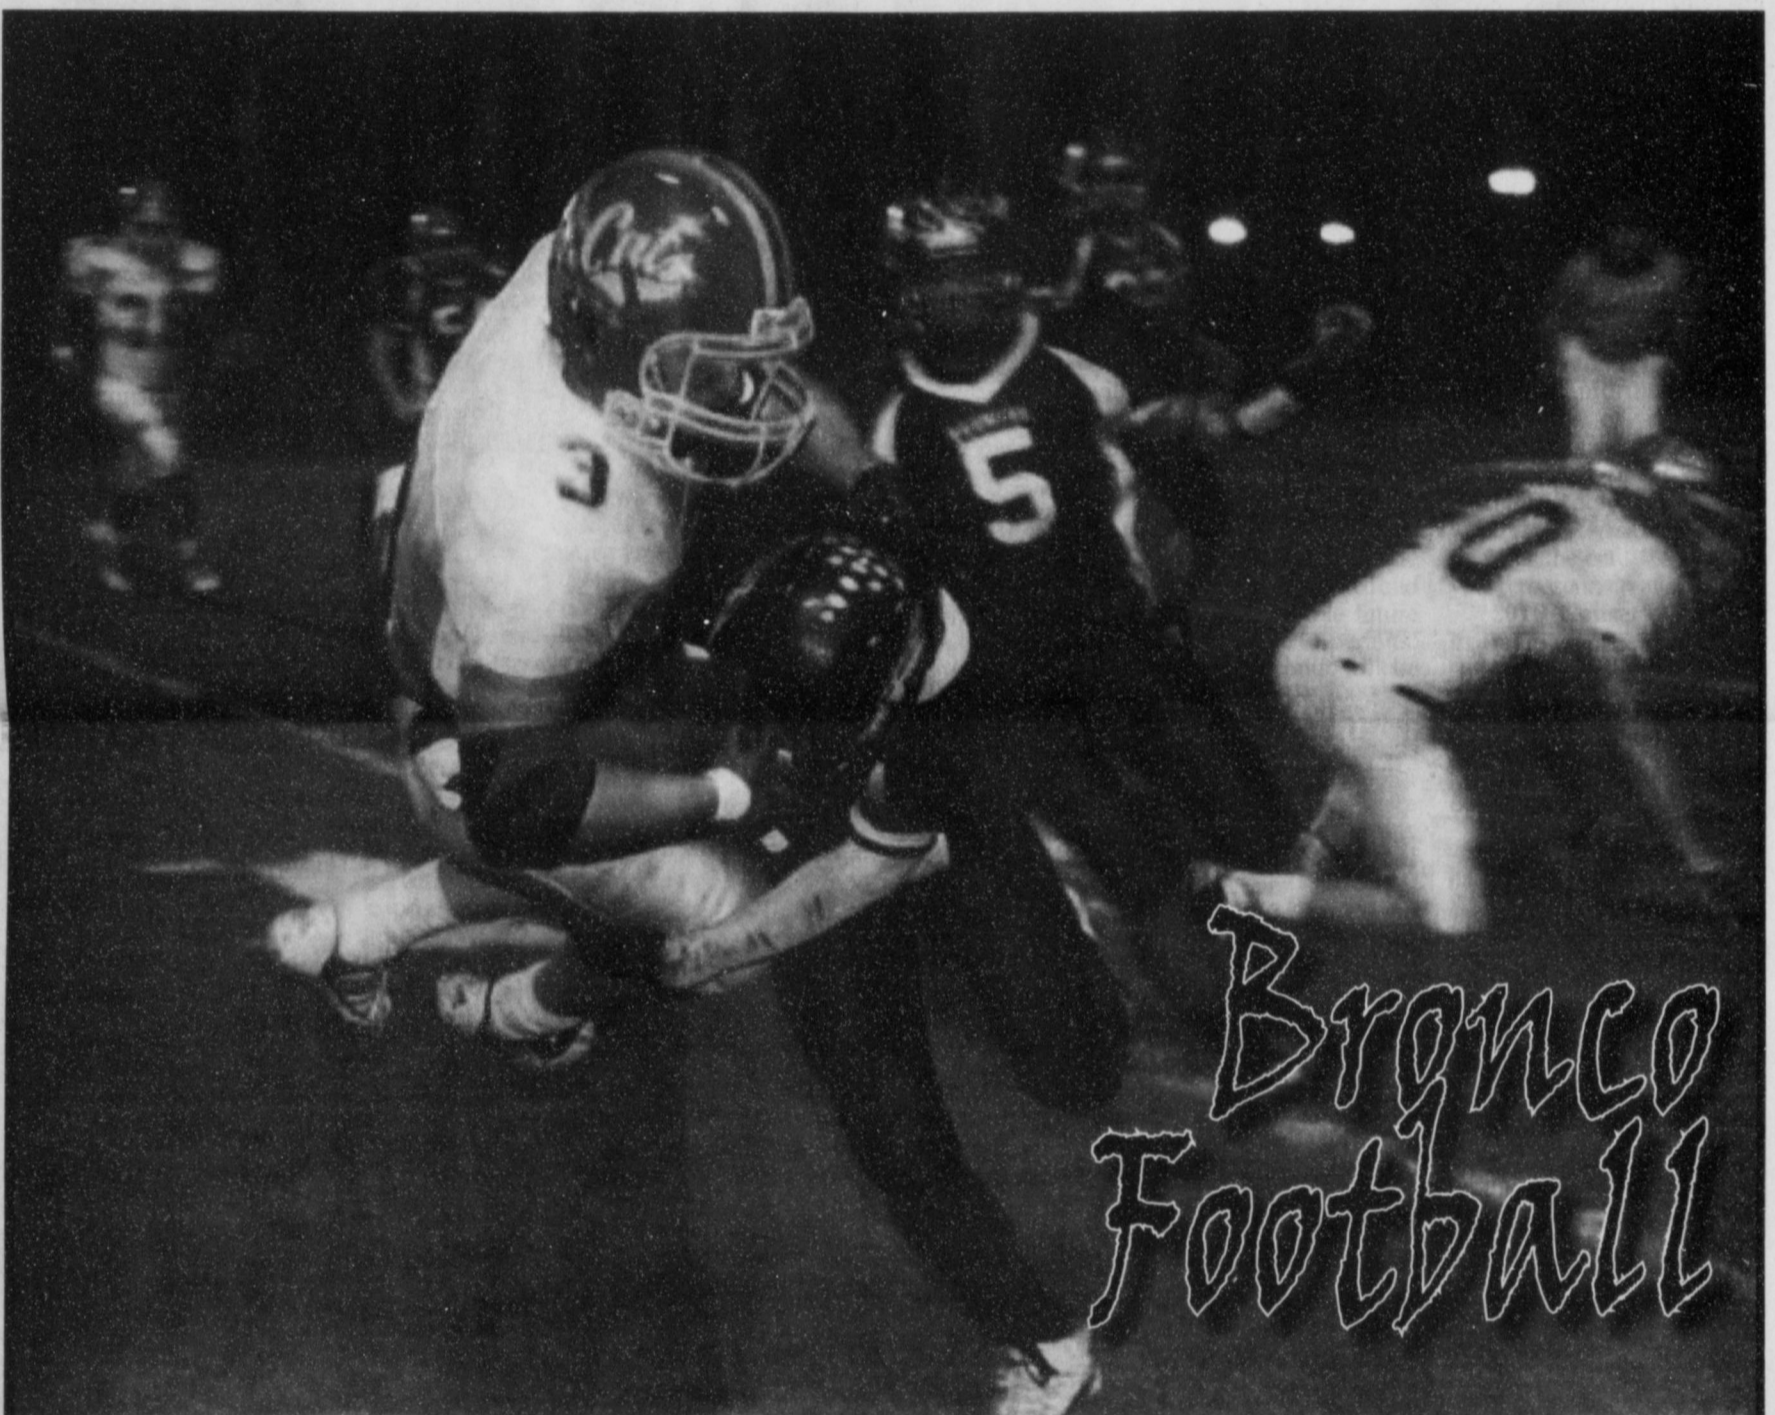

"I thought we came ready to play and we looked good early," coach Randy Yelverton said. "I thought we lost a little focus late, but regained it in the last game."

For the most part, the ladies accomplished what they set out to gain from the scrimmage according to Yelverton.

"Overall I was pleased, but we do have some areas of concern that we need to address in practice and early games," Yelverton said.

The Lady Broncos will take on River Road at home November 14 with the junior varsity beginning at 5:00 p.m., and the varsity at 6:30 p.m.

The ladies will travel to Tulia on Tuesday, November 17, and will be in Miami November 20.

Drugs in the News

Medication Approved for Rare Hereditary Condition

During early October, the FDA approved a new drug called Berinert for the treatment of a rare condition called hereditary angioedema (HAE). This disorder shows up as swelling of the face, mouth, neck and abdomen. In addition, there is swelling of the walls of the intestines which causes pain, diarrhea, nausea and vomiting. These individuals are deficient in a naturally occurring protein called C1-Esterase inhibitor. Giving such persons a concentrate of this protein stabilizes the clotting of blood and inflammation, both of which are associated with the swelling with HAE.

This new medication has been approved for adults and adolescents with HAE, making it the first such treatment for this condition. Before FDA approval and during a clinical trial of over 120 adults and adolescents with HAE, some in the study received a C1-esterase inhibitor concentrate and some received placebo (fake drug). Those who took the concentrate experienced safe and rapid relief from swelling during HAE attacks compared to those who received placebo.
