State funds help boost CC budget

Clarendon College Regents approved an $8.9 million budget for the coming fiscal year during their regular meeting last Thursday.

The overall budget is $542,961 higher than the current budget, which is broken into two parts. The growth is seen in the Education & General Budget for fiscal year 2010, which is $6.78 million, an increase from $6.21 million last year.

CC President Bill Auvenshine said the higher budget is attributed to increased enrollment at the college and additional funding from the state for property-poor college districts.

"This was the easiest budget I've ever put together because we had money to work with," Auvenshine said. "Of the departments that came through the budget process and hearings, we were able to do about 98 percent of what was asked for."

Auvenshine said a lot of the new money in next year's budget is going into new positions for student services, specifically a full-time marketing position, a secretary for the dean of students, and an enrollment services counselor. Money is also going back into the college's physical plant with several improvement projects that had previously been delayed due to lack of funding.

The second part of the budget - the Auxiliary Budget - actually decreased slightly from $2.157 million currently to $2.138 million in FY 2010. Auvenshine said that partly reflects a decrease in the number of rodeo scholarships the school plans to give.

CC Regents still have to set a property tax rate for FY 2010. The current rate is $0.231125 per $100 valuation; but Auvenshine said that since property values have increased about a million dollars, the college will likely adopt the effective rate of $0.221404 and bring in the same money as last year.

The tax rate will be considered at the board's September 17 meeting.

In other college news, regents approved the purchase of welding equipment for new vocational programs in Clarendon and Pampa at a cost of $27,986. Additional surplus equipment was purchased from Frank Phillips College.

Herring Bank was selected as the college's bank depository.

A resolution was approved authorizing the lease-purchase of two new buildings at the CC Pampa Center. The facilities will be financed and built by Gray County and paid for with maintenance tax funds levied in that county.

The board gave Raymond Jaramillo the new title of Vice President of the Pampa Center. He previously held the title of "dean."

Regents also ratified the hiring of Teresa Juarez as a full-time custodian in Clarendon.

Area conservation districts to meet at CC

The Panhandle Association of Soil & Water Conservation Districts (PASWCDS) will meet this Thursday at 9:30 a.m. at the Clarendon College Bairfield Activity Center.

Rick Kellison, Texas Tech University Project Director for Texas Alliance for Water Conservation (TAWC) will speak on "Carbon Sequestration and its Effect on Agriculture."

The topic has garnered recent interest because increasing levels of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere have led to growing interest in national and international forums for implementing measures to slow and reverse the buildup of such atmospheric constituents. Under a movement towards a federal cap and trade system, agricultural landowners are in a unique position to develop a program that benefits landowners and industries that need to reduce their carbon footprint.

Brian Bluhm, vice president of Dreamland Industries will talk to conservation district directors attending the meeting on Safflower production and its water needs. Safflower was originally grown for flowers that were used in making red and yellow dyes for clothing and food preparation. Today the crop supplies oil, meal, birdseed, and foos (residue from oil processing) for the food and industrial products markets.

Speakers during the business session who will update SWCD directors on state and national soil and water conservation programs and issues include Aubrey Russell, member of the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board, Area I; Scott Buckles, vice president of the Association of Texas Soil and Water Conservation Districts, Area I; and Zone I Assistant State Conservationist Mickey Black, USDA Natural Resource Conservation Service.

The public is invited to attend the meeting; however, an RSVP is being requested by the Donley County Soil and Water Conservation District. Brenda Nowlan is the contact for the district. The telephone number is (806) 874-3561.

Twenty-five soil and water conservation districts in the Panhandle region of the state are members of the PASWCDS. Counties which the SWCDS serve include Dallam, Sherman, Hansford, Ochiltree, Lipscomb, Hartley, Moore, Hutchinson, Roberts, Hemphill, Oldham, Potter, Carson, Gray, Wheeler, Deaf Smith, Randall, Armstrong, Donley, Collingsworth, Parmer, Castro, Swisher, Briscoe, Hall, and Childress Counties.

County proposes smaller budget but higher taxes

Donley County Commissioners have proposed a slightly smaller budget than last year, but taxes will still have to be raised slightly to support it, according to documents on file in the County Clerk's office.

"We feel like this is a good budget for the county," Judge Jack Hall said.

The $2.08 million budget is about $88,000 less than last year's budget, but the county is also expecting to collect less from some revenue sources.

The proposed budget forecasts that the county will receive only $5,000 in taxes on automobile sales compared to $23,000 that was budgeted last year. The budget also expects lower revenues from the justice of the peace court in Precincts 3&4.

Several categories in the budget have been trimmed this year, but the county is figuring on giving employees a three percent raise. Commissioner salaries will not be raised.

The budget includes $564,979.68 for the operations of the sheriff's department and county jail. That's up about $915 from the 2009 budget. Like last year, the county budget is calculated with a planned $140,000 from a law enforcement contract with the City of Clarendon. At press time, city aldermen were meeting on that subject.

The taxable value of ad valorem property in the county has increased approximately $8.5 million, and commissioners are proposing a total tax rate of $0.527491 per $100 valuation. That's up from last year's tax rate of $0.511214.

The county expects to collect about $689,983.88 from ad valorem taxes, which is up from $623,769.81 last year.

Commissioners will hold a budget hearing at 9 a.m. on September 11, and both the tax rate and the budget will be voted on when the commissioners' court meets on September 21.

Preservation group looking for historic sites

AUSTIN - Preservation Texas has issued a call for nominations for its 2010 list of Texas' Most Endangered Historic Places and is asking Panhandle residents to help identify threatened historic resources by submitting nominations.

Since the program was initiated in 2003, the list of Texas' Most Endangered Historic Places has played a vital role in preserving the rich character, identity and heritage of our communities. A wide range of sites will be considered, from commercial, residential, public and religious buildings, to neighborhoods, bridges, monuments, and landscapes. The deadline for nominations is October 9, 2009.

"From historic schools, missions and courthouses to inner city neighborhoods and Main Street designated communities, Texas is a state with enormous diversity and significant historic resources," said

Credit cards and unknown consequences

By Dr. Joseph J. Horton

Imagine being a contractor and regularly using your credit card to purchase building materials for your job. Without warning you receive a notice that effective immediately your credit limit has been cut in half. You face potential embarrassment with your clients as your ability to purchase needed materials has suddenly changed. How will your business function? You always paid your bill on time. Who is to blame for this mess?

There have been several stories in the news media recently about people facing unexpected and dramatic reductions in their credit limits. Other people are finding that their interest rates have climbed for no apparent reason. These sudden changes in credit-card terms are causing real inconveniences for thousands of people.

I read one report about a person with whom I readily identify because I, too, do not carry cash. This person was traveling when his credit card was canceled out of the blue. (As he was traveling, the letter informing him of this was waiting for him at home.) Suddenly, this unfortunate traveler could no longer even buy lunch.

The embarrassments and challenges faced by people whose credit-card terms suddenly changed are predictable. And we are seeing the unintended consequences of the government trying to protect us.

Congress recently passed the Credit Card Holder Bill of Rights, which takes full effect in February. In a promotional piece from my congresswoman, she explained that she voted for this bill to protect consumers by making sure they knew the terms of the credit-card agreements.

Quite frankly, I did not need to be protected by my congresswoman. I read my cardholder agreements. We recently received a letter from one of our credit-card companies informing us that our interest rate was going up. We called customer service to be sure we understood the letter correctly, which we had. Why would anyone make a business deal without reading and understanding the fine print? Under the new law the print will no longer be fine, but will the people who did not read the fine print read the bigger print?

Perhaps we pay little attention to contracts because we have found that contracts may not be enforced and we do not need to be responsible. We see big time investors and executives getting bailed out as well as people who were greedy and bought more home than they could afford. When things go wrong, we are victims and the government will help us.

Credit cards are one of the most powerful financial tools that ordinary people can easily access and use. I am a very poor target for thieves because I do not carry cash. When cash is stolen it is gone. If my credit cards are stolen my liability is limited. I have peace of mind that in previous decades only the wealthy had because I know I have enough purchasing power to get myself out of jam. As with any tool, people can hurt themselves with credit cards.

One of the most amazing things about credit cards is that one can acquire significant purchasing power without having significant assets. Credit-card debt is unsecured. Credit-card companies carefully and continuously evaluate the risk of potential default for all of their clients.

The Credit Card Holder Bill of Rights takes away some of the credit-card companies' techniques for managing risk. For example, currently if a person misses a payment on Card A, his interest rate on Card B may go up immediately. This makes sense because by missing a payment on Card A the person's risk of default on Card B has gone up. That this is possible is stated in credit-card agreements. Beginning in February credit-card companies will not be able to raise interest rates as quickly.

The consequences of these changes are predictable. With their ability to efficiently manage the risks of individual card holders about to be restricted by law, credit-card companies are preemptively managing risk. Contractors whose cash flow might be severely restricted during a recession are having their credit limit severely cut. People who need to use their credit cards to get out of a jam will be paying higher interest from the beginning. The people who are seen as being the biggest potential risks may not be able to get credit cards in the first place. There is talk of rewards programs being scaled back or eliminated.

Responsible users of credit cards are being harmed as a result of the government trying to protect us. Most people who use credit cards unwisely will still have enough access to credit to get themselves into trouble. There is no legislation that can magically cause people to be wise. Telling the unwise that they are victims will not help them become wise.

Unfortunately, the victims of the Credit Card Holder Bill of Rights are blaming the credit-card companies rather than the government for the embarrassment and higher interest rates they now face. You Tube is awash in videos of people creatively destroying their credit cards. Yet, lower credit limits and higher interest rates for all were predictable unintended consequences of a government protection plan.

Cap and trade will kill Texas jobs

As the summer winds down and the fall picks up, the Senate will return to a legislative agenda marked with more massive and misguided proposals being pushed by the Administration and Democratic Leadership. One that all Texans should pay close attention to is "Cap and Trade" legislation. The proposal could level a deeper impact on our state's economy and the financial well-being of Texas families than any bill in recent memory.

The concept of Cap and Trade is based on the idea that total national emissions are capped at a predetermined amount, thereby limiting the amount of greenhouse gases that companies can emit. Emitting companies are provided a set of allowances on an annual basis for every ton of carbon dioxide they plan to release into the atmosphere. Over time, the total greenhouse gas emissions allowed are reduced until the ultimate pollution-reduction goal is met. Businesses whose emissions will exceed their cap in any given year must purchase emission allowances from those who are releasing less carbon and are not utilizing their full allotment.

I am concerned about the impact this bill would have on Texas, which would be disproportionately affected by Cap and Trade legislation because it is an energy and manufacturing state. In fact, Texas provides the nation with more energy than any other state. It is the leading crude oil-producing state in the nation, as well as the leading natural gas producer. Texas's 26 petroleum refineries account for more than one-fourth of all U.S. refining capacity. Because energy and manufacturing is prevalent in Texas, we have a disproportionately high level of greenhouse gas emissions compared to states that utilize our energy production rather than producing their own. By its nature, the cap and trade system is designed to raise the cost of conventional energy by requiring emission allowances for its usage.

When manufacturers face excessive costs for the right to produce their goods (i.e. run their plants), they will have to pass those costs down to consumers. Every time a consumer switches on a light, turns on the air conditioner, or runs a load of dishes, he will feel the residual effects of taxes on the energy industry for producing this power. If Cap and Trade becomes law, it is estimated that the average Texas household income will shrink by $1,136 a year in 2012, the year the legislation would take effect, due to increases in utility bills, groceries, transportation costs, and more. This could result in a total potential cost of nearly $7 billion for Texas families.

The legislation is also a job killer because some American companies will not be able to maintain operations under the Cap and Trade system's cost burdens and stringent regulations. Studies show that Cap and Trade would result in the loss of 2 million U.S. jobs. The jobs will move to other countries, thereby increasing our dependence on foreign energy supplies (which already is 60 percent of all the energy America needs). In our state, up to 277,000 Texans could lose their jobs in 2012. By 2030, the number of lost jobs in Texas could rise

While reducing greenhouse gases is an important goal, a better approach is to reduce carbon emissions while simultaneously creating jobs and growing the economy. One way is to expand emission-free nuclear energy. Nuclear energy is clean, safe, reliable, and cost-effective. Today, we have 17 applications at the Nuclear Regulatory Commission for 26 new nuclear reactors. Congress must work to get these reactors online and in production.

Another technology we should be pursuing is Carbon Capture and Sequestration (CCS). This technology holds great promise for reducing pollution because it sequesters carbon, thus preventing its release into the atmosphere. It will also help increase oil production through Enhanced Oil Recovery. In Texas, we are already working on some of America's largest CCS projects. We can lead the nation in commercializing this innovative technology.

These are just a few examples of how we can do something positive for the environment without hurting the economy. We can put America at the forefront of technology development, while creating jobs and stimulating the economy. Moreover, we can move America forward rather than subject it to a competitive disadvantage to countries such as China and India that do not impose pollution mandates on their businesses and manufacturers, thereby making their products cheaper on the global market.

I believe the goal of carbon reduction through the development of technology is one that we can achieve. But we must be wise in how we choose to meet the challenge.

Take better care of your old 'clunker'

There's been a lot of talk about "Cash for Clunkers," but for the majority of motorists, purchasing a new car is not an option. For many, their vehicle does not qualify as a "clunker" and for others, the cost of a new car is prohibitive, so keeping their current vehicle running efficiently is the sensible alternative.

Those motorists who treat their vehicles as valuable investments and commit to regular vehicle maintenance end up saving a lot of money. In fact, according to Runzheimer International, the difference in the savings over a four year period between keeping a car and buying a new one is over $10,000. Even with the "Cash for Clunkers" incentive, maintaining your current vehicle is still the best economic option.

To help ensure reliability and safety, and extend vehicle life, the Car Care Council recommends these preventive maintenance steps:

Change the oil and filter every 3,000 to 5,000 miles or per the owner's manual. Periodic oil and filter changes keep your engine clean on the inside.

Check the tire pressure at least monthly, including the spare. Your car's tires affect its ride, handling, traction and safety.

Schedule a tune-up annually to optimize your car's performance. A well-tuned engine delivers the best balance of power and fuel economy, and produces the lowest level of emissions.

Have the alignment checked at least annually. Potholes and other road conditions, as well as normal wear, can take their toll on your car's steering and suspension. A wheel alignment reduces tire wear, improves fuel economy and handling, and increases driving enjoyment and safety.

Inspect the windshield wipers and lights on the car. Lights and wipers play a major role in safe driving, and they are normal wear items that need periodic replacement.

Libby Buuck, president of Preservation Texas, Inc., a statewide partner of the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

"Each year more and more of the state's historic properties fall victim to commercial development, neglect or suburban sprawl. Texas' Most Endangered Historic Places focuses attention on worthy sites, encourages appreciation of them, and helps local communities generate support for them."

Texas dance halls, named one of Texas' Most Endangered Historic Places in 2008, are an example of how inclusion on the list helps sites.

"We got a lot of momentum from being on the endangered places list and it really helped us," said Patrick Sparks, president of Texas Dance Hall Preservation, Inc.

Texas Dance Hall Preservation, Inc. recently provided technical assistance for the successful restoration of Sengelmann Hall in Schulenburg (www.sengelmannhall.com). The organization is currently working to on an assessment program for three historic halls, funded in part by the National Trust. These halls are Park Dance Hall in Park, Texas, Fayette County, built in 1905; Nada Hall, in Nada, Texas, Colorado County, built circa 1920; and Turner Hall in Schulenburg, built in 1886.

Through the Texas' Most Endangered Historic Places program, selected sites receive technical assistance to determine how to best preserve the structure from architects, engineers and other preservation professionals; assistance with fund raising strategies, including grants and tax incentives, and information on restoration and revitalization techniques used successfully at other sites. For example, in Taylor, Preservation Texas provided advice on preservation planning and connected the Blackshear/O.L. Price Ex-Student Association, the stewards of the Dr. James L. Dickey House, with an architectural history consulting firm to provide the research information needed to begin the rehabilitation process.

Some of the sites in the Panhandle recognized in previous years include Mallet Ranch Headquarters Court in Hockley County; Bob's Oil Well in Motley County; the Herring Hotel in Amarillo; and the Quanah, Acme & Pacific Railroad Depot in Motley County.

Judging criteria for the 2010 list include:

Significance. The site must be of architectural, artistic, and/or historic importance within the cultural or social history of Texas.

Urgency of threat. Urgency is the need for immediate action to stop or reverse serious threats. Threats can be demolition, alterations that would change the integrity of the building or structure; or significant loss of historic fabric through neglect, or through a new development plan or transportation plan that could affect the site in the future.

Potential solutions and support. There must be clear evidence of local support for the preservation of the site.

Nominations are open to the public and the nomination form is available by visiting www.preservationtexas.org.

The list of Texas' Most Endangered Historic Places will be announced on Preservation Day in February 2010. For more information, phone 512-472-0102.

Extension offers kids tips to deal with school bullies

By MaryRuth Bishop, County Agent
"Do you remember the school bully who went around teasing and threatening you or your classmates? Remember how you felt? Remember how you wished he would just go away?"

Ever wondered what happened to someone who was teased or bullied or what became of the bully himself?

Teasing and bullying is an ongoing problem for many of our children. Research reports that as many as 24 percent of middle school students reported bullying others a least once in the past year. It is estimated that almost 30 percent of students were involved in some type of moderate or frequent bullying, either as the target of the bully, as the bully, or both.

I realized that there are those who are the victims of teasing and bullying and agree that the experience leaves long-term consequences.

Victims of bullying may suffer from anxiety, fear, and low self-esteem. They may avoid peers, school, and social activities where they may be exposed to teasing or bullying. In some cases, children may drop out of school to avoid being harassed or attacked.

"Negative consequences for those who bully have been demonstrated as well," says Dr. Rick Peterson, Assistant Professor and Texas Agrilife Extension Service Parenting Specialist.

"Childhood bullies have school attendance and performance problems. Those who bully tend to become aggressive adults and are more likely to become involved in criminal activities."

Parents and adults should not expect children to deal with bullies on their own. Children need to be taught that bullying is an unacceptable behavior. Children must be taught useful strategies to help them cope with teasing and bullying. Teasing and bullying cannot be totally prevented, but children can be taught to control their own reactions.

Parents can teach their children some simple strategies to empower them and help them cope with their feelings and sometimes helplessness.

Some strategies parents and caregivers can teach their children include:

- Self-talk. Give children things they can say to themselves when they are being teased or bullied, which can counteract the negative remarks or behaviors. A child can say to herself, "Even though I don't like being teased, I can handle it." Oftentimes, the teasing is not a true reflection of the child, and the child should question himself by asking, "Is the teasing true?" In addition, the child should remind himself that his opinion of himself is more important than the teaser's opinion.

- Ignore the teasing. Children should practice ignoring the teaser since reacting with anger or tears may invite more teasing. Parents should monitor the teasing, particularly if it turns into bullying and/or harassment, and be willing to intervene.

- "I messages" are a way for children to express their feelings and ask to be treated differently. For example, a child could say, "I feel upset when you make fun of my clothes. I would like you to stop." This strategy may work best in a classroom or daycare setting, where adult supervision is present.

- Using humor is another way to cope with teasing. By the child laughing at the hurtful comments or put-downs, it shows that the teasing has little effect on them. Another way to show indifference is for the child to respond to the teasing with, "So." By responding with "so" indicates that the teasing doesn't matter. Children find this simple reply to be an effective response to teasing.

- Asking for help at times is necessary if the child is having trouble with the above strategies or if the teasing turns to bullying. Children can handle most types of teasing. However, if the teasing is repeated or occurs for a prolonged period of time, it becomes bullying and may call for an intervention by parents, teachers, and caregivers.

School days were different back in Estelline in 1943

Do you remember your first day of school? Mine was September 1943 at Estelline. We lived in the Parnell community on the RO Ranch and rode the big yellow school bus. That bus didn't have seats, only four rows of benches with everyone sitting side by side. I remember the "big boys" liked to torment me and pull my pig tails, which brought out the fightin' side of me, exactly what they wanted. One boy went too far and got expelled from the bus, and they all settled down after that.

First grade school supplies in 1943 were a Big Chief tablet, a pencil, a box of Crayola's, blunt point scissors, and a jar of glue with a rubber top with a book scatchel to carry them. First books were Dick and Jane with dog Spot and cat Puff. I never thought about the mother and father dressing differently than mine, after all my daddy was a cowboy and those kids lived in town. I wish I remembered the name of my first grade teacher. I just remember how pretty she was and had a monkey hand puppet she brought when we were especially good. Estelline was a nice place to go to school and I have many happy memories.

The cooler weather inspired us to get the trailer out and go camping in Palo Duro Canyon. It was so pretty and green with all the rain we have had.

In fact, they had a heavy shower the morning we got there that closed the water crossings numbers 3-6 for a few hours. After they opened the crossings, we saw young adults playing in that red mud. I knew how much work it would take to get the mud off them and the clothes would have to be thrown away. They were having fun, though. I would recommend the canyon for a day trip but even better is an overnight stay with the stars so bright.

Our condolences to the family of Margie Fredricksen who died August 22. She, along with husband Gaylen, have made their home in Howardwick for a number of years. They enjoyed living here and she will be missed.

Facing the Light

By Mary Beth Nelson

You who are experienced "plant growers" are already aware that your house plants occasionally need to be "turned" in their location in order for the entire plant to receive sufficient light for beautiful growth. I know. As I write this, I'm looking at one of my ivy plants which I neglected turning. On the opposite side of this plant, healthy stems and lovely leaves facing the light are still standing erect. The bent stems have been turned toward the light during the past two weeks, and are beginning to rise with a promise of success attributed to the lovely light.

Our Lord is referred to as "The Light" in several Old and New Testament scriptures: Psalm 21:1; Isaiah 60:19-20; John 12:35-36; among others. When Jesus claims He is the Light of the World, He stressed the importance of our remaining in His light for guidance and salvation.

Satan is eagerly waiting for us to "turn away from the Light". By bending to worldly desires, it is possible to quickly destroy our own lives just as the ivy plant became so weak it "was turned away from the light".

BIBLE THOUGHT: "When Jesus spoke again to the people, He said "I am the Light of the World. Whoever follows me will never walk in darkness, but will have the light of life." (John 8:12, NIV).

Wind energy still has potential for landowners

FLOYDADA — Landowners in the Panhandle of Texas know the wind blows and many of them are starting to question why they haven't seen more wind energy development in the area.

According to a press release this week, experts at a recent meeting held in Floyd County reassured landowners that there is still potential for wind energy development.

Texas is ranked first in the nation for wind development with 8,361 MW of installed capacity at the end of June. Texas currently creates 3.5 percent of its energy from wind, making it seventh in the nation for percentage of overall wind-generated energy.

This year has been a slow year for wind development in comparison to the previous couple of years in which Texas, as well as the entire nation, saw rapid growth throughout the industry, but wind still has a place in the Texas panhandle.

"Even though market conditions are depressed right now there is still a lot of room for potential growth," Amato commented.

The potential for wind energy development in the caprock plains region of Texas is great and offers many benefits, including: job creation, additional income for farmers, and increased tax bases bringing money to school, hospitals, etc. Amato pointed out that the Competitive Renewable Energy Zones (CREZ) process, which will allow the wind-rich panhandle to send energy generated by wind to load centers like Austin, Dallas and San Antonio, is critical so we can continue to develop wind farms and reap the benefits associated with development.

Cross Texas Transmission is a subsidiary of LS Power Development, LLC and was selected by the Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUCT) to permit, construct, own and operate over 230 miles of 345 kV transmission lines in the Texas

Panhandle as a part of the CREZ process.

As a transmission service provider, Cross Texas Transmission is already doing their part to help revitalize communities in the area even though they are only in the preliminary stages of the CREZ process. One of Cross Texas Transmission's goals is to build a Texas based project development team. Through the transmission build out they want to continue to provide employment in Texas, especially the panhandle.

If you would like to find out more about Cross Texas Transmission, call their local office in Pampa, Texas, at (806) 669-3000.

The Clarendon Lions Club held its regular Tuesday noon meeting August 25, 2009, with Boss Lion Chuck Robertson wielding the gavel.

We had 23 members, Lion Sweetheart Lauren Shelton, and two guests this week - Anndria Newhouse, guest of Lion Roger Estlack; and Scarlet Estlack, guest of Lion Russell Estlack.

School and college updates were given by Lions Mike Word, Deb Kuhl, Bill Auvenshine, and Ashlee Estlack.

Lion Judy Burlin discussed the recent activities of the Chamber of Commerce, which has been working to promote tourism in Clarendon and Donley County. During a recent convention in Plainview, a silent auction was held with gift baskets from the 52 counties of the Panhandle and South Plains, and the Donley County basket brought the most money, more than $200.

Are things right where it really matters -- between God and you? That sense of having been reconciled to God buoys your spirit when there is no other release from the pain and perplexity of this world.

If you have grown world-weary, then turn to the Lord Jesus. Whatever else the Good Shepherd may withhold - good health, satisfying relationships, fulfilling work - He will never withhold Himself from those who seek Him with all their hearts.

There is an intimacy between Jesus and His disciples. "He gathers the lambs in His arms and carries them close to His heart" (Isaiah 40:11). And because of that, you and I may truly echo the psalmist, "I shall not want."

If you genuinely long for that sense of release that grows from knowing the Lord Jesus, then visit with us. We want to acquaint you with God's son! We teach only Jesus and Him crucified.

We meet each Sunday morning at 9:30 for Bible study and for worship at 10:30. We are located on the East side of Clarendon on the South side of Hwy 287.

Look for the cross.

Three-way tie prompts putt-off

By Sandy Anderberg

Three teams tied for the top spot at six under par in the Friday night nine-hole scramble at the Clarendon Country Club. The team of Sandy Anderberg, Daniel Burchum, Tom Stauber, and Chris Moore made three putts in the putt-off to defeat the other teams.

The other two teams came in at five and four under par.

Sherol Johnston won low gross on Thursday at the weekly women's game with a 92. Ruth Jackson turned in a net 73 for low net, and Ouida Gage shot a net 77 for second low net.

Chris Moore won the men's game with a net 65, and Joel Layton was second with a 66. Mike Santos was third with a 68; and Bill Spier, Redell Johnston, and Bubba Linquist tied for fourth with a net 69.

Forest Newton recorded a hole-in-one Friday, August 21, on the par three 202 yard number five. Newton used his driver and his feat was witnessed by Gayle and Gene Rogers.

On that same day and same hole, Sam Browning hit a hole-in-one as well. He used a Callaway H-1 and it was witnessed by Mike Santos. It was Browning's first career hole-in-one.

There will be an 18-hole scramble on Labor Day, September 7, beginning at 2:00 p.m. You may call the Pro Shop to enter.

Hedley cross country runners compete

By Tangelia Copelin

The 2009 Lady Owl Cross Country runners competed in their first meet of the year at Thompson Park in Amarillo on Saturday, August 22.

Coach Mike Prescott has already been working with his runners for several weeks.

"We went to Amarillo to compete to see how well we had improved from this time last year, and we were not disappointed,"

Prescott said. "We had several girls step up from last year and even had one do much better than they did at the start of last year's competition."

Times and places were not available at this time, but those ladies running were Haley Chambless, Kaylee Shields, Kallie Verstyft, Kasidy Burton, and Sierra Shelp.

The runners will be competing in Plainview on Saturday, September 5, for their second meet of the year.

Broncos on target for season opener

By Sandy Anderberg

Bronco football is back in season, and the coaches and players are ready.

Last Friday night's pre-season scrimmage with West Texas High gave them all another look at things before they put it all on the field Friday night at home.

Head coach Gary Jack was excited about the way the Broncos handled themselves on the field and feels his team is ready to get it started.

"The scrimmage went great against WT," Jack said. "Both the varsity and the JV manhandled them, and we looked sharp."

Jack also added that both teams dominated on both sides of the ball and easily kept their opponent off the scoreboard.

"We had a few mistakes," Jack said. "But we improved on the things we wanted to from the first scrimmage and we are very pleased with what we did on the field. We're ready to roll."

The Broncos will take on the Claude Mustangs in their season opener at Bronco Stadium beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Prior to Friday's opener for the varsity, the junior varsity will play Wellington at home on Thursday beginning at 5:00 p.m.

Subsurface drip irrigation field day scheduled Sept. 3 near Chillicothe

CHILLICOTHE - A "turn-row" field day will be held to observe and discuss subsurface drip irrigation research on Sept. 3 at the Texas AgriLife Research Station, south of Chillicothe off Farm-to-Market Road 392.

Dr. John Sij, AgriLife Research agronomist at Vernon, will begin the program at 9:30 a.m. with a welcome followed by the field tour.

In addition to the AgriLife Research personnel, growers, researchers, industry representatives and U.S. Department of Agriculture personnel will be on hand to discuss operating subsurface drip irrigation systems, costs, problems, successes and financial assistance.

Sij said the tour will include drive-by looks at cotton breeding research and production under furrow irrigation, as well as a comparison of furrow-irrigated wheat/cotton double crop and subsurface drip-irrigated wheat/cotton double crop.

Tour stops will be made at research plots to highlight crop rotation and tillage systems under excess and deficit irrigation.

Two general continuing education units will be offered, Sij said, and the tour will conclude prior to noon. For more information, contact Sij by phone at 940-552-9941.

A big one
Ben Estlack and Maloree Wann watch as a game warden measures Ben's fish during the 11th annual Kid Fish at Kincaid Park last Saturday. The sunfish was a full eight inches and was noted for its spirit and determination. Right after this picture the lake monster broke free and was flipping and flopping all over the place before it was recaptured and released back into the wild.

College Hill hopping with activity

We're back in the swing of things up on the Hill with classes starting back today (Wednesday).

Registration was a big success at all three locations, and we'll have numbers out as soon as possible.

The volleyball team opened at home on Tuesday, August 25, against Vernon College, but scores weren't available at press time. I'll have them for you next week, or you can check our website www.clarendon-college.edu.

Following the scrimmage, the ever popular Homemade Ice Cream Social was held in the BAC. The kids love this event and we want to thank everyone who helped make it so successful.

A campus wide Study Club will meet in the BAC at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, August 26, and a Back to School Dance is planned for Thursday night from 9 p.m. to midnight in the BAC.

The week will wrap-up as we take a bus to Amarillo for Midnight Bowling from midnight to 2 a.m. on Friday.

On Sunday, August 30, we hope you'll all stop by the softball happenings on the hill

by ashlee estlack, cc marketing coordinator field for the annual Faculty/Staff v. Softball Team Slow-pitch Softball Game. The game will start at 7 p.m. at the softball field and is a lot of fun to watch. If you haven't been before, you should really plan to come.

It's not too late to register for classes for the fall semester. If you would like more information about registering for classes, please stop by and see us anytime or call us at 874-3571. Our offices are open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Friday.

The Schedule of Classes for all locations is available on our homepage at www.clarendoncollege.edu. Unleash your potential!
