Boll weevil election to be held Oct. 9

AUSTIN — Cotton farmers and landowners with cotton production are eligible to vote in an October 9 referendum that will determine whether to continue a boll weevil eradication program in the six county area of the Northern High Plains Boll Weevil Eradication Zone.

Eligible voters in the Northern High Plains Boll Weevil Eradication Zone should receive an official ballot by mail after September 24. A postage-paid return envelope will be included. Completed ballots must be post-marked on or before October 9 to be counted. Producers who planted cotton in 2008 but do not receive a ballot should contact TDA at (512) 463-3285.

In addition to deciding if an eradication program should be continued, voters will elect a board member to serve on the statewide board of directors for the Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation, Inc.

TDA received one nomination for this position before the filing deadline. Weldon Melton's name of Hale County will appear on the ballot as a nominee. Melton has been a cotton producer since 1975.

C4B Chuckwagon wins cookoff

Jauregui wins junior contest

The C4B Chuckwagon Team of Amarillo took home top honors Saturday at the 14th annual Col. Charles Goodnight Chuckwagon Cookoff.

Led by head cook Randy Whipple, the C4B had the first place Wagon & Camp and placed second in Overall Cooking while racking up enough points to win the Best Overall award.

Cookoff Chairman Lindy Craft said early indications are that this year's event was one of the best for the Saints' Roost Museum.

"I personally thought it was the best in the three years since I've been on the board," Craft said. "Everything really went smooth."

A new Junior Cookoff the day before the big event was also a nice addition, Craft said.

"The Junior Cookoff was relaxed and fun, and the kids had a great time," Craft said.

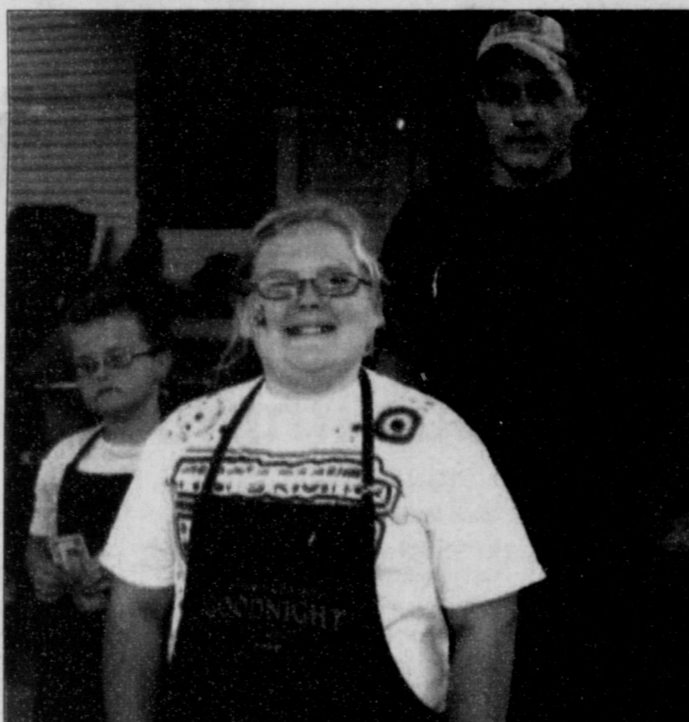

Nine young contestants were paired with experienced wagon teams to prepare potatoes for the cooks' dinner Friday night. Cire Jauregui won first place with the C4B Chuckwagon Team. Chris Shults and the Barb Land & Cattle Co. were second, and Harley Jauregui and the McFall Wagon came in third.

Following the Junior Cookoff, an estimated 170 people enjoyed a delicious steak dinner Friday night at the museum grounds. The invitation-only event was held exclusively for Chuckwagon teams and members of the Museum and their families.

Of the 550 tickets that were available for Saturday's main cookoff only ten remained when the event was over. Past competitions have run out of tickets, but Museum officials are not unhappy with ticket sales this year.

"In the past we gave away a lot of tickets with sponsorships," said Cookoff Sponsorship Chairman Roger Estlack. "Last year as many as 130 tickets were made available to sponsors, but this year only eight tickets went to sponsors. That means higher ticket sales for the Museum even though we had ten tickets unsold. The result is a more successful fundraiser for the Museum."

Concessions were provided by Boy Scout Troop 433. A trade show was held throughout the day, and live entertainment was provided. Museum tours were led by the Clarendon High School Junior Historians. Relatives of legendary cattlemen and Chuckwagon inventor Charles Goodnight also were on hand for their annual reunion.

Eleven wagons served a menu of chicken fried steak, mashed potatoes, gravy, biscuits, beans, and cobbler. Prizes totaling $3,250 were paid out to the winners.

Complete results were:

Fallen Firefighter service to be held in Howardwick

The public is invited and encouraged to attend the National Fallen Firefighters Foundation Memorial Service on Friday, October 3, at 9:00 a.m. at Howardwick City Hall. Mark your calendar and join us in honor of the 118 brave men and women who gave their lives protecting us since 2007.

The National Fallen Firefighters Foundation (NFFF) and the Department of Homeland Security's U.S. Fire Administration announce that the 27th annual National Fallen Firefighters Memorial Weekend will be held October 4-5. A plaque with the names of 101 firefighters who died in the line of duty in 2007 will be added to the National Fallen Firefighters Memorial, located here on the National Fire Academy campus. The names of 9 firefighters who died in previous years will also be added. The plaques surrounding the Memorial, which was established in 1981, will contain the names of more than 3,200 firefighters.

Thirty-four states experienced line-of-duty deaths in 2007. Deaths resulted from many causes, including vehicle accidents while en route to or returning from emergency calls, training incidents, building collapses, being struck by objects (vehicles, trees) at the incident scene, falls, heart attacks, helicopter crashes and burns. Six multiple fatality incidents accounted for 19 deaths. Four multiple fatality incidents occurred at structural fires, one during an explosion at a HAZMAT incident, and another in an apparatus crash en route to an emergency call. Wildland fires, controlled burns, and training/certification for wildlife protection resulted in 5 fatalities. South Carolina suffered the Nation's greatest number of line-of-duty firefighter deaths in 2007 with 10, while Pennsylvania had 8, North Carolina had 8 as well, and New York had 7.

Chief Dennis Compton, Chairman of the NFFF Board of Directors, stated: "Each year, members of the fire service, survivors of our fallen heroes, and other guests join together in Emmitsburg, Maryland, during the Memorial Weekend to honor those firefighters who lost their lives in the line of duty. They travel from all over the United States to take part in this important weekend of events. It's a time of dignity, respect, and reflection for our service, and an opportunity to extend our collective love and support to the survivors. Family members, as well as fellow firefighters, learn of the services the National Fallen Firefighters Foundation has available for them and how they can stay connected to the Foundation for assistance in the future."

Curfew seeing results

By Ashlyn Tubbs,
Clarendon Enterprise

The teen curfew that has been in action since June is going "so far, just great," according to Donley County Sheriff Butch Blackburn.

No citations have been issued since the curfew has been in effect, but several warnings have been given. Many problems that existed before the curfew have been cut down, and enforcing teens to follow the curfew hasn't caused any trouble.

"We've gotten some negative comments concerning the curfew, but I'd say about 90 percent of the comments that we get are positive," said Blackburn when asked about the city's reaction to the curfew.

Clarendon High School Student Council President Audrey Jones said she believes the curfew has been good.

"I think the curfew keeps some kids from getting into trouble," Jones said.

Not everyone agrees with this curfew though. Many teens disagree with it, such as CHS sophomore Bradley Watson.

"I don't really like it because we have to be in at a certain time. We're being punished for the mistakes that other kids have made," Watson said. "I think the cops should patrol and do their job instead of everybody having to be in at a certain time. Our parents should decide what time we need to be in."

If a citation is issued, depending on the age of the minor the consequence will be as follows: ages 14 or above the teen will have to see the city judge and pay a fine; if under the age of 14, the parents of the offender will suffer the consequences of a fine.

Hedley plans 57th festival

Hedley will hold its 57th annual Cotton Festival next Friday and Saturday, October 10 and 11.

The activities begin next Friday with the Hedley Lioness Club's Chili and Stew Supper at 5 p.m. followed by a Hoot-N-Nanny at the Lions Den at 6 p.m.

Saturday's activities begin with entertainment by Joe Davis of KLSR radio. The Lioness Quilt Show and the Tractor and Car Show both start at 10 a.m.

Hedley Senior Citizens will serve hamburgers all day and sell tickets on a quilt. Other activities include Bingo at the Senior Citizens Center, a Chicken Drop, Face Painting, and lots of homemade ice cream.

The Lions Club will serve barbecue at 11:30 and sell chances on a bale of cotton.

The kiddie parade begins at 1:30 p.m. followed by the community parade at 2 p.m. Sue and O'Neal Weatherly will serve as the parade marshals this year.

The Hedley School Reunion starts at 3 p.m., and the Hedley Fire Department Auxiliary will sell brisket sandwiches at 4 p.m. at the Lions Den.

Other craft booths are welcome at the Cotton Festival, and there is no charge. Food booths are not allowed.

Comparing Bush policy to Hoover's

By Alan Reynolds, Cato Institute

The Congress appears determined to let Treasury Secretary Paulson do some speculative trading in mortgage-backed securities with $700 billion of borrowed money. Reasonable people have reasonable arguments for and against this idea. But unreasonable people prefer unreasonable arguments, like saying we're in for another Great Depression unless we "do something" right away.

The silliest argument for the plan is to compare our current situation to the Crash of 1929, and then conclude that it was simply government inaction that caused the Great Depression. Senator Chuck Schumer has repeatedly compared the current situation to the stock market crash of 1929 and blamed the Bush team - the most interventionist administration since Richard Nixon - of "doing nothing" just like Herbert Hoover. Several journalists such as Chris Matthews of MSNBC's Hardball have tried to foist some sort of Hoover analogy on both President Bush and Sen. John McCain.

In reality, the Crash of September 1929 had nothing to do with bank runs and failures, which began in October 1930. Besides, we have had little more than a dozen bank failures this year compared with more than 5,000 in the 1930s, and nearly 3,000 in the 1980s.

Far from "doing nothing," Herbert Hoover initiated a violent implosion of world trade and prices by signing the infamous Smoot-Hawley tariff on June 17, 1930. The Commercial and Financial Chronicle then observed "a renewed violent collapse of the stock market." Benjamin Anderson, the chief economist for Citibank at the time, called the draconian tariffs Hoover's "crowning financial folly" and explained why:

"In a world staggering under a load of international debt, which could be carried only if countries under pressure could produce goods and export them to their creditors, we, the great creditor nation of the world, with tariffs already too high, raised our tariffs again ... Protectionism ran wild over the world. Markets were cut off. Trade lines were narrowed. Unemployment in the export industries all over the world grew with great rapidity, and the prices of export commodities ... dropped with ominous rapidity."

In short, Hoover's rush to "do something" soon proved extremely dangerous to the U.S. and world economy. Hoover's trade policy seems like an extreme version of what Barack Obama proposes to do if elected. The same is true of Obama's Hooveresque vision of raising corporate taxes by 25 percent (in the guise of closing loopholes and tax havens), and of trying to raise income, payroll and investment tax rates for those who already bear most of the federal tax burden.

In marked contrast to the world of high finance, the fundamentals of the real economy do appear relatively strong.

At the end of 1931, President Herbert Hoover asked for a temporary tax increase, saying it was "indispensable to the restoration of confidence." Congress went along in June 1932, raising the top income tax rate from 25 percent to 63 percent and quadrupling the lowest tax rate from 1.1 percent to 4 percent. That didn't help confidence or the Treasury. Revenue from the individual income tax dropped from $834 million in 1931 to $427 million in 1932 and $353 million in 1933.

It was Hoover, not FDR, who pushed for the biggest increase in marginal tax rates before or since. And it was Hoover, not FDR, who created the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to make lavish loans to banks and businesses - just as the Bush administration is doing today.

Herbert Hoover said "the economy is fundamentally sound" in 1931 - far too late to make any sense. John McCain said something quite different in Jacksonville, Fla., on Sept. 15 in an effort to be a calming voice during a one-day stock slump (the market ended up that week). He said, "There's been tremendous turmoil in our financial markets and Wall Street and ... people are frightened by these events. Our economy, I think, still the fundamentals of our economy are strong. But these are very, very difficult times. And I promise you, we will never put America in this position again. We will clean up Wall Street. We will reform government."

In marked contrast to the world of high finance, the fundamentals of the real economy do appear relatively strong. The U.S. has not yet experienced a negative real gross domestic product figure this year, yet second-quarter GDP was down 1.2 percent in France, 2 percent in Germany, 3 percent in Japan and 5.5 percent-6 percent in Hong Kong and Singapore.

When it comes to election-year rhetoric from amateur historians like Sen. Schumer, however, the U.S. appears quite weak indeed. Democrats advocating higher tax rates and tariffs in difficult times should not throw Herbert Hoover's name around so carelessly.

Alan Reynolds is a senior fellow with the Cato Institute and the author of Income and Wealth.

Texas can fully recover from storm

The end of a violent storm calms some of our fears, but stirs up a new set of concerns and challenges.

Everywhere I have traveled in the areas struck by Hurricane Ike, I have seen destruction almost beyond belief. There's no question this storm delivered a devastating blow to Southeast and East Texas.

Unfortunately, Ike came on the heels of earlier storms this season, like Hurricane Dolly, which also hurt Texas families and small businesses. Now we see in front of us a job of recovering and rebuilding that will test the best we have to offer.

Positive things already are happening, thanks to the roll-up-your-sleeves-and-get-down-to-work attitude Texans are known for. Thousands, including people from other states, immediately began tackling the jobs of caring for evacuees and survivors, search and rescue efforts, restoring power, and removing wreckage and debris.

One of my highest priorities is to push the federal government and cut through red tape to get the aid Texas needs as fast as possible. Communities in Texas are struggling right now and the federal government needs to be doing everything in its power to help them.

Equally important is making sure that the victims are treated on par with the way victims of Hurricanes Katrina and Rita and other disasters were treated when it comes to federal funding for recovery and rebuilding. We also must ensure the flow of assistance continues steadily and consistently as long as additional needs are uncovered.

Over the past few weeks, I've had several opportunities to visit communities damaged by Ike. I will go back time and time again until the recovery is complete.

I joined U.S. Homeland Security Secretary Michael Chertoff and Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison in surveying the regions that suffered a direct hit. In the following days, President Bush and I got a gut-wrenching look at stricken areas and gathered information from emergency workers on the ground. During my most recent trip, I worked elbow-to-elbow with volunteers and witnessed firsthand the incredible needs and pressures they are facing.

Information from these trips armed me to go back to Washington, D.C. to make the case for the federal assistance Texas needs and deserves. An important step forward came with Senate approval to secure new tax relief provisions for Texas counties devastated by Ike in the tax extenders package. The original package treated Texas unequally compared to flood recovery efforts in the Midwest, so I worked to ensure that Ike victims are entitled to the same benefits as other disaster victims. This bill will extend tax exempt bonds and

Bus improvements can save lives

Each year, millions of Americans climb aboard buses, expecting safe trips across their communities or states. The vast majority of these bus passengers arrive safe and sound at their destination. But this is not always the case because, whether due to mechanical malfunction or driver error, bus accidents do occur, and many of them result in preventable tragedy.

In the past three years, there has been a rash of deadly bus crashes.

In 2005, with Hurricane Rita threatening the Texas Gulf Coast, thousands fled from the storm's path. A busload of nursing home residents evacuated out of Houston, hoping they were safer with every mile placed between them and the hurricane. The trip ended in tragedy when their poorly-maintained bus became engulfed in flames, claiming the lives of 23 elderly citizens.

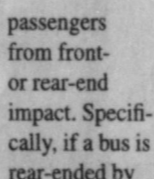

On March 29, 2006, a chartered bus carrying Beaumont's West Brook High School girls soccer team was involved in an accident while traveling to a playoff game. The bus overturned, and two players were ejected from the bus and killed. Several others were severely injured.

On August 8, 2008, 17 Vietnamese Catholics, en route from Houston to a religious festival in Missouri, were killed when their charter bus skidded into a guard rail and toppled onto its side.

Similar deadly crashes have been reported across the country. Many of these accidents are still under investigation, and the factors that caused each crash may vary dramatically. However, one thing is very clear: when a bus rolls over, the passengers on board will likely be injured or even killed.

To help reduce the number of deaths and injuries caused by motorcoach accidents, and to save more families the grief and sadness of losing a loved one, I have joined with Senator Sherrod Brown of Ohio to author a sweeping bus safety bill.

Presently, motorcoach interiors are outfitted with seats designed to protect capitol comment by sen. kay bailey hutchison passengers from front- or rear-end impact. Specifically, if a bus is rear-ended by a tractor trailer while traveling, passengers will lurch into the seat in front of them, which should absorb the force and prevent them from being thrown from their seats.

But, in the case of a side impact or a rollover, passengers are much more vulnerable. When buses are hit from the side, their elongated structures are prone to twist, causing the windows to pop out and increasing the risk of passenger ejection from the vehicle. If a bus rolls over, the frame is likely to crumple because there is little structural support for the roof aside from the windows.

The National Transportation Safety Board has long called for substantial safety upgrades within the motorcoach industry, but its recommendations have languished for years without federal attention or action. Congress has been aware of safety gaps on buses for years, but the problem has been ignored.

Our legislation would direct the U.S. Department of Transportation to low income housing tax credits to help Texans rebuild their communities, homes and businesses.

In addition, working with my colleagues in the Texas Congressional delegation, we were successful in securing supplemental disaster funding for Texas, including vital Community Development Block Grant funding to help rebuild housing stock and repair damaged public infrastructure. Victims of both Hurricane Ike and Hurricane Dolly will be eligible for this critical assistance.

Clearly, the lessons of Katrina and Rita were taken to heart before, during and after Ike. I commend Governor Rick Perry and his team, as well as mayors, county judges, other local officials and their staffs, first responders and charitable organizations for the preparations that kept millions of Texans safe from harm. Because of their tireless efforts, we are certainly on the right path to making Texas whole again.

There is more work, however, to be done to fully recover from all storms this season - particularly Ike and Dolly - but I know Texas is up to the task. History will undoubtedly remember their fury and destruction. But more importantly, it will record Texas' great can-do spirit and the unprecedented outpouring of compassion and assistance that followed. Once the rebuilding and recovery is complete, it's my hope that the memories that endure are those of volunteerism and Texans helping their neighbors in need.

SWCDs convene community natural resources meeting

The USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) and the Donley County Soil & Water Conservation District invite the public and any agencies with an interest in conservation issues to participate in a Local Work Group meeting to be held in the RFO Classroom in Courson RFO Center at Clarendon College.

This meeting will be on October 14 at 2:00 pm.

The purpose of this meeting is to receive input from a broad range of local agencies, organizations, businesses, and individuals that have an interest in natural resource conditions and needs in Donley County.

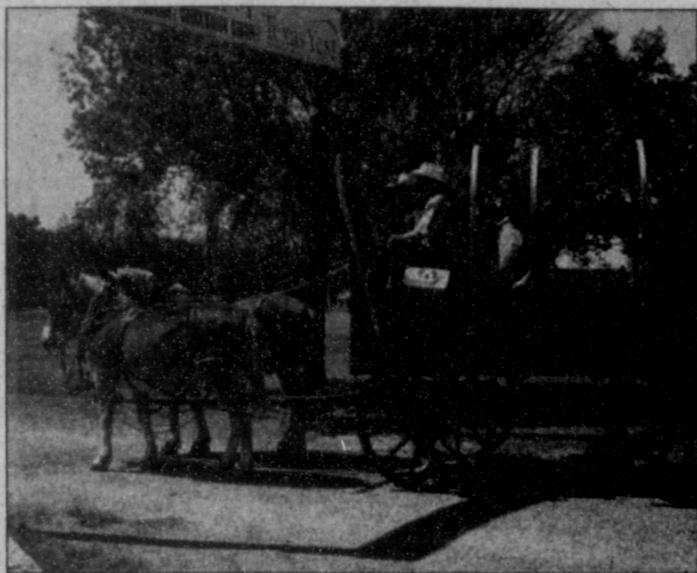

Input received will allow the Local Work Group to make recommendations on resource concerns to be addressed, eligible practices, and ranking for county based funding. These recommendations will be used in implementing the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other conservation programs offered by NRCS.

The 2008 Farm Bill stipulates that conservation programs must continue to be locally led. Through stakeholder meetings, the public is given an opportunity to help local conservation leaders set program priorities. These meetings are open to the public.

For more information about this meeting, call the USDA Service Center office in Clarendon at (806) 874-3561.

The Clarendon Lions Club held its regular Tuesday noon meeting September 30, 2008, with Boss Lion Cameron Word in charge.

We had 22 members, Sweetheart Audrey Jones, and three guests - Laci Jeffers, guest of Lion E. Wayne Barbee; Ashlee Estlack, guest of Lion Roger Estlack; and Larry Norton, who presented our program.

Norton is the director of the Childress Economic Development Corp., and he discussed the development of renewable energy and how it is important to this area. He said in the coming years more than 200,000 wind turbines will be built to meet the nation's energy needs, and the Great Plains states are the best place for those to be positioned. Wind and solar energy development will come right through this area, he said.

CHS ex-students enjoy 2008 homecoming

The Clarendon High School ex-students kicked off Homecoming September 19 with the Bronco Pep Rally. The high school gym was packed with present and past CHS students, and there was lots of cheering. The "Big Hit" paddle was signed, and Head Coach Gary Jack introduced guest speaker and former Clarendon Broncho Kenneth King. There was also a visit from the Joker, who was sent on his way by our very own Sparky. A crowd of exes enjoyed watching the Broncos beat Gruver. Lots of compliments were passed on the talent we have and how quick and fast our Bronco team is. The former students also enjoyed the performance of the Bronco Band at halftime and the crowning of the Homecoming Queen. The cheerleaders and the flag corps also did a great job.

A little reminiscing went on in the stands of how we used to have a pep squad and twirlers, how the queen's court used to be escorted by football players, and how Bronco was spelled with an "H." Immediately following the football game, about 250 CHS exes met at the Clarendon Community Center. Everyone enjoyed eating, visiting, looking at old high school pictures, and listening to music of the present and years gone by provided by Bill

Smith. The organizers of the reunion hope everyone who attended enjoyed the reunion as much as they did planning it. They recognized CHS for all its cooperation. The Clarendon Enterprise, the decorating crew, the food committee, the picture committee, and everyone who took time to contact classmates. Without these people, there would not have been a 2008 Homecoming Reunion.

Tralee Crisis Center plans Family violence awareness activities

PAMPA-Tralee Crisis Center joins crisis intervention agencies throughout Texas and the nation in observing October as Domestic Violence Awareness Month. Tralee Crisis Center staff, board, and volunteers plan to observe National Domestic Violence Awareness Month by emphasizing the important roles of men and the community as a whole in ending abuse within the family. For the sixth consecutive year, Tralee Crisis Center will sponsor the Honorable Man March in Pampa. Each year, a man is chosen from nominations submitted by family and friends. The winner will be someone who lives a violence-free life and embodies the qualities of an "honorable man". The March begins in front of the Pampa City Hall at 5:30, Tuesday, October 7. Everyone who supports the concept of honorable men and ending domestic violence are encouraged to attend and participate in the Honorable Man March. For more information, contact Tralee Crisis Center at 806-669-1131. Tralee Crisis Center offers crisis intervention and 24-hour safe shelter for victims of domestic violence, sexual assault, and other crimes in eight counties of the eastern Texas Panhandle: Carson, Childress, Collingsworth, Donley, Gray, Hemphill, Roberts, and Wheeler. Howardwick firemen to hold memorial service

Have you registered to vote for our next president? Texas law says you must register to vote at least 30 days before an election, but this year we have a two-day grace period because that date is on the weekend. November 4 is the election, and the last day to register is Monday, October 6. If you are 18 years old, are not a convicted felon, or have not been declared mentally incapacitated, by law, you may vote. If you have moved within the past two years and have not updated your voter information, you should do so by October 6. It's easy. Go to Wilma Lindley in the Courthouse Annex, and she will help. It is very important to register and then vote. The Howardwick Fire Department invites everyone to attend the National Fallen Firefighters Foundation Memorial service to be held Friday, October 3, 2008, at 9:00 a.m. at Howardwick City Hall. Join them in honoring the 118 brave men and women who gave their lives protecting us in 2007. Margaret Pettit is scheduled for hip replacement surgery this week at BSA Hospital. This will add more metal to her body with both knees replaced and a pacemaker. She said just call her "Shake, Rattle and Roll." Good luck, Margaret. Charles and Nancy Davis have another new great-grandson born September 27 in Canyon. His name is Gavin Davis Usleton. He weighed

8 lbs., 7 oz. His parents are Sean and Becky Usleton and has two brothers, Blake and Brody. This is the sixth great-grandson along with one great-granddaughter for the Davis family, and another girl is due in November. What fun Christmas will be with all these babies! The Friends of the Library continue to collect items to send to our troops with another shipment planned in October. Collection boxes marked "Support our Troops" and a list of requested items are in most stores around town and at the library. Any help will be appreciated.

Hedley ready for big festival

Well, folks, we want to invite everyone to come on down for our 57th Annual Cotton Festival on Friday and Saturday, October 10 and 11, 2008. Hope to see you there. We are having some highway lights put up on the highway from our city limit sign to the other end. It's a wonderful new project, and we hope it helps to light up Hedley. The Hedley Lions Club has been trying to "Clean Up Hedley" by getting some old buildings torn down and fixing some things up. We applaud them for trying to better our town.

Extension Service moves from 1880 to computer age

By MaryRuth Bishop, County Agent

Back in the 1880s, agricultural researchers at land-grant colleges complained about the great numbers of individual letters they were answering about their research.

Then in 1914, Congress addressed the need to distribute research results with the passage of the Smith-Lever Act creating the Cooperative Extension Service and its system of informal education. Since then Cooperative Extension offices can now be found in almost all of the more than 3,000 counties throughout the nation.

Approximately 7 million young people across America are members of Cooperative Extension's 4-H program. The following people were all 4-H members: Faith Hill, Jacqueline Kennedy-Onassis, Pat Nixon, Gardfield creator Jim Davis, Al Gore, Dolly Parton, Johnny Carson, and Johnny Cash.

The value of agricultural research and extension to U.S. economic development and to the well-being of the American people has been recognized since the founding of this country. George Washington was the first to make a formal proposal for establishing a federal agency devoted to agriculture. Extension has always used innovative methods for distributing research-based information. The University of Georgia had a "College on Wheels" that carried faculty and exhibits across the state from 1908 through 1917.

The goals for Cooperative Extension have evolved from agriculture and natural resources to programs focused on family and consumer sciences, youth development, overall improvement of a state's economy, and efficient use of community and personal resources.

Farming is the second most dangerous occupation in the United States. Cooperative Extension is addressing community and environmental health concerns related to agriculture, including food safety, health care access and delivery, and air and water quality through the new field of agromedicine.

Cooperative Extension is helping producers grow and sell more specialty crops ranging from exotic potatoes to specialty melons and medicinal herbs. Growers who produce these high-value crops are able to diversify and develop new income sources.

In Donley County Youth Ag Day is sponsored by Texas Farm Bureau and Donley County Extension. Youth learn about the agriculture aspect of our food. In many urban cities children do understand the importance of agriculture to our general population.

Value-added agriculture is the processing, packaging, and/or marketing of agricultural commodities and farm resources in a way that allows a greater portion of the revenue derived from the product to be earned by the producer which ultimately comes back into the county revenue through individual spending.

The Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program (EFNEP) is a unique program for adults and youth that uses peer education to help those with limited resources gain knowledge and skills to improve their family's diet and overall nutrition.

In Texas and Donley County, the program is called Better Living for Texans and serves our community at various levels. Through our two Senior Citizens Centers to the Headstart classroom, citizens are encouraged to make healthy food choices for themselves and their families.

Staying with the times and a world of computers, individuals now have county agents and professors at their finger tips through the "eXtension" website.

eXtension is an interactive learning environment delivering the best, most researched knowledge from the smartest land-grant university minds across America. eXtension connects knowledge consumers with knowledge providers - experts who know their subject matter inside out.

eXtension is unlike any other search engine or information-based website. It's a space where university content providers can gather and produce new educational and information resources on wide-ranging topics.

Because it's available to students, researchers, clinicians, professors, as well as the general public, at any time from any Internet connection, eXtension helps solve real-life problems in real time.

To ask a question or find out more information on current research, go to <http://www.extension.org/>

Agrosecurity is a new field of study that deals with natural, accidental, or intentional threats to food and agricultural systems. The spread of invasive species can be a threat to agrosecurity.

Dickey Library presents 100 years of political cartoon art

Clarendon College is proud to present "Cartooning Texas: One Hundred Years of Cartoon Art in the Lone Star State," a ten panel exhibit made available through Humanities Texas.

Based on a traveling exhibition created by Maury Forman and Robert A. Calvert, this exhibit reminds us that events of great concern can vanish from memory in a few short years - only to resurface again and again.

"The pen is mightier than the politician." When President Gerald Ford made that remark in 1975, he was speaking of the pen that draws political cartoons. Through the pen, the cartoonist serves as social critic, reporter, and historian rolled into one. Panel topics include: Perils and Rewards of Woman Suffrage, Governor v. Legislature, No Pass/No-play, and much more.

The exhibit will be on display through the month of October in the Vera Dial Dickey Library on the Clarendon College campus during regular library hours.

The library encourages the community to stop by and view this most timely display. A book with a compilation of cartoons and explanations of the stories, written by Mr. Foreman and Mr. Calvert, accompanies the exhibit. Additional educational materials will also be available.

For more information, contact Ann Huey, at 874-3571, ext. 118.

October honors Co-ops

Cooperative businesses generate hundreds of thousands of jobs and billions in income for their communities while also supporting local causes ranging from education to the environment, according to a series of case studies compiled to help mark October as National Co-op Month.

The 20-plus pages of case studies, put together by the National Co-op Month Planning Committee, show that co-ops take a back seat to no other sector when it comes to making economic and charitable contributions to their communities.

Among the highlights: Nearly 3,000 farmer cooperatives account for as many as 300,000 jobs nationwide and a total payroll of more than $8 billion. Some 270 local, consumer-owned telecommunications cooperatives employ an average of 47 people each and generate more than $2 billion in revenues annually.

It is no coincidence that co-ops show a special loyalty to their communities.

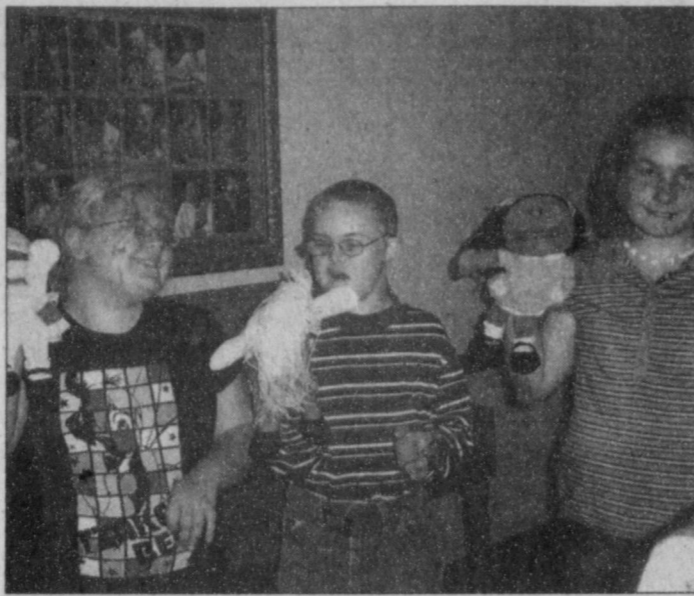

Cooperatives serve 120 million members, or four in 10 Americans. They fall into four categories: consumer, producer, worker, and purchasing/shared services. They operate in virtually every industry and range in size from small storefronts to Fortune 500 companies.

Despite this diversity, co-ops have some things in common. They are owned and democratically controlled by the people who use their services or buy their goods. They are motivated by service to their members, not by profit.

Community is not just where we work; it's why we work. Cooperatives are motivated to serve their members, not outside investors. Doing that means we must also serve the communities in which our members live, work and play.

Co-op Month has been celebrated in one form or another since 1930. Since 1971, it has been a joint project of the major co-op groups represented on the Co-op Month Planning Committee.

The committee contracts with the National Cooperative Business Association to coordinate work on Co-op Month.

4-H Spotlight: The Puppetry Project

By Cire Jauregui

This week's 4-H Spotlight is on the puppetry project group.

On Thursday, September 25, 2008, the puppetry group had its first meeting. There were three 4-H members who attended to the meeting.

At the meeting the 4-H members learned where puppets originated, how to work with puppets whose mouths move, and how to work with puppets whose mouths don't move.

The next meeting will be on Thursday, October 2, 2008.

JV Broncos win over Memphis

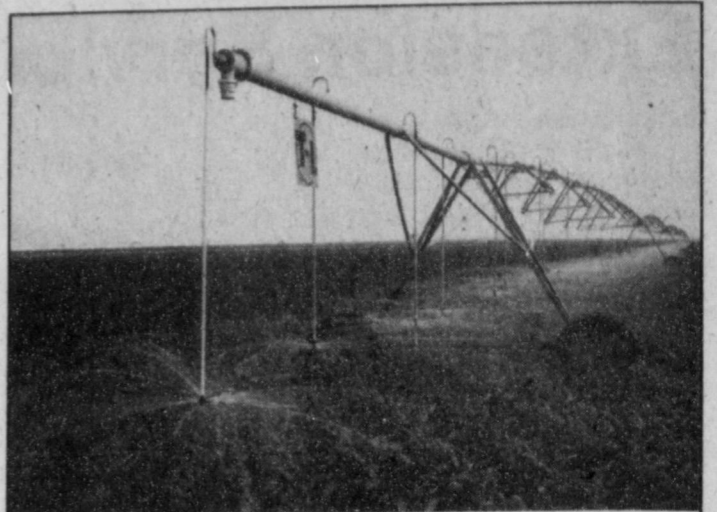

The Bronco junior varsity is continuing their great season with a big win over Memphis 32-22.

According to coach Brad Elam, the Broncos played hard and were well on their way to a huge win, but they faltered slightly before the break.

"We started out well, scoring 26 points in the first half," Elam said. "But we gave up 22 points including a touchdown the last second of the half."

Wesley Williams once again ran through the defense as he had five touchdowns on the night. He had one 50-yard run, three 40-yard runs, and crossed the goal line from one yard out to lead the Broncos to the win. Brayden Phillips helped in the scoring as he added a two-point conversion.

The Broncos will have an open week this week, and the junior high will play at Wellington October 2 at 5:00 p.m.

Broncos suffer first loss of season to Sunray

By Sandy Anderberg

Senior play caller Nathan Gribble suffered a season-ending injury Friday night at Sunray in the first quarter of the game. He was hit hard at his quarterback spot, and the result was a broken leg.

Gribble has been doing an outstanding job at quarterback this year and was looking to have a great season with the Broncos.

He will be missed, but the Broncos are more determined than ever to make up for his injury and get back on the winning track.

"It was a big blow to lose Nathan," head coach Gary Jack said. "He was maturing into a first rate quarterback, and we will definitely miss him, but we'll be okay. We will have to dig down deep and possibly move some people around, but we have an extra week to prepare."

Despite the 25-15 loss, the Broncos played hard and held Sunray scoreless the second half. They got on the board in the first quarter when Aaron Gordon connected on a 29-yard field goal. Alton Gaines came back in the second period and added six points on a 19-yard run. Then Gordon hooked up with quarterback Johnny Gaines for a 13-yard pass for six.

"They struck quick," Jack said. "We were behind 25-9 at the end of the half. It was tough to overcome, but we played aggressive and had chances to get back in there and try for the win. We got the best of them in the second half, but it is hard to recover against a good team."

Sophomore Johnny Gaines stepped in to fill the quarterback spot and, according to Jack, did a good job.

"He was pretty much thrown in the fire," Jack said. "But he did a good job, and he'll just keep getting better. He made some good plays for us."

Jesus Hernandez had a great game, according to Jack.

"Jesus had an exceptionally good game," Jack said. "He was a bright spot in the game and made good catches and tackles for us. I think it was the best night he's had."

Jack also recognized Mike Crump, who had 15 tackles and caused one fumble, and Chris Crump, who had 11 tackles. Aaron Gordon and Alton Gaines also stepped up their play.

"There were just a lot of guys who stepped up and played hard for us," Jack said.

The Broncos will have an open week this week and will resume play October 10 at Shamrock at 7:30 p.m. This will be their first district game.

Drugs in the News

Flare-Ups of Gout Reduced

In early testing, researchers are encouraged from the results a drug that was used in persons with a history of gout. Gout occurs when urate crystals accumulate around joints and is often experienced first in the big toe. This condition is actually a form of arthritis and is called gouty arthritis. It most often causes sudden and severe attacks of pain, redness, and tenderness in the joints.

The drug tested is called Arcalyst (rilonacept), an inhibitor of interleukin-1, a body protein that drives inflammation in a number of conditions including gout. The group receiving Arcalyst was tested against a group that received placebo in an attempt to reduce the so called "gout flare" that occurs in persons taking allopurinol. A uric acid lowering drug, allopurinol can sometimes trigger a painful flare that is reportedly caused by the dissolving of uric acid crystals in the body prior to therapy. Researchers report that individuals in this 12 week study who received Arcalyst experienced an 81% reduction in gout flares compared to those who received the placebo. More studies are planned.

Lady Bulldogs playing strong

By Sandy Anderberg

The Clarendon College Lady Bulldogs had a busy weekend on the road playing three different teams with favorable results.

They took on Ranger College on Friday and won in five games at 25-21, 17-25, 16-25, 25-16, and 15-9. Angie Gasio and Danielle Nelms dominated at the net with 14 kills for Gasio and 12 kills for Nelms. Kaila Johnson helped them with 23 assists, and Reese Hogg had 15 digs while Micah Labbe had 13 digs.

The second game for the ladies was at Richland College. CC swept three games at 25-15, 25-17, and 25-17. Nelms had nine kills for the game, and Gasio and Tiana Manumia had seven kills each. Johnson had 12 assists, and Hogg had eight digs.

The Lady Bulldogs played North Lake in the last of the three and lost in four games. Gasio slammed 15 kills, and Johnson helped with 15 assists. Nahe Keanainana had 14 assists while Labbe and Hogg had 14 defensive digs each.

"The girls played well on defense and struggled a bit with hitting in the game against North Lake," coach Kelci Newton said. "Overall I am happy with the girls' play and see it as preparation for our game against Frank Phillips on Wednesday."

The ladies will play at Borger at 7:00 p.m. and will be at home October 3 when they play Redlands Community College at 5:00 p.m. They will travel to Vernon October 4 before playing Midland at home October 8. On October 10, the ladies will play Dodge City and Eastfield College beginning at 12:00 p.m. at the Bulldog Gymnasium.

Owls play real six-man game

By Tangela Copelin

When the Owls hit the field on Friday night, it was with only six players suited up to play ball. Seth Altman, Danny Garcia, Will Monroe, Evan Thompson, Tanner Gross, and Reid Copelin were the only Owl players who were able to play due to disciplinary actions that suspended the other team members not allowing them to be a part of the Owl team on Friday night.

The Cougars quickly took advantage of the Owls disadvantage to score on the first play of the game. The Owls were able to come back and score when Copelin hit Monroe for a short pass with Monroe being tackled just inches short of the goal line. From there, Garcia punched in the TD, but his PAT attempt was not good. After that, Thompson, Gross, and Altman all did some tough blocking, but the Owls were unable to stop the Cougars who rapidly ran up the score on the Owls. Copelin intercepted the ball once giving the Owls a chance to score, but unfortunately the Owls fell short of a first down and turned the ball over to the Cougars.

Despite this drawback the Owl team managed to hold the Ft. Elliott Cougars until the third quarter before they were shutdown due to the six-man football 45-point rule.

The Owls will have an open week this week and will take on the Groom Tigers in their first district game on Oct. 10th at Groom. Game time will be 7:30.

Final Friday night scramble played at CCC

By Sandy Anderberg

Last Friday night was the last nine-hole scramble held for the summer and was won by the team of Doug Kidd, Chris Moore, S.J. Johnson, and Gary Roye at five under par.

Three other teams participated in the event. Larry Lincycumb's net score of 63 was good enough to top the field in the weekly men's game on Wednesday. Ellis Knight was second at 67, and R.O. Johnson and Travis Wilson tied for third with a net 68.

The six-person Skins game will be held Sunday, October 12. The tournament is full, but monitors are still needed. You may call the Pro Shop for more information.

Brush control meeting to be at Bairfield Center

A brush management symposium for High Plains and Rolling Plains landowners is scheduled for October 15 in Clarendon, said Texas AgriLife Extension Service county agents.

The High Plains Brush Management Symposium will begin with registration at 8 a.m. in the Clarendon College Bairfield Activity Center, said Brandon Dukes, AgriLife Extension agricultural agent in Roberts County. Six continuing education units will be offered at the day-long symposium sponsored by the AgriLife Extension offices in the region. It will conclude at 4:30 p.m.

Dow AgroSciences, DuPont, the Panhandle Plains Land Bank, Precision Brush Control, and other industry supporters will sponsor the noon meal.

This symposium will provide a comprehensive look at brush management practices, both chemical and mechanical, as well as provide economic perspectives on controlling brush, said Leonard Haynes, AgriLife Extension agricultural agent in Donley County.

Many leading experts in the industry will be on hand to answer questions and provide insight into the very best brush management strategies, Haynes said.

The Environmental Quality Incentives Program will be discussed, as well as: mechanical and chemical control of mesquite and cedar; precision brush management using global information systems; brush management in conservation reserve program lands; yucca, cholla and broom snakeweed control; herbicide management of sand shinoak and other brush species; prescribed burning; biological control of salt cedar; and utilizing mesquite as a biofuel.

Advanced registration is requested by October 7. To register or get more information, contact Haynes at 806-874-2141 or lhaynes@ag.tamu.edu.

Conservation District holding tree sale

The Donley County Soil & Water Conservation District has received a great selection list of trees that are available for fall planting.

The best time of the year to do this type of planting is September, October and November. You might think of fall as the time that trees begin to go dormant and no planting should be taking place.

On the contrary, the fall season is the perfect time to plant trees, as the cool weather conditions allow the trees to establish roots in the new location before the ground freezes and winter sets in. It also prepares the tree for the spring and summer heat in order to stimulate new top growth.

A big benefit to fall planting is that the plant requires less water. The days are increasingly shorter and cooler in the fall, thus the trees are photosynthesizing less, using less water. However, remember that any newly established tree will require a good soaking, but will need supplemental watering in the fall. Fall planting allows everyone to spread out the work load over the year, instead of rushing and trying to accomplish everything in the spring and summer.

Trees will range in size from one gallon to 30 gallon size and vary in price. Anyone who wants to place an order do so before Wednesday, October 15. This will allow time for the trees to be ordered, picked up, and made available to the buyer.

If you are interested in buying a tree, contact Brenda Nowlin at 806-874-3561 Ext. 3 or come by 321 S. Sully, Clarendon, TX.
