Sales tax rebates up in Clarendon

AUSTIN - Texas Comptroller Carole Keeton Rylander last week delivered a total of $184 million in monthly sales tax payments to 1,097 Texas cities and 118 counties.

June sales tax rebates are down slightly compared to June 1998. However, total payments to cities and counties for January through June 1999 are running 7.1 percent ahead of last year.

Locally, the City of Clarendon bucked the state trend and gained 1.88 percent over this time last year. The total rebate was $15,829.48. Hedley, on the other hand, fell 20.55 percent for a rebate of $402.42, and Howardwick dropped 85.20 percent for a total of $218.49.

June sales tax rebates include local sales taxes collected in April and reported to the comptroller in May.

High speed collision traps three in vehicle

A collision on Hwy 287 last Tuesday, June 8, left a mother and two daughters trapped inside their vehicle until emergency personnel could free them.

According to reports, Darla Ann Kovacic was traveling east on US 287 in a '95 Dodge Neon at about 4:45 p.m. when she attempted to turn left near Amigo's Mexican Restaurant. Her vehicle was struck by a '92 Oldsmobile Cutless Supreme driven by 20-year-old Ebony Butler of Clarendon.

Kovacic's vehicle then impacted with a highline pole, trapping the 37-year-old woman and her two daughters, six-year-old Kyla and ten-year-old Amanda, inside the vehicle.

Emergency personnel from the Clarendon Volunteer Fire Dept. and the Associated Ambulance Authority managed to free the woman and her daughters by peeling the roof off the car.

Kovacic and her oldest daughter were hospitalized at Northwest Texas Hospital with serious injuries. Kovacic's youngest daughter was treated and released.

Neither Butler nor any of his three passengers were seriously injured. Traveling with him were Tremon Brown, 16; Justin Hernandez, 16; and Brian Jenkins, 17, all of Memphis.

Officials at the Donley County Sheriff's Office would not say how fast Butler was travelling, but one deputy told the Amarillo Daily News last week that Butler's speed was estimated to be 84 miles per hour. The posted speed limit in that part of town is 45 mph.

An investigation is on going in the accident.

"We had a lot of good help from the EMS, the Clarendon Volunteer Fire Dept., and the DPS," said Donley County Sheriff Jimmy Thompson, "and we appreciate it all."

Kovacic is from Canyon Lake, and her husband works for Gilbert Network Services, a construction company that is currently in Clarendon.

City adopts paving plan for 43 blocks

The Clarendon Board of Aldermen adopted an ambitious paving plan for this summer during their regular meeting last Tuesday, June 8.

The paving committee, made up of Aldermen James Owens, John Tom Morrow, and Mac Stavenhagen, drove around the city and made a map of which streets were paved and which were unpaved. The map, as presented during the board meeting, clearly marked paved streets, brick streets, unpaved streets, and state highways and highlighted streets to be paved.

The committee set the goal of paving 43 blocks in five phases this year. It was mentioned, however, that the fifth phase of paving might have to wait until next summer.

Phase one of the project finishes up street work that was started last summer. Front Street is being paved from Jeffers to Carhart. After this phase, Gorst Street will be paved from Front to White, and Carhart will be paved from Front to Rosenfield. Committee Chairman James Owens said he expects phase one to be completed this week.

Phase two is concentrated near the City Park and Little League fields. Parks Street will be paved from Sixth Street up the hill to Barcus. And Sixth Street will be paved from Parks to Kearney.

Phase three consists of three blocks of paving along Faker Street from Fourth Street to Hwy 70.

Phase four begins near the Saints' Roost Museum with two blocks of paving along Cooke Street from Hawley to Goodnight. Gorst Street will be paved from Wood Avenue to Browning, and Goodnight Street will be paved between Browning and Cooke. Browning Boulevard will be paved from Jackson to Gorst.

Phase five moves up into the west side of town. Leroy Street is set to be paved from Fifth Street to Eighth Street. Bond Street will be paved from Sixth to Eighth, and Seventh Street will be paved from Bond to Cottage.

Chairman James Owens told the board that the committee selected the Plans shaping up for July 4th celebration

Plans are shaping up for Clarendon's 121st Annual Saints' Roost Celebration, and there are plenty of activities for young and old to enjoy.

Since the Fourth of July falls on Sunday this year, the bulk of 1999's activities will be on Saturday, July 3.

A week prior to the big celebration, the Clarendon-Donley County Chamber of Commerce will host the Amarillo Rattlers traveling hockey team with a free clinic for 40 kids age four to 14. The Rattlers will be at the B&R Thriftway parking lot at 10 a.m. on June 26.

The celebration gets into full swing with the Clarendon Outdoor Entertainment Association holding three nights of rodeo at 7:45 p.m. at the arena Thursday - Saturday, July 1-3. A dance will follow the rodeo each night.

On Friday, July 2, a Games Fair will be held across from the county jail at 9 a.m. This is followed by the Kiddie Bicycle Parade at 10 a.m. on Kearney Street. The annual Depression Lunch will start at 11 a.m.

Henson's Annual Turtle Race starts at 3 p.m. on July 2. Contact Henson's to enter your fastest terrapin today.

Friday night, the CHS Class of 1989 will hold their ten-year reunion at the Clarendon Country Club.

Saturday's events begin with Breakfast at the VFW Post from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m. The Games Fair continues at 9 a.m. across from the jail, and the Country Craft Fair and Senior Citizens Bake Sale begins at 10 a.m. on the Courthouse Square. The Old Settlers Reunion will begin at 10:15 a.m.

Serving at the Shriners Barbecue will begin at 11 a.m. and go until the food is gone.

Tickets may be purchased from any Shriner, and all profits will benefit the Shrine's crippled children's hospital.

The Clarendon Lions Club will host a "Cow Patty Bingo" at 1 p.m.

The parade will start at 2 p.m. with singer Michael Martin Murphy doing the honors of serving as Parade Marshall. Line up for the parade will be at 12:30 p.m. at the City Park.

Saturday evening at 5 p.m., the Saints' Roost Museum will hold an Open House and will serve free Sloppy Joes. Donations will be accepted to help fund the museum's activities.

Architech to meet with county, public concerning courthouse

Architect John Volz will meet with the Donley County Commissioners and all interested parties Thursday, June 17, at 6:30 p.m. in the courtroom.

Volz will discuss the renovation of the Courthouse under the state's preservation plan for historic courthouses.

Volz and two other architects from the Austin-based Volz and Associates Inc. have been in town all this week examining the 1891 courthouse in preparation for writing a Master Plan for the structure.

"The design of this courthouse is spectacular, and it is one of the finest late 19th century courthouses in the state," said Volz. "The quality of the architecture is exceptional."

The architects are looking at every element of the courthouse from the roof to the basement. Volz is planning to bring in a structural engineer to examine the roof trusses and another engineer to look at the electrical, mechanical, and plumbing systems.

Samples of the stonework are expected to be sent to a petrologist in Austin to be analyzed by X-ray defraction. The results of that analysis will be sent to a specialist in New York who will pinpoint the cause of the stone's deterioration and recommend a method of preservation.

The Texas Legislature recently budgeted $50 million for this biennium to be used for courthouse restorations around the state. Volz said first round grants for planning will be issued in November under Gov. George W. Bush's plan for courthouse restorations.

Individuals interested in the preservation and restoration of the Courthouse are invited to attend Thursday's meeting.

City's street plan worthy of praise

"What's he going to say about us this week?" I'm sure that's a question that's been in the minds of several Clarendon Aldermen. But after two unfavorable editorials, it's time to point out something they did right. The Board of Aldermen last week approved a plan for paving several streets this year. That in and of itself is nothing new. The city has been paving streets right along for several years now. What makes this year different is the amount of forethought they put into it. A select committee of aldermen - James Owens, John Tom Morrow, and Mac Stavenhagen - took a city map and carefully documented the city's streets. They marked the paved streets, the brick streets, the dirt streets, and the state highways. Then they carefully mapped out which streets should be paved this year and prioritized them. In all, they marked 43 blocks to be paved in five phases. Furthermore, the work is spread pretty evenly in all parts of town so that a maximum number of citizens will benefit from the paving. This paving plan should serve as a model for paving - and other decisions - in the future with the city's needs carefully studied and priorities set. The next time you see one of your city fathers, give him a pat on the back for this one. Good job, guys.

A modest proposal

As much as I love my alma mater, there were a few times at Texas Tech that I felt more like a number than a person. Sitting in one class with 600 students and six teaching assistants, I was sure that the professor would only call me by my Social Security number rather than my name. Fortunately, most of my classes weren't like that. And even while in the really big classes I didn't have it as bad as the students of the Randolph County School District in West Virginia. According to this month's REASON magazine, that school district has decided to require all students - and teachers - to wear ID tags with a photo and barcode. Students who refuse to wear the tags face disciplinary action, and uppity faculty members can lose their jobs if they don't comply with the rule. Officials of the West Virginia school reportedly say that the tags promote safety. If you think this is just some trendy thing they're doing back east, think again. An article in the AMARILLO DAILY NEWS several months ago featured similar tags that were being worn by students in Hereford. I would like to propose an alternative method for identifying students. Making people wear tags is a flawed idea for several reasons. First, the tag can become lost. People can also switch tags or make fake tags. People can also exercise free will and simply refuse to wear the tags. In order to improve the tagging method, we need look no further than Adolf Hitler. While the Jews were in his custody, Hitler hit upon the ingenious solution of tattooing numbers on the wrists of his "guests." Our society could update that idea, tattoo a barcode on children's arms when they enter kindergarten. In this way, a computer database could be created that would follow people for their entire lives. Medical records, criminal history, financial records, and educational records could all be kept track of easily. As a bonus, new ID tags would not have to be created every so many years. This would reduce the expense to the taxpayers. I'm sure some left-leaning people in the Department of Education could improve on this idea. Perhaps they could invent microchip to be implanted beneath the skin of babies when they are born. That would provide a more comprehensive database, as the chip would follow a person from the crib to the coffin. I'll leave all the details to those better suited to such topics than I am. Perhaps the Social Security Administration could take a look at it. Any way, that's a modest proposal.

Quotable

"Society in every state is a blessing, but government, even its best state, is but a necessary evil; in its worst state an intolerable one."

— Thomas Paine, Common Sense

Woodland creatures attack columnist

I have been invaded. I have been violated. I am miserable. It all started with a little fishing excursion. I remembered my hat and sunscreen. Even had on long sleeves, pants, and knee-high boots. Frankly, I was more worried about the rattlesnakes and copperheads that inhabit the tall grass near the creek.

However, another woodland creature viciously attacked me.

I have chiggers. Lots and lots and lots of chiggers. I feel like I was invited to a chigger family reunion, only to be their main dish.

They have made themselves at home all over my body. It feels like the chiggers are building condos between my toes, apartments behind my knees, and luxury homes near my waist. There are so many chiggers on my trunk that I swear they're building new roads and digging additional sewer lines to accommodate the newcomers.

I didn't realize I had caught anything else but fish. But, after I had settled into bed, I sensed something wasn't right. Drifting off, the sensation began. It was a frantic rush. Where do I scratch first?

I knew two hands would not be enough, so I woke up my husband. He groggily agreed to scratch my back while I tackled the chiggers on my arms, feet, and middle. As good as it felt, this method wasn't working.

on the Mark with Christi Ross

I asked my husband to get up and help me. Still half-asleep, he stumbled along and led me to the bathroom.

Searching the medicine cabinet, my heart sank. No Calamine lotion, cortisone cream, or anything. The only thing I could find was fingernail polish.

Twenty minutes later, I looked like I had psychedelic chicken pox. I didn't have any clear polish, but instead found blue, silver, taupe, and magenta colored polish. I knew I had been saving those near-empty bottles for something.

The polish's burning sensation numbed the need to itch, and that was all I needed.

The next day I had to go uptown for Calamine lotion. As I pulled on to Main Street, a driver resembling Mr. Magoo nearly ran me over. I could only imagine what the ambulance crew would have thought of me:

Walkie-Talkie Conversation: "Call the Centers for Hazardous Control and send clothing for hazardous situations. We have a female with a multitude of colored spots. Looks worse than a rash."

She's having convulsions, too. No drool, just trying to scratch herself to death.

Anyway, I've now got my Calamine lotion and a whole box of bug spray. And I'm trying not to scratch those chiggers that are in places we can't mention.

One such chigger got me in trouble at church last Sunday.

Brother Joe was leading us in song, and the whole congregation was standing and singing.

At the second verse, I had need to scratch began. I guess I had been sitting on that particular chigger; and when I stood up, he must have caught his breath and gone back to work.

I started tapping my toes, trying to distract my urge to itch. Then, I was swaying; and before the song was over, I guess I was in a full-fledge dance... in the second pew of the First Baptist Church.

People stared and a few even gasped at my actions. I just smiled back and hoped they thought I had a little extra "Holy Spirit" in me, rather than a chigger on my backside.

So, if you see me around, please don't stare. Although I'm funny looking with my pink itch lotion, funky fingernail polish spots and this little twitch I get when my back itches, I am a woman in pain. I'm suffering from a bad case of chiggers.

Look at home to change kids' hearts

This week, the House of Representatives is scheduled to debate the issue of gun control and whether more laws are needed to help prevent tragedies like the school shootings in Littleton from happening again.

Nearly everyone agrees that we've got a problem. More and more parents are sending their children off to class each morning worried about their safety. But with thousands of gun control laws already on the books, I have real doubts that passing a new one is going to have any real effect.

In fact, I worry that Congress would send the wrong signal by making it seem

that passing new gun control laws is the answer to all of our problems. The fact is, it's not. The problem is much deeper than that, and it goes to the heart of a young person's relationship with his family, his friends, himself, and God.

We need to be worrying more about what's in a young person's heart than what's in his hands. In this, there is only so much government can do. Yes, Congress can encourage the media and entertainment industry to tone down their content and make it less violent. And yes, we can pass an amendment to permit voluntary prayer in public schools - as I think we should.

But when you get down to it, the real responsibility in all this lies with the parent, and the real work begins at home. Regardless of your position on gun control, that's something on which we can all agree. It's also something we should all try to achieve.

Shareware, freeware are valuable PC tools

By Eric Spellmann
Some people call me "cheap." I prefer to think of myself as "thrifty." With all the talk of downloadable "shareware" on the Internet, little thought is given to the amazing bounty of "freeware" available.

First, let's get some definitions out of the way. Shareware: You download a piece of software to your computer. You may try it for free for a period of time. After that designated time, you are asked to either pay for it or erase it from your computer. Shareware allows you to "try before you buy." Compare that to today's commercial software market. If you break the shrinkwrap on a store-bought piece of software, it's yours; no refunds, no exchanges.

Freeware, on the other hand, is just what it sounds like: free. The author creates the program and then distributes it on the Net for anyone to use for as long as they like. These software authors write other software for pay. Little utilities they created for their own use often end up in the public domain. They don't mind. In fact, they enjoy the notoriety.

Where do you find all of this free software? I have three great sites you need to bookmark: Freeware Files (<http://freewarefiles.com>), Moochers (<http://www.moochers.com>), and No-Nags (<http://www.nonags.com>).

The Freeware Files site is designed to be easily navigated.

Now that you have some sites to visit, what should you download? Without a doubt, go and grab ZipCentral (<http://zipcentral.iscool.net>). Grab this free compression/decompression program. It works just like WinZip, without the pricetag! I use it on my system and have not had any problems. If you work with, create, or need to view ZIP files, you need this utility.

MP3 is really taking off! Most people, when they first start playing around with online music, download a program called Winamp (<http://www.winamp.com>). However, I found another great MP3 player: Sonique (<http://www.sonique.com>). What got my attention was its incredible "look." In my opinion, it even beats Winamp in sound quality.

In the "games" department, check out Furcadia (<http://www.realtime.net/furcadia>). Similar to Ultima Online (<http://www.ultimaonline.com>), this game allows you to "walk" around an imaginary, and very graphical world. You can talk to others or join them in an adventure. Unlike UO, though, this game is free.

Backing up my computer has never been my strong point. I'll do it when I think about it. Today, you have another option: @Backup (<http://backup.com>). Through this service, you can backup around 10 megabytes of data automatically and have it securely stored on another server somewhere. If something happens to your computer, your data is still safe. If you need more space, they charge a nominal charge. The program is free. The basic service is free.

Have you ever received a picture via e-mail and haven't been able to view it? The number of graphic formats is huge. Having one program to view them all would be great. Now you can have it, for free! IrFanView (<http://members.home.com/rsimmons/irfanview>) allows you to view any image in any format. It supports the following graphic formats: JPG/JPEG, GIF, BMP, DIB, RLE, PCX, PNG, TIFF, TGA, RAS/SUN, ICO, AVI, WAV, MID, RMI, WMF, EMF, PBM, PGM, PPM, IFF/LBM, PSD, CPT, MPG/MPEG, MOV and Photo-C.

All of the previous programs were found on the freeware sites I mentioned earlier. These were just a sampling of what you'll find.

Finally, a little advice about freeware: Since you aren't paying anything for it, don't expect a lot of technical support if something goes wrong. After all, the author is not being compensated for his work. Second, be sure and e-mail the author and tell him that you enjoy his software. Communication from users is the only reward he receives in his endeavor.

If you spend a little bit of time and effort, you can find a freeware-equivalent to most shareware (or payware) available. Have fun in your search!
See you in Cyberspace!

Cattle drive at Giles is reminiscent of old days

If you haven't visited the Rowe Cemetery lately, you should go out. It looks real nice. The Hedley American Legion places American flags on the veterans' graves each Memorial Day. This year O'Neill Weatherly was joined by Connie DeBord, Jack Moreman, and Randy and Rhonda Shaw. O'Neill told me they placed one hundred, eighty flags. We should appreciate their efforts and be proud of the work they do. I do and am.

J.M. and Ida Lou Dickson visited with their son and daughter-in-law, Johnny and Eunice Dickson, recently. Johnny and Eunice are getting ready to move into their newly remodeled home on Bailey Street next door to my mother.

Donald and Emma Lou Bramblett of Amarillo, Billy and Artie Lou

Bramblett of Lewisville, and Tony and Nell Bramblett of Arkansas visited their sister, Juanita Brown, last week. Her daughter and son-in-law Marie and R.L. Norton of White Deer also visited.

Al and Dorothy Conatser and daughter, Barbara of Delta, Colorado, spent some time with his brother and sister-in-law, Johnny and Dorine Conatser recently. Lori and Anthony Guerra of Memphis have a new baby boy. Devon Ray was born May 4 and weighed four pounds, twelve ounces. Lori is one of the children my family was fortunate to have in our home when she was small.

Bobby Hoggart of Suisun, California, visited his mother, Mildred Hoggart, recently.

and Marlee Lemm of Wright, Minnesota.

Patsy Speer and Kathy were in Burleson recently for her grandson, Christopher Speer's graduation. He's the son of Jackie and Shirley Speer. They also visited with two-month old Emory Makayla Speer, Patsy's first great grand baby.

Betty Hoggart is enjoying most of her family. Sisters Ruby Lovelady of Phoenix, Mae and Travis Griffin of Globe, brothers-in-law Ernest Hoggart of Phoenix, Freddy and Beverly Hoggart of Havasu City, Arizona, and sister-in-law Allae Altaman of Round

Rock gathered in Betty's home for a mini-reunion. Betty's brother, Jim Kennedy, and his sons joined them Wednesday for dinner.

I wished I had a camera and knew how to use it Thursday. My son, Keith, Mike and Lori Wallendorf, and part of their kids had a cattle drive. They moved some cattle from my house to a pasture at Giles. It was almost like the old days. Except for the fences on either side of the road and they only drove them about a mile and a half and there were only about thirty cows and their calves. Instead of beans over a campfire, we had hamburgers and French fries at Rhema Ranch Cafe with Lloyd and Pearlina Riddle-spurger.

If something interesting happens or someone important visits, call me. My number is 856-5919.

Howardwick group makes trip to Branson

A group of Howardwick residents recently returned from a trip to Branson, MO. Ken and Elizabeth Stone, Frankie Miller, Peggy Gaston, Melvin and Ruth Mills, Sharon Thomas, John McVickers, and Betty and Joe McCutchen joined residents of Clarendon and the surrounding area for the three day excursion.

While in Branson they attended five shows starring Moe Bandy, Bobby Vinton, Shoji Tabucki, Dino and Legends. The group also helped Melvin and Ruth Mills celebrate their 63rd wedding anniversary! Betty McCutchen stated, "We ate a lot of good food and shared fun and laughter. It was a great trip!" The trip was sponsored by the Community Bank of Clarendon.

With Father's Day coming up, I want to salute all the men out there who are fathers, are grandfathers, would like to be fathers and who had fathers! Sometimes, I question God's wisdom in the creation of men. They are always saying how hard it is to understand women, when in fact, it is they who are a big puzzle!

What does a man do if the tires on his pick-up truck go one mile over the warranty? He runs right out and purchases a new set - can't be seen running around in a pick-up with slightly worn tires. That, of course, wouldn't be smart. The truck (or car whichever applies) must be clean, waxed, and lint free. Woe to the woman who borrows the truck for her grocery shopping day, only to return it and leave the grocery flyer lying on the front seat! Those trucks are cared for, loved, honored, and cherished - till death they do part - hopefully the truck's death. This same man will wear socks with so many holes in them that half his foot sticks out. He will seriously consider putting on dirty underwear he fished out of the clothes-hamper rather than do a load of laundry or ask (beg) his wife to do it. He comes out of the bedroom ready for church, wearing navy slacks and a brown coat.

This fellow shows up an hour early for the mechanic to change the oil in the car. The "3,000-mile maintenance check up" is done six days ahead of time, and the salesman at the auto-parts store knows him on a first name basis. But, if you send this same man to the store for a gallon of milk, 20 minutes before company is due, don't expect him back until the rest of you are halfway through the meal! Not only that, he probably won't have the milk with him. He will, however, bring a grocery bag in. It will contain Oreo Cookies, Butterfinger candy bars, a roll of Duct Tape, six bunches of over-ripe Bananas (25 cents a bunch!), and a box of partially thawed Popsicles. At least he was in the refrigerated section of the store at one time. He doesn't know why it took so long, or why he forgot the milk. By then you want to forget the milk and rummage in the cabinet under the sink for that bottle of whiskey that's been there for eight years.

These are the kinds of things that make me wonder what God was thinking about when He created men. Just when I think I can't take it anymore, one of them will do something wonderful.

My husband removed a dead mouse from under the bathroom sink, cleaned up the droppings, and scrubbed the spot - then sweetly came to get me from out in the yard where I had been waiting. He changed tires for the kids and helped them wash their cars - after working a 12-hour day on the highways. He's gone to pick up a child at 3:00 a.m., whose car wouldn't start and he was stuck at the 24-hour burger joint where he worked. When a daughter got that first job and drew the night shift, he parked outside at midnight, watching from the shadows to make sure she got to her car and home safely. He never told her about that.

My own Dad did a lot of the same things. After I was grown and living on my own, I saw him a couple of times, just driving down my street. Now I know he was "keeping watch". He came over when I called him and killed a wasp for me. I was 31 years old at the time, but that didn't matter to him - I was his little girl. He took me horseback riding and taught me to fly a kite.

Daddy's been gone over a year now, and I wish I could have just one more Father's Day to tell him thank-you for all those little things...those quiet things that were so important.

This Sunday I will tell my husband that I think he is a great father and a wonderful man. Matter of fact - I don't think I will wait until Sunday. I'll tell him now, while I still can.

Horse Liniment Eases Arthritis Pain

OCALA, FL -- An ingredient derived from hot peppers that decreases inflammation in racehorse's legs, is now recognized as safe and effective for human use. The ingredient has been formulated into a product called ARTH-Rx™ and comes in a strength designed for humans. Researchers are excited and say the formula can relieve arthritis pain for millions.

Developed by the Phillips Gulf Corporation, ARTH-Rx is a breakthrough in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, tendonitis, backache and more.

Although the mechanism by which ARTH-Rx works to relieve pain is not totally clear, scientists suggest that pain is relieved because ARTH-Rx intercepts the messenger substance that sends pain signals to the brain.

ARTH-Rx is available in a convenient roll-on applicator without a prescription. According to a spokesperson for the company, due to the overwhelming demand for ARTH-Rx, supplies are sometimes limited. ARTH-Rx can also be ordered by calling 1-800-729-8446. © 1999 PGC. Baylor dietitian: Beef can be part of a healthy diet HOUSTON — Maintaining a heart-healthy diet does not necessarily mean eliminating beef from the menu.

The key is knowing how to select and prepare it, says dietitian Lynne Scott, director of the Diet Modification Clinic at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

"We have found that it is okay to incorporate beef into your diet as long as it is lean," Scott said.

To be considered lean, three ounces of cooked meat should have less than nine grams of fat. As a rule of thumb, three ounces is about the same size as a deck of playing cards.

Scott suggests choosing cuts that have most of the fat trimmed and very little marbling. Cuts with the word "loin" in their names, like tenderloin, top loin and sirloin, are usually leaner choices.

The grade of meat is also important. "Select" is the leanest grade, followed by "choice" and "prime", which is the highest in fat.

"The myth about beef not being healthy started about 10 to 15 years ago when most of the beef available in supermarkets was very fatty," Scott said. "Now, we don't see as much prime beef in the supermarkets, and an effort is being made to give us a wider selection."

While all beef contains saturated fat, the amount is often unnecessarily increased during preparation.

Scott offers some simple advice for making beef part of a heart-healthy diet: trim any visible fat before cooking; grill, broil or roast the meat; do not use fat, like butter or shortening, when cooking; sauté in a coated skillet instead of using fat; and serve low-fat side dishes with the meal.

Although it is easy to control preparations at home, do not use eating out as an excuse to settle for beef dishes that are high in fat. Scott recommends asking the chef to trim the extra fat and grill it with very little or no fat.

While beef can be part of a healthy diet, Scott reminds diners to limit portions. The American Heart Association recommends eating no more than 6 ounces of cooked meat per day.

THC assessing the state of preservation in Texas

AUSTIN — The Texas Historical Commission (THC) is continuing to work face-to-face with citizens across the state to enhance preservation efforts and ensure protection of Texas' historic resources. The THC's state-wide survey will determine what preservation challenges and goals communities have for the next five years and how the THC can better serve them.

The first phase, holding 23 public meetings across the state, is complete. Larry Oaks, executive director of the THC, estimates he and THC staff have spoken with more than 1,000 people from at least 110 counties in the first 20 State of the State of Preservation meetings. The next phase of the project is the development of a written survey, which will be distributed to a sample size of the preservation community and scientifically analyzed. For more information, contact Frances Rickard at 512/463-5851.

City: Board adopts 1999 paving proposal, changes dog policies

streets to be paved based on traffic and need. He said the streets that were chosen carry a great deal of traffic and that the committee's proposal attempts to tie together portions of streets which have already been paved.

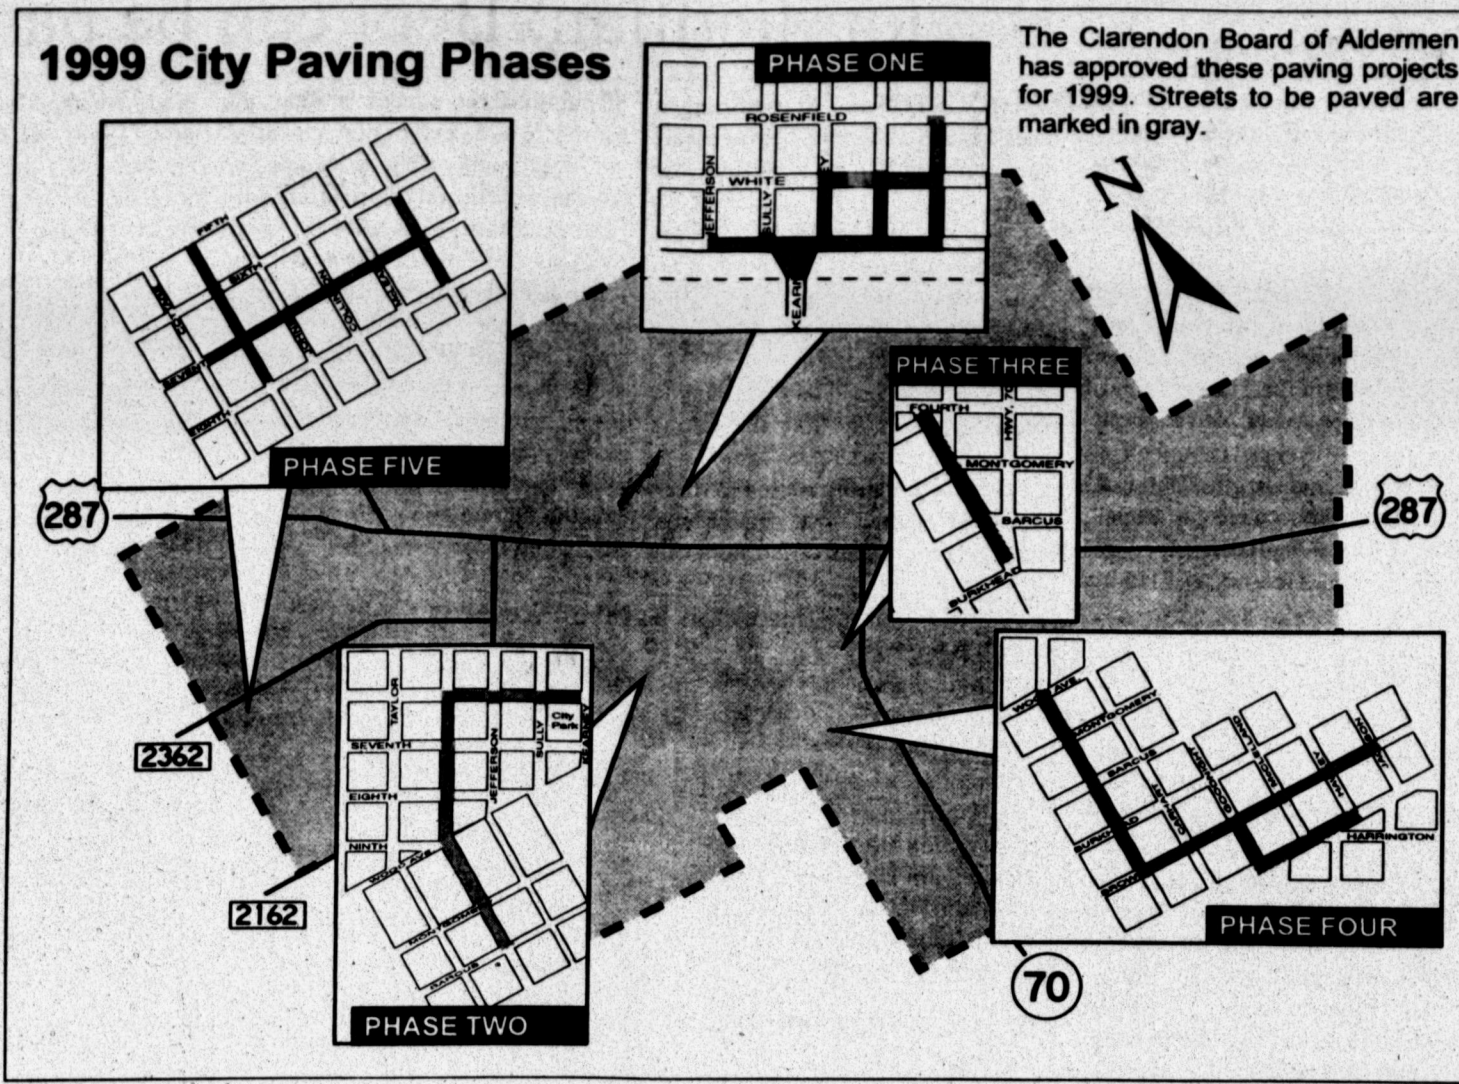

Also at last week's meeting, Earl Hartman requested stop signs be put on Allen Street at Sixth, Seventh, and Eighth streets. The board agreed to the request.

Dr. Guy Ellis addressed the board concerning charges and procedures for holding rabid animals at the Clarendon Veterinary Hospital. The aldermen approved a motion to have the Veterinary Hospital bill the city for animals taken to them by the Animal Control Officers or other city employees. The city will then bill the owners of the animals.

An animal that bites a person must be quarantined for 10 days for rabies, and the test results must be received before the animal can be released. If the animal is not picked up after 10 days, it will be transferred to the city's pens until picked up by the owner or until the holding time is up. City holding time is five days for collared and tagged dogs and three days for untagged dogs.

In other city business, the board voted to fix the alley between First and Second streets along Kearney and Gorst streets. Greenbelt Water Authority was granted use of the city's sewer plant, and the board decided to get an estimate to improve flood structures south of town.

1999 City Paving Phases

The Clarendon Board of Aldermen has approved these paving projects for 1999. Streets to be paved are marked in gray.

School trustees hold regular meeting

The Clarendon CISD Board of Trustees met in regular session June 10, 1999, at 7 p.m. in the Administration Building.

Stan Shelton discussed the issue of starting baseball as a sport at CISD.

The 1999-2000 Student & Code of Conduct Handbooks for the high school, junior high, and elementary were adopted.

The trustees approved a motion to contract with Blackwell & Associates as the student accident insurance provider for 1999-2000 for the PPO plan at a cost of $14,870 and the catastrophic option costing $454.

A bid of $1,010.80 was accepted to replace the blinds in the home-making room.

Dale A. Swan was selected to audit the district's 1998-1999 finances.

Contracts were offered to Tammi Lewis, Ferlin Seaman, and Melody Hysinger for the coming year. The board agreed to give Mr. Jeffers the authority to hire an English teacher before the next meeting, and the board accepted the resignation of Pamela Osuna.

Museum to commemorate Adobe Walls battle

On June 26 and 27, the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum in Canyon will commemorate the 125th anniversary of the Second Battle of Adobe Walls. Programming will include a lecture presented on current Red River War research and a bus trip to tour the actual battle site.

Beginning in June and continuing throughout the summer, the Museum will display artifacts recovered from the battle site. An art exhibit will provide artistic interpretations of the conflict.

The lecture entitled "Archeological Investigations of the Red River War of 1874-1875 in the Texas Panhandle" will be presented on Saturday, June 26, at 7:00 p.m. in the Museum's Hazlewood Lecture Hall. Featured speaker will be Mr. Brett Curse, an archeologist with the Texas Historical Commission in Austin. He will discuss ongoing field investigations and recent data regarding Red River War sites in several counties in the Texas Panhandle. There is no charge for the lecture and the public is invited to attend.

A bus tour and interpretive summary at the Adobe Walls site is planned on Sunday, June 27. The trip will begin at the PPHM at 8:00 a.m. with an orientation and tour of the Adobe Walls exhibit and Red River War artwork. At Adobe Walls, stew-

Landmark and is on the National Register of Historic Places. The exhibit will examine the archeological process and how it has assisted with interpreting and understanding the information available from historical records. The exhibit will begin in June and continue through November.

The Art of Adobe Walls exhibit will open June 12 and continue through September 5. Interpretive paintings and drawings of Red River War sites, participants, and events by Ben Carlton Mead, Harold Bugbee, John Elliott Jenkins, and others from the Society's collection and corporate and private lenders will be exhibited in the Alcove Gallery.

The DCSC Tour of Homes will feature the lovely residence of Dr. and Mrs. Howard on June 19. The house is located at 1722 Farm Road 2362 and is the former home of the Charles Deyhle, Jr. family.

CC Ag Dept. attends national show

Although for most June means summer vacations, the Clarendon College agriculture department is busy representing the college at various functions throughout the state.
 The Clarendon College Agriculture Department officiated the judging contest for the National Maine Angou Association on June 15 in Wichita Falls.
 Fourteen students and ex-students selected classes and listened to oral reasons at the national contest. Cynthia Ewing of the CC Business Department assisted in tabulation of scores.

Forty-eight states were represented at the national junior show where members have the opportunity to exhibit animals, participate in the judging contest, and develop leadership skills.
 Maine Angou is a French breed of cattle, which has grown in popularity over the past 10-15 years, according to Jerry Hawkins, CC agriculture chair.
 Hawkins will also be representing CC at the Jr. Hereford Field Day in Morgan, TX, on June 17 and 18.

Steer validation set for next week

By Leon J. Church, County Agent
 All 4-H and FFA members who wish to show market steers during the 1999 - 2000 livestock show season must have their market steers validated with the official Texas Steer Validation. All steers that are to be shown in any show in Texas are required to go through this validation process.
 The steer validation in Donley County will be June 23 at the Community Center grounds in Clarendon. The center is located directly behind Chamberlain Motor Company. Validation will held between 6:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. All members and parents/guardians are expected to be present so that appropriate documentation paperwork can be completed.
 The validation process includes ear tags, tattoo in the ear, and a nose print. This procedure is completed on each animal to verify ownership and to ensure that ownership occurs by the end of June.
 Additional information may be obtained by contacting the Donley County Extension Office at (806) 874-2141.
