Campaigns can help keep Texas beautiful

TxDOT would like to remind Texans that under state law, it is a class C misdemeanor to place any sign on state highway right of way. The penalty for violating this law is a fine of up to $500 per sign.

The law does not just apply to campaign signs. It is illegal to put any sign, including garage sale and business signs on state highway right of way without authorization.

It is legal to place a campaign sign on private property with the owner's permission; however, they must meet some basic criteria. Signs may be placed as early as 90 days before an election, but no earlier. Signs must be removed within 10 days after the election.

For more information about this or any other TxDOT project call Barbara Seal, TxDOT Public Information Officer at 940-937-7145.

Lions Club planning dove hunt fundraiser

The Clarendon Lions Club will hold a benefit Dove Hunt September 8 and 9.

The cost of the hunt is $25 per gun per day, and hunters and guides will meet at the Lions Hall at 4 p.m. each day.

For more information or to sign up, contact Mark C. White at Community Bank at 874-2080.

Proceeds from the hunt go to support the charitable activities of the Lions Club.

Bush sends letters to firemen

Three hometown heroes of the March 12 I-40 Wildfire received letters of commendation from President George W. Bush this week, and the wife of one of those heroes got an even bigger surprise.

Lee Ann Cook wrote the president about a month ago in anticipation of last Friday's "Firefighters' Night" at the Howardwick Friendship Club. There her husband, Jeff Cook; Joey Garcia; and the late James McMorries were going to be honored with the Medal of Valor for their heroic efforts during the I-40 fire.

In her letter, Cook described how the men were injured when their fire truck rolled over, how they had been visited in the hospital by Texas Governor Rick Perry, and how one of them - McMorries - had ultimately succumbed to his injuries. She also mentioned the August 18 "Firefighters' Night" and asked the president to come to Howardwick and present the medals himself.

"If you don't ask, you won't receive," Cook said of her attitude when mailing the letter.

She went on about her business and hoped for some kind of response. It came August 11 while she was going about the daily chores of life and in a frazzled mood. She was not particularly happy when her cell phone rang and considered not answering it, but she did and said, "Hello."

"Lee Ann, this is George," the voice on the other end said.

"Yeah?" she responded.

"George Bush," the voice said.

"Yes, sir!" Cook exclaimed as the realization hit her.

"My whole disposition changed, and I set up straight while talking on the phone," Cook said this week.

The president explained that he had received her letter but, because of the situation in the Middle East, he wouldn't be able to attend on August 18. He would, however, send the men something, which he hoped would arrive in time.

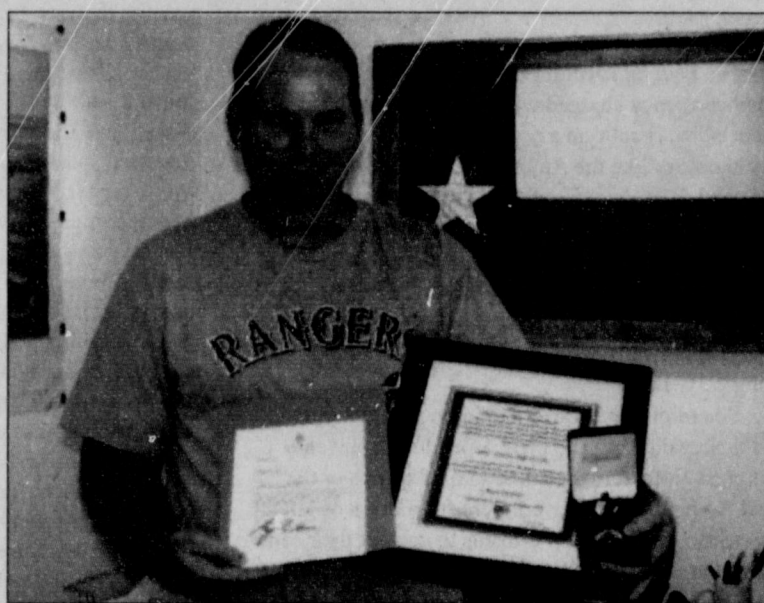

Cook kept the news to herself and waited. Nothing arrived by last Friday, but on Monday she received three personal letters - one for her husband, one for Garcia, and one for McMorries' widow, Tanis.

"The thing that struck me is that they are all personal letters," Cook said. "It's not like someone set a form in front of him. I think his concern was sincere."

Jeff Cook was surprised by his letter and surprised by what his wife had accomplished, but she says she's glad to do it.

"They're heroes," she said, "and they need to be recognized as such."

Friday's Friendship Club meeting recognized all the firemen of Donley County as heroes. In addition to the three Medal of Valor presentations, two other Howardwick firemen were given the Medal of Honor for their lifesaving efforts on behalf of Garcia and McMorries. Kenny Bridges started unprotected CPR on McMorries to revive him and keep him alive, and Stan Couch held traction on Garcia's leg for 20 to 30 minutes to keep him from bleeding to death.

Now, more than five months after the I-40 fire, Garcia is reportedly expected to get to return to work this week. Cook faces one more surgery and should get to return to work in six months.

PRPC unveils shelter grant program

AMARILLO - The Panhandle Regional Planning Commission has announced the start of their Residential Safe Room Rebate Programs.

Earlier this year, the PRPC submitted application for Safe Room Rebate program funding to the Governor's Division of Emergency Management (GDEM). GDEM is responsible for administering the program in Texas, but the funding actually originates with the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). The Safe Room program is one of the grants available under FEMA's family of Mitigation Grant Programs.

In setting the program guidelines for Texas, GDEM has determined that the Safe Room Program will provide funding to single-family home owners to cover one-half the cost of installing tornado shelters/safe rooms in new or existing homes up to a maximum rebate amount of $2,500 per unit installed. GDEM will also require that each installed unit has been certified as meeting the standards set for tornado shelters by the National Storm Shelter Association (NSSA) before the rebate can be paid.

PRPC has been granted funding to install 750 shelters. Those units are intended for homes within the 26-county area of the Panhandle located outside of the City of Amarillo.

For information about the PRPC's program and application process, contact Stefan Bressler at 372-3381.

CC Regents okay $6.9 million budget

The Clarendon College Board of Regents approved a $6.9 million budget for fiscal year 2006-2007 during their regular meeting last Thursday.

The total budget is about $400,000 above the current budget with additional revenues coming from an expected higher enrollment and higher tuition and fees. The budget also calls for increases in expenses for natural gas and transportation fuels.

Ad valorem taxes by residents of the Clarendon College District, which is Donley County, accounts for an estimated $350,000. Of that, $34,099 is collected from a tax levy on personal property, such as cars, boats, and planes.

"Essentially it amounts to one salary position," CC President Myles Shelton said.

Local property taxes go toward the maintenance and operation of the college's physical plant. The budget calls for utilities at the college to run $385,000 in the next fiscal year.

Shelton said the Concerned Citizens of Donley County will address the regents and present a petition in a called meeting this Friday at noon.

In other business, regents approved purchasing six new 14-passenger busses to replace the college's fleet of 15-passenger vans. Insuring those vans has become difficult for community colleges across the state, and the new busses will be safer for students. The purchase will cost $347,106 and will be paid out over seven years.

The board approved a new transportation policy that calls for a reimbursement rate of 44.5 cents per mile and for van usage to be reduced to nine passengers until the new busses are ready.

Regents accepted a bid on delinquent property as presented by the Donley Appraisal District.

The board also voted to have a surplus inventory auction in the late fall or early spring to clear out old computers, furniture, and vehicles.

A motion was approved to accept the 2006-2007 publications, including the policy manual, personnel manual, catalog, and student handbook.

In personnel matters, the board ratified the employment of Angie Robinson as interim dean of students, Kelly Vonner as enrollment services counselor, Robert Taylor as accounting and economics instructor, and Tony Baird as groundskeeper.

The board also accepted the resignation of groundskeeper Ronnie Lewis.

During his administrative report, Shelton announced that his office and most administrative offices have been relocated to the renovated west end of the Administration Building. Student services personnel now occupy the offices in the east end of the building.

Jobless rate edges down

AUSTIN - Unemployment in Donley County dropped in July after edging upward in June, according to information released this week by the Texas Workforce Commission.

Seasonally non-adjusted data from TWC showed 1,810 employed out of a workforce of 1,901, putting the local unemployment rate at 4.8 percent, which is down from 4.5 percent in June.

The July data shows 91 people looking for work, which is down slightly from 100 last month.

Texas increased by 15,700 jobs in July and 230,300 jobs over the last 12 months. Texas employers have added jobs for 22 consecutive months and 35 of the last 36 months, for a total of 632,100 jobs since July 2003. The July seasonally adjusted unemployment rate rose slightly to 5.2 percent.

"Steady job growth continues to be the hallmark of the Texas labor market," said Texas Workforce Commission (TWC) Chair Diane Rath.

"Uninterrupted job growth for nearly two years has contributed significantly to economic growth across the state, while providing more employment opportunities for all Texans."

Job growth in Texas, at 2.4 percent over the last 12 months, continues to exceed growth for the nation, which currently stands at 1.3 percent for the same period. Similarly, over-the-month job growth in Texas of 0.2 percent is double the U.S. rate of 0.1 percent.

"Sustained job growth bodes well for Texas businesses as they continue to expand services and production," said TWC Commissioner Representing Employers Ron Lehman. "Continuing the trend of past months, nine major industries have experienced growth over the year, several of those at a 3.0 percent growth rate or higher."

Initial claims for unemployment compensation in July were 57,894, down 13.6 percent from July 2005 and 27.5 percent since July 2004.

Remember lessons of September 11th

By US Sen. John Cornyn

Our country will soon observe the fifth anniversary of the September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks that claimed more than 3,000 innocent American lives. That was a day that changed America, perhaps forever.

Over those five years, we have lost the feeling of national unity we generated in the immediate aftermath of the assault on our soil. But it's important that we do not lose sight of the lessons we've learned, or should have learned, from that tragic day.

As the U.S. has emerged as the world's beacon for individual freedom, our enemies have learned they cannot defeat the U.S. military on an open battlefield. They know their only hope is the short attention span of the American people.

We're a peace-loving people, and we become impatient with war and its costs.

It is now increasingly apparent that the war on terrorism is not a conventional contest. It is instead a guerrilla action, a war of attrition, a test that requires not only strength, but national will. The war on terrorism is similar to the Cold War, which required vigilance and commitment over three generations before we prevailed.

Our military has done an outstanding job delivering justice to al Qaeda operatives from Afghanistan to Iraq over the past five years. However, it would be foolhardy to believe that the threat of Islamic fascism has passed.

This is a conflict deeply rooted in the ruthless and repeated actions of a global, extremist movement that has hijacked one of the world's leading religions to advance their imperialistic and anti-democratic views through any and all violent means possible. If successful, they would oppress millions of peaceful Muslims and operate as an exporter of acts of terrorism against the rest of the world.

There should be no doubt that al Qaeda's goal is the destruction of the United States, and any nation that upholds freedom and individual liberties. We do not seek war, but we understand that sometimes war must be fought - and won. We are now in such a time.

Our responsibility to our children and grandchildren is to see this war through. Even if we have a healthy debate on how best to defend America and defeat terrorism, we should always agree that we must win this war.

We have no excuse if we forget the lessons of 9-11. There are constant reminders available about the consequences of failure. In the last few months, several critically-acclaimed movies have brought the horror of that day home again to us all.

One film, "World Trade Center," centers on two Port Authority Police first responders who were trapped under the "pile," the burning rubble of Towers 1 and 2, for 12 hours. Their stories movingly remind us of what these heroes experienced on that terrible day. And it reminds us of the ways this tragedy touched us all.

Earlier this year, two films depicting the gut-wrenching last hours of United Flight 93 were also released. This was the hijacked flight, believed to be aimed at the U.S. Capitol, that went down in rural Pennsylvania as brave crew and passengers fought the terrorists.

And if we needed any more reminders of the continuing threat, British authorities this month broke up a plot to plant hard-to-detect explosives in several U.S.-bound jumbo jets flying out of London. Those fanatic plotters may be in custody, but the threat continues.

I believe that we must combat Islamic fascism worldwide by supporting vigorously those who advocate democracy and human rights in the troubled areas of the world where terrorism breeds.

Freedom is the only long-term antidote to the poison being spread by these terrorists.

Over 100 years ago, the philosopher George Santayana noted: "Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it." Our battle against al Qaeda and related terrorist operations promises to be long, and taxing and costly in terms of blood and treasure. But the cost of forgetting the lessons of 9-11 would be much higher.

guest commentary

FEC panel should fix free speech

By John Samples

The Federal Election Commission, the six-member agency charged with implementing campaign finance law, is split on a proposal to allow grassroots organizations like the American Civil Liberties Union and pro-life groups to run ads lobbying their fellow citizens. The change, which would take effect immediately, would set out conditions under which groups could lobby Congress without running afoul of the McCain-Feingold law. Members of the Commission, three Republicans and three Democrats, could divide along party lines.

You might be surprised to learn that lobbying like this is illegal at all. The First Amendment prevents Congress from abridging freedom of speech or the right "to petition the government for redress of grievances." So urging fellow citizens to contact their senators about issues on which you feel strongly seems like a fundamental right. But there are caveats.

In 2004, Wisconsin Right to Life, a pro-life organization, produced several television ads appealing to Wisconsin residents to ask their senators not to filibuster President Bush's judicial nominees. One of those senators, Russell Feingold, was running for re-election in 2004, which meant—under the McCain-Feingold law, co-sponsored by Feingold himself—that airing the ads would have been illegal.

The same year, the ACLU sponsored radio ads opposing parts of a homeland security bill that affected immigrants. If those ads had been run in Wisconsin and had mentioned Feingold, they too would have been illegal.

How could this be? In 2002, McCain-Feingold stipulated that broadcast ads that mentioned a candidate for federal office less than two months before a general election were subject to federal campaign finance law.

Though they retained some First Amendment rights, labor unions and corporations have been prohibited for some time from contributing directly to candidates for federal office. Until 2002, they like everyone else had a right to sponsor ads concerning public issues and run them at a time of their choosing. Not surprisingly, they ran many of their ads near election day.

And why shouldn't they? The public debates that inform voter choice inevitably involve issues and candidates. Much of the advertising blocked by McCain-Feingold—though hardly all—reflected poorly on incumbent members of Congress. Without such criticism and the debates it engenders, elections would hardly have any point.

Members of Congress, however, do not take threats to their re-election lightly. In passing McCain-Feingold, they required labor unions, corporations, and other groups to stop funding ads that threatened members of Congress at the moment the ads mattered most.

Sadly, the U.S. Supreme Court upheld this blow to free speech in a 2003 ruling that left groups like WRTL and the ACLU in the same boat as unions and corporations.

In spite of their desire to deflect criticism, a majority of Congressmen would probably support exemptions for the speech of groups like WRTL and the ACLU. Vermont senator James Jeffords, who wrote part of McCain-Feingold, stated in 2002 that it "will not affect the ability of any organization to urge grassroots contacts with lawmakers on upcoming votes."

The law already has certain exemptions for news stories, commentaries and editorials, as well as speech on the Internet. Grassroots lobbying of the public, however, is not exempt. It should be.

Campaign finance laws are often intended to help or hurt political parties or sets of candidates seeking office. In votes on matters of procedure, the FEC sometimes splits along party lines. In this case, partisan concerns are irrelevant. As the examples of the WRTL and ACLU show, the benefits of freeing up grassroots lobbying will fall across the political spectrum.

Let's not forget what is at stake here. A Republican member of the FEC, Hans A. von Spakovsky, noted recently that "the right of citizens to petition the government was deemed so fundamental and of such central importance that it formed the basis for the American Revolution." Indeed, the right is older than the United States itself. The 1688 Declaration of Rights in England insisted upon the people's right to petition king and parliament for redress of grievances.

Many Americans supported McCain-Feingold in the hope that it would prevent corruption of politics. Their concern is understandable. However, efforts to educate citizens on the issues facing them can hardly corrupt our political life. To the contrary, those efforts make our political decisions more informed. Like citizens, grassroots groups have a right to petition the government, and the FEC should vote to restore it.

Courthouses keep Texas history alive

Texas has the most vivid history of any state in the nation. Stories about the heroes of the Texas Revolution, the Battle of the Alamo, and the six flags that have represented our state are well known by Texans young and old. Much of our history is also reflected in county courthouses, which are true Texas treasures. These enduring landmarks possess significant intrinsic value, and Texas has made a priority of preserving our heritage with quality restoration.

Local activities have long revolved around town squares, and many courthouses can trace their roots to the early years of our state - a time when the county courthouse was a symbol of prosperity and progress for a growing area. As the main location for business and trade, courthouses were pivotal in the economic development and expansion of many Texas communities.

Designation of the county seat has always been a measure of prestige and honor. In fact, feuds over county seat locations were common during the settlement of Texas. Once the community was chosen, courthouses were placed in prominent locations on public lands typically donated by the town's founders.

The many changes Texas has experienced over the years are apparent in the variety of our courthouses. The architecture of these buildings reflects the attitudes of local communities, with each style expressing origin and tastes of the earliest Texans. The first courthouses were typically small, wooden structures patterned after buildings in the South. This style gave way to larger more substantial courthouses made of brick or stone, which displayed the Greek Revival details that were popular before the Civil War. Courthouses began to transition from ornate Victorian to Romanesque revival styles based on Renaissance buildings in Europe after the Civil War, and early 20th-century courthouses were heavily influenced by the World's Columbian Exposition of 1893 in Chicago and conformed to the Neo-classical Revival style.

Courthouses continue to be used for public business today, as they house county courts, city and district attorneys, justices of the peace, county clerks, and other county administrative offices. They also provide a location for marriages, a place to research your family history, or the best spot in town to see a local parade.

I have long appreciated the value of Texas historical landmarks such as courthouses. When I served in the Texas State Legislature, I sponsored the bill that allowed counties to create historical commissions to preserve their past. These commissions have helped save many courthouses throughout our state's 254 counties.

Communities are breathing new life into their courthouses. Funding from the Texas Courthouse Preservation Program is restoring the Nueces County courthouse

Big crowd honors Howardwick firefighters

A basic rule of thumb of party planning states that usually half the invited guests will come so invite 100 and you will have around 50 with that many chairs. Then, there's the other kind of party, where with no invitations, news spreads by word of mouth, and you don't know how many will come. The Friendship Club had around 150 come for "Firefighters' Night" last Friday night in a room with 100 chairs leaving many standing. Everyone was looking for a cool breeze but full of food.

Dorothy Arnold is in charge of the Friendship Club. There were plenty plates, cups, silverware, and ice; and food was taken home. Lee Ann Cook planned the program, and both did an outstanding job.

Master of Ceremonies for the night was Patrick Robertson from the Clarendon Volunteer Fire Department, and Darrell Burton of Martin Baptist Church led us in prayer. Entertainment was by Wyley Chaney, Chaplain of the Panhandle Firemen's and Fire Marshals' Association, and that man can sing!

Guest speaker was Gaylean Darnell, Fire Chief of the Borger Fire Department, speaking on "What It Means to be a Fireman." He has been a fireman for 28 years and lost a sister in the March 12 fires. A slide show of the March 12 fires was played when almost a million acres burned and Howardwick lost one firefighter and had two seriously injured.

The highlight of the evening and the reason we were there was the awards. Certificates of appreciation were presented to Howardwick City Secretary Diana Knight, the Department of Public Safety, the Donley County Sheriff's Department, Associated Ambulance Authority EMS, fire departments from Hedley and Clarendon, Wyley Chaney, and Dorothy Arnold.

The Medal of Valor was presented to Howardwick firefighters Jeff Cook and Joey Garcia, who were seriously injured in the March 12 fire, and posthumously to James McMorries, which was accepted by his wife, Tanis McMorries. The Medal of Honor was presented to firemen Stan Couch and Kenny Bridges for their efforts in rescue on March 12.

The Clarendon Lions Club held their regular Tuesday noon meeting August 22, 2006, with Boss Lion Jim Shelton in charge.

We had 17 members and three guests present - David Smith, guest of Lion Don Smith; Ashlee Estlack, guest of Lion Roger Estlack; and Angie Robinson, guest of the club.

Lion Tom Garmon delivered the invocation, and the Boss Lion introduced the guests. We welcomed Angie Robinson as our newest member. She is the interim dean of students at Clarendon College.

The September dove hunt and the October pancake supper were discussed.

Lion Monty Hysinger said the public school started Monday with 498 students, down from 501 at the end of last year. Lion Myles Shelton said the college administration has moved into new offices and also said the dorms are expecting an overflow crowd when they open this Sunday.

There being no further business, we were adjourned.

Hedley Lions plan BBQ

Especially for Teachers

I hope the following words are meaningful as you begin another challenging, wonderful year with your students. Best wishes as you inspire worthwhile achievements in the hearts and minds of those you teach.

A Teachers Prayer

I want to teach my students how to live this life on earth;
To face its struggles and its strife, and to improve their worth.

Not just a lesson in a book or how the rivers flow,
But how to choose the proper path wherever they may go;

To understand eternal truth and know the right from wrong,
And gather all the beauty of a flower and a song.

For if I help the world to grow in wisdom and in grace,
Then shall I feel that I have won, and I have filled my place.

And so I ask Your guidance,
God that I may do my part,
For character and confidence and happiness of heart.

Osteoporosis can be slowed or prevented

AMARILLO - An easily broken bone or noticeable decline in height could be signs of osteoporosis, said a Texas Cooperative Extension specialist.

The risk of osteoporosis, a disease that weakens bones, increases as both men and women get older, said Andrew B. Crocker, Extension program specialist for gerontology health.

"Because there are no real outward symptoms of osteoporosis, you may not notice any changes until a bone breaks," Crocker said. "But, your bones have been losing strength for many years," he said, adding millions of Americans, mostly Caucasian and Asian women, have osteoporosis.

Bone is living tissue, Crocker said. To keep bones strong, the body constantly replaces older bone tissue with new. As people age, more bone is broken down than is replaced.

To diagnose osteoporosis, a health provider may recommend a bone mineral density test, he said. The test will help determine the risk for fractures and measure response to treatment.

The inside of bone looks something like a honeycomb, Crocker said. With osteoporosis, the spaces in this honeycomb grow larger; the bone forming the honeycomb gets smaller; and the outer shell of the bone gets thinner.

"All this loss makes your bones weaker," he said.

The most widely recognized bone mineral density test is called a dual-energy X-ray absorptiometry scan or DEXA-scan, he said. This painless procedure is like having an X-ray.

Bone mass measurement tests are covered once every 24 months under Medicare Part "B," Crocker said.

"If your health provider determines you are at high risk or that it is medically necessary, Medicare may pay for screenings more often."

Treating osteoporosis means stopping the bone loss and rebuilding bone to prevent breaks, Crocker said.

"Diet and exercise can help make your bones stronger, but they may not be enough if you have lost a lot of bone density," he said. "There are several medications which you may take to help lessen your risk of developing osteoporosis."

Individuals with osteoporosis should be aware of any physical changes that affect their balance or gait and these should be discussed with their health provider, he said.

Preventing falls is a special concern, Crocker said. Falls can increase the likelihood of fracturing a bone anywhere in the skeleton, but especially in the hip, wrist or spine.

While osteoporosis may not start until later in life, prevention shouldn't wait, Crocker said.

Here are some things to do throughout life to prevent weakened bones: Get enough dietary calcium to help build and keep strong bones. Foods high in calcium include low-fat dairy foods and dark green leafy vegetables, and calcium-fortified foods such as orange juice, breads and cereals. Under some circumstances, a health provider may recommend a calcium supplement.

New Smoking Cessation Program Available

A new smoking cessation program is now available. The program involves the use of a new drug called Chantix (Varenicline) and an optional behavioral modification program called GETQUIT. Researchers believe that if a person is smoking while taking Chantix, the drug will block access of nicotine to certain receptors, thus lessening the effect of the nicotine. The desired outcome is to lessen the person's dependence (physical craving) on nicotine and make smoking cessation easier. According to program sponsors, all who get prescriptions for Chantix filled will be offered enrollment in the GETQUIT program at no additional cost.

One physician involved in studying Chantix provides tips as to how to quit smoking, such as staying away from other smokers and using replacement activities such as a specific exercise or chewing gum. One report indicates that 70% of the 45 million American smokers say they want to quit. Another report indicates that less than 7% of those who actually try to stop smoking on their own are able to do so for more than 12 months.

Broncos gain experience from Vega scrimmage

By Sandy Anderberg

The young 2006 Bronco football team practiced their skills and received valuable experience as they scrimmaged against the Vega Longhorns on Saturday.

The Broncos will have one more scrimmage Thursday, August 24, at 6:00 p.m. at the Bronco Stadium before their season opener September 1 at home against Boys Ranch.

Head Coach Gary Jack said there were some bright spots in the action Saturday morning.

"We are very young, and we saw some young mistakes against Vega," Jack said. "Defensively, we played well; they looked fairly solid. Offensively, we were somewhat inconsistent, but that is to be expected for this time of year."

"Our timing and execution on offense is a little behind where we need to be, and it is especially that way due to our inexperience."

According to Jack, the Broncos found some areas they need to polish.

"We are not only young, but we are also thin in numbers," Jack said. "We just do not have enough older kids, and we are expecting our young kids to be on the field a lot. Overall everything that we saw is fixable."

"We have got talent, but we are just so young," Jack said. "We will start again in practice to prepare for our scrimmage Thursday and then our season opener against Boys Ranch."

The Broncos came out of the scrimmage healthy, and that is something that Jack says is of the utmost importance.

"We definitely need to stay away from injuries this year. We cannot afford to have anyone out with an injury."

Get out and support the Broncos as they scrimmage San Jacinto Thursday, August 24, at 6 p.m. in Bronco Stadium.

Waldrop to lead Bronco basketball

By Sandy Anderberg

Last spring the Broncos named Colby Waldrop as their new leader for basketball, and he brings 11 years of coaching experience to CHS.

Waldrop, who is a Valley native, graduated from Shamrock High School in 1990 and spent one year at Clarendon College before finishing at Texas Tech in 1995. While at CC, Waldrop was a student coach under Joe Mondragon, who spent many years at the helm of the Bulldogs.

After graduating from Tech, Waldrop spent three years as an assistant at Nazareth before moving to Lubbock Coronado and Irons Junior High for three years. Waldrop was then named head coach at Sands High School in Ackerly where he spent five years before moving to Clarendon.

Coach Waldrop comes from a family of educators. His father is the elementary and junior high principal in Shamrock, and his mother teaches first grade in that district. Waldrop's wife is a speech therapist based out of Memphis, and they have a three-year-old son and four-month-old daughter.

Waldrop is excited to be in Clarendon and is looking forward to the upcoming season.

"Right now I want to get to know the kids and see what they can do as we make changes and adjustments," Waldrop said. "I want the Broncos not only to be known as a 'classy ball team' but the hardest working ball team as well."

We welcome Coach Waldrop and his family to Clarendon and wish him of luck this season.

McLaughlin, Gage weekly winners at CCC

By Sandy Anderberg

Maxine McLaughlin shot a gross 89 to give her a net of 66 to take the top honors at the Thursday women's game. Sherol Johnson and Wanda Nazworth's net of 71 was good enough for second place.

Jerry Gage turned in a 65 to win the men's game, and Mike Santos shot a 68 for second place. Tom Stauder and Travis Wilson tied for third with a 69.

Six teams participated in the Friday night nine-hole scramble with the team of Mike Santos, Neil Conrad, Tom Stauder, and Maxine McLaughlin taking first with six under par. The other teams came in at five, four, and two under par.

Happenings at the pool will be coming to an end with the start of school, but the grill will remain open daily.

The CCC will still offer free green fees on Friday with the paid price of a cart and the Friday night scramble will begin at 6:00 p.m. There will be an 18-hole scramble on Labor Day, September 4, and you may call the Pro Shop for information regarding any of the events at 874-2166.
