Please Report Storm Debris

If you find debris from a tornado or other violent storm, and can tell where it came from, please report it. The information could help researchers at the University of Oklahoma understand storms better.

Often when there is a tornado, debris will include material that can be traced to the place of origin: addressed envelopes, laundry marks, personalized items or other identifying information. This allows researchers to determine how far the debris traveled, what direction it traveled and a surprising amount of other data.

In Donley County, the designated contact person is Oleta Thompson. She will forward information and material to the University of Oklahoma. Anyone with artifacts or information can leave it for Mrs. Thompson at the Sheriff's Office.

TAS Hosts Annual Field School

The Texas Archeological Society will bring about 300 people to Clarendon for the annual Field School in June 1996, according to Clarendon College Library Director Beryl Cain Hughes, who is the liaison person between TAS and the Clarendon Archeological Society.

Efforts by Clarendon Archeological Society to bring the TAS Field School to the Greenbelt Site have been ongoing for several years, spearheaded by Jack T. Hughes, Professor Emeritus of Anthropology, West Texas A & M University. Hughes and Billy Harrison of Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum were the original discoverer of the Indian village.

Southwestern Federation of Archeological Societies met in Clarendon in April 1994, as guests of the local Society. Several members of the TAS Field School committee were in attendance and toured the Greenbelt site, led by Hughes. They were impressed by the possibilities for scientific research, by the beauty and convenience of the camping/RV facilities, and by the friendliness of the townspeople.

The Field School is open to anyone who is interested in learning more about archeology and about the history and prehistory of the area. No previous knowledge or training is required, but attenders must be members of TAS. Children are welcome. Contact Walter Warner, 874-3269, or see Mary Neal Risley at Donley County State Bank for membership information.

The Clarendon News will be providing more information in future issues.

Fix-Up for the Fourth

The Fourth of July celebration is almost upon us, and that means hundreds of tourists and visitors will be coming to Clarendon.

As is the case every year, this is the community's chance to impress people who might want to consider moving to or doing business in Clarendon. At the very least, it presents an opportunity to cash in on the tourists' dollars.

An old television commercial says, "You never get a second chance to make a first impression." Every citizen needs to do their part to insure that the impression Clarendon makes is a good one. No one wants to do business in a run-down shop or move to a town that looks dirty.

Many people are already painting, remodeling, and sprucing up their businesses and homes for the summer months. Likewise many have planted flowers and mowed their lawns.

Take a look at your own property and see what simple things you can do to help spruce up Clarendon. Sometimes the easiest and cheapest improvements are the ones that make the most difference. Picking up trash, trimming trees, and mowing grass and weeds all go a long way toward elevating the town's appearance. Finish off your improvements by flying the "Stars and Stripes" during the festivities.

Let's all celebrate our nation's independence by taking pride in and showcasing our community. Clarendon is a beautiful town, and this is our chance to let others know it.

Strokes occur when there is interruption of blood flow to a part of the brain. The most common cause of the interruption is the plugging of an artery inside or leading to the brain. The plug is most often a blood clot or an embolus. An embolus is a piece of clot or other material broken off from somewhere else in the circulatory system, frequently from the heart of blood clot in the legs. This kind of stroke, caused by interruption of blood flow, is an ischemic stroke and is the major cause of stroke in elderly patients. Interruption of blood flow can also occur if bleeding (hemorrhage) occurs in or around the brain, causing a hemorrhagic stroke. However, this is less common in elderly patients as a cause of stroke.

Strokes may vary widely in severity. These variations occur because of differences in the duration of the interruption in blood flow, differences in the amount of the affected brain tissue involved, and differences in the location of the affected tissue in the brain. Strokes may have only temporary affects (often called TIAs or transient ischemic attacks) or may become so severe as to be life threatening.

A major stroke can cause weakness, paralysis, and difficulties with speech and thinking readily apparent. Lesser strokes may occur and come to attention only after several have occurred and there is a cumulative effect. It is also possible that problems with the heart's rhythm or with blood vessels in the neck or chest are contributory to the changes in the blood flow to the brain.

The events of stroke happen quickly, although the recovery is a slow and often arduous task. Successful management of recovery and rehabilitation begins at the diagnosis. It requires enthusiastic participation of family and friends to get the maximum benefit possible. Therapy to prevent further strokes may involve drugs that must be taken with care and on schedule.

Money Available For Home Improvements

Most homeowners are unaware that regardless of their income, there are federal, state, and local programs that will help them repair and remodel their homes.

Government at all levels recognizes that neighborhoods are the basis of life in the country. When a neighborhood deteriorates, many things happen both physically and socially. When the homes look shabby, a neighborhood seems more attractive to crime and criminals. An area in decline is like a spreading cancer. As homes become shabby looking and in need of maintenance, the residents lose their desire to keep up the neighborhood. Streets become receptacles of trash, schools lower their standards and very quickly the selling price of homes in the area drops sharply. This accelerates the cycle of degeneration.

In order to keep and maintain the nation's housing and neighborhoods, government at all levels have programs to give homeowners money (that does not have to be repaid) for repairs or to lead them money at below market levels or at no interest. In many areas utility companies will either do energy conservation work free or at low cost and in other places will lead homeowners money at no interest to pay the contractor of their choice for the necessary work. In addition, there are tax incentives to promote efficient energy use.

There are even programs for which tenants are eligible and many allow loans to poor credit risks. In many areas, people with disabilities can receive grants to pay for needed repairs such as access ramps and widening of doorways.

Consumer Education Research Center, a national non-profit consumer group formed in 1969, has just published the 208 large-page, 1994 edition of Consumers Guide to Home Repair Grants and Subsidized Loans ($16.95 plus $3 p&h from CERC Grants, 350 Scotland Road, Orange, NJ 07050 or (800) 872-0121) which lists over 7,000 sources of loan and grant programs offered by federal, state, and local government utility companies, and others; typical programs offered and the

Tips For Dog Days Of Summer

To help the 52.6 million dog owners in this country have an enjoyable and safe summer season with their dog, the American Kennel Club is offering a free packet called "Fun in the Sun." Inside, readers will find information and educational tips on summer care, fitness, and travel.

Here is a sample of some of the important information dog owners can benefit from this summer:

- Not all dogs know how to do the doggy paddle.
- Walking or jogging on the beach is a great form of doggy exercise.
- If traveling this summer, remember that dogs can't automatically adjust to time zone differences.
- Dogs can get a sunburn too, so use sunblock if your dog will be exposed to the sun for a long period of time.
- Airlines require a certificate of health form your vet.

To obtain a free "Fun in the Sun" packet, write to: AKC Fulfillment, "Fun in the Sun", 5580 Centerview Drive, Raleigh, NC 27606.

how to qualify. Form letters for inquiries to these loan and grant sources are included as well as detailed instructions on determining your debt-to-income ratio for eligibility.

Heart Worm Threatens Animals

The recent rainfall in the area is helping local ranches, farms, gardeners, and mosquitoes. How does a mosquito fit into this list? The mosquito population tends to increase rapidly during periods of frequent rain and hot weather. The tiny female mosquito requires a blood meal to reproduce. She obtains blood from various hosts potentially spreading disease from animal to animal. One disease that a mosquito can give your dog is Heart Worm Disease.

Heart worms, as their name implies, indicate a disease in which a worm actually grows within the large vessels of the lungs and in the heart itself. Dogs become infected with heart worms by being bitten by a mosquito carrying immature heart worm larvae. The mosquito picked up the larvae (microfilaria) biting an infected dog. When the mosquito bites the uninfected dog it deposits the larvae on the skin. The larva burrows through the skin in a hole that the mosquito has made for it, and travels through the tissue till it reaches the blood stream. Over a period of six months this larva will develop and migrate until it reaches the pulmonary arteries in the lungs. Once the larva reaches the pulmonary arteries it develops into mature adulthood, and if both sexes of worm are present, reproduction takes place. The offspring produced (larvae, microfilaria) live in the blood waiting for another mosquito bite. Your veterinarian can perform a simple blood test to find microfilaria.

The first manifestation of heart worm disease is usually a soft chronic cough that is non-productive in nature. Chronic coughing is the most common presenting sign seen by a veterinarian when an animal undergoes a physical examination. As the disease progresses there is a hardening and thickening of the pulmonary arteries where the adult worms live. If the infection is severe enough and enough adult worms are present within the vessels, the worms will eventually move into the right ventricle of the heart. This causes a mechanical disruption of blood flow. When this mechanical disruption of blood flow occurs, the animal begins to show evidence of intolerance for exercise. Chronic cases may develop a fluid filled abdomen, and seem to have no energy at all.

The good news is heart worm disease is a treatable disease as well as a preventable disease. Treatment consists of a series of intravenous injections (injections in the vein) of a chemical that kills the adult worm within the animal. During this period of time, keep the animal quiet and watch carefully. Usually the animal will need to spend 2 to 3 days in the veterinary hospital while undergoing treatment. Following release from the hospital the animal must maintain a quiet lifestyle. The worms die and undergo removal by the immune system of the animal. Pieces of the dead worms can lodge in small blood vessels called capillaries. This results in various complications from the treatment. If caught relatively early, most dogs undergo successful treatment for heart worms.

Prevention of heart worm disease requires either a daily or a monthly oral medication given to the dog on a regular basis. These medications stop the infection of the worm while the worm is still migrating through the tissues on its way to the heart. However, before placing an animal on a preventive medication it must be tested for heart worm disease. Initiation of preventive medication can cause complications and even sudden death if overt heart worm disease is already present in the pet's body. Any dog over five months of age should be on heart worm preventive even in the relatively dry climatic conditions of Donley County.

ICA Stops Livestock Tax

After two years of vigorous and often intense lobbying, the Independent Cattlemen's Association of Texas (ICA) is declaring victory in its efforts to kill a proposed tax on livestock.

"The whole notion of a state livestock tax has been stopped dead in its tracks," said ICA Executive Director Charles Carter. He noted that during its recently completed session, the Legislature declined to impose the proposed user fee or any new taxes in developing a new, two-year state budget.

A livestock levy has been considered by some legislators as a way to help balance the budget. Looking for ways to produce the $8 million spent annually by the Texas Animal Health Commission on services such as the federally mandated brucellosis testing, the 1993 Legislature turned to the notion of "user fees." It directed the commission to develop recommendations for a series of such fees on a broad range of animal species, including cattle, poultry and exotic livestock. The proposals were to be considered by legislative budget writers this year.

"From the get-go, ICA sprang into action," Carter said. The organization worked closely with lawmakers, commission leaders, and ICA members across the state in a concerted effort to derail the tax. Last June, ICA members testified against the proposal during a hearing held by the commission in Austin.

"ICA led the fight," Carter said. "Our member wrote, phoned, and even faxed their concerns to legislators and the Animal Health Commission. We made sure legislators were fully aware of the consequences that a livestock tax would have, not only on cow-calf producers but on Texas agriculture as a whole."

ICA argued that because the commission's role is protecting the general public, not providing services to cattle producers, the public should pay for this benefit. Most of the commission's budget traditionally has come from the state general revenue fund, with all Texans' tax dollars sharing in the cost to help ensure wholesome food products for consumers. It is practice that will continue.

"Thanks to the hard work of ICA members, state leaders heard our arguments loud and clear. No stone was left unturned. And that work paid off," Carter said. "Our members made the difference, and I want to congratulate them for a job well done."

ICA represent nearly 7,000 cow-calf producers in Texas.

Thank You

We wish to thank everyone for their thoughts, prayers, and flowers; also those who remembered Quata in our time of sorrow. It was gratefully appreciated by all.
The family of Quata Phillips

Dear Friends:
I wish I could find the words to express my feelings to you for the cards, calls, letters, flowers, hugs, and words of sympathy for me in my time of loss.

After searching for a considerable amount of time, I have decided there are no words that convey these feelings.

I hope that in your hearts you can feel my feelings for you.
Love always,
Tena Mooring

Mere words can't begin to convey my heartfelt thanks during my recent illness.

The love, prayers, concern, flowers, calls, visits, and food was very much appreciated.

I know God hears prayers, because he has answered them and I am doing well.
May God bless each one of you.

Thanks again,
Margaret Ann Pettit
