Donley County Hogs Tops Fort Worth Market.

Joe Kendall Tells of His Success.

Fort Worth Stock Reporter.

An evidence of what can be done in the way of hog feeding in the Panhandle and West Texas country, where kaffir corn is one of the staple and best crops, and where Indian corn, which by reason of long usage or through ignorance has come to be regarded by some as about the only feed for a hog, does not thrive, was shown on the late market Wednesday. Just before the closing hour of the market, after the remainder of the day's receipts had been sold and weighed up, a load arrived of the best Texas hogs received here for a month or more, and a load that would have been a credit to any feeder in the country. These hogs were fed and most of them raised by Joe Kendall of Donley county. Mr. Kendall's farm is situated near the town of Rowe, 20 miles this side of the high plains. He is an old-time hog and cattle feeder of Audrain county, Missouri, one of the best stock feeding sections of that great stock feeding state. He has converted thousands of bushels of corn into pork in a strictly hog country, where the hog paid off mortgages on thousands of acres of high priced farm lands. He found hog feeding a profitable and interesting business there, but about two years ago he decided to look for a place where general stock farming could be carried on at a still greater profit. He is satisfied that he has found it, and believes that he has found the best hog feeding country in the United States. The ideal hog feeding country he believes is in Northwest Texas.

Eighteen months ago Mr. Kendall purchased a section and a half of Donley county land, and soon began the feeding of hogs and cattle for the market. He now has a section in hog-proof fence and is well started again in the pork and beef making business.

The hogs in this his first shipment to Fort Worth, were about ten-months-old pigs, Poland-Chinas of high grade. They crossed the scales at this market at an average weight of 232 pounds, a weight at their age which betokens careful handling, good blood and a good feeding ration. There were 69 hogs in the shipment, of which 60 were barrows.

Mr. Kendall had been told by a few of his neighbors that hogs would starve to death on kaffir corn. However, he was from Missouri and had to be shown. He began by running his pigs on a good sized pasture and by feeding a light ration of soaked kaffir corn, threshed and whole. The pigs thrived and gained in weight as rapidly as any he had ever fed on Indian corn in Missouri. Three months ago he put the hogs on full feed in a small pasture and continued feeding the kaffir corn, night and morning, feeding about the same amount as he would of Indian corn, and soaking the feed for 12 hours. That the hogs did well was shown by their smooth, healthy and finished appearance and the fact that they topped the market by 7/8c over all other Texas hogs sold here, on the day of their sale, and sold at a figure equal to the top load of Oklahoma corn-fed hogs, weighing, as it happened, exactly the same. Mr. Kendall paid 65c per cwt., or 31c a bushel for the threshed kaffir corn, which is grown in that country as abundantly on $10 an acre land as is Indian corn in Missouri and other Central states on land valued at $75.

Mr. Kendall says of kaffir corn, hogs and the Panhandle country: "I am convinced that kaffir corn, properly fed, will produce fully as many pounds of pork per bushel of grain as Indian corn, and I am further convinced that when Northwest Texas becomes more thickly settled it will become one of the greatest hog producing sections of the country. I can see no reason why this should not be the case. Kaffir corn is a much cheaper feed than is Indian corn in most sections. In the corn belt cholera, quinsy and other diseases and high priced land cut down the profits, and not infrequently the financial results are on the wrong side of the ledger. In the Panhandle country hog diseases are unknown. I have not had a single hog die from disease, nor have I had any diseased hogs since I have been in that country. Land there is obtainable at from $5 to $25 an acre, owing to the locality. I bought a section of good pasture land, located 7 miles from Rowe last Monday at $5 an acre and would not take $10 for it today. I consider the land that can now be bought in Donley and surrounding country at $25 as good if not better for stock and general farming than $75 an acre Missouri land.

"In feeding kaffir corn I think the results are far better if the grain is threshed, for there will then be no roughness in the feed. Whole kaffir corn, soaked, is much better than ground grain, for the hogs don't get the nourishment out of the ground grain, as they drink all the time instead of eating. I believe milo maize to be almost as good a feed for hogs as kaffir corn, but of this I cannot speak from experience. Of the merits of the former, however, I am sure.

"The panhandle country is as yet sparsely settled, but people are coming in rapidly and the big ranches are giving way to small farms. I say 'small' in comparison with the big ranch tracts. A section looks pretty big to most Missouri farmers. A large number of the new comers are from east Texas, but many are from the central and northwestern states. The country is in fine shape, and we have every promise of good crops again this year.

"I am well pleased with the Ft. Worth market and the price received for my hogs. I fed very few hogs in Missouri that made me as much money as this load, although I have sold at higher prices. I have also sold corn finished hogs in Missouri at $3. Whenever a man gets $6.25 for hogs he should be satisfied. If we receive more, the attorney-general's department might have the producers and packers up on a charge of combining to keep prices so high that the ordinary citizen would have to forego the pleasure of his bacon and pork chops."

Mr. Kendall is feeding two more carloads of hogs, which will be ready for market in the near future and has a good crop of pigs coming on for the late fall market. In about two weeks he will put 100 head of 4-year-old steers, which he wintered on seed, on a kaffir corn feed, prepared in the same manner as he feeds it to hogs.

M. Whiteman, a noted western character, represented in Emerson Hough's novel, "Hearts Desire," as "Whiteman Jew, the merchant," shot himself through the head with a rifle at his home in Almagorda, N. M., Tuesday morning, and died instantly. He was eighty-five years of age, and had resided in the southwest for a number of years.

The supreme court of Missouri has refused to interfere in the case of Aggie Myers and Frank Hottman, white, sentenced to hang on June 29th for the murder of Clarence Myers, the husband of the woman, in Kansas City, in 1904. She will be the first woman hanged in Missouri since before the war, or for fifty years, and then it was a negro woman.

Jeff Davis Day.

Governor Lanham has issued a proclamation designating June 4 as a legal holiday in observance of the anniversary of the birth of Jefferson Davis. By an act of the Twenty-ninth legislature of Texas the third day of June in each year was declared a legal holiday. This was done in tribute to the memory of Jefferson Davis, who was born June 3, 1808, a soldier, statesman, secretary of war and president of the southern Confederacy.

It is said Rockefeller and family will take their first trip abroad in June. Don't see what's the matter with John D. It will cost him a few hours income and we would hardly think he could afford it.

NOTHING could cause the public to lose respect for the labor unions more than their unreasonable act in New York a few days ago in holding up and having postponed thirty funerals in trying to enforce their demands. Such an outrage on the feelings of ones interested should meet the condemnation of the public generally.

THE board of control of the Louisiana home for lepers claims to have a cure for leprosy and three patients have been discharged as cured, and eleven other patients are recovering. The board also divulged the drugs employed. A drug which plays an important part in the treatment is ichthyol, a syrup-like liquid, which is obtained by the dry distillation of bituminous minerals containing the fossils of fish. Oil secured from the odorous chaulmugra tree which grows in India is also used. Other drugs used are chlorate of potash, strychnine, salicylate of soda and arsenic. The report detailed also the other essential features, including daily hot baths, nourishing food and open air life.

To Die For Surrendering.

A report comes from St. Petersburg, Russia, that the military court, which has been investigating the surrender of Port Arthur and the battle of the Sea of Japan, has condemned to death Lieutenant General Stoessel, who commanded the Russian forces at Port Arthur, and Rear Admiral Nebogotoff, who commanded one of Admiral Rojensvensky's squadrons, and who surrendered during the naval battle to the Japanese.

Funeral of Ralph Jefferson.

Postmaster Lewis this week handed us a Washington Star containing the following notice of the death of Ralph Jefferson, who was postmaster here from 1888 to 1892:

Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock over the remains of the late Ralph Jefferson at his late home, 1509 Q St. Mr. Jefferson had for a long time been confined to his home by an attack of locomotor ataxia and stomach trouble, and was a great sufferer. The end occurred last Sunday morning, the direct cause being peritonitis.

Mr. Jefferson was a native Washingtonian, his father being the late Ferdinand Jefferson, long an employe of the State Department, and during the troublous times of the civil war was one of Secretary Seward's confidential clerks. Prior to that time he was one of the editors of the Republic, of early days. The last position held by the deceased was that of special deputy collector of customs at the port of Georgetown, to which he had been transferred from the pension office.

He was educated at Gonzaga College, and was prominently identified with Carroll institute from its inception, serving several times as its president, and until his health gave way took a very active part in the affairs. He was a reader and elocutionist of ability, and an amateur actor. During the career of the Shakespeare Dramatic Club, of which he was for a long time president, and the Thalia Club, Mr. Jefferson was often seen in leading roles. He was a French scholar and an old member of the Cercle des precieuses ridicules. His widow and an adopted son survive him, his own son, Harry Jefferson, having died in Texas in 1889.

The interment was in the family lot at Mt. Olsvet cemetery. The pallbearers were Mr. Thos. B. Nolan of the War Department, Mr. J. D. C. Koogle of the custom house, Messrs. A. J. Wagstaff, Henry T. Hutton and Frank White of the pension office, and Mr. George S. Warren of the government printing office.

Cotton For the World.

In an address by President Calvin of the Farmers' Union of Texas, before the cotton conference lately held at Washington, he asserted that Texas alone will be able to provide sufficient increase in cotton production to meet the increasing demand of the world for many years to come, a revelation well nigh incredible to the old world spinners, yet there was not a trace of exaggeration in it. The sole reason why Texas is not now producing 5,000,000 bales annually is a lack of labor. Fifteen years ago the Texas cotton crop was based on negro labor. This has become more and more unreliable and unsatisfactory and now one-half or more of the work done in the cotton fields of Texas is performed by the wives and children of the farmers. The negro is fast being relegated to the gypsy life of a migratory cotton picker, who is used when he can be got, but whose movements are so uncertain that the grower is ceasing to base his plans upon him.

To this the Houston Post says Mr. Calvin's estimate that there are 60,000,000 acres of land in Texas available for the growth of cotton is about five times the estimate usually made by eastern authorities. It is, however, not excessive. The march of cotton toward the north during the last decade has been amazing. Fifteen years ago one who predicted that the Abilene district, or the territory adjacent to Wichita Falls and Vernon would become a large producer of cotton would have been laughed at. Today, in the face of the successful production of cotton throughout west and northwest Texas no one would be rash enough to attempt to prophesy a limitation upon the onward movement of the staple. It is adapted to both the seasons and the soil of a proven territory as large as New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio combined. With an abundance of labor Texas could produce a 10,000,000 bale crop without any diminution of its other products.

Presbyterians United.

At the General Assembly in Des Moines, Ia., after the adoption of joint resolutions of union by that body, and notice that the Cumberlandians in session at Decatur, Ill., had also adopted them, Moderator Corbett officially announced the union by saying: "I do solemnly declare and hereby publicly announce that the basis of re-union and union is now in full force and effect and that the Cumberland Presbyterian church is now reunited with the Presbyterian church in the United States of America as one church."

The church union accomplished at Des Moines and Decatur adds to the Presbyterian church in the United States of America (northern Presbyterian), a membership of about two hundred thousand of whom thirty-five thousand reside in Texas. Hereafter as a result of the union the name "Cumberland" will be dropped from the Presbyterian churches heretofore bearing that title. The Cumberland Presbyterian church separated from the Presbyterian church in the United States of America in 1810. One primary cause of difference was the doctrine of predestination, the Cumberland Presbyterian holding that the parent church held too fatalistic a view on this doctrine. Another point of difference was the licensing of ministers, not college graduates, need for this growing out of a largely increased number of churches, following extended revivals at the beginning of the last century. Since that time the Presbyterian church has modified its predestinarian doctrine and it also now licenses lay ministers. The necessary steps toward the union have been in progress five years.

No Jurisdiction in Ecclesiastical Affairs.

At Decatur, Ill., Wednesday, in refusing to grant an injunction to those members of the Cumberland Presbyterian church opposing union with the Presbyterian Church of America, Judge Johns said the case has no parallel in the jurisprudence of the United States. He treated the church as a voluntary organization, the acts of whose highest tribunal are binding on all members and will not be interfered with by courts if acts are fair and honest. He held courts of equity will not pass on doctrinal matters, decisions of ecclesiastical judiciaries being binding on civil courts as to matters of faith.
