Wind Damages In Donley

With the advent of the belated Easter cold snap that arrived Friday night, quite a bit of damage was caused by high wind that was accompanied by hail and something near a half inch of rain. On the McBride farm northwest of Goldston, the barn, poultry house and other out-buildings were destroyed by the high wind. Near Lelia Lake the windmills of Elmer Knechault and that one on the Knowles place each lost a wheel. Several other windmills incurred minor damage. On the Grady ranch south of town a 2-room house was turned over. A 2-room house on the J. H. Duckett farm east of Chamberlain was picked up and turned around. The wind-charger near the Duckett home was torn up and the blade driven into the roof of the home. On the M. C. Rainey farm near Hedley the poultry brooder house was destroyed and about 175 chicks were drowned. Earl Fortenberry northeast of Hedley lost a barn to the high wind. Out at the Sid Endsley farm home the wind picked up his trailer and crashed it down on a lister. The trailer was handicapped for staunchness in a fight of this kind, even when backed by a high wind, and lost the battle. The trailer is said to have been a total loss.

Charges of embezzlement as shown by recent grand jury indictments against former tax collector J. W. Adamson will not be heard this term of the district court. Ten reasons were set forth for a continuance by the defendant attorneys, Judge W. T. Link and Judge J. R. Porter. The principal reason alleged is that "the defendant was not returned to Donley county until April 16th, and was not permitted to employ counsel until April 18, and that sufficient time does not allow of a proper preparation and examination of the records of the county tax collector records for a defense as given him under the laws of this state." The case of Texas vs. J. W. Adamson was continued until the next term of court.

GUEST EDITORIAL.

Arguing for the price-fixing bill masquerading as a Fair Trade Practice Act, Mr. H. Grady Chandler, representative of the Texas Wholesale Druggists' Association told the Texas Senate's commerce and manufacturing committee quite frankly that his organization asks the Legislature in this proposed bill to repeal part of this state's antitrust laws in order to regulate retail business. The comment on the Chandler statement by Rep. Mark (Hop) Halsey of Lubbock is so pertinent that it requires no amplification:

"The only strength behind this bill sufficient to bring it the prominence it has always had is its support by many retail druggists in Texas.

"I am a druggist, but I think that both as a representative and a merchant, I am obligated to oppose any law which would destroy the only protection our people have from price-rigging and exploitation, the antitrust laws so wisely and stoutly welded by the Texas Legislature at the insistence of the great and farseeing Jim Hogg more than thirty years ago.

"Even if every druggist in Texas wanted this law, and many do not because they fear it will take away from them the control of their own businesses, there are only about 3,500 retail druggists in this state—and there are 7,000,000 consumers. I am going to represent the consumers, and do everything I can to prevent this law's passage.

"A Senator who voted in committee for this Fair Trade Act said he voted that way because merchants are organized politically and consumers are not. That made up my mind for me. The unorganized consumers need the legislator's consideration and votes more than an organized group as powerful as that Senator apparently believes the fair traders to be.

"Personally, I believe the druggists who want this law have been misled, and are supporting a measure designed more for the benefit of wholesalers and manufacturers than for retailers. That, however, is beside the point in this matter.

"The real issue is whether or not to repeal our antitrust laws and expose this state to all sorts of price-rigging that could send the cost of living up to any height the manufacturers and wholesalers who could use this law choose.

"The outright demand by Mr. Chandler for the repeal of these antitrust laws has shown to the Legislature clearly the importance of this fair trade proposal."

ONE SOUR NOTE...
but it's a great orchestra nevertheless

Even a great orchestra will make a musical mistake once in a while. And once in a while... out of the thousands of decent, law-abiding beer retailers in Texas... you'll come across one or two who operate disreputable establishments.

These "black sheep" retailers constitute a tiny minority. Yet they tend to drag down the good name of beer.

By arousing public indignation, such undesirable retailers endanger your right to enjoy good beer. They also endanger the benefits to the public that beer has made possible.

For example, in Texas beer has created 31,165 new jobs with an annual payroll of $22,076,182 and paid $2,273,968.64 in taxes last year.

The brewing industry wants "black sheep" retailers eliminated entirely. You can help us by patronizing only the reputable, legal places where beer is sold. And by reporting irregularities to the duly constituted law enforcement authorities.

THE ANNUAL FEAST.

Attending the annual gathering of the Panhandle Press Association in Amarillo each April is a call "from labor to refreshments." Those of the profession may always find a "feast of reason and a flow of soul." Personally, of all men of my acquaintance, there is that superb character, Mr. Harry Koch, the sweetest character whom I have ever met. He's liberal, broad-minded, clean in character, honest, industrious, appreciative, and a lot of all other good qualities that enter into the making of a real great American. He is a native of Holland, coming to America more than fifty years ago. For more than forty years he has published a paper in Quanah where the better element of people love and appreciate this grand old character. Coming with Mr. Koch was Edwin Snider, his right-hand man on the Quanah Tribune-Chief, and a very, very fine young man. Met both of them at the state meeting in Mineral Wells last June. Somehow, we always get together and enjoy ourselves immensely without wasting a moment or interfering with anyone else. And we will keep this practice up until the final curtain is rung down.

Missed J. E. Staley of the Clayton News a whole lot, but there hopped up that "embattled veteran," E. I. Hill of the Tahoka News who rubbed out some of the regret at not seeing friend Staley. Honest Bill Miller had let his whiskers grow out for a special rodeo celebration in Spearman, hence the Reporter man was ashamed to show up with the elite crowd that he "finoogles" with at the annual Press meets. And didn't Mrs. Ann Holman get over in a big way while "presidenting" during the convention! As president of the Association, and sweetheart of the press at the same time, she looked like a girl of sixteen and acted with the judgment of a woman of forty all at the same time. As a wheel horse in the profession, who can beat "Ed-Aches" Bishop of the Dalhart Texan. He is ever ready to get right up in meetin' and make a motion "that Dalhart is the best town in Texas." Roy Hahn of Silvertown was too busy organizing a "bank by September," and Jack Stricklin laid out because Charley Guy wasn't there. Jack looks to Charley to set the social standard and maintain a "superflex brand of etiquette" known only to the South Plains. Darn them guys who think in terms of "caviar empty" every time they pull a deal. Their acts and eats are maintained on an allegedly high level above associating with the "holey-poley" often referred to as the "common people." Amarillo puts on a real spread for the visiting press folks. The eats are great. Especially was the John Snider barbecue stunt a whing-dinger. If you have been horn-swaggled on a purchase down town, you will mellow up faster on a John Snider feed than any thing else under the sun. This statement is intended for men only. Women think, and then eat. Men eat, and seldom think—until it is too late.

A complete report on the fine folks met in Amarillo Friday and Saturday would fill the Leader and bar the advertising section.

NAVAJOS SNEER AT CUSTOMS OF WHITE MEN

The Navajo Indians in the upper regions of Arizona, the only American Indian tribe never to sign a treaty with the United States, are still retaining their wildness and rapidly growing in numbers, Dr. Will N. Winton, professor of geology and biology at Texas Christian University, Fort Worth, said at a meeting of the Texas Geographical Society in the Jefferson Hotel Tuesday night.

Dr. Winton, who has spent several summers in the high country making a study of Indian life and customs, presented a movie illustrated lecture on the High Country of the Southwest. Dr. W. E. Wrather, president, directed the meeting.

The Navajos, although kept on their reservations, are still contemptuous toward the white man's way of living, he said. The tribe numbered about 18,000 when dismissed from the Confederate ranks two years after the Civil War. Last year the government census showed more than 50,000. Not all were accounted for, however, as census takers had difficulty catching younger residents of the reservation. This was attributed partly to

Mule Ears

A few miles north of U. S. Highway 80, near Portal in Cochise County, is to be found the Cave Creek playground of the Chiricahua Mountains. Like many of the weird granite formations of Wonderland of Rocks to the northward the Mule Ears provide a landmark and tyresting place for picnic parties during spring, summer and fall months. Sparkling, cool waters of Cave Creek nearby create deep blue swimming holes for visitors.

out-right dislike for agents of the Great White Father and partly to their dislike for the white man's education and environment. Younger tribesmen hate attending schools set up for their benefit and their elders sympathetically assist in dodging agents who try to enroll them.

White man's dyes are tabooed as well as pastel colors, he said. Dyes are made from vegetables in primitive fashion before being applied to yarn the squaws make from their own wool.

Since white man began counting the Indians' ceremonial snake dances which are held to bring rain, the supposedly vanishing Americans have been right eighty-four times in eighty-six predictions. Elders sometimes forecast precipitation a fortnight in advance and directly after the snake dance—it rains, he said.

Gerald C. Mann Candidate for U. S. Senate

On the wall in Gerald Mann's office in Austin hangs the motto he held to in his campaign for the Attorney General's office—the same motto he is repeating in his race for the United States Senate: "I sacrificed no principle to gain this office and I shall sacrifice no principle to keep it."

For at a time when most political observers doubted that it would ever again be possible for a rigidly honest, straight-shooting man to win political favor, Gerald Mann has performed that political miracle of the decade.

The man who is now a candidate for the United States Senate to fill the place left vacant by the death of Senator Morris Sheppard hit hard, he hit straight, he dealt with all classes alike, he played fair—and politicians today know that he has won the confidence, respect and admiration of a grateful people.

In 1938 when Gerald Mann set out to sell himself to the people of Texas as their next Attorney General, everyone said he didn't have a chance. They said it was too bad, "for he's a nice young man."

Jerry and the group of hard-working, enthusiastic young men who campaigned with him, apparently didn't know that Jerry never had depended much on other people. He didn't go to the political leaders. He went to every nook of Texas, though, and he sold Gerald Mann on a rising market. When the votes rolled in, Jerry was the people's choice.

As Attorney General, Mann

started out to reinvigorate law enforcement to an unbelievable degree. He appointed and organized his staff, and a member of the Austin Court of Civil Appeals looked it over to say: "It's the finest Attorney General's staff I've seen in the 25 years I've been dealing with that office."

He slammed the door on numerous local laws, some 7 which doubtless were well meant, but which were passed in plain violation of the constitution to help local legislators.

He stopped raids on the State Treasury in the form of tax remission bills.

He ruled "no" on a price-fixing bill, the fair trade act, the tax remission bills and various other "hot potatoes" the legislature passed, acts that favored special groups or interests—19 in all.

As a money-collector he has been tops, turning into the State Treasury more than any of his predecessors.

In other words, he has dealt out even-handed justice, and as a result has brought confidence in the Attorney General's office to a level it has not known in years.

Gerald Mann is a supporter of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Last summer after the nomination of the President, Mann wired his endorsement and whole-hearted support. In answer to a recent query from the national capital, Mann telegraphed a renewal of that support, assuring that the present administration would have a strong supporter if he is elected for the place left vacant by the death of Senator Morris Sheppard.

There are many parallels in the lives of Gerald Mann and the late Senator Sheppard. Both came from small towns, both entered politics early and a strong, abiding religious and moral faith marks both careers. Senator Sheppard entered the Congress of the United States when he was 27, was elected to the Senate eleven years later. Gerald Mann is seeking his senatorship at the age of 34, with almost a decade of public service and experience behind him.

Gerald Mann was born in Sulphur Springs on January 13, 1907, coming from a line of pioneer

East Texans who had settled in Hopkins County during the middle 19th century. John Mann, his paternal grandfather, came to Texas from the Tennessee mountain country, served with the Texas Cavalry. His mother's father, J. H. McClimmons, a South Carolinian, migrated to Hopkins County to make his home after surrendering with Lee at Appomattox. Both of Jerry's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grover C. Mann, were born in Hopkins County.

Jerry was educated in the public schools of Sulphur Springs, working on his grandfather's farm and at the local hotel to "pay his way." Jerry's athletic prowess became evident early. He was quarterback of the high school football team two years and captain of the baseball team. He was president of the senior class and for two successive years was elected the most popular boy in school.

At Southern Methodist University, Mann lettered three years in baseball and football, was two years All-Southwestern Quarterback and in 1927, while captain of the Mustangs, won national fame on the football field. He was also president of the student body that year. He took his B. A. degree from SMU in the summer of 1928 and the following June married a Hopkins County girl, Anna Mary Mars of Cumby. The following year their first child, Gerald C. Mann Jr., was born.

It was then that Jerry decided to complete his law education. He loaded his wife and baby into an ancient model car that fall and set out for Harvard University. The first 18 months he worked afternoons and nights in the shipping department of a garment factory at Melrose, Mass., and commuted thirty miles daily to his classes.

Then one day a visitor to Mann's Sunday School class at Melrose encouraged him to try out for a pulpit vacancy at Magnolia, a suburb of Gloucester. It was a Congregational church, the only Protestant organization in the town.

Jerry heretofore had limited his theological background to Sunday School activities, but he bought a long coat and appeared twice in the Magnolia pulpit. The congregation liked him, chose him as the regular pastor and he held that post for eighteen months, preaching every Sunday until he had finished his law course at Harvard.

Returning to Texas with his law degree, Jerry organized a law firm in Dallas with his brother, Guy, of Dallas. In 1934 he managed Jimmy Allred's campaign for Governor in northeast Texas and that year was named Assistant Attorney General on Allred's staff. When William McCraw succeeded Allred as Attorney General, Mann remained until January 15, when Allred made him Secretary of State. As Secretary of State, Mann authored the Texas Securities Act which superceded the antiquated "blue sky" laws. In 1935 the Texas Planning Board was formed and Mann became its secretary, later gave up his office as Secretary of State to represent Texas in Washington as a co-ordinator of state and federal works projects in Texas.

There he worked with government agencies on the old age pension plan and obtained millions of dollars for the state in federal grants and relief allotments.

Mann returned from Washington in 1935 and resumed his law practice, spent many weeks in Austin before legislative committees in the interest of soil conservation measures. He became a member of the State Democratic Executive Committee also that year and was re-elected to that post in 1937, representing the Dallas district.

In 1938 he announced his candidacy for Attorney General and in the July primary lacked only some 10,000 votes of leading the field of five candidates. In the second primary he won by more than 130,000 ballots.

In 1940 he was unopposed for renomination.

Tex DeWeese Elected Head Of Newsmen

Censorship of news, outside of military information, was opposed in a resolution passed at the 32nd annual convention of the Panhandle Press association in Amarillo Saturday.

Also condemned, in another resolution, were strikes on national defense projects.

Tex DeWeese, managing editor of The Pampa News, was elected president of the association at the afternoon session yesterday. He was vice-president last year.

Amarillo was again selected as the 1942 convention city, the date to be April 10-11.

Wes Izzard of Amarillo was named as the new vice-president, and Clyde W. Warwick, publisher of the Canyon News, for the 29th time was re-elected secretary.

Carry On Clarendon Churches!

Last summer, as you will recall, the churches of this city held union services in the football park out under God's canopy. Each service was unique. The interest and attendance grew each night. A fine sermon was given by one of the local ministers. It is estimated more than 2000 people participated in these union services last summer. It is safe to say not more than 100 would have been present in all the churches combined during the hot summer evenings. Another point, many of the older people could attend these services and even set in their cars and enjoy the service. Every church in Clarendon is a barrier to the aged and cripple who cannot climb stairs.

It is time to start plans for this summer gatherings. Other cities have these services year after year and are quite as successful as last summer in Clarendon. The Clarendon Band presented a concert each evening before the service and I am confident they would assist again this summer.

Let's keep the friendly spirit of co-operation growing in the Clarendon Churches. Speak to your minister about these services and support him all you can. Now is the time for the churches and the Ministerial Association of this city to make plans and announce their intentions and give the people of Clarendon the benefits of these worthwhile inspirations. CAN WE HAVE THESE SERVICES AGAIN THIS SUMMER? They will make for a better Clarendon.

Thank you
A church minded citizen

A long time ago, I learned if I could not do what I wanted to most, not to worry but do the next best thing I could. So when I did not get to go to the flower show in Dallas, I went to see the Beauty Spots in our own town, and how I did enjoy them. Did you see the wisteria tree and flowering crab in the Mrs. Joe Goldston yard; the wisteria vine on the fence of Mrs. SoRelle's yard; the beautiful lilacs all over town but especially those in the Mrs. Mae Prewitt's yard; the forsythia and the bridal wreath by the front door of the H. C. Brumley home; the red flowering peach in the Jenkins' yard; and the many many beauty spots in the yard of Mrs. George Ryan? There I spent a happy half day with the lady of the yard, returning home with a car loaded with starts of different kinds of flowers, which I and my friend will enjoy for years to come. And do go peep in the gate of the Mrs. Gray and Dr. Stricklin back yard and view the lovely scene. Trees on a carpet of grass with different colored tulips by the hundreds literally cover the grass.

Chiropractics --- Radioclast

The RADIOCLAST diagnosing and treating instrument will be in my office some time during the middle part of May. It is a machine to determine the location, kind and intensity of disease. No questions will be asked but you will be told what your troubles are and the correct procedure for correction.

CHIROPRACTICS

Chiropractics is the knowledge of the cause of disease; the science of knowing how and the art of being able to adjust it. The brain is the dynamo of life current. The spinal cord and nerves carry this current to all parts of the body and health is the results.

Disease is the results of obstructing the transmission of this current, creating abnormal conditions, and is due to varying pressure upon nerves at their exits between the bones of the spinal column.

A chiropractor is one who knows how to remove such pressure or cause, and enables nature to restore health. If you are sick, or ailing, inquiry will no doubt convince you that CHIROPRACTIC is right and will result in restoration of health. CHIROPRACTIC SPINAL ADJUSTING WILL REMOVE THE CAUSE OF DISEASE.

Travel Expert Finds Five Million Tourists Visited Texas in 1940

At least 5,265,570 tourists visited Texas last year, and spent $306,264,265.00, according to an estimate which has just been released by Philip Fuller, director of the Conoco Travel Bureau, the largest free service organization for motorists in the country.

Fuller's estimates are based on all tourist information obtainable—traffic flow data, counts made by state highway controls, statistics obtained from managers of private tourist attractions, and from toll bridge records, and from various other sources, including the Bureau's own records of travel information furnished through Conoco stations where Touraides are available.

Records of the Conoco Travel Bureau, broken down by state regions, show that the Bureau itself directed 73,985 tourist parties, or 258,948 individual tourists, into and through the Panhandle; 42,434 parties, or 148,519 individuals, into and through the south-west corner of the state; 36,360 parties, or 127,260 persons, into and through the Gulf Coast region; 52,060 groups, or 182,210 tourists into and through East Texas; and 51,990 parties, or 181,965 persons, into and through central Texas.

Fuller's investigations over the entire country show that motor travel throughout the United States showed an increase of 6.82 per cent last year. The greater portion of this increase, Fuller indicated, was brought about by Mr. Average American making his vacation a motor trip. The wealthy group of travelers added materially more than their usual amount to the total tourist travel by staying away from war-torn Europe and doing their traveling in this country, a fact definitely indicated by an increase in the business done by the higher-priced recreational establishments throughout the country.

'Behind the Scenes In American Business'

NEW YORK, April 20.—BUSINESS—Still no downturn in sight in the pace of industry, boosted by ever-accelerating defense production; nor of general trade, which in turn reflects expanding demands of consumers whose purchasing power is steadily growing—also attributable to the basic surge of defense program—Nation's department store sales for week ending April 5 were 17 per cent above same week of 1940.

Shipments of finished steel by all subsidiaries of U. S. Steel corporation for March set new all-time record, topping mark set in May, 1929—Automobiles still going like hot cakes, with estimated 515,000 units delivered in March—almost 30 per cent better than same month a year ago; 20 per cent ahead of February; 7 per cent above best previous March, that of 1937—Pressure upon manufacturers to find subcontractor outlets for their defense work is increasing. Enforced subcontracting may be resorted to if farming-out of work is not stepped up.

Tax and Save—It hasn't been officially proposed, but one of the more extraordinary super-tax plans being discussed in Washington is a combination income-tax-and-forced savings arrangement, somewhat similar to the 50 per cent just adopted in Great Britain. In the case of an employee earning $50 a week, the government would take $10; half of it would be a gross income tax, and in return for the other $5 he'd get a $5 government bond or similar security, to mature 10 years from the day the deduction is made. Those advocating this plan—not for adoption right now, but probably eventually, say it would not only provide many billions for defense, and thus help us to "pay as we go," but would provide a useful supply of some-money every week for individuals in the past-war period which is almost invariably marked by a depression. Anyway, they say, it would be better than a straight-out levy on savings of low-income groups by "deepening" the regular income tax.

Suburbanity—Maybe you hadn't noticed it, but the census bureau reports that there's 'more life' in the small towns and rural areas these days. Conversely, big cities aren't growing so fast. During the last 10 years city population increased only 7.2 per cent, compared with 16.1 between 1920 and 1930. At the same time rural population went up 6.4 per cent—against only 4.4 the previous decade. Experts say the trend means more men who work and trade in towns are seeking "greater personal freedom" by building homes in the country.

Things to Watch For—A hot weather sleeping bag to cool the sleeper without a suspicion of draft, via millions of tiny jets of refrigerated air; coffee is latest to join the ranks of the "quick-frozen" foods—super-quick analysis of your watch, on a machine some jewelers have that will magnify and count the tick-tocks and draw a chart, in less than a minute, showing just how much your watch gains or loses per 24 hours, and indicate what's probably wrong with it—another idea in special match-book covers—your favorite photo, of wife, kiddie, clubhouse, home, or business place, reproduced in miniature on the match books—a small, motor-driven eraser, in its own case, like that of a fountain pen—a new super-sheer, lace-effect women's hosiery, that is supposed to have solved the problem of making that type of hose sufficiently elastic to hold shape—one of the latest plastic gadgets is a pouring spout which can be inserted into the top of a can of evaporated milk to make easy pouring—there is a new soap, in cube form. It's described as "soapless suds," and is designed especially for use in washing nylon and similar fabrics, but also works well on dishes and silverware—a companion piece to the electric shaver is the electric toothbrush, soon to be introduced at $7.50.

officially proposed, but one of the more extraordinary super-tax plans being discussed in Washington is a combination income-tax-and-forced savings arrangement, somewhat similar to the 50 per cent just adopted in Great Britain. In the case of an employee earning $50 a week, the government would take $10; half of it would be a gross income tax, and in return for the other $5 he'd get a $5 government bond or similar security, to mature 10 years from the day the deduction is made. Those advocating this plan—not for adoption right now, but probably eventually, say it would not only provide many billions for defense, and thus help us to "pay as we go," but would provide a useful supply of some-money every week for individuals in the past-war period which is almost invariably marked by a depression. Anyway, they say, it would be better than a straight-out levy on savings of low-income groups by "deepening" the regular income tax.

Suburbanity—Maybe you hadn't noticed it, but the census bureau reports that there's 'more life' in the small towns and rural areas these days. Conversely, big cities aren't growing so fast. During the last 10 years city population increased only 7.2 per cent, compared with 16.1 between 1920 and 1930. At the same time rural population went up 6.4 per cent—against only 4.4 the previous decade. Experts say the trend means more men who work and trade in towns are seeking "greater personal freedom" by building homes in the country.
