Railway Commission After the Denver.

It is by order of the state railway commission that the Fort Worth & Denver road changed its schedule to slower time, so it can be better able to "keep on time."

The commission also issued the following order:

That the work of ballasting the entire road bed between Fort Worth and Texline be carried forward, using not less than 2,500 to 3,000 cubic yards of broken stone or heavy sand and gravel ballast per mile, and that the work of ballasting shall be completed on or before Dec. 31, 1909.

That the company renew all decayed and unserviceable ties to the extent of not less than 600 per mile on the average for the entire line, within six months after the date of this order.

All ties placed in the track since Dec. 1, 1907, may be credited to the amount required.

That adequate and suitable depot facilities shall be constructed at Decatur, Electra, Quanah and Amarillo; plans for which to be submitted for the approval of the commission within thirty days after the date of this order and said depots to be completed by or before Dec. 31, 1908.

Pyle and Latham File Big Damage Suit.

Saturday night at Dallas suit was filed in the fourteenth district court by the proprietors of the National Co-Operator, O. P. Pyle and Geo. B. Latham, as individuals, against D. J. Neill, president, and other executive officers of the Texas Farmers' union, and the Fort Worth Record Newspaper company, praying for $50,000 actual and $50,000 exemplary damages, and also for injunction to prohibit further publication by any of these parties of charges, in substance, that the plaintiffs are conspiring to disrupt the Farmers' union or restore bucket shops to operation in Texas.

Judge Nash granted a temporary restraining order and set the hearing for Feb. 7, 1908, upon the application for injunction.

Hughes Not Endorsed.

New York, Jan. 17.—After one of the bitterest fights in its history the New York county republican committee adjourned at midnight Thursday night without having endorsed any candidate for the presidential nomination. An attempt to take up the tabled resolutions endorsing Gov. Hughes failed.

During the speaking there were mingled cheers and hisses for the president, Hughes, Taft and Foraker. Personalities were exchanged and the excitement was general. Adjournment was taken for one month.

Bank Officials Indicted.

Dr. T. M. Walker, president, and W. Q. Sharp, cashier, of the Mercantile bank, Jackson, Miss., have both been indicted for receiving deposits while knowing their bank was insolvent.

The bill by Speaker Murray providing the machinery for carrying into effect the initiative and referendum provision of the Oklahoma constitution was passed finally in the house Friday and sent to the senate.

The Tennessee railroad commission unanimously adopted a resolution ordering all railroads in the state to put on a 2 1/2c flat passenger rate, the same to go into effect April 1 of this year.

Roosevelt, in response to Gov. Sparks' appeal, has ordered the troops to remain at Goldfield until the legislature shall have an opportunity to organize a state police force.

Bryan Strength Growing.

Democratic National committeemen who gathered in Chicago Saturday on their way to Denver declared that efforts to start anti Bryan movements in the various states had signally failed and that W. J. Bryan would be the nominee of the party in Denver if he continued willing to accept the honor.

Chairman Taggart made the prediction and Norman E. Mack, national committeemen for New York, joined in it. Mack said that the movement in favor of Governor Johnson of Minnesota, fostered in the east by the New York World and the National Democratic Club, was little heard outside of the columns of that newspaper and the club rooms.

He declared the New York delegates would be for Bryan.

"The Erie county democrats met the other night and endorsed Bryan," added Mack. "This is the largest county in the state outside of New York county. There was only one man who opposed a Bryan endorsement; he did so for personal reasons."

Chairman Taggart discussed the availability of Chicago for the national headquarters next year, and attempts of the "favorite son" boomers to prevent the nomination of Bryan.

"Indiana is for Bryan," said Taggart. "The efforts to boom other candidates have not changed the situation. Conditions are just as they were when the national committee met. Unless conditions change greatly Bryan will be the nominee."

"We are going out to arrange for the convention hall and to provide accommodations for the delegates and for the press. We are going to see to it that the working newspaper men are not crowded out by representatives of publications other than daily newspapers."

Saves Money by Advertising.

It is a familiar trick of merchants who lack the enterprise to advertise to try to make consumers believe that in the long run the cost of exploiting the goods they buy must be paid by them; that advertised wares are necessarily higher in price than unadvertised wares. Few buyers are fooled by this allegation. Those who accept it at its face value, however, may be interested in the statement of the manager of a Canadian ready made clothing firm quoted in the Montreal Witness:

"Our advertising and our selling system save us money. We spend about $50,000 in Canada alone, advertising each year a total product of $1,000,000, an average of 5 per cent. That expenditure saves us the cost of maintaining a corps of 15 commercial travelers, who would cost us $75,000, so that our advertising and exclusive agency system really save us $25,000. By advertising we talk to over 1,000,000 people every day."—Reading (Pa.) Times.

The Childress Index says Monday when school opened after the vacation there were 145 new pupils, making the enrollment to date reach 915 pupils. It was also necessary to employ another teacher, and Mrs. Artie Bryan has been secured to fill the position until the board decides upon another teacher or Mrs. Bryan decides to take the position for the remainder of the term.

Mrs. Herbert Sears, wife of a Boston millionaire lawyer, was instantly killed Friday when she jumped from the 13th story of the St. Regis Hotel and landed on a four-story building adjoining. The indications point to a carefully prepared suicide.

Trust is Fined $12,600.

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 18.—Judge Dana in the Shawnee county district court here today assessed a fine of $12,600 against the International Harvester company, which the court found guilty on 43 counts of violating the Kansas anti-trust law. The maximum fine is $1,000 a count, and the minimum $100.

The company was given a stay of execution for 60 days to prepare a case for the supreme court. The criminal suit was filed a year ago by Attorney General Coleman, who contended that the company was doing business in Kansas in violation of the anti-trust laws. The specific charge was made by the state that implement dealers in Topeka were compelled to sign a contract with the International Harvester company to handle no other harvesting machines save those made by the International Harvester company and the schedule of prices was not to be violated.

State Seizing Oil Tank Cars.

Austin, Tex., Jan. 18.—The state has seized 17 more cars of the Union Tank Line company, a defendant in the Standard Oil anti-trust suits, and now has a total of 66 cars of that company impounded in this state, but has been unable to get service. The cars will probably average $600 each in value, making a total of $33,000. The receiver, Guy A. Collett, is having a list made of the cars, with number and location, with a view to making them earn something. The cars are located in the various railroad yards, and the railroad companies are obeying the injunction of the state courts not to remove the cars from the state or the jurisdiction of the state courts.

As soon as the receiver lists them and locates all of the cars they will probably be leased to some company authorized to take them and which can make a satisfactory bond for their value and to return them in as good condition as they were received.

Conventions Run by Office-Holders.

It is to be hoped that Texas will set the nation the example of not sending either senator or congressman to the National Democratic convention. There are plenty of men thoroughly capable of writing platforms, giving instructions and conducting a convention. Modesty should suggest to each one that it was not the place for him.—Jefferson Jimplecute.

Senators and congressmen fairly burn for such distinction. It has come to the point, not alone in Texas, but throughout the nation, that the men who make the laws also run the convention, write the platforms, propound the issues—paramount and other—instruct themselves and nominate each other for the offices at their disposal. Then they go home and tell the sovereign people what the sovereign people did at the convention. The sovereign people do nothing, or little, at the conventions. They are not there. Their part is to take the medicine duly prescribed and formally labeled for them.—Dallas News.

Cumulative Effect.

Continuous advertising in banking builds up confidence in the public mind. The cumulative results are to be counted upon in bank advertising. Banks that have advertised persistently over a number of years find that their business shows a steady increase from year to year, and usually the increase of the last year is greater proportionately than for any previous period.—Bank Advertiser.

Oklahoma Bank Hold-Up.

After a hand-to-hand battle with Assistant Cashier Jones, two masked men robbed the First National Bank of Texola of about $4,000 in currency Saturday night. Jones was found an hour later, bound and gagged and insensible from a blow on the head.

"Hands up," in true western fashion, were the words that greeted Jones while he was working on his books. Jones raised his hands, but when one of the bandits turned to dump the loose change on the counter in a sack, the assistant cashier attacked the other.

The two men struggled on the floor until the robber hit Jones on the head with his gun.

A posse started after the bandits as soon as Jones recovered and could give a definite description of the men.

STATE NEWS.

Jim Driscoll, a prominent Grayson county farmer, was fatally hurt at Sherman Saturday by being thrown out of a wagon. His skull was fractured and one eye knocked out.

Friday the residence of J. W. Smith, who lives in the Willow Springs community, seven miles north of Chico, was destroyed by fire, caused from the explosion of a lamp. Loss about $1,500, with $1,000 insurance.

A 4 year-old daughter of Zeke Brown, living one and one half miles northwest of Weatherford, was burned so badly late Thursday afternoon that she died in great agony the following night. Her dress ignited from a stove.

Bids have been opened by the land commissioner for the sale of about 20 leagues of land in Yoakum county. This land formerly sold for $1 per acre, but since the law of sale by competitive bids its sale will bring between $6 and $8 per acre.

Charles Pastor, a machinist on the Denver road, employed in the roundhouse at Childress, was perhaps fatally hurt Friday, when he fell into an engine pit. In falling his abdomen was pierced by a pick which was in the pit, producing internal hemorrhages.

Commissioner of Insurance and Banking Love has addressed a letter to W. L. Lasley, cashier of the Farmers' State Bank of Putnam, Texas, in which the commissioner declares that depositors can be guaranteed to the amount of their deposits by state banks under the existing laws, and that an extra session of the legislature is unnecessary for that purpose.

Burglars at Weatherford Friday night robbed the Blue Goose cotton gin, owned by R. L. Hoddes, of five bales of cotton, and escaped. To hide evidence of their crime, they set fire to the gin, but the flames were seen and the blaze extinguished before much damage resulted. The cotton was also recovered by officers, who overtook a negro carrying the bales to Fort Worth in a wagon.

At Comanche Friday 16 saloon men, charged with violation of the local option law, and who were arrested a short time ago, forfeited bonds amounting to over $3,000 when they failed to appear for trial before County Judge A. M. Brumfield. The bonds were for $200 each. The court heard a plea of guilty in the case of Dick Wells, who is accused of violating the local option law, and a fine of $100 and three days in jail was assessed.

Be sure and get some sugar beet seed and plant a patch this year for an experiment. We do not believe the soil so well fitted for their growth elsewhere in Northern Texas as in Donley county.

Judge McPherson, in the United States court in Kansas City Monday, declared as unconstitutional the bill passed by the Missouri legislature in 1907, forbidding foreign corporations from transferring suits brought against them from state to federal courts upon pain of forfeiture of their charters. Applications of the Rock Island, Santa Fe, St. Louis, Kansas City & Colorado, Milwaukee & St. Paul and Chicago & Alton railroads, for injunction to prevent John E. Ewanger, secretary of state, from enforcing the law, was granted.

The democratic steering committee chose Senator Bailey to be chairman of the committee on the disposition of useless executive documents. This is one of the ten special committees created for the purpose of giving chairmanships to members of the minority party. The vacancy was occasioned by the death of Senator Mallory. The only value of this chairmanship is that it entitles the incumbent to office quarters in the capitol and to additional clerkship at $2,200 a year. As to the duties, there are none; the committee, which is composed of three men, seldom or never meet.

There are some things other places have that the Panhandle can congratulate herself on being with out. For instance, Kentucky "night riders," West Virginia "feudists," "mountain wildcats," Fort Worth "bohunks" and city "footpads."—Clarendon Chronicle.

But worse than all, there is the saintly prohibitionist. How fares the Panhandle in this regard?—Texas Republican.

Fares better than any other portion of the state, of course. Among the prohibitionists the above classes do not find congenial company, neither do newspaper men who champion such classes. But they build up educational centers, industrial institutions, churches, etc. In the Panhandle you will find less illiteracy, less law-breaking, less whisky-drinking, less gambling and attendant evils than any other portion of the state, and especially than in and around San Antonio, where the Republican circulates. Three-fourths of our jails stand empty nine-tenths of the time. Can any part of your country say as much?

The Western Livestock show was formally thrown open to the public in Denver Monday morning. It is beyond question the largest display of the kind ever seen outside of the International Livestock shows of Chicago, and in car lot entries is the finest in the history of the cattle raising industry, says a dispatch.

Following the article in Wednesday's Chronicle on sugar beets, comes a report from Grand Junction, Col., showing the inflow of money to beet raisers and factory employes. Fifteen million pounds of sugar and over half a million dollars distributed among the growers and employes, is the 1907 record of the Grand Junction plant of the Western Sugar & Land Company, according to a statement given out by the general manager. These figures show that for the 1907 crop the beet growers will receive $336,000. This, with $45,000 paid to the 180 factory employes and $168,000 to the 800 field laborers, makes a total of $549,000.

The buffalo fence in the Wichita National game preserve, near Lawton, Ok., erected at an expense to the government of $15,000 and enclosing 8,000 acres, has been completed and turned over to the government representatives.

Entombed Forty-six Days.

After having been entombed 46 days in the Alpha shaft of the Circoux mine in Nevada, A. D. Bailey, P. J. Brown and Fred McDonald were rescued Saturday night. Bailey was brought out, 14 minutes later McDonald reached the surface, while 10 minutes later Brown was brought up.

Whistles over the district blew loudly, while crowds cheered in the streets of Ely and every bell in the town was set to ringing.

"Ah!" this was the first exclamation of Bailey when he reached the outer air. Without another word he tottered forward into the arms of comrades who stood ready to assist him and was led to the change room of the Alpha shop, where in a few minutes he recuperated.

"By George, it certainly seems fine to be out of that hole," said Fred McDonald as he was led away, telling his brother in a high pitched voice of his terrible experience.

"Say, somebody give me a chew of tobacco," said Brown. "I'm on the bum, all right."

On the morning of Dec. 4, McDonald, Brown and Bailey and two Greeks were working in the bottom of the three-compartment shaft, 85 feet below the pump station and 1,085 feet below the surface. A cave-in occurred at 9 o'clock. The cable used to haul the cage from the third compartment of the shaft snapped and thousands of tons of rock, debris and timbers fell down into the shaft.

From the bottom of the compartment in which the men were working to the pumping station, a distance of 85 feet, a series of rickety ladders offered the only means of escape.

With falling rock and timber streaming down upon them, the five men struggled up the ladders. Half way up, falling timbers knocked the two Greeks from the ladders, killing them. Bailey, McDonald and Brown managed to reach the pump station. Its well timbered roof withstood the rock and timber that came down the shaft and offered them shelter and safety. Here for the first day after the cave-in the men crouched, while at intervals they could hear the rocks and timbers crashing above them.

At first it was thought that all the men had perished, but 24 hours after the cave-in the three men who occupied the pumping station managed to make themselves heard by tapping upon the 6 inch water pipe that stretched from the pumping station to the surface. It was this pipe that was the means of saving the lives of the trio.

When communication was once established with the world above and the men had made known the fact that they were still alive, food and drink was immediately lowered through the pipe. A large supply was sent down, as it was thought that the pipe communication might be cut off before the rescuing party could reach the imprisoned men, but throughout their weeks of imprisonment this pipe has been in daily use. A portable telephone was lowered and the men were able to talk with the people above.

The man who tries to put up a brownstone front on a second-hand lumber capacity usually meets with failure.—Maupin.

At Fort Worth Monday Judge Muse named L. C. McBride as receiver for the defunct Western Bank & Trust Co. Judge Nelms of the criminal district court delivered a charge to the grand jury instructing them to indict officials, should they find the banking laws violated, as alleged.

The Prohibition Movement.

Dallas, Jan. 19.—The advocates of state wide prohibition started the fight before the people in earnest this afternoon and tonight by holding three mass meetings in Dallas. The afternoon session was held in Bush Temple, where more than 600 enthusiastic adherents of prohibition were assembled. At this meeting five addresses were delivered, the speakers being Rev. Dr. G. C. Rankin, Rev. Dr. B. F. Riley, both of Dallas; J. A. Maples of Greenville, W. D. Upshaw ("Earnest Willie") of Atlanta, Ga., and Rev. Arthur W. Jones of Dallas. All the speakers urged energetic work in the interest of electing a constitutional amendment submission legislature this year, to submit the issue to the people next year.

At the night meeting in the First Methodist Episcopal church Mrs. Zehner of Dallas delivered a fervid oratorical appeal in behalf of the prohibition cause, and at the First Baptist church Mr. Upshaw delivered his second address of the day.

In the afternoon meeting at Bush Temple a challenge was issued to the liquor interests to arrange for a joint discussion of the pending issue by speakers to be named by the two sides.

It was learned tonight that during the day an informal meeting of liquor men was held at the Eagles' club. What was considered has not been given out. Neither President Kettle or Secretary Martino attended the meeting, and both stated that they were ignorant of the proceedings.

STATE NEWS.

L. G. Northen fell from a windmill which he was oiling 18 miles northeast of Amarillo Saturday and was killed. His skull was fractured and back broken.

The home of J. W. Bone, north of Little Elm, in Denton county, burned Saturday, causing a loss of about $1,000. The house was on the farm of Russ Spong of Dallas.

Eugene Carothers, 12 years old, son of F. W. Carothers, president of the First National bank at Georgetown, was accidentally shot Saturday while nutting. The bullet passed through his body and his condition is serious.

Palmer Maddox, nephew of chief of police of Fort Worth, was arrested there Monday, charged with the murder of Dan Gallegos, pitcher in the local team, who died Sunday night from wounds received in a fight. Gallegos was formerly an Amarillo player.

Cures Woman's Weaknesses.

We refer to that boon to weak, nervous, suffering women known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Dr. John Fyfe one of the Editorial Staff of THE ECLECTIC MEDICAL REVIEW says of Unicorn root (Helonias Dioica) which is one of the chief ingredients of the "Favorite Prescription":

"A remedy which invariably acts as a uterine invigorator * * * makes for normal activity of the entire reproductive system." He continues "In Helonias we have a medicinal which more fully answers the above purposes than any other drug with which I am acquainted. In the treatment of diseases peculiar to women it is seldom that a case is seen which does not present some indication for this remedial agent." Dr. Fyfe further says: "The following are among the leading indications for Helonias (Unicorn root). Pain or aching in the back, with leucorrhoea; atonic (weak) conditions of the reproductive organs of women, mental depression and irritability, associated with chronic diseases of the reproductive organs of women; constant sensation of heat in the region of the kidneys; menorrhagia (flooding), due to a weakened condition of the reproductive system; amenorrhoea (suppressed or absent monthly periods), arising from or accompanying an abnormal condition of the digestive organs and aemic (thin blood) habit; dragging sensations in the extreme lower part of the abdomen."

"If more or less of the above symptoms are present, no female woman can afford better than take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, one of the leading ingredients of which is Unicorn root, or Helonias, and the medicinal properties of which it most faithfully represents."

Of Golden Seal root, another prominent ingredient of "Favorite Prescription," Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says:

"It is an important remedy in disorders of the womb. In all catarrhal conditions * * * as general enfeeblement, it is useful."

Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., late of Cincinnati, says of Golden Seal root:

"In relation to its general effects on the system, there is no medicine to use about which there is such general unanimity of opinion. It is universally regarded as the tonic useful in all debilitated states."

Prof. B. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Medical College, says of Golden Seal:

"Valuable in uterine hemorrhages, menorrhoea (flooding) and congestive dysmenorrhoea (painful menstruation)."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription faithfully represents all the above named ingredients and cures the diseases for which they are recommended.

Making Farming Pay.
There is no way of making farming pay except by making each day contribute something to the profit of the farm. Line upon line, precept upon precept, day by day—these are the rules of successful farming. Neglect, indifference, lack of continuous labor—these are fatal. Nature never stands still. Work in her laboratory goes on every day in the year and every hour of the 24 in each day. The farmer must imitate nature in this. He ought to regulate his work so as to secure the greatest results with the greatest comfort. There are periods of the year when the weather does not permit him to work out of doors, but these days can be well occupied about the house and barn.

Moreover, a man is a thinking machine, and the farming man should be thinking about farming methods. We do not mean that he should think of nothing else, but if he is going to have satisfaction in, and good results from, his work he must put his thoughts upon his crops, upon his soil, upon his markets. He ought to keep a record, a diary, he ought to keep a running story of the year's work so that he may know next January what he failed to do at all, what he ought to have done or what he did that turned out well. It will not do to trust to one's memory for these things. Time plays us many tricks, and as we get older we remember many things that everybody about us remembers.

happy-go-lucky manner. What you want is methodical work, continuous work, intelligent work. The future belongs to the American farmer. He has done in this work what has saved the whole country from serious disaster, but unless it has saved the individual farmer from disaster he will take little comfort in it. When we say that the future belongs to the American farmer we do not mean that it belongs to the indolent farmer nor to the farmer who does not care what happens so it does not happen to him. It belongs to the industrious farmer, the intelligent farmer, the man who learns by his own mistakes and the mistakes of his neighbors.—Home and Farm.

It Is Easy to Get the Saving Habit.

The way to save money ought to be plain to everybody, but somehow it is not. I remember well how I balked at it in early life. I thought I could not invest without having on hand several hundred dollars at once, and, as this fortunate condition never miraculously arrived, I spent the little savings I had. Like others I considered these too small to take into account. I finally talked with a school mate who was a successful money maker and he gave me some valuable points. By the way, I have found out that when you don't know a thing, the best way is to go and find out from somebody who does know. Nobody ever got any good from brooding over his own gloomy thought.

Well, from the time I took counsel from my friend and began to consider rightly, I began to accumulate property. I remember that he told me how he practiced his judgment in estimating the value of things. As he went about here and there he would say to himself, what is this worth and what is that worth? What would this sell for and what would that sell for? He also conferred with others about values. In this way he soon came to know when he was offered a bargain and when it was best to buy. This knowledge enabled him to trade successfully, and this is a talent that every farmer should possess if he desires to get along well. If you don't know how to trade the other fellow will eat you up every time or else you will do no business and not get along.

I have always remembered one principle that my investing friend confided in me. It was that I should "never put all my eggs into one basket." I think he had reference to general investments, but it applies to the farming just as well. If you invest all your time, labor and money in one crop, you run a greater risk of loss than if you vary your efforts. While one crop fails another may come out all right. Nor would it be wise to invest altogether in more land without putting something into buildings and machinery to work the land to best advantage.

DIMES SAVED GROW TO DOLLARS.

But I have not finished about saving. As already indicated, you must not wait till you take in money by the bagful before you begin to save. If you do you may never save anything, for money does not come in heaps and piles to one person in 10,000 or perhaps even a million. Saving the little is what makes fortunes. Nearly every rich man of today began in this simple way, and farmers may do it as well as any, for they make most of their living on the farm, and when a little surplus money comes in that should be checked away where spending fingers can't get hold of it.

It is not a bad plan to have a little savings bank hid away on the back shelf, but handy enough to put nickels into. If you would make it a rule to put into this bank every 10-cent piece that comes into your possession, you would soon have an interesting collection. Some people have to make a rule of that kind in order to know what to save. The better way is to put in all you can. My consulting friend mentioned above told me there was a fortune between what you thought you could afford to spend and what you really might manage to save. Most people trouble themselves only with what they can afford to spend and not with what they might save. That is why they always have nothing while other people with no better advantages get rich. I have known persons to make $1,800 a year and have nothing to show for it at the end, while others were laying the foundation for great wealth by saving out of an income of only $1,500 a year. It is all in how one goes at it.

After your savings bank is well filled, you may lend out the contents to a neighbor, provided he is good for it and you are business men enough to collect it from him when the proper time comes. He will probably pay you more interest than you can get in any other way. If you are a good trader you may make more by trading in cattle or other farm products. Never, never invest in "futures," or any Wall-street stock, unless you want to be eaten up alive. A farmer should shun anything of that kind as he would the plague. While one man may come out ahead, thousands of others lose all.—Uncle Zeke in Home and Farm.

Profit by Feeding Your Own Stock.

Last year J. P. Harding, inspector for the Texas Cattle Raisers' association, purchased in the stockyards on the open market a grade Durham calf for which he paid $3.85, weighing 550, age 8 months. This animal he put on feed, which he had to purchase in the open market, for 35 days. It was entered in the show, was then sold, weighing 650 pounds at 6c, and dressed 60 per cent beef, which was a nice profit for Harding, to say nothing of the premium. Every farmer in the state ought to figure out this matter, with the idea that if Harding can purchase an animal on the open market, and buy his feed, how much better would the farmer have done had this animal been raised at the farm, and fed on feed produced on the farm.—Stock Reporter.

Wrong Impression.

It never rains in west Texas and farmers never make anything. The above will not hold good in Wilbarger. We have had abundance of rain this season and after another crop is gathered our farmers will be capitalists.—Hornet.

The above item which appeared in last week's Hornet escaped the notice of our proof-reader, the reporter handing it in just as the last forms were being prepared for press. However, the item, though appearing to read differently, was intended as an argument for all west Texas country. The Hornet editor has always had implicit confidence in every foot of the Panhandle country, of which Vernon and Wilbarger county are proud to be considered a part. It is a fact that the farmers, not only in Wilbarger county, but throughout the entire Panhandle as well, are becoming more independent, with the passing of each year owing to the bountiful crops which they grow. From Wichita Falls to Texline and from Higgins to Texico is evidently included the very best agricultural portion of Texas and the Hornet is always glad to speak a word of praise for any part of it.—Vernon Hornet.

The Value of the Spanish Peanut.

The Spanish peanut is coming to the front as a great southern crop. The demand for hay and feed is greater now than it has ever been and it seems as if it is a hard matter to get anything to surpass the improved Spanish peanut. It grows well in most any section, yields satisfactorily on all soils, and above all, it makes an abundance of hay. Talking with a leading seedsman I learn that the chances are good seed will be scarce this year. Consequently any one wishing to secure some should investigate the matter and procure a supply of seed.

The plant is one of remarkable value and the demand for them is constantly increasing. The value of the nuts alone more than pay for the entire crop, and besides this the hay yield is worth more than the nut crop. It keeps well in stacks, is easily harvested and cured and is one of great value in feeding. Peanuts are one of the few crops that combine the qualities of raising food for hogs and cattle at the same time, but nevertheless there is nothing better for hogs than the hay. Horses do well on the same ration, too, as for that.—Stock Reporter.

"If you refuse me," said the young man, "I shall blow out my brains." "I'd hate to have you do that," replied the girl, thoughtfully, "and yet it would be a good joke on pa. He says you haven't any, you know."—Ex.

How to Begin the Year.

What a happy day it would be if the head of every family—the man and the woman alike—would come together this first of January and firmly pledge each other to use his or her best effort to keep the family expenses down to a safe basis—to economize in necessities, avoid luxuries or needless indulgences and return a decided "No" to all offers for goods on time. This is a work in which the women can help as much as the men, and perhaps more. They can help greatly, and they should help earnestly and willingly. Indeed, it is a matter in which every member of the family, the sons and the daughters, as well as the mothers, can aid a great deal to help to lift the family out of the quagmire of debt on to the solid and safe ground of independency and competency.

Once out of debt—if that happy goal can be reached, and it can—let them stay out, except some dire misfortune again compels them to crave the privilege of credit.

In these remarks we do not intend to imply that no farmer should ever go in debt for a farm, a home or a profitable horse or labor-saving implement. Best, of course, to pay cash for even these, if you always can. But one may buy a farm on time, and pay for it in stated annual payments. It is a run-in expense, the little daily wants, the dollar here and the dollar there, that does the mischief and swamps the craft.

Avoid the little debts and you will be surer to have the wherewithal to pay the large ones on time. It is good management in the affairs of the household, and in the stables and stock pens and on the farm, that is to keep the sheriff from the door. It is never good management or safe principal to contract debts for small things. How mean and small it makes one feel at the end of the year to find himself hopelessly in the clutches of debt for a host of small wants that were not in really necessary at all, but mere indulgences and luxuries that might and ought to have been let alone!

The trading world knows how to set, and does set, many a snare and trap before the eyes of the unwary, and they catch many a dime or many a promise to pay that should be withheld. Far better let the temptation alone if you cannot pay for it cash down.

What has here been said about going in debt is an old sermon that has often been preached. But it is one that needs to be often repeated. Paul said some things about money. One is: "Owe no man anything, but to love one another." This applies directly to our discourse. Another is: "The love of money is the root of all evil." Don't come to love money so well that you cannot turn it loose to pay as you go. Don't hold it so hard your neighbor cannot get hold of his just dues. In addition to the pay-as-you-go plan for this year, it will be an immense deal of good for any one who owes an old debt to pay it just as soon as ever he can. It will help to lift the money pressure off the land and bring good and easy times again. Let's all try that.—Cor. Home and Farm.

The Texas Stockman and Farmer, of San Antonio, says: "P. B. McClurg of San Saba county showed up one pecan tree that produced $150 worth of pecans. This is the record for a single tree, but a yield of $1 a tree is profitable since by planting the trees 30 feet apart 49 trees will grow upon a single acre. At seven years of age a grove of pecans will average $1 a tree, and during that time the land can be cultivated for other crops. For the next 20 years the crop increases in value at the ratio of $1 a tree for each year. There are many pecan groves in this section yielding from $300 to $400 an acre. San Antonio has the largest pecan shipping and selling firm in the United States, and the industry is a thriving one."

Benefactress of Helen Keller Going Blind.

News comes from Wrentham, Mass., that Mrs. John Albert May, who was Miss Anne Mansfield Sullivan, for 20 years the companion of Helen Keller, is going blind. Mrs. Mayer is afflicted with cataract, and it is feared that she will entirely lose her eyesight. It is to Mrs. Mayer that Helen Keller owes her education, and the fact that she is today a living example of the fact that love and patience can overcome the worst affliction. Until Helen Keller was 7 years old, she sat in darkness and silence, being deaf, dumb and blind. Then Miss Sullivan, as she was then, mastered the means of communication with the girl, and by the touch language which she invented, began her education. The story of Miss Keller and her achievements is known to every one, and it is to the woman whose friends now believe is fast losing her sight, that she owes it all. For years the two have been constant companions, and it was through her interest in Miss Keller, when she entered Radcliffe college, that Professor Mayer, at the time an instructor in Harvard, became acquainted with Miss Sullivan. Professor Mayer and Miss Sullivan were married in May, 1905, and since then have made their home with Miss Keller in Wrentham. Professor Mayer is now one of the editors of the Youth's Companion, and wrote the introduction to Miss Keller's book, "The Story of My Life."

A wagon left to the weather and sun is old when one year has passed. A wagon well cared for and protected is not old in five years. The cost of a new wagon will build the wagon shed. Tools left to the weather are soon out of shape, and the wood ruined. The tool shed is not so essential as the dwelling or the barn, but it is expensive to do without it. The only people who are to be excused are those who are "too poor to be economical." We have heard of them before.—Ex.

Watson's Publications.

Those who wish to be well informed upon governmental questions, and in the principles of Jeffersonian democracy, as taught by our forefathers, cannot afford to neglect the two publications which Mr. Watson established after he was reorganized out of the New York Magazine which bore his name.

Watson's Jeffersonian Magazine is beautifully printed and illustrated, and is issued once a month. In addition to political matters, the Jeffersonian Magazine carries high class short stories, serial stories, poems and historical sketches.

Therefore, it appeals to every member of the family. The price is $1.50 per year.

Watson's Weekly Jeffersonian is a 16-page paper of standard size. It carries cartoons and other illustrations, from time to time; and, being issued weekly, enables Mr. Watson to keep in closer touch with public men and political events than is possible in a monthly magazine. The price of the weekly is $1 per year.

Where a subscriber orders both of these publications at the same time the price is $2 per year. In all cases, address
