TIDELANDS FIGHT NOT LOST YET

iel today urged Texans to conin the Court or in Congress, if annoyance that "will wear off." Texans themselves do not weakthe Attorney General said:

"True, it is a hard fight, but with honest and righteous claims, a fighting chance is all vention of the crippling or demost Texans ever ask for. The formity that it causes may be odds were ten to one against difficult. Anyone who has pain, Texas at San Jacinto, but they stiffness or swelling in a joint won. Had they become weakkneed and afraid to fight because of great odds, this area would still be part of Mexico.

"This has been my position on this subject constantly for two years, and I hope the people and especially the newspapers will not at this late date attribute future political significance to my actions. I had rather win the tidelands case than to hold any public office that exists, and if it becomes necessary for me to remove myself from unsolicited speculation on the political scene in order to maintain united support on this case, I shall do so without hesitation.

"Of course, Federal officers would like to compromise because even with a court decision such as they have in California, they cannot take over the lands without an Act of Congress authorizing them to do so. It will take both a court decision and an Act of Congress to enable Federal agencies to enter upon the lands which Texas has held in trust for its people for the past one hundred years. Even in California, that state still operates its land and leases two years after an adverse court decision. Therefore, there is no reason to rush into a settlement on account of fear as to what the Court will do in the Texas case. Expressions of fear only serve to weaken our chances in the Court and the Congress," Daniel said.

"I believe those few who have said we cannot win in Court have heard only the Federal side of the case. Anyone who has made a study of Texas' special claim under the annexation agreement knows these lands belong to Texas under the same claim of title by which the people of this State hold their own homes, farms, ranches, and factories.
