health and avoid sickness. Instead of feeling tired and worn out, instead of aches and pains, wouldn't you rather feel fresh and strong?

You can continue feeling miserable and good for nothing, and no one but yourself can find fault, but if you are tired of that kind of life, you can change it if you choose.

How? By getting one bottle of BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, and taking it regularly according to directions.

Mansfield, Ohio, Nov. 26, 1881. Gentlemen:—I have suffered with pain in my side and back, and great soreness on my breast, with shooting pains all through my body, attended with great weakness, depression of spirits, and loss of appetite. I have taken several different medicines, and was treated by prominent physicians for my liver, kidneys, and spleen, but I got no relief. I thought I would try Brown's Iron Bitters: I have now taken one bottle and a half and am about well—pain in side and back all gone—soreness all out of my breast, and I have a good appetite, and am gaining in strength and flesh. It can justly be called the King of Medicines.

JOHN K. ALLENDER.

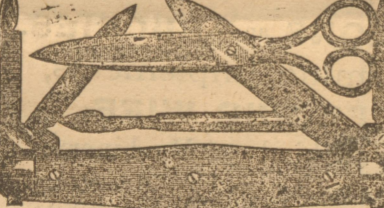

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is composed of Iron in soluble form; Cinchona the great tonic, together with other standard remedies, making a remarkable non-alcoholic tonic, which will cure Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Malaria, Weakness, and relieve all Lung and Kidney diseases.

Dodge City Times. A. J. Chaise, of Boston, Mass. one of the heaviest handlers of the refrigerator beef, gave his opinion to a Globe-Democrat reporter saying that the best and most useful thing to do was to dress the beef in the far west and never let it enter the car alive. Mr. Chase has fitted up the steamer Brooklyn to carry heavy freights of dressed beef slaughtered to Chicago. He claims that the beef improves from the time it is killed until it reaches its destination, arriving in perfect condition, and is more sweet and tender than any newly killed beef can possibly be.

THE FIRST TELEPHONE.—At a recent meeting of the London Physical Society, Prof. Thompson exhibited an early Reis's telephone made by Phillip Reis, in 1861, at Frankfort, and designed to transmit speech. It was modeled on the human ear, one form of transmitter being a rudely carved wooden ear with a tympan, having a platinum wire behind hard pressed a platinum-tipped adjustable spring. Prof. Thompson showed by various proofs that words were actually sent by that and similar apparatus.

Special despatch to the New York World. THE EDUCATION OF INDIANS.—Washington, Dec. 16.—The Indian Appropriation bill, as it will be reported to the Senate, will provide for the expenditure of $5,363,155.91, an increase of $154,200 over the amount called for by the bill when it left the House. Of this increase $118,300 is to be added to the amount apportioned for educational purposes and is intended to be available for use in day schools in the several States expressly designated for the education of Indians.

Washington, Dec. 16.—Ex-Senator Randolph, of New Jersey, is quoted to-night as saying: "I don't claim to be a prophet, but there are things I think I can foresee, and let me tell you that Joe McDonald, of Indiana, is going to be our next President. There is such an uprising in his favor among the Democrats East as well as West that unless something occurs to very much change the aspect of affairs he will get the nomination, and the man who gets the Democratic nomination will be president."

Price Current. THE decline in St. Louis' live stock trade the past year is most conspicuous. While Chicago and we, Kansas City, are going ahead as a market, St. Louis is retrograding fast. Through the Iron Mountain and St. Louis & San Francisco railroad she is holding her southwestern cattle trade, but western and futher off Missouri, Nebraska and Iowa shippers are seeking a market elsewhere for their stock.

The continual wrangle down there between the yards and general sleepiness of the town working to the advantage of her more enterprising rivals and enabling them to turn much of her former trade into new channels. Kansas City is becoming stronger and of more importance as a market every day and as our trade grows in strength we must more completely occupy the field as a market for the Missouri Valley and the trans-Missouri country. The receipts of cattle at St. Louis for the year up to December 23d were 439,003 against 500,862 the same time in 1881. Decrease 61,859. Receipts of hogs for the same time 824,816 against 1,692,153 the corresponding time in 1881. Decrease 748,333 or 44 per cent.

"A woman's tongue is her sword, and she does not let it rust," said the proverb. "A woman's tongue is her sword, and she does not let it rust," set it up the type-setter. There are some type-setters who have been married so long that they don't care how inelegantly a domestic proverb may be shaped.

At Last He Inferred,

It is related of a wealthy Philadelphian who has been dead these many years that a young man came to him one day and asked for help to start in business.

"Do you drink?" asked the millionaire.

"Occasionally."

"Stop it! Stop it for a year and then come and see me."

The young man broke off the habit at once, and at the end of a year again presented himself.

"Do you smoke?" asked the great man.

"Yes now and then."

"Stop it! Stop it for a year and then come and see me."

The young man went away and cut loose from the habit, and after worrying through another twelve months once more faced the Philanthropist.

"Do you chew?"

"Yes."

"Stop it! Stop it for a year and then come and see me."

But the young man never called again. When some one asked why he didn't make one more effort he replied:

"Didn't I know what he was driving at? He'd have told me as I had stopped chewing, drinking and smoking I must have saved enough money to start myself."

Courier Journal.

Mr. Daniel Hasleton, of Charleston, S. C., is the inventor of what is alleged to be a perfect cotton-picking machine. Such a machine has been and is very greatly needed, but so many failures have been made that most people regard success as impossible. Hasleton's machine was tried a few days ago on a patch of cotton about sixteen miles from Charleston, and it picked clean all the open bolls on the plants and left the unopened ones uninjured. It will pick from 3,000 to 5,000 pounds of cotton a day, two mules and one laborer being required. The machine is drawn by two mules, one forward of each wheel, and the wagon wheels move the machinery which brushes the cotton from circular steel and wooden discs with teeth as they take it from the bolls. The cotton is then carried by an endless apron into the wagon above. If this machine stands further tests and demonstrates a perfect working capacity, the inventor, who came originally from New Hampshire, has a snug little fortune ahead for himself. Hasleton was assisted pecuniarily by six Charleston gentlemen.

UNDER the Republican party, which claims to be the only "party of intelligence" in this country, a tax of twenty-five cents ad valorem has been levied on foreign books, pamphlets, periodicals and printed matter. The absurdity and iniquity of this tax is apparent. A tax on foreign books can never increase the value and potency of American literature, and it is difficult to discover where the "protection" to the American writer or publisher comes in. American publishers publish, through piracy, quantities of foreign books, mostly lighter literature, but there are a great many valuable works for students published abroad, which many are unable to buy because of the high price through the tariff. The book tax is a hindrance to the diffusion of knowledge—and it should be abolished.

A LARGE REFRIGERATOR.—The Quincy Market Cold Storage Company, of Boston, are said to have the largest refrigerating building in the world. It is of stone and brick, 160 by 80 feet in size, and 70 feet in height. The capacity is 800,000 cubic feet, the cost $200,000, and the ice chamber holds 600,000 tons of ice. It will be used for storing dressed beef and mutton. The Chicago refrigerating cars unload at the door.

PART II.

When the sound of their footsteps had died away, and all was still in the little room, forth from his hiding-place, where he had heard and seen all, crept the boy who was eyes to his half-blinded mother. His great love for her was enhanced by her misfortune a thousand fold. He was like a man who loved, in his protecting tenderness he had faithfully met the daily increasing requirements of her failing sight. The noble little fellow never laid down his care of her for a single moment.

That day those in the secret had coaxed him away by the promise of some gift that he was to bring to his mother. But the keen-sighted boy soon grew uneasy, feeling, intuitively that danger threatened her. He eluded the vigilance of those who had him in charge, and made his escape. The men were coming down the garden path just as he had crept in un-noticed. He came forth from his hiding-place with the tears on his cheeks, but with the fire and resolution of a man in his face and eyes.

"I will be even with these fellows yet!" he cried. "I'll hunt out where they have hid her, and I'll get her away if I have to kill somebody to do it. See if I don't. Don't cry, dear mamma; poor, dear mamma, don't cry. I'll take care of you, and I'll take real good care of the baby. Poor mamma, don't cry." Infinite tenderness was in his tone, and all the time the tears were running over his own poor face. Guarded by his mighty wrongs, he paced up and down the room in fierce indignation, with clenched fist and flashing eye, talking wildly to the mother who could not bear him, breathing vows of vengeance on her captors, on the church that upheld them, on the men who ruled supreme, and wielded its evil power. He felt as if his puny arm was nerved with a mighty power that could successfully battle with them all. But this heroic mood did not last long.

The utter hopelessness of the contest forced itself upon him, after a little. His terrible situation stared him blankly in the face. His anger died out. The little arm, which but a little while ago, seemed nerved with supernatural might, fell helplessly down, shorn of all its strength. He grew hopeless, despairing. With a terrible groan he fell down on his knees by the cradle where his poor mother had knelt before him. All the know of spiritual lore was the little he had gathered in his stolen visits to the Gentile Sunday-school, now and then, but on the genial soil of his upright nature, some stray seeds had fallen and borne much fruit. Unlike his poor doubting mother, he could pray, and he had a very firm, simple faith in the unseen. With cries and tears, with broken ejaculation, and wild, fragmentary prayer, he implored the God of Heaven.

What was it that came in answer to the cry? A presence, unseen but palpable; protection like a mantle cast about him, and infinite compassion and love. It filled all the little room with mingled tenderness and awe. The child bent low before it and, was dumb. On his knees he waited humbly for its counsel, but no counsel came. But the presence was there with its infinite protecting tenderness and still he waited. Suddenly, in the softened tears that were falling from his eyes, the golden rays of a star that had just freed itself from clouds shone bright and clear.

The boy raised his bowed head and looked at it. The star shone in upon him from a clear bit of sky in the East. Something about it seemed to fascinate him as he looked. He gazed at it steadily with growing awe in his face. Out of the room, out of the house, far over the level plain stretching away in the darkness, the golden rays seemed to draw him.

"I a'n't good enough for you to talk to me," said the boy softly, to the unseen presence; "but thou hast sent the star in the East to lead me, and I will go. He arose in obedience to the fancied behest. He put on his hat and his little patched overcoat. Then he took the baby from its cradle. The child was heavy enough at best, and the wraps he put around it to keep it warm made it still heavier. He went to the door and closed it softly behind him, and stepped out into the darkness. The sullen lull that precedes the storm was on the air about him. The sky above him was overcast with dense, heavy clouds. Only one little spot in the East was clear where the star was shining. Turning his little face toward it, he went bravely forth in the darkness, but he did not go alone.

As palpable to his inner sense as the baby he was carrying was to his outward ones; soft and genial as summer air amid the gloom that surrounded him, the presence hovered near. With the grateful tears in his brave young eyes, and the little face all softened, he turned toward what he felt, but could not see.

"It's kind of you to come along," he said. Following where he fancied the star was leading him, over the plain in the darkness, he went on and on. The threatened storm broke. The snow blew in his face, half blinding him. The cold benumbed his limbs, the bleak wind blew him back, and the baby grew heavier and heavier; but still he struggled on. Black clouds had shut out the star long ago, but due east, straight in its direction, sending its rays far out over the level surface of the plain, a light was shining in the distance. He struggled on toward that.

In the room from whose window the light was shining toward which the half-frozen boy, battling with the wind and storm, was slowly struggling, a lady clothed in deep mourning robes sat by her solitary hearth. Time had not yet softened the anguish of her bereavement. She said, in her wretchedness, "The Almighty hath dealt very bitterly with me." Last year all last year, smiling, happy faces sat at her board and gathered around the glowing Christmas hearth, and now, not one was left. First the father had been taken, then the little children, one by one. She said as she looked at the empty chairs about her, "My heart will break. I cannot live and bear my pain."

Just then there was a strange, uncertain, shuffling step out side, and something fell against the door. Startled by the sound she arose hurriedly and opened it. A little, panting, gasping creature, covered with snow, rose slowly up from the doorstep upon which he had fallen, as the light and warmth streamed out upon him from the open door, and summoning all his remaining strength to take a few steps more, tottered feebly in, with the great bundle he was carrying and sinking down exhausted by the fire, looked at her wild, dazed, wondering eyes. The lady sinking into a chair, looked agast at her strange visitant. From the bundle there came a wail.

"What is that?" she exclaimed.

The white lips of the boy moved, but no sound came in answer. He looked in the lady's face, he glanced at the dress she wore. The dazed eyes were fixed upon her in vague supplication. On the little, half-frozen face was a dumb prayer for help. He arose feebly, took a few uncertain steps toward her, in a vain endeavor to place the bundle in her arms, dropped it, and fell down beside it in a swoon.

Dear Mac.

A Sabbath in Chicago may be an interesting day, even if it is not very profitable. There is not very much difference between Sabbath and any other day here except that, on Sabbath there are not as many stores and shops open, and there are more well-dressed people abroad upon the streets.

Almost every one, spending a Sabbath in town, goes to hear Drs. Thomas and Swing, with both of whom your correspondent has the pleasure of an acquaintance, extending over several years. These men are, to say the least, among the brightest preachers of the city. They both, as the whole world knows, awakened the empy of one of our ministers, were both members of a committee of their denomination, and are now preaching for independent congregations.

It is probable that both these eminent men have read. It is also probable that had their course been pursued a more general and Christian course with them, the results to them and the church would have been very different.

It is too late in the century for churches to attempt to force into every mind the same dogmas. It is too late for guides, dogmas, and combinations in churches to have things their own way, and at the same time ensure the prosperity of Zion.

Thomas and Swing preach to more people than any other two ministers in Chicago. Each Sabbath morning their immense auditoriums are filled to their utmost capacity.

It was our pleasure this morning, to hear the Rev. Dr. Kittidge, of the second Presbyterian Church. The services were simple, earnest and spiritual. The audience room is one of the largest in the city, and was well filled, notwithstanding the snow storm of last night had rendered the walking very uncomfortable. Dr. Kittidge is about thirty-eight or forty years old, of medium height, genteel and erect, with a large and well-developed head and an intelligent and pleasant countenance. He reads his sermons, but is not closely confined to his manuscript, and would be an easy and graceful off-hand speaker, if he were to practice it. He reminds me of Mr. Talmage, whose friend and admirer he is.

As in most other large cities, so there are many inferior men here in the ministry, in law and in medicine. All the professions are over-crowded; and whilst there is "room at the top," few seem able to get there. In my next I will say something of our Medical Colleges.

Beer in The Fatherland.

London Globe, December 11.

While the taste for beer seem to be gradually giving way in England before the growing attractions of more ardent spirituous drink, the robust appetite of the German continues with unabated zeal to patronize the malt liquor to which he has been so long addicted. The statistics of the Empire show that last year the consumption of beer within the Fatherland amounted to no less than 820,000,000 gallons. Of this amount about 24,000,000 were consumed in Baden, 70,000,000 in Wurtemberg and 265,000,000 in Bavaria; the rest being provided for Prussia and the smaller states by 11,000 breweries which are there established. The taxes on these places of business amounted, one way and another, to about $850,000 besides some $20,000 levied on exports of beer. The proportion in which various nationalities in the empire indulge in their favorite drink by no means uniform. Thus the general average is about eighty quarts a year for each individual, and in the Kingdom of Prussia the average is rather less than this. In Alsace-Lorraine it descends as low as fifty quarts. But every Baden drinker on an average about one hundred and seventy quarts, or 200. It is necessary, to arrive at a fair estimate of what this means, to deduct from the total of consumers in the Kingdom many of those who, living in the Palatinate is made and allowance also given for the women, who are not great toppers, and such children as are not yet nurtured upon malt liquor, it will be seen that the adult male native of Bavaria who drinks beer at all regularly has to account during the twelve months for something not far short of half a gallon a day.

General Sherman will give up active command of the army next fall after making his annual report and closing up his affairs. He will retire and leave things in good shape for General Sheridan.

Excursion Daily Sun.

Acorns have less time and yet are more fond of sport than probably any other class of people. Last week, Jack Knox, of the Texas Springs, took Rain both and Eugene Etch, two old Texas favorites, now with the Emeralds Company, out on a Jack rabbit hunt. Though they had a very pleasant time, Alex Sweet, of Springs and Charlie Haslam, manager of Emeralds, had more success while coon hunting, having treed and captured several fine specimens of that festive bird.

The Democratic Policy.

[Special to the Clarendon Journal.] Washington, Dec. 5.—Senator Gorman, of Maryland, and ex-speaker Randall were in consultation to-day regarding the line of action to be followed by the Democratic party in Congress during the present session. Senator Gorman says it is proposed to hold a joint caucus of Democratic Senators and Representatives at an early day, when a definite programme will be made out. He thinks the Democratic party will proceed with deliberation and caution in all matters of general legislation. He says they will advocate a reduction of internal revenue taxes, probably abolish the tax on everything but whisky and tobacco, and advocate a reduction of the force now employed under the directions of the Internal Revenue Bureau.

Senator Groom said to-day he was in favor of taking off taxes as soon as possible, and would assist in any proper measure to that effect which were brought forward at this session. He thought it would be wise to get all the reductions practicable at this session and then, if the treasury would stand it, the taxes could be still further reduced.

Representative Talbot concurs in the views of Senator Gorman and adds that the Democratic party in Congress will endeavor to lay a firm foundation for further success by advocating such measures as will serve the best interest of the people and relieve them as far as possible from burdensome taxation.

A STARTLING FACT.—Thousands of children have died of diphtheria this winter who might have been saved by a single bottle of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. It is a sure preventive of diphtheria and will cure nine cases out of ten. No family should be without it; a day.

Texas Sitings

Now that we come to think of it, perhaps the object of Gov. Roberts in accumulating that large cash balance, was similar to that which causes farmers to raise large water-melons. They want to have them so big that the boys cannot carry them off.

The English have been puzzled for a long time to discover some mode of getting rid of their paupers. The greatest English statesmen have given up their minds to the solution of the problem, but in vain. The Halifax, Nova Scotia, authorities have devised a plan that will succeed in 100 cases of every 99. The old, decrepit, bed-ridden paupers are lodged in the sixth story of an inflammable old barracks, which catches fire. The authorities not only get rid of the paupers, but also of the old barracks, that had long been an eye-sore, thus killing two birds with one stone.

$5.00 for 3.50

Having made arrangements with its publishers we are now enabled to offer the Texas Live Stock Journal and the News to all who subscribe with us at the very low price of $3.50 for both papers—but little more than the price of the Journal alone. The Texas Live Stock Journal is a 12-page 84-column newspaper, printed in clear bold type and on fine paper. It is exclusively devoted to the interest of cattle, horse, and hog raisers, and each issue contains matter indispensable to those engaged in the business. In fact, the Stock Journal is worth ten times its cost to any man at all interested in live stock on the range. The Journal publishes alternately the stray list of the state, which is a most valuable feature. It also publishes telegrams and correspondence from the great live stock markets, and is, in a word, a weekly compendium of just such information as is needed by the raiser of live stock. The Journal is a unique publication with its 23-columns of stock brands and is the biggest newspaper in the United States and the only one of its character in the world. It may be seen at this office. Sample copies sent on application.

HOME NEWS

J. H. Parks has gone to Mobeetie and is expected back Saturday.

Has Al really pulled "for canyons deep and wide?" Let's go see.

We are indebted to Gus Hartman for copies of the Courier Journal.

J. C. White killed several antelope on Wednesday last.

Walter Dyer was on our streets Thursday. He was en route to Mobeetie.

The pleasant countenance of Jonnie Duke "showed up" in our sanctum Friday. Come oftener Johnnie.

The broad and pleasant countenance of John Farrington of the Quiti Qua, was seen on our streets Tuesday.

There was a social gathering at the new store on Monday night that was greatly enjoyed by all who participated.

Rev. J. J. Stanton will deliver the Sunday morning discourse at the school house. A full attendance is desired.

Tom Davis was in from the south camp on Lake Creek. He will long remember the New Years spent in Clarendon.

Mr. Lee Dyer accompanied by Mr. Ray, book-keeper for the ranch firm Coleman & Dyer, were in from the ranch Monday and Tuesday.

We are pleased to mention among our callers this week Mr. Will Davis of Spade Ranch. He now has charge of the ranch in the absence of Mr. Nall.

It will be of great benefit and help to us if any person who is interested in the welfare and prosperity of the News will contribute notes of interest to the paper.

Mr. J. Houston and Mr. H. Phillips were among our callers this week. They were in to spend New Years, they report everything in a prosperous condition on McClelland Creek.

Notice our clubbing inducements in another column and in the meantime do not forget your home subscription, this the beginning of a new year and the local paper must be supported.

Antelope killing has commenced again, Mr. Trumble killed six on Thursday, White killed two or three, and now Osborn has gone out, he will probably fetch in several dozen, or so.

Dr. Jaques' German Worm Cake stand unrivaled as a worm medicine. Give them a trial. Sold by all Druggists.

T. S. McClelland and J. E. Thompson left for Goodnight's Ranch Wednesday noon. McClelland was on business to one of his camps in the canyons and Thompson was en route to Tascosa where he will be employed to keep the books at Cone's store.

Bill Ross left for the Tale Canyon on Wednesday with his outfit to continue his job of hauling posts out of the canyon for Goodnight. Bill has to all appearances spent an enjoyable Christmas and holidays and for man of his size did remarkably well, but if Bill thinks he can get our "printing machine" to split posts with his badly left.

The scarcity of wood in the immediate vicinity of town and the severe weather that drops down on us occasionally, keeps everybody rustling for fuel. Every man looks very hard at his own particular and individual wood-pile and does not feel perfectly safe until his own pile is reduced to one old cotton wool, and feels a sort of restlessness when his neighbor's pile ceases to loom up.

Ann Skinner, Union City, Tenn., says: "I used Brown's Iron Bitters as a tonic and it improved my general health."

Dr. I. S. Johnson & Co., of Bangor, Me., will send by mail, postage paid a quarter of a pound sample pack of Sheridan's horse and cattle powders on receipt of 25 cents. These powders are worth their weight in gold to make hens lay, and will prevent all manner of diseases common to hens, hogs and horses, including hog cholera.

Mr. W. A. Allan and Mr. Wm. T. Carhart pulled out on Wednesday noon for Wichita Falls, bidding farewell to friends and to Clarendon for a few weeks to come. Mr. Carhart has while here won the esteem of all with whom he has been thrown in company. He has spent much of his spare time with us in the sanctum of the News proffering his assistance whenever needed and it is with regret that we note his departure.

About the first of next week will be the right time for our next literary sociable. It is hoped that all parties will be willing to perform any part that will be allotted to them, and let it be made as interesting as possible. Meetings of the past have been a source of pleasure and benefit to all and now that the holidays are over let the society be resumed. Mrs. E. E. Carhart has been appointed to take charge of the next meeting.

We have made arrangements with the proprietors of the Texas Wool Grower to club that finely printed ably edited journal with the News at only $3.00 a year. This is a cheap chance to get the best sheepman's paper in the Union and the News at nominal cost. The Texas Wool Grower is an 8-page weekly, handsomely printed on the best paper. It is entirely devoted to the fleece and growing industries of the South and West, giving telegraphic market reports, correspondence from wool centres and markets, and having the support and assistance of many of the leading flockmasters, in addition to paid correspondents and editors. It represents the wool growing interests in an able manner, and is recognized as the best paper of its class.

THERE'S A LIMIT TO EVERYTHING. "There, isn't that just too provoking for anything," exclaimed Mrs. Smiffkins throwing aside the paper with a look of angry disappointment. "It's always the way though; I never get interested in a newspaper article unless it ends up with 'Blank & Co.'s soft soap cure for biliousness or some other patent medicine advertisement.'" Now that sort of advertising is all wrong. Mrs. Smiffkins would never have been vexed had she read Dr. Swayne's ten line notice of his Lini ment for skin diseases.

Dyspepsia and Indigestion. Elgin, Bastrop Co. Tex.

Dr. Clarke Johnson:— I was afflicted with Dyspepsia for two years and was unable to keep food on my stomach. The use of your reliable INDIAN BLOOD SYRUP cured me. W. P. McDAVID

A Rare Chance.

We have made arrangements with the publishers of the Fort Worth Gazette to club the News with either the Daily or Weekly Gazette. The Weekly Gazette and the News will be sent to any address for only $2.00. The Daily Gazette and the News will be sent to any one address for one year for only $10—the cost of the Daily Gazette alone. The Gazette Daily and Weekly, is one of the leading papers of the state and stands in the front rank of journalism in the South. Full telegraphic news, by associated press and special, from all parts of the world, is a feature of the Gazette which is supplemented by a large corps of correspondents and carefully prepared editorial on all important and current topics. This is a rare chance for those who wish a year's reading matter cheap.

New Years passed off very quietly, speaking of the day, however, New Years eve was not forgotten and was fully memorialized by several of our citizens. About midnight just as the old man with drooping head was about to lay down his rusty blade and the young spirit stood waiting to be ushered in, "bang-too-oo-rang" pealed forth the old church bell up in the yard by Kowalaki's house bringing almost every slumberer to his feet with the idea the block in which the Court House is situated was wrapt in flames. Of course being disappointed he went shivering back to bed ejaculating as he went, "Who rang that bell!"

One of the horses belonging to the outfit, located in town, in crossing Carroll creek while frozen over slipped and fell breaking his off hind leg in the hip. Finding that nothing could be done to save him it was decided to shoot him on the spot, no one in the outfit seeming to have the courage to perform the act the boss called on the fighting editor of the News and offered to chop wood for him while he, the fighting man, did the killing, accordingly Ruf took his cutter and pulled for the scene of war, finding the old horse just kicking and peaty near gone over. Shutting his eyes he emptied his chambers in rapid succession and looking found the old horse dead. And after shooting him up a lot more he retired, saying that it was a hard job to kill a dead horse.

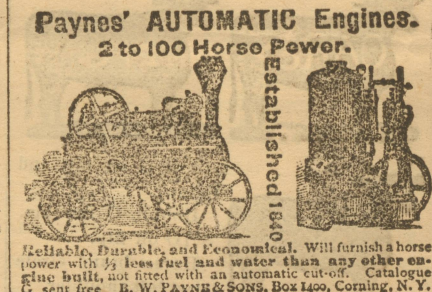

SEEING THE PRESIDENT.—The Washington Post has the following: Check and curiosity prompted a reporter yesterday to follow a loving couple who were admiring the gilt on the newly-painted railing around the White House into the mansion. The massive doors swung noiselessly on their well-oiled hinges as the party entered. Attache Prindle was happily in waiting and took the twain in tow. The East, the Blue the Green and the Bronze rooms were shown to the entranced couple, and passing through the long aisle, and just as Mr. Prindle opened the glass door to usher them into the vestibule, the groom sang out loud enough to be heard in a fog, as he handed a dollar bill to Prindle: "Take that, Mr. Arthur; if I'd have come and seen you before election darned if I wouldn't have voted for you!" Ere Prindle had a chance to deny the soft impeachment the Hoosier ladie and his lass stepped out into the gentle snow.

Mary E. Lyman vs. Charles W. Lyman. In the Dist. Court of the 35th Judicial District.

To the Sheriff of said County— Greeting. It duly appears by affidavit on file in the above entitled cause that Charles W. Lyman the above named defendant is a nonresident of this State: You are therefore commanded to summon the said Charles W. Lyman, by making due publication of this notice in some newspaper printed and circulating in said county for at least four successive weeks previous to the first day of the next term of the District Court, to appear and answer the petition of Mary E. Lyman filed in said cause praying for a divorce; and alleging that said defendant has been guilty of excessive and cruel treatment and outrages toward her the said Mary Lyman of such a nature as to render their living together unupportable, on or before the first day of the next term of said Court.

Herein fail not and of this writ make due return. Given under my hand and the seal of said Court this 5th day of January 1883.

"Slow and steady wins the race." Steadily, but not slowly, Kidney-Wort is distancing all competition for universal popularity and usefulness. This celebrated remedy can now be obtained in the usual dry vegetable form, or in liquid form. It is put up in the latter way for the especial convenience of those who cannot readily prepare it. It will be found very concentrated and will act with equal efficiency in either form. Read advertisement.

A distiller in Cairo has invented a process by which whisky can be solidified and carried in the pocket like a plug of tobacco, to be cut off and soaked in water when a man wants a drink. The piece cut off, about as big as an ordinary chew of tobacco, is placed in water, and in a few seconds it dissolves, making a grown person's drink of rye whisky. This process will fill a long felt want. When it gets so a man can cut a chew of whisky off a plug, and get a drink or soak a piece in his mouth with the same effect, the days of saloons will be numbered, and the prohibition party will go out of existence. Now fix beer so it can be made into pills, and we shall be pretty near the millennium.—Peach's Sun.

THE "CLARENDON NEWS" PRICE $2.00

THE ARKANSAW TRAVELER PRICE $2 PER YEAR.

After contributing your support to your home paper, your next duty is to secure for your household a publication from which you can gain the most information—a paper which instructs while it entertains, and amuses while it imparts knowledge. No paper in the United States more nearly meets the requirements of a first-class family paper than THE ARKANSAW TRAVELER, a large four-column weekly, replete with the best literature and the choicest and most original humor.

THE ARKANSAW TRAVELER is under the editorial control of MR. OPIE P. READ (late of the Little Rock Gazette), who has a reputation throughout the whole country as a writer of pure original humor.

Texas Sitings says: "We have no doubt THE ARKANSAW TRAVELER will be a success; for as a humorous and satirical writer, Opie Read has no superior." The Little Rock Gazette says: "To say that THE ARKANSAW TRAVELER meets public expectations, complimentary as is the assertion, is doing scant justice. It has not only met, but exceeded the anticipations of the most zealous friends of the enterprise, and the initial number went forth to thousands, stamped 'success.'"

Cattle Sure Profit.

Chase County [Kas] Leader.
Hon. J. B. Grinnell, of Iowa who has spent his life on a farm, is reported to have spoken his mind the other day as follows:

"After a quarter of a century of observation, conducted amid all the ups and downs of the markets in the time, I know of no sober painstaking breeder and raiser of cattle that has failed by reason of the season, or its bringing of drought, flood or frost, or who has failed in finding a fair return for his labor in his improved herds, not only attaining full compensation but in many instances, competency for old age. He, clinging to his herd, has found a profit for his labor, while many a sheep man has been left without credit, while hog raisers have made and lost fortunes in a few years. The cattle interest is the greatest of all industries in this country and when properly conducted never fails.

There is a fever of excitement along the entire south line of Cowly County, on account of the fencing of the Indian Territory by the Pennsylvania Oil Company, who have posts distributed around 200,000 acres of land, and declare their intentions to fence in the entire tract for the purpose of turning in 7,000 head of Texas cattle in the spring. This cuts off the range of every farmer along the line and takes it from the numerous stockmen who are located within its boundaries. The belief is general that the company has no right to fence it, and many have declared not to stand it. In consequence of the trouble, mile after mile of the grass has been burned, and before long the whole tract will be burned off, and the men who are inside, and not in sympathy with the movement, made to suffer. The matter was kept quiet by the oil company assuring stockmen that they would not be interfered with, but now that the work has begun farmers find their range cut off to within a half mile of the state line, and stockmen with their ranges divided and cut off from water.

Scientific American.

A NEW CATTLE DISEASE.—At a recent meeting of the Southern Counties Veterinary Medical Association, held at London, England, Mr. G. Fleming, Army Veterinary Inspector, read a paper on a new disease which he had discovered to prevail extensively, chiefly among cattle, in England, and the nature of which has until now been hidden in obscurity. It manifests itself by great enlargement and induration, as well as ulceration of the tongue. It also attacks the bones of the face and jaws, appears inside and outside the throat in the form of tumors, and is very destructive, especially among young stock. Mr. Fleming, by means of morbid specimens from the tongues and heads of calves, as well as by microscopical preparations, clearly demonstrated the affection to be due to the presence of a minute fungus, which probably obtains an entrance to the tissues either through the mucous follicles or an abrasion in the mouth. From the peculiar manner in which the fungus grows, and the radiating arrangement of its branches, it has received the name of Actinomyces, and it is consequently proposed to designate the disease Actinomyces. It has hitherto only been noticed in Germany and Italy, and no fewer than sixteen cases are reported in the German medical journals as having been observed in man. Mr. Fleming produced some evidence to show that the fungus could be successfully implanted from a diseased to a healthy animal; and one of the German cases, in which a man was affected, would lead to the suspicion that it may be communicated from the lower animals to our own species. Instances were given in which the microphyte had also been found in pigs, goats, a horse, and a dog.
