Bursting of a Ship by Swelling of Cargo.

The Gazette Maritime et Commerciale, in its news regarding ocean disasters, relates the following curious example of the formidable power of molecular forces. The Italian ship Francesca, loaded with rice put into port May 11, at East London, leaking considerably. A large force of men was at once put on board to pump out the water contained in the ship and to unload her; but in spite of all the activity exerted, the bags of rice soaked in water gradually and swelled up. Two days afterwards, on May 13 the ship was violently burst asunder by this swelling of her cargo. -La Nature.

A Monster Flagstone.

An immense flagstone, which is said to be the largest ever quarried in America, and is destined for the sidewalk in front of R. L. Stuart's new brownstone residence at fifth Avenue and Sixty-Eighth street, stretched across the avenue from curb to curb yesterday. and made it necessary to close the street between Sixty-eighth and Sixty-ninth streets. The great slab is of river bluestone, and measures 26 feet and 6 inches by 15 feet and 6 inches. It is 9 inches thick and weighs 30 tons. If raised on edge it would make one side of an average seashore cottage. It is perfectly smooth, with the exception of a slight ridge through the center, which will be removed after it is in position. The stone was cut from the same quarry in Sullivan County as the great flagstone now composing part of the sidewalk in front of the Vanderbilt mansion, but it is much larger. It was brought down the Hudson from the quarry on the deck of a bar, and unloaded at the foot of fourteenth street by being raised high enough with screw jacks for two heavy flat stone wagons to be placed under it, when it was drawn to its destination by eighteen powerful horses.

Frightened.

One morning, not long since, the little village of Powel, Vt., was thrown into a panic by the appearance of a huge black bear upon the main street. The New York Tribune thus describes the effect of bruin's appearance on the villagers and the result to himself. Mothers clutched their innocent babes to their bosoms and sprang through the nearest doorway. Pedestrians of all ages sought shelter in the same precipitate manner. From second story windows all along the street brave men said "See 'em," to every passing dog.

The bear, meanwhile, had shown a placid countenance, but as soon as he saw the dogs approaching, he shook off his apathy, and likewise the dogs, to their great discomfort and demoralization.

Then ambling slowly up the railroad track in the direction of North Powel, he left behind him the din of the village street.

But one man, with his trusty rifle, "faithful among the faithless found," was on his track, and bracing himself against a telegraph pole, fired.

The bullet found a vital point in the bear's body and he dropped dead.

Brown was the hero of the day, and the joyous populace were bearing him and the carcass of the bear in triumph through the streets, when suddenly the most awful imprecations which ever reverberated through the Hoosac valley fell upon their ears, and two Italians appeared upon the scene. They were the owners of the bear, and he was their only means of support.

Spontaneous Combustion.

W. H. Hurlburt had a lot of hay caps made of heavy white cotton and to render them waterproof dipped them in linseed oil. After allowing them to hang a couple of days on a line he folded them and placed them in a pile under the back veranda of his house. About eight o'clock the same evening, while shutting up his house he thought of his hay caps, and started to take them inside, but upon putting his hand under them to lift them they were so hot he could not hold them. Greatly surprised, he separated the pile, and was more surprised than ever when he saw that they smoked. Upon examination they were found to be as brown as if baked in an oven. -Richford (Vt) Gazette.

Charmed.

The following scene, witnessed recently by a gentleman of Petersburg Va., and reported in the Index Appeal shows that a snake has the power to charm a bird. The gentleman was walking leisurely along the road, when his attention was directed to the movements of a brown thrush which was flitting about near a small plum bush, and at intervals, giving a cry as of distress.

He walked up to the bush supposing he would find a brood of young birds. He looked carefully, but not seeing any birds, was walking off, when he noticed that the thrush had returned to the bush from which he had frightened it. He waited a moment to watch its movements, when he saw it fly down on the ground beneath the plum.

There it stood a brief time, then began to circle around the bush, still crying in peculiar tones. This circling was kept up for a while, and then the thrush seemed gradually to weaken and at length stood perfectly still—immovable, with its wings partly open and with its head bent forward.

He drew nearer to the bush, when he heard an ominous hiss, and looking down under the plum, he saw a large black snake coiled up and about to spring upon the bird. He frightened the snake away and picked up the bird, which made no effort to escape and seemed powerless. In a few moments, however, the bird revived, and shortly afterwards flew away.

A Surgical Operation.

About two weeks ago a daughter of Mr. William Hindhough, aged about twenty months, fell from a chair backwards, and in her struggles on the floor swallowed something which she had in her mouth, and which was supposed to be a hair-pin, from the information that could be obtained. The child has been in a precarious condition ever since, suffering excruciating pain. The condition became so serious that Dr. Eddy, the attending physician, decided that an operation was necessary if the child's life was to be saved at all, and this morning performed it, with the assistance of Dr. Clark. To the astonishment of the operating physician and all concerned, the foreign substance was found to be, not a hair-pin but a steel hat-pin a little over five inches long, and having a large jet head, and which was found in the stomach and very successfully removed. A slight protuberance appeared on the left side just above the lower rib. This was cut into and the point of the pin was revealed. There are hopes for the recovery of the child. Oswego Palladium.

Red ants may be banished from a store room by strewing the shelves with a small quantity of cloves, either whole or ground. Some use the former as not being so likely to get into food placed upon the shelves. The cloves should be renewed occasionally, as after a time they lose their strength and efficiency. -Indianapolis Journal.

What He Did.

We know no more dramatic story than that which has just been told of a picture of the baptism of Christ, now in Moscow. It is the work of a Russian named Ivanoff, a poor young artist without education, and but little training in art.

Ivanoff was seized with the ambition to paint a picture on this subject. He was a devout lad, an orthodox member of the Greek Church.

He went to Rome, and spent twenty-seven years on this single picture. Making an exhaustive study of antiquity, and the customs, costume and belief of the people at the epoch of the appearing of Christ.

At last he commenced his direct work. He made two hundred finished sketches for his great work, besides countless drawings. But in the meantime the temptations of life in a circle of fast young men in Rome made another man of this enthusiast. He became dissolute, coarse, hardened.

He had lost the sublime faith of his youth. The Christ when he painted him rose in his eyes but a Jewish peasant, not the Saviour of mankind.

Yet he worked with the consciousness of his own sad loss, when the picture was finished, he took it back to his native city, and there left it, in an indifferent dark despair, and never, it is said, touched brush again.

The picture is the most famous work of art in Russia. If Ivanoff had given the thought and care to building up of his own career, which he did in the laying of these lines on canvas, it is probable that the world would have lost a great picture. But saved for God and for eternity a soul.

Few associations in life are more sad than those of works of genius that have caused their authors moral loss. For nothing can equal the value of the soul. Yet such associations are not infrequent, for genius, if a glorious, is also a perilous gift. -Youth's Companion.

What a Leap Did.

The pioneer woman of the West were familiar with hardships and dangers. Yet their life was not wanting in romantic incidents. Kate Sherrill whose father was among the first to settle in Tennessee, could outrun and outleap any other woman in the valley of the Watuga. One day, the Indians attacked the settlement, and the women fled to the fort. Kate's tall straight figure attracted the attention of several warriors, who tried to head her off. Seeing that she would be caught if she took the direct path to the fort, she made a circuit and arrived in front of the palisades. She tried to climb over them. Some one leaned over and tried to grasp her hand. His footing gave way, and both fell to the ground, but on opposite sides of the fence.

The Indians were close at hand and their bullets and arrows fell like hail and she was to climb over or die, for she would not be taken alive. She sprang, leaped over and alighted by the side of Capt. John Sevier. He was then married; but on the death of his wife three years after Kate's famous leap he asked the agile girl to become his wife.

Capt. Sevier, shortly after Kate became his bride, participated, with his three sons, in the battle of King's Mountain. She made the suits they wore. She often said with the pride of a self-reliant woman, "Had his ten children been sons, and old enough to serve in that expedition, I could have fitted them out."

The Tories infuriated against the patriot captain, once surrounded his house, determined to take him prisoner and hang him to the nearest tree and not finding him they threatened to shoot Mrs. Sevier, if she did not tell his hiding-place.

"Shoot! shoot!" she exclaimed, defiantly. "I am not afraid to die. But remember that while there is a Sevier upon the earth, my blood will not be unavenged!"

Her husband became the first Governor of Tennessee. She gave such a reputation to his home, that it was known far and wide as "the hospitable mansion of the people's favorite."

The manners of that primitive people are illustrated by the care she took of an imported carpet presented to "the first Governor's wife." It was the first carpet ever laid on a "punchon" split log floor, west of the Alleghenies. When company was expected it was spread out. After they had gone, the servants dusted, folded, and boxed it up.

Paris Letter.

Reg. Correspondence Paris, France, Aug. 30 1882.

There is a fearful warning of the approach of winter, and a great many temporary dwellers by the sea are likely to curtail their measures ozone and seek warmer and less exposed quarters, from the coast, be it north or west, life unless bounded by the four walls of a casino or hotel is a perpetual war with the elements. Besides, and time has come for doing execution among the partridges and pheasants. For scouring the country rough shod and leaving the ladies to the solitude of their boudoir or interrupted intercourse with M. le Cure. Our women kind generally like the sea term better than we do, unless we are young enough to be successful in the full moon. For the majority of French chatelains who are at the same time Parishons of the fashionable world, the seclusion in the patrimonial estates is a period of mortification—a time for gigantic undertakings, in the way of needle-work of small economies, and of easy piety to which the few weeks spent at some gay seaside resort form a pleasant break. A few women indulge in a certain taste for sport, and all trim their walking attire somewhat to masculine outlines. Thus ribbed velvet teen suddenly comes into favor with the first puff of smoke on the corner side, and in new colors also—iron and lighter gray, lawn and shawm. With them the high crowned Tyrolean hat, loose Belgian gauntlet gloves, and laced shoes. The cut, to speak tailor-slang is severe, and require no trimmings further than pipings, and perhaps bright buttons. Cloth costumes are made in a similar fashion, that is to say tight, as to the jacket, draped high on one side with kiting below the whole, gray or bronze, lawn or buff, and of a new deep cream, like tone (the tint of clouded amber) to which gold fringe buttons are added as a pleasant harmony. This is said to be a favorite with the Empress Elizabeth, the Diana goes so far as to carry a small fowling piece slung across her shoulders, she completes her accoutrement by various useless toys to give it local coloring a miniature powder-horn mounted in silver, a knife with Damascus blade in case the sport should include such big game as deer, a drinking cup chased in Russian leather, etc. The days of the water-proof are long since over, and gradually its successor the cloak, be it intended as a protection against rain or a screen from the dust has assumed a holiday aspect, being lined with bright tinted silks, albeit the general hue may be neutral. This is well reasoned out, for if ever the spirits want raising it is during a storm of rain, and there is no doubt but what a glance of color has some effect in dissipating gloom so engendered. Nothing can be prettier for uncertain weather than a costume of dark green, brown, blue, or gray with bright stripes of color pleated underneath, to match lines with the same glimpse of crimson or gold color, blue shot with gold color, or green and yellow. The brightness only appearing in transitory flashes, garnishment is avoided while dullness is thoroughly exercised. A newly elected beauty on the sands of Trouville chose to relieve the monotony of her dull-wearer navy blue serge with jaloons of gold. As for another fair hairer, who elsewhere takes her maternal dip in a costume braided with silver, her bad taste is oblivious.

Foreign Letters.

Regular Correspondence. Alexandria, Egypt, Aug. 28, '82. In walking amongst the ruins of Alexandria one stumbles against four monuments of the bombardment which merit some attention. They are nothing more or less than four unexploded shells of gigantic dimensions. One is close by the German Hospital; one lies on the Marena; the other two are in the center of the town. It needs but a glance to see that they belong to her Majesty's ship "Inflexible."

That "Inflexible" frequently missed its mark we could see from any of the other ships. It did not fire very often for it only had two guns in position at any one time, and when it did so great was the noise that all eyes save those of the seamen actually engaged in the fight were turned toward the fort aimed at, to see if the aim had been good. When it was and the forts were hit, there went up a volume of sand as though a mine had been exploded, so that we could tell when it hit and when it missed, without much difficulty. If there was no sign of great destruction we knew that either the range or direction had been bad, or that the shell had not exploded. Sometimes, however, even when a shell was not well placed we could discern it—for instance, when it fell into the sea, and as the water rushing up into the air like a great fountain jet. There was much movement of the water. The ships all rocked and rolled to a considerable extent, so that no exactitude of range could be guaranteed, and the "Inflexible" was no exception to this rule. She, too, had to contend with the difficulties indissolubly connected with a bombardment on such a coast, and if the "Inflexible" did make a certain percentage of misses, they may be generally accounted for by the strength of the swell and the movement of the waves. One thing we noticed beyond a doubt, and it was, that appalling as was the noise when the shells of the 81-ton guns were sent out a very considerable proportion of the powder inside the gun remained unburnt, else the smoke would have been clear like that issuing below the other ships of war. It was black and sooty, only clearing away very lazily and then hanging about on the water for a very considerable time. Very different were the work and smoke of the "Temerarie." That splendid ship had anchored off Fort Mex. as she went into action, the sailors could be seen gathered around the 25-ton guns on deck, all eager to get a shot at the Egyptians. With majestic mein she steered up to the position assigned, and then without delay, went into action. Her anchor had been cast, she lay broadside on, and to all appearance still, for she had taken so much water into her lower compartments as to show scarcely any surface to the enemy. And her steadiness had this good result, that the fire from her guns was accurate in an extraordinary degree. It was by no means a rare feat to dismount one of the enemy's guns, nor at all strange to send shell after shell into the fortifications. As the eye followed each puff of white smoke, a missile was seen to strike either on the parapet of the fort or on the inside, sending the earth and stone flying in every direction and silencing for some little while the reply of Araby's guns. No missiles were recorded at all; and the practice of the "Temerarie" called for loud ecoumiums of praise on the part of French and American onlookers who and all declared the capability of the ship and its commander and crew to be beyond all commendation.

August returns of the Department of Agriculture show the product of Winter and Spring wheat, 600,000,000 bushels.

On Friday, the 1st inst., occurred the round ups on the strip, lying east of Wagon creek, a novel plan being adopted. Instead of a large outfit sweeping range after range, as usual the plan was carried out of each ranchman gathering the strays on his range and driving them to a common point agreed upon—in this instance the points being Pond creek and Major Drumm's. About 700 cattle were brought in at Pond creek on the 1st and delivered to their owners, and about seven head remained unclaimed. No news has been received of the result at Major Drumm's, which took place on the 10th.

Cheyenne Transporter.

Some fine Arab horses were sold at auction a few weeks ago in London. About two hundred persons were present at the sale, among them Lord Bradford, Lord Rosslyn, Lord Hardinge and Mr. Percy Wyndham. Eleven horses were offered, and the total proceeds were $7,750. Pharaoh, a pure Arab stallion, brought $2,625 from Count Potoki, who takes him to Poland. Brood mares averaged $700 each, and a two year old filly went for $775.

Though the western corn crop still continues to improve, yet the scarcity of old corn renders prices firm and high. The daily consumption of corn in this country is not far from 3,000,000 bushels, and there is so little corn now in first hands that famine prices may be maintained a few weeks longer.

A Large Cattle Train.

A "bull train," said to be the largest on the Yellowstone, arrived at Benson's Landing, Montana, in July. The train consisted of ten teams of three wagons each, drawn by nine yoke of oxen, making in the aggregate thirty wagons and 180 head of oxen. The freight is estimated to have amounted to 150,000 pounds, and the outfit exclusive of freight was valued at $22,000.—Scientific American.

Paralytic strokes, heart disease, and kidney affections, prevented by the use of Brown's Iron Bitters.

Frank, who had been out to hunt for eggs, says, "Ma, the hens are laying eggs by the bushel, and the old rooster stands around and encourages them."

Nursing mothers gain strength by using Brown's Iron Bitters. It acts like a charm in restoring to health and strength overstrained nature.

Chicago dispatches state that while it is generally conceded that this will be an off year for corn in the old corn belt, the southwest, if report be true, will come up with a heaping lapful. The purchasing agent of the Iron Mountain & Texas road, who has been taking notes through the state of Texas, Arkansas and Missouri to determine the facilities that road will be called upon to furnish in removing the corn and cotton crops, reports as the result of his investigations that Texas will ship 20,000,000 bushels of corn. Authorities in this state place the surplus at 30,000,000 bushels; Arkansas, 10,000,000 bushels for consumption, will have about that quantity to spare for the outside world.

Of the fine breeds of cattle, none have grown so rapidly in favor in the west as the Black Polled. Their hardiness and adaptability to western ranges have made them favorites, and no other breeds, it is said, compare with them in easiness of keep and profitableness of handling. As to the quality of their beef, the highest testimony is accorded by the English press which quote it first in the English markets. The intermingling of the fat and lean making what is known as marbled beef, which is so much prized by connoisseurs. The absence of horn to these cattle is a great advantage to them in grazing feeding and shipping, making them docile and much easier fattened and handled than horned animals, and much less dangerous to man and beast. This in itself is a high recommendation, and the day is not far distant when men will conclude that all polled beasts are the easiest and most profitable to keep. A number of large herds are now owned in our immediate section and the demand for them is hereabouts both from ranchmen and breeders.

The general cattle market of the country yesterday was fair. In Chicago it was reported steady and demand moderate active. Receipts 6,000. New York was dull and clearances hard to make. St. Louis had 2,300 cattle and sales good. Indianapolis reported an unchanged market, and at East Liberty trade was fair.—Price Current.

When Mr. Bilyon went home and saw a handsome bouquet resting on one of the parlor chairs he mentally observed that it was a shame to let such beautiful flowers lie there to wither; so he took them up tenderly, procured a basin of water, and placed them carefully therein—and the same instant his wife gave a piercing shriek, and fainted dead away. But it was too late. Mrs. Bilyon's new bonnet was utterly ruined.

The disclosures in the Star route business become more interesting. At present it seems to be nip and tuck between the rascals and the Department of Justice, or, if anything Mr. Brewster's agents are a little ahead in the race for the championship, as we might call it. If so beautiful a state of things has been disclosed when Brady and Dorcy get off.—World.

Daisy, hearing the sunset-gun for the first time, asked her sister Bessie what it was. Bessie says, "don't you know, it is the sun going down with a bang."

Persons who indulge in a dreamy and visionary habit of mind, are frequently both unpractical and unsuccessful; but this proceeds from an excess of imaginative power, but from the lack of training it aright, and of supplementing its action by determined industry.

to vigorously push a business, strength to study a profession, strength to regulate a household, strength to do a day's labor without physical pain. All this represents what is wanted, in the often heard expression, "Oh! I wish I had the strength!" If you are broken down, have not energy, or feel as if life was hardly worth living, you can be relieved and restored to robust health and strength by taking BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, which is a true tonic—a medicine universally recommended for all wasting diseases.

got N. Fremont St., Baltimore. During the war I was injured in the stomach by a piece of a shell, and have suffered from it ever since. About four years ago I brought on myself a case of indigestion, which kept me in bed six months, and the best doctors in the city said I could not live. I suffered fearfully from indigestion, and for over two years could not eat solid food and for a large portion of the time was unable to retain even liquid nourishment. I tried Brown's Iron Bitters and now after taking two bottles I am able to get up and go around and am rapidly improving. G. DECKER.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is a complete and sure remedy for indigestion, Dyspepsia, Malaria, Weakness and all diseases requiring a true, reliable, non-alcoholic tonic. It enriches the blood, gives new life to the muscles and tones the nerves.

Beautiful new ribbons at the Drug Store.

Charlie Ford is in from the cedar breaks this week.

Bob. Nall is in town this week. Bob. is after fat steers, he is.

E. D. Sanxay is moving his "house-hold gods."

Van Horn's teams came to town this week, with a new supply of goods.

S. P. Reed has been busy the past week putting a floor and otherwise repairing his house

Allan and McKinny went over to J. S. Rockwell's on Thursday to purchase horses.

Many thanks to the little girls for those beautiful flowers left at our office Wednesday.

The general round up is moving this way and may be expected here in a few days.

C. Goodnight passed through town the early part of this week, on his way to Mobeetie.

A few citizens got up a rifle team a few days since, and indulged in some fine shooting.

T. S. McClelland returned to town a few days ago. He will be off as soon as he gets his office straightened up.

The water melon season will soon be over for this year. They have been abundant, and hugely enjoyed by every-body.

Bob. Nall was sick with chills at Murdock's, last night. It was doubtless induced by that rattle-snake scare.

Mr. Briggs has lost his cows, having strayed some days since. Mr. Briggs has moved in to the Bradford House.

Mr. Ed. Thompson, who has been at work as scribe in the Surveyor's office for a week past, has finished his job and is now returned to headquarters.

There are a very few parties owing us on subscription account. It would please us wonderfully if they would send us a registered letter, enclosing the amount.

B. H. White reports but one "Dead Beat" at the White House since the house was opened. All pay promptly. This speaks well for the community.

J. F. Evans & Co., expect to drive 300 head more of steers to market this fall. Roe Brothers about 1200, whilst other parties in this vicinity will drive smaller herds.

Crops in England will be below the average, and it is probable that that country will take from the United States more than she imported from all countries last year.

The Stone herd, of 1450 head of cattle, ranged for some time at Worly Lakes, has been sold to Mr. Lynch. He will remove them to a range in the Palo Dora Canon. Terms private.

Water is reported high in the Wichita river's and H. L. Wright expected here this week, is delayed a few days. We hope to see him here before next week, as he has our white paper on board.

Hasser proposes to stretch the wires from Goodnight's fence to Salt Fork, by Monday night, thus closing up the gap on the south west of the Carrollton range. The two gates on the west line will be put in position in a day or two.

All persons indebted to D. W. Van Horn & Co. at Fort Elliott, Mobeetie or Clarendon, are requested to call and settle accounts.

We wish to purchase a heavy stock of goods this fall and need our funds for this purpose.

D. W. Van Horn & Co.

The person who borrowed that bridle from the picket house in the rear of the court house will do well to replace it at once or they will have an account to settle with Judge Brown, the owner, and a cut of himself in the News showing just how mean he looked walking off with that bridle.

There was a general clearing up going on in the rear of the Drug Store, Thursday, and the way the old tin cans, old boots and old stoves flew around was a caution. Our industrious barber said it took about two painful of candy to get up that commotion. We will add, however, that the back yard looks splendid.

Mr. E. D. Sanxay returned from Mobeetie on Wednesday after an absence of several weeks. We are sorry that he cannot remain longer among us for we are sure that his sojourn here has been a most pleasant one and that his departure will be regretted by all. He will leave in a few days for Fort Bayard, New Mexico.

A. McKinny, formerly of the Spade Ranch, has been employed by the several parties on the Carrollton Range as Foreman of the whole range Mr. McKinny is a young man, but has a good record as a cow man. He is in charge of one of the finest ranges in the State, with about $50,000 worth of stock to look after.

A series of severe thunder storms passed over town on Monday night. The rain fall was heavy and the thunder and lightning terrific. It cleared away beautifully on Tuesday, but in the evening there were ominous sings of more rain, which soon came in successive storms during Tuesday night. There were several crashes of thunder that startled every one, as it was evident that the bolts were dropping in rather unpleasant proximity to town. The earth is again thoroughly saturated.

No finer condition to ensure a restoration of health to the enfeebled than a horse-back ride over the Carrollton stock range, where the horses pluck the grass in its luxuriant growth, without bending their necks. Such boundless fields of green, with laughing streams, rolling uplands, majestic mountains and deep and awful canons can be found nowhere so beautifully combined as in the Pan Handle of Texas. One who, well mounted has ridden over these vast ranges, will willingly bid adieu to the "Pent up Uticas" of eastern cities, and will forever content himself with the companionship of Nature, and the aesthetic surpassing all the grandeur of Art in Oriental lands. It sometimes seems a pity that there should be, even a possibility of a Railroad stretching its polluting arms through these virgin wilds. One who has never enjoyed the luxury can form no idea of the bliss of being three hundred miles from railroad and the busy centers of civilization and sin; with untold wealth all about him.

We can now understand how it is that some men are always on the frontier, keeping a few hundred miles in advance of the oncoming waves of civilization.

Let those who know no fellowship except in crowds, and have no companions but ambitious men, remain where the clatter and bable of millions roll up from reeking haunts where sin and want walk hand in hand. "As for me, give me liberty or—a range in Northwest Texas

GREETING. To Our Old Friends and Patrons of North Texas!

Permit us to congratulate you upon the abundant harvest already gathered during the year and upon the flattering prospects for a rich harvest of Cotton. We know it makes you glad, and it makes us glad to know that you are glad, and it makes us glad to be able to say that we are still wish you. Having greatly increased our facilities, we are prepared to offer you goods as low or lower than ever before, and hope to see you all this fall as heretofore. We ask you to peruse our advertisement to be found in another column of this paper, and when in need of any thing in our line remember us. We claim to be HEADQUARTERS for HARDWARE, STOVES AND TINWARE, WAGONS, BUGGIES, CARRIAGES AND IMPLEMENTS, AND MACHINERY OF ALL Kinds, also BAGGING AND TIES and Barbed Wire Fencing.

Our past experience and record in the business, justify us in assuring you that we can and will always give perfect satisfaction. We keep the best of every thing in our line. We have the goods to sell, and a host of gentlemen clear to wait on you, and in soliciting a continuance of your valued favors we beg to assure you that we have not forgotten the favors shown us in the past, and for which we return our warmest thanks.

Your Friends, CLEAVES & FLETCHER. N. B.—We forgot to say, that in addition to our ALREADY LARGE LINE OF GOODS we have recently put in a large stock of SASH, DOORS AND BLINDS, MOULDINGS, &c., &c., to which we invite your attention and solicit an examination of quality and prices before you purchase elsewhere. We know we can do you good. C. & F.

Mellon Party. The sociable and musical gathering on Wednesday evening at the residence of Judge Murdock, was a pleasant affair and was well patronized and enjoyed.

Mr. Murdock and Mrs. Allan, whilst several gentlemen chorused heartily. The finest of watermelons and musk melons were served bountifully. No better melons grow in any country. The residence of Judge Murdock is about one mile from town on the ever lovely Carroll Creek. A large spring sends a cooling stream through his milk house. His Dairy furnishes milk and butter for all present needs, and is of excellent quality. The ride in the moonlight on horseback and in carriages, over the gently swaying road, was also an enjoyable feature.

The numerous friends of Mrs. Murdock presented her with a neat little cabinet organ, one formerly used in public services and with which Mrs. Murdock has rendered long and well appreciated service as organist and vocalist. The public is to have a larger organ soon. All were happy. The next entertainment will be at the residence of Mrs. W. A. Allan, next Wednesday evening. All are invited.

Al Whitley having taken on another dangerous mood, has done a new pair of loggins and left for Running water, where canons are deep and fields are green.

Stock Notes.

At last advices, the price of beef in eastern markets, had gone up somewhat and there was an increased demand. It also appears from the reports that Texas grass-fed steers are preferred to Colorado Steers. These facts are encouraging to the Texas stock man.

The shipments from Texas will probably be light for the next month and it is expected that there will be a still further rise in price.

A leading English paper gives the following statistics concerning the importations of live stock in England: From the United States there were imported, in 1881, to the ports of Barrow-in-Furness, Bristol, Cardiff, Glasgow, Hartlepool, Hull, Liverpool, London and South Shields, 473 cargoes of animals, consisting of 103,692 cattle, 49,223 sheep and 10 swine were landed dead, and 110 cattle, 99 sheep and 13 swine were so much injured that it was necessary to slaughter them immediately on landing; 3,387 cattle, 947 sheep and 221 swine were thrown overboard during the voyage. Western Live Stock Journal

A year ago a Larama plains cattle man was offered a large Utah herd and ranch for $70,000, which offer was accepted at the moment but later rejected. Since that the Utah man sold $45,000 worth of the herd, and sold the ranch for $4,500, afterwards put $9,000 more into the bunch and last week sold it for $140,000. In other words, the Utah man is ahead to-day over $110,000 because his last years offer was not accepted.

The Texas Cattle Fever.

Dr. H. J. Detmers, V. S., United States Department of Agriculture, started yesterday for Campaign, Ill., where it is reported that the Texas cattle fever has been introduced by some Southern cattle, lately driven to that state. It is also reported that the fever has appeared in Maine and that several animals have died of it. We shall await, with some solicitude, the result of the investigation to be made by Mr. Detmers, as it is of the utmost importance to Texas and to the country generally, that the so-called Texas cattle fever be thoroughly understood and no longer be the mysterious distemper that it is now to us all. The high standing and reputation, and the valuable services to the country already rendered by Dr. Detmers, in his investigations and reports on lumbriz in sheep, the swine plague and other diseases of domesticated animals, assures us that he will be able to do like service in regard to this most mysterious and malignant disease of cattle, and give us light on a subject in which we are all in darkness.—Stock Journal.

Stock raising is rapidly becoming recognized as one of the most profitable and certain industries in the country. Men of large means are engaging in the business for the reason that of all others it is the best calculated to yield larger profits with less risk than any other that presents itself at this time. Men unacquainted with the practical management of the business are organizing stock companies, investing their surplus capital and practical men in whom they have confidence. The stock business is proverbially a money making pursuit, and it is very seldom that money invested in the business fails to pay a good dividend. It belongs too, to that class that cannot at this time be overdone, no matter how many men and how great an amount of capital may engage in the business, there is no danger from this time forward that the supply will exceed the demand. The advance of settlements upon the border is gradually and certainly reducing the area in which cattle can be raised to advantage, while the demand for beef at home and abroad, is constantly increasing. These undisputable facts render the business remunerative and safe, and it is no wonder that capital is seeking investment in this industry.—Live Stock Journal.
