New Mayors, Courthouse Separation Approved

Leonard Selvidge and Wilson Maxey were elected new mayors of Clarendon and Howardwick in Saturday's balloting. Selvidge ran unopposed while Maxey defeated his opponent, Oz Engle, 44 to 33.

The election that carried the greatest amount of interest was the special election to separate the Sheriff Tax Assessor-Collector office.

While interest in the election didn't translate into broad voter turnout the election results, 210 for, 177 against separation, seemed to indicate mixed feelings on the part of voters.

Pre-election comments about the special election included the belief that separation would be more widely approved had the date been set to coincide with a general election. Several voters expressed the belief they would be more inclined to support the issue had a field of candidates for the office been available.

With the election results final now, County Commissioners must appoint an official Tax Assessor-Collector.

Howardwick and Clarendon area voters approved separation 44 to 35 at the lakeside community and 131 to 91 in Clarendon. Hedley voted the issue down 35 to 51.

In Clarendon city elections Cecil McAfee returned to the City Council along with newcomer Shirley Clifford and Duane Nichols. The aldermen were sworn into office Tuesday night at City Hall.

Hospital District board members Earnest Barbee, Billy Ray Johnston and Lacy Noble were returned to their positions on the board running unopposed. Likewise Darrell Leffew, Earl Shields and L. A. Watson were elected to the Clarendon Independent School District.

In Hedley's local elections C. L. Taylor, V. C. Waddell and W. B. Wiggins were elected to the City Council. H. E. Darnell and Martha Hill were elected unopposed to the Hedley Independent School District board.

V. T. McPherson was re-elected to the County School Board unopposed from Precinct 3. Lloyd McCord, also an incumbent, was re-elected to the board from Precinct 2. W. H. McDonald was re-elected for county-at-large.

In a recount of Saturday's balloting at Howardwick, Mrs. McVickers, election judge for the Howardwick City Hall box, awarded the alderman seat initially given to Neal Mann to Carol Cole. A miscount gave the election to Mann but upon recounting HOWARDWICK'S AND Clarendon's new mayors Wilson Maxey and Cecil McAfee.

Cole was shown to be the winner 40 to 36. Others elected to the Howardwick City Council included Ed Castner and Albert Moore.

Athletic Banquet Speaker Bears Pro-Star

Donald Rives, Wheeler High School graduate and middle line backer for the Chicago Bears will be featured speaker at the April 16 Athletic Banquet sponsored by the Broncho Mothers.

Rives, drafted by the Bears in 1973, played for Texas Tech four years before going professional. During Rives' freshman and senior years he was voted All Southwestern Conference and during his senior year was also named to the second team All-American.

Mrs. Harold Gerner is in charge of planning for the Saturday night banquet. Held annually, the banquet honors players and coaching staff at Clarendon High School.

Boy Scouts to Weekend at Greenbelt Lake

Scouts of Troop 33 will meet Friday April 8 at 6:00 p.m. for an Easter weekend campout. Scoutmaster Tommie Saye indicated transportation would be needed to the lake. Saye also noted that boys would need individual tents and food to cook for five meals.

The party will return to Clarendon Sunday morning following the Sunrise Service scheduled for 8:00 a.m. The public is invited to attend the lakeside service Sunday morning.

Saye reminded prospective participants that no Scout would be permitted to attend the campout without first paying his 1977 Scout dues of $9.00.

In other Scouting news Scoutmaster Saye reported local members of the Order of the Arrow would attend the conclave at Odessa, April 15-17. Local Order of the Arrow members wishing to go should pay the $35.00 fee by April 7th. Members should contact Donny Garman, District Chief, if they plan to attend.

Amarillo Couple Break Channel Cat Record

STORY AND VENA Craft with their April Fool's day Channel Catfish. The fish broke previous lake record of 12 pounds, 4 ounces. Press Photo

It was no April Fools joke Friday morning as Stony and Vena Craft of Amarillo held a 17 pound channel catfish for photographs. The couple took the record breaking catfish on trotline hooks baited with cut bait.

Stony was understandably vague about exactly where he caught theunker but did say they were biting good all during the week the couple spent at the lake fishing.

"I'd say we took between 30-40 fish this week on the trotline. We kept beating the lake's record it seemed every time we went to check the lines," said Stony. "We held the former lake record for channel catfish with a 12 pound, 4 ounce catch. During the week we caught a number that weighed nine and ten pounds."

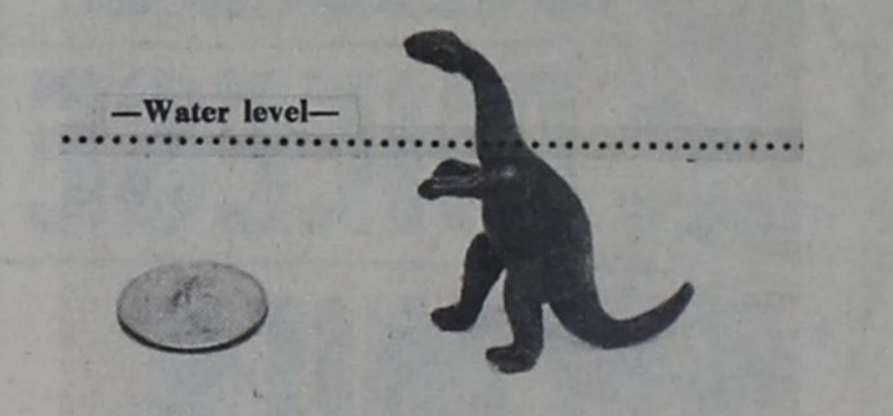

Craft said he had heard the story of the Greenbelt Monster in Amarillo and had jokingly been warned to take a gun with him when he went.

Credit Card Felon Eludes Local Law

Linda Moffett alerted Sheriff's office officials to a possible credit card misuse Thursday when the driver of a pickup registered to a Mikael Saladino of 2003 W. Mary, Pearland, Texas attempted to buy gas at a local gas station. Bearing license plates HB3007, the vehicle eluded local law officers as they attempted to pick up the suspect. The operator of the truck is still unaccounted for.

Checking the Gulf credit card number, officials established it to be stolen and alerted other area law enforcement agencies to be on the lookout for the vehicle and operator.

Monster Hoax Revealed

Last week's April Fool's spoof about a monster in Lake Greenbelt drew an unusual amount of attention-most good but some bad. It was the largest selling issue since this writer took over editing the paper. We thought it would be fun to relate some of the reactions to "Greenbelt Monster Sighting."

Technically, the pictures were shot with a 35mm SLR Canon camera out at the lake. The "monster" was a plastic dime store dinosaur. The two inch tall creature was placed at water's edge and we feared that the pebbles underneath might show.

As for the Dallas aerospace engineer, Tim Dinsdale, he never existed. The same was true for Ethel Barton and the retired farmer, Thomas Marsh of Howardwick. A quick check of the Howardwick phone listings would have raised suspicions about the story.

By Thursday morning, the phone was ringing off the hook. In one hour Helen Woody, our Office Manager, received fifteen phone calls about the monster. By midmorning, it was obvious others were enjoying the gag because anonymous callers related the loss of cattle from their property and that though the trail looked like truck tires it might also be the twin-tails of the monster.

Center Marks Second Anniversary

By LOWELL CARLSON

Members of the Donley County Senior Citizens Center celebrated their second year Wednesday with a buffet dinner. Over ninety guests registered for the event marking two years of steady growth.

Center coordinator, Mrs. Ruth Mills, pointed out that during the past half year, average attendance per month has been over 500 people.

In explaining the growth of the center's usefulness to senior citizens, Mrs. Mills explained they have sought to offer entertainment and activities tailored to their members' needs.

"We have developed a schedule of events that is apparently popular with our participants at the center. It is an opportunity for people to enjoy the company of others with similar interests and concerns and helps to reduce the feeling of aloneness and uselessness that is so common when people no longer have families or careers to be concerned with," said Mrs. Mills.

For those unable to attend the center's noon luncheons and activities, the center has developed a meals on wheels program with the help of volunteers and center regulars.

Mrs. Mills noted a sense of comradery among center regulars and an informal "nose check" system so that senior citizens living alone who do not come or do not have phones can be identified and contacted if anything seems out of the ordinary.

The center has become an important link in preventive medicine in Donley County. By regularly providing blood pressure checks along with T.B. and glaucoma tests by registered nurses and Dr. Gilkey, the center can help in detecting signs of developing health problems.

"Since we've begun the blood pressure check we've had more people regularly make use of this service and in turn they've become more conscious of keeping tabs on their health," said Mr. Mills.

A full scope of month-long activities continues at the center. The regular middle of the month salad supper honoring all with birthdays during the month has become a regular institution. Classes in arts and crafts are regularly conducted

THE IMPORTANCE OF sharing a group meal as well as planned group activities gives patrons of the center a sense of belonging, a sense of participation sometimes lacking in their own lives with families no longer dependent on them.

Monster Hoax Revealed

Troy Welty, Greenbelt Lake Security Patrol, received phone calls asking if he'd captured the monster yet and it gave Troy a chance to elaborate on the story using his own keen sense of humor.

My neighbor called, in a barely disguised voice on the verge of laughter, saying he'd hooked the monster on his trotline and wanted to know how to get the darned thing off.

By Thursday night the story had made it to Amarillo where a copy of the paper had landed in a doctor's office. A number of Amarillo people read the story. Friday night it made Amarillo radio. A woman from Childress passing through Clarendon said she'd read the story and wanted to know the details about it.

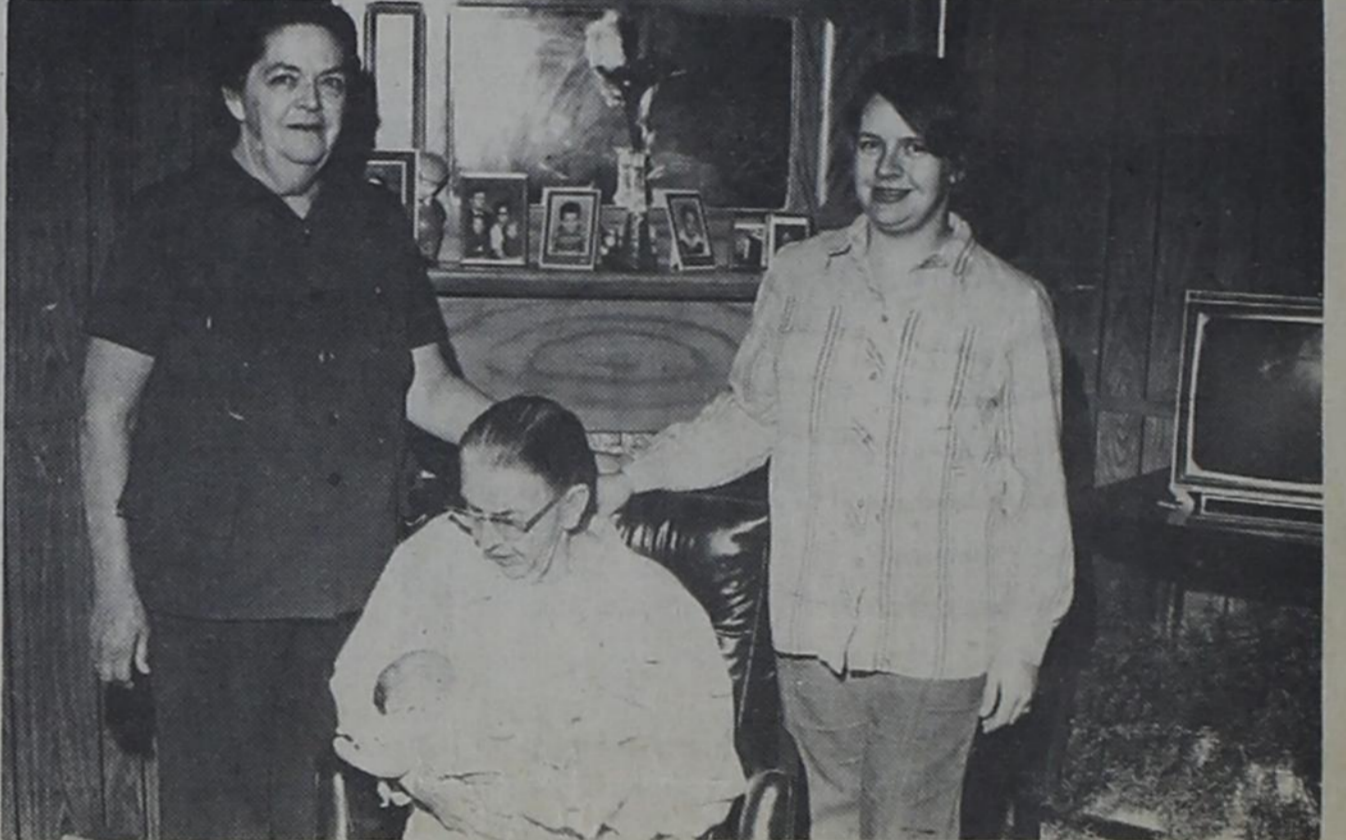

Friday dawned bright and clear. When I got to the office Jim Milam, from the Canteen out at Howardwich, called to say he wanted a picture taken of a couple who'd caught a 17 pound catfish. My first reaction was they're going to get me back for the spoof. How can there possibly be a fish that big in Greenbelt?

There was! An Amarillo couple using cut bait had caught record breakers all week on their trotline. Stony and Vena Craft mentioned, as they held the fish for photographs, a man had warned them to bring a gun when they made their trotline check.

A number of people did believe it was something. Some of the explanations forwarded were that it was a snake, a clenched fist, a tree trunk with rope tied around it, and a real monster. At the public school teachers reported children had read the story avidly and some were frightened of what might be out there.

At the Courthouse several people likened reaction to the monster story to the radio broadcast by Orson Welles describing the invasion of earth by alien forces from Mars. The article was a good example of the need for critical reading of anything in print.

Some readers didn't read the boldface editor's note at the end of the story and for a time did believe the creature might exist. Several readers, perhaps they knew something about the project, asked if the pictures hadn't been shot with a Canon camera. How could they know that?

By Friday afternoon, I asked Truett Behrens if he wouldn't give me police protection. Truett laughed and replied, "thank good-

KARRI'S SONG WRITER and musical adviser Jim Ivy, left, backs guitarist Dennis Holt of the Country Impressions. The Impressions will perform with Karri at Monday's Heart Fund

Concert. Karri will be at Gibsons for a record and tape autographing session Friday, April 8.

Press Photo

By LOWELL CARLSON

"I can't think of anything I'd rather do than sing. I never have wanted to do anything else but sing," explained Karri Pickett.

In her teens and already a veteran of the circuit all young hopefuls must make, Karri and her music will surely evoke interest. She sings simple, direct songs with words and lyrics plain folk can relate to.

She performs Saturday afternoon at the Lakeview Homecoming. While in the Panhandle Karri sang for a small invitation crowd at the Lions Hall Monday night and will perform at the Caravan Thursday night in Amarillo before returning to sing for the Lakeview Homecoming Saturday afternoon.

Monday evening at 7:30 Karri will perform on the stage of Harned Sisters Fine Arts Auditorium on the college campus. Sponsored by the local Heart Fund, the benefit concert tickets will cost a nominal $1.00 for adults, 50 cents for students.

Tickets are available at John's, Clifford's Grocery or at the door.

April 8, Karri will do the Amarillo talk show, T.N.T. on Channel 10, CBS.

Karri cut her first record at age eight and has been singing ever since. Unaffected she talked frankly about her experiences in the world of country and western music.

"The kind of people that come to see me are good country people - an audience out to have a good, clean night. They're looking for a good country show and that's what we try to give them everytime."

A Longview native Karri once begged her brother to let her sing with his four-man band. One day he let her and the career began.

"Success? I guess right now that word means walking onto the stage of the Grand Old Opry and hearing people applaud. Making them happy and knowing they liked my music," said Karri.

The illusions of a glamorous career may still exist but to Karri Pickett the burden of constantly trying harder to perfect her music is there.

"I've walked into a DJ's office and given him a record only to have him throw it away. It hurts a lot but I know I'll have to always try my best and if that's not good enough then I'll have to do better," pointed out Karri.

After most important performances Jim Ivy, her song writer, and others that travel with Karri analyze each song. How could it have been improved, how could the delivery be more effective? She knows she could have done better at times and it drives her to improve.

"I suppose doing these small town performances and county fair engagements is a form of paying dues but I enjoy people. I don't know what I would do if I couldn't sing. Even in my private life I'd want to sing even if there wasn't any money or future in it."

Karri is attracted to the Austin sound of Willie Nelson. The deep-felt lyrics and straight forward style seem to convey a feeling Karri herself wants to project in her music.

"Let's face it country and western is here to stay, they listen to it everywhere," pointed out Karri.

This summer Karri returns to Nashville to cut an album. Jimmy Bright and guitarist Buddy Emmons will produce it for her and the venture is being backed by a group of businessmen who see nothing but a rising star in Karri's talent.

"Right now at age 14 I'm kind of restricted in what I can do. You have to be 18 to sing in clubs in Louisiana but here in Texas you can sing younger if you're accompanied by parents so that's what I've been doing a lot of," said Karri.

Karri explained relating to lyrics was sometimes a problem but that it was getting easier.

"How do I relate to a song about a man leaving his wife when the only thing I've had to say goodbye to has been my cat," explained Karri. "I feel a lot of things with my music but some of that kind of emotion has to come from actual experiences."

For a girl 14 years old the road has its own kind of lessons to teach. Spending Monday night in California for an engagement and being in Louisiana the next Saturday for the same kind of effect on a person's private life and outlook.

"This is what it takes to establish yourself, create an image and become known. I'm willing to give it my best and hope my talent will take me where I want to go," explained Karri.

usually three to four weeks. But this is not enough, points out Gooch. A supplement of calcium hydroxide (hydrated lime) needs to be added to the feed mix to serve as an antidote to the poisoning. A feed mix of 600 pounds of ground alfalfa, 1,080 pounds of cottonseed meal, 120 pounds of vegetable oil and 200 pounds of hydrated lime has proved effective as well as economical. There should be no substitutions in the mix.

Calves should receive the mix creep-fed while older animals need about 4 pounds daily, starting about a week before shin oak buds appear, explains Gooch.

Ronald Gooch Reports

Donley County Extension Agent

Stockmen in Donley County will soon be faced with an annual problem that often goes untreated or unnoticed. That problem is shin oak poisoning, notes Ronald Gooch, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Livestock that eat shin oak buds, flowers and leaves as new growth begins in the spring begin to lose weight and have a constant case of diarrhea. Calves are especially susceptible, and some have died from hemorrhagic enteritis and bloody diarrhea after being ill only 24 hours. Signs of the toxin working within the animal begin with depression, a decrease in appetite, frequent urination and smaller intakes of water, says Gooch. Death may occur after animal has been ill more than a month.

ness someone else is getting the heat instead of me."

Some questioned the use of newspaper space for something like that when there were stories that needed reportage. They were right. There was an upcoming election and trivia probably doesn't belong on the front page. Others were apprehensive the story might scare people away from the lake. One woman did call and say she wouldn't allow her grandchildren to swim in the lake again.

The monster does not exist. It never did and never will. Unlike the Lock Ness monster, our Greenbelt monster did not have the closing refuge of an inlet from the sea to gain access to an isolated lake.

We certainly hope the story gave the lake publicity, the right kind especially. It was certainly the topic of conversation for a time. Frankly I'm sad to see the monster myth exploded. But, better to reassure people that it was a spoof than let the thing linger.

Come next April Fools Day (provided I'm still here after all this) mark your calendar for another story.

James Owens Boots Sought By Saipan Couple

It's not everyday that something made in Clarendon finds its way to the Marianas Islands in the western Pacific Ocean. But, that's what happened Thursday when Fred Nelson, grandson of a Norwegian sea captain and his friend Toni Hudson from the Island of Saipan visited James Owens Boot Shop.

"I was eighteen before I had even a pair of shoes of my own," said Fred. "Now that I can afford boots I want to wear the best. I just had to have a pair made by James Owens."

Nelson, recently retired from a career in telephone communications that took him to the Pacific, related his grandfather had come to Texas in the 1880's and bought land to live the life of a cattleman.

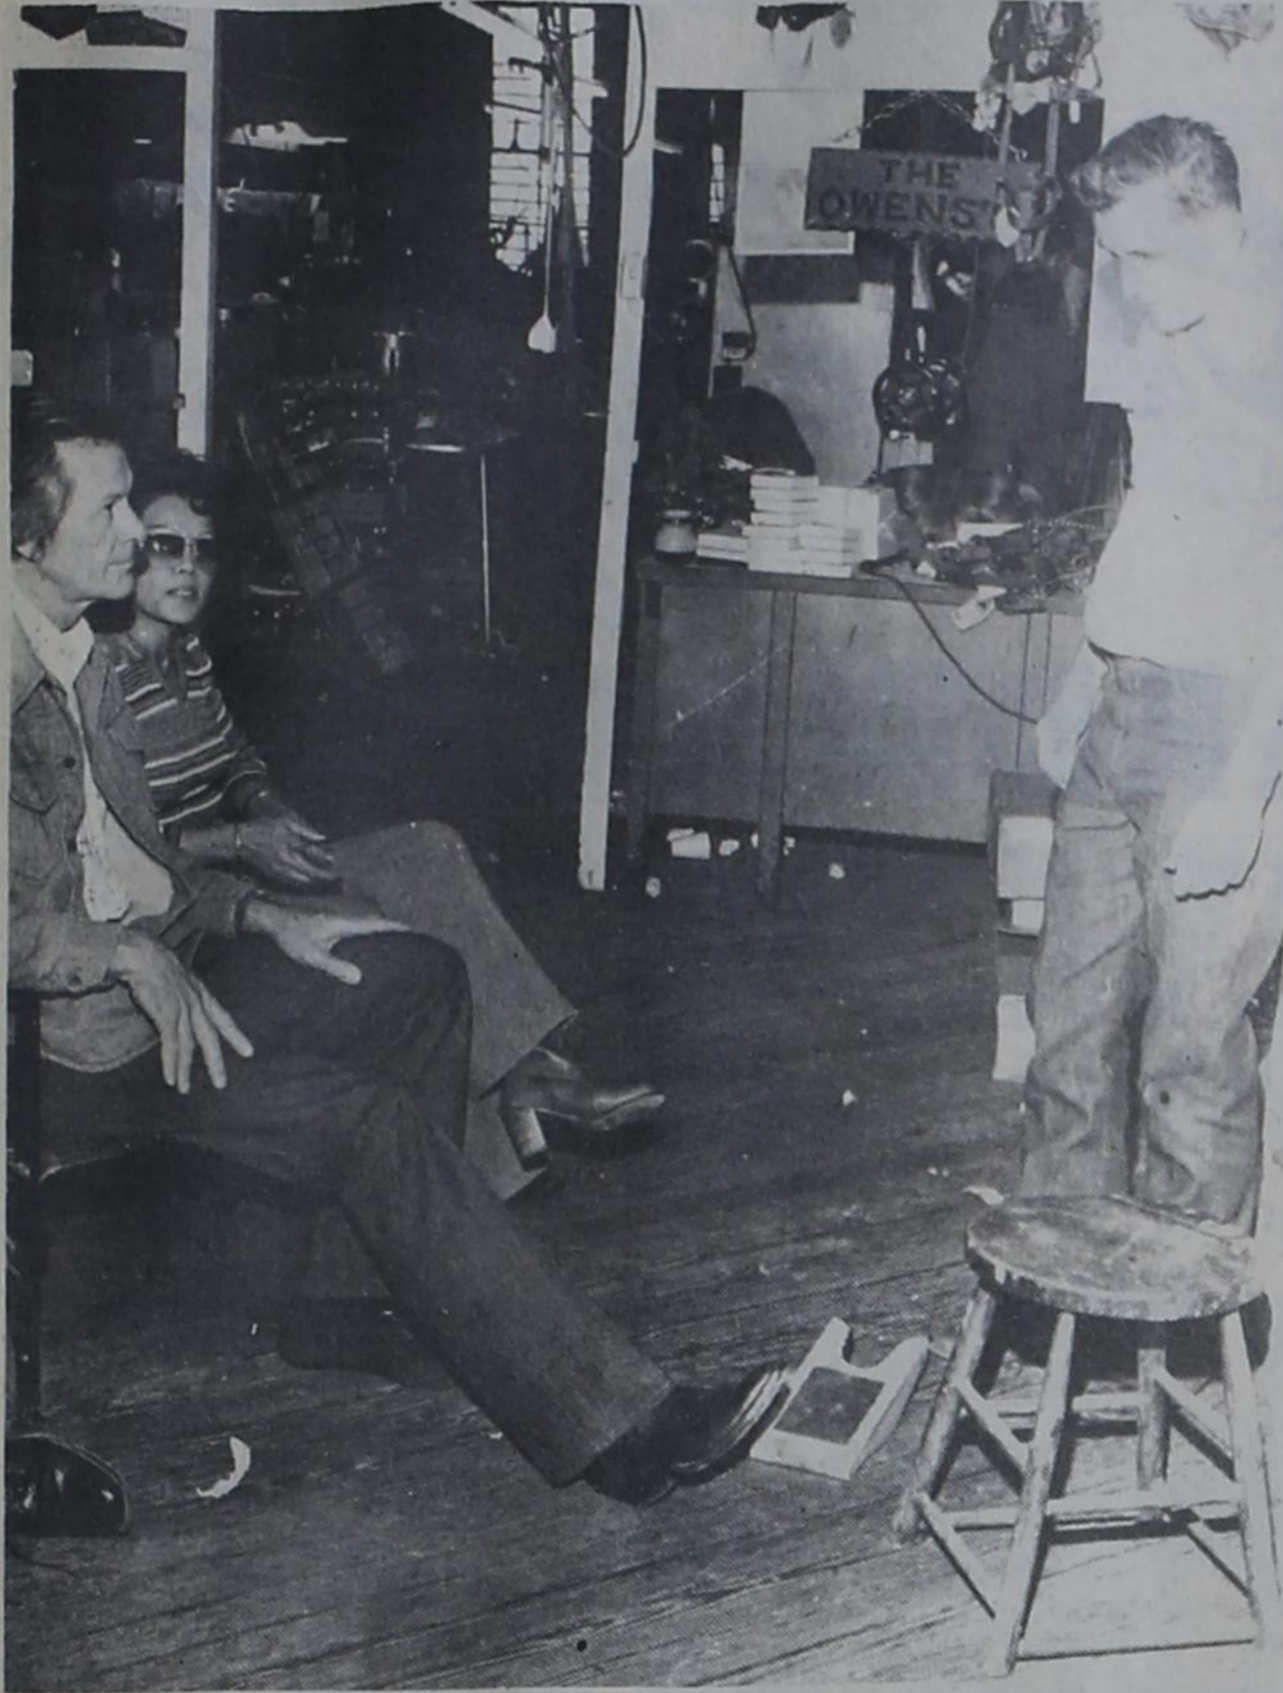

"I used to have boots custom made for me in Mexico but for years my in-laws, cousins and family have been coming to Owens. I suppose I was very lucky since I only had to wait six weeks from the time I gave him my measurements and design specifications," explained Nelson. "That's little enough to wait for boots that are completely handmade."

Toni's impressions of America and the Panhandle of Texas were honest and polite. Having been here during our strong spring blows and dust storms she commented it is a nice place to live but....

"Let's face it, the Pacific is a lot different than the Panhandle," said Toni. "I can't get used to the lack of humidity in the air. Everything seems so dry."

Nelson who still considers himself an old country boy explained to Toni some of the equipment and tack Owens has collected through the years and displays on the shop walls. The world of horses and cattle was as alien to Toni as tropical hurricanes and endless ocean are to landlocked Great Plains people. It seemed incongruous to find boots going to the Pacific but then if they're comfortable to wear - why not?

GROW YOUR OWN GARDEN TRANSPLANTS

Use of transplants is one of the keys to successful gardening, and an individual can grow his own vigorous transplants indoors. However, care should be used not to start them too early.

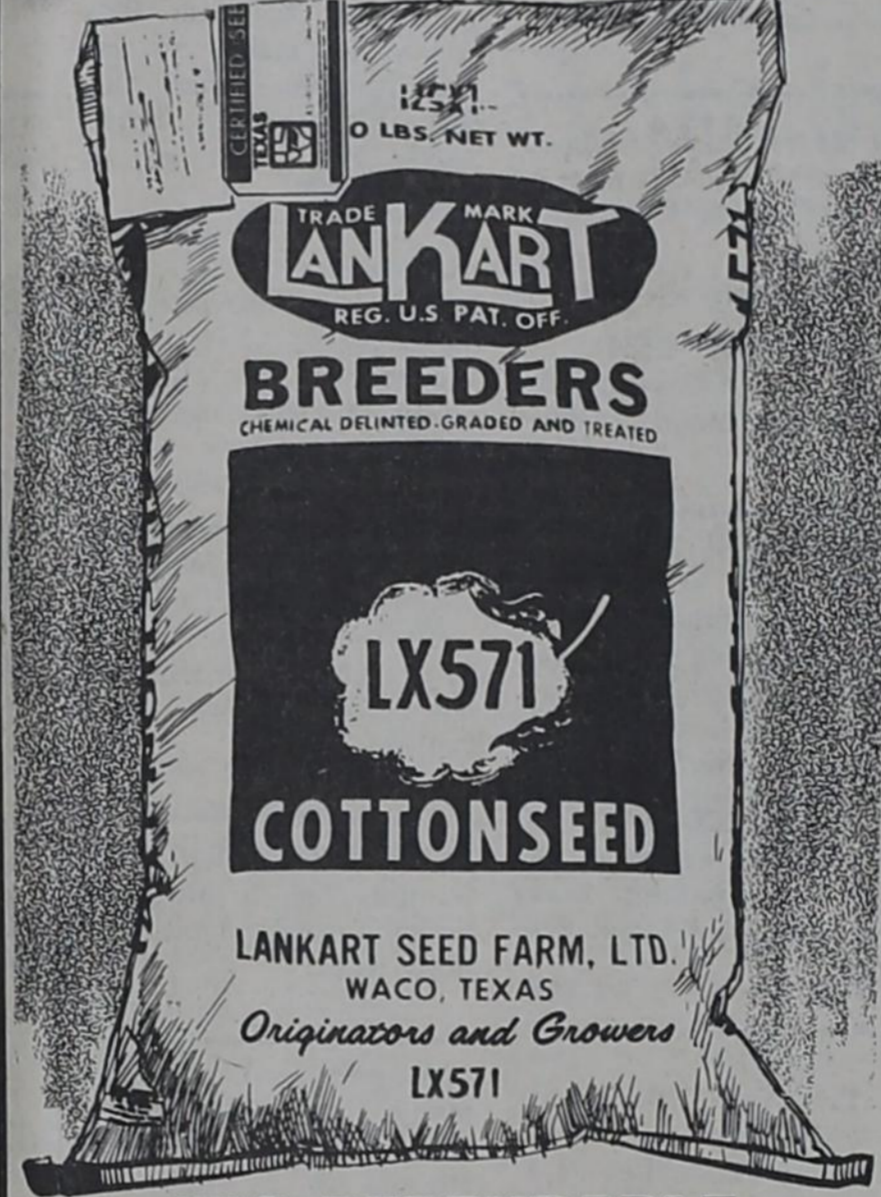

This is a common mistake made by inexperienced gardeners. Transplants from seed planted too early become spindly, weak, tall and yellow and do not do well when set out in the garden. For the best survival and quick recovery after planting in the garden, transplants should be young, sturdy and in good nutritional condition.

Usually four to six weeks is sufficient time to grow most transplants. Vine crops take two to three weeks to develop two to three true leaves while lettuce takes three to four weeks. Tomatoes need five to seven weeks to reach transplanting stage. These time requirements are at the recommended day temperature of about 75 degrees F. and a night temperature of 60 degrees F.

To determine planting time for transplants, figure back four to six weeks from the average last spring frost date in Donley County. Seed of most spring garden varieties should be planted about this time. Some transplants such as cabbage, broccoli, lettuce, green onions and spinach can be set in the garden four to six weeks before the last frost date.

When starting plants indoors, use a soilless or synthetic soil mix available at garden centers or nurseries. Seed can be started in almost any type container such as flower pots, milk cartons or cake pans. Be sure the container has holes for adequate drainage.

THE BIG ONE FOR DRY COUNTRY

IT'S DEPENDABLE

Dependable yields of consistently high quality fiber even in drought years. That's what made LX 571 a long time favorite with farmers here about. And it's nice to know that you don't have to give up something else for drought resistance. Farmers appreciate the good gin turn-out of fairly long staple fiber which makes in the premium range under normal conditions.

At maturity you'll like the looks of LX 571's storm resistant bolls and at harvest you'll appreciate how well it strips one-time-over.

LX 571 along with other Lankart varieties accounts for over 60% of the cotton planted in the Altus Classing Office territory and have for a number of years... strong testimony from people who know how to grow cotton in this area. If you think this might be a dry year

CHECK THESE LX 571 CHARACTERISTICS:

- Good dryland cotton
- Good root system for drought resistance
- Top yields
- Good gin turn-out
- Medium early maturity
- Storm resistant bolls
- Excellent stripper variety
- Well-adapted to one-time-over harvesting
- Staple length in the 1" and longer range
- Micronaire in the premium range (under normal growing conditions)

CHECK THESE RESULTS:

Information from cotton variety comparisons made in 1976 in various locations in Texas and Oklahoma:

- Childress, Texas
On dryland without fertilization LX 571 (Lankart) made 687 pounds of lint per acre. The cotton which was machine harvested had a micronaire of 4.7, staple length of 30 and a gin turnout of 26.8 percent.
- Haskell, Texas
In a dryland cotton variety test, LX 571 produced 665 pounds of lint to top the test and beat the second variety in the test by 12 pounds per acre. The fiber graded 50, had a staple length of 32, micronaire of 5.4 and a gin turnout of 29.5 percent.
- Wall, Texas
LX 571 also topped this test of eight varieties on non-irrigated land without fertilizer. It produced 544 pounds of lint with a staple length of 34. Micronaire was 4.7, solidly in the premium range.
- Delhi, Oklahoma
Under extreme drought conditions and without irrigation, LX 571 made a lint yield of 250 pounds per acre. The cotton graded 40, had a staple length of 30/32, a micronaire of 5.2. The gin turnout was 29.9 percent.
- Cooperton, Oklahoma
In this test on the Kenneth Boyd farm, Lankart LX 571 produced 349 pounds per acre of very good cotton. It graded 50 with a staple length of 33/32, micronaire of 5.0 and had a gin turnout of 28.6 percent.

If you raise dryland cotton in this area where drought is a threat, go with LX 571 this year. You can get Lankart LX 571 from your ginner.

Former Resident Supervises Child Welfare

ANN RAY'S responsibilities include working closely with case workers in county child welfare offices. Ann (left) is shown with Donley County worker Annabeth McNabb at the Clarendon office.

Ann Ray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Slavin, logs over 1500 miles a month administering child welfare programs in a seven county area including Donley County. An eight year veteran of case work and administrative duties in the Department of Public Welfare, Mrs. Ray works with county child welfare offices like Donley County's office on Highway 287 West.

Her duties include protective services, child welfare, investigation of complaints of child abuse.

"My job is basically to supervise case workers in each county to see that they do their job and work with them on especially hard cases. There are lots of records to review," commented Ray.

Child abuse and its increase in reported incidence was a subject of discussion as Mrs. Ray outlined several theories about its current status.

"We think it's on the increase because we get more complaints but we've also added more staff so that we can investigate more complaints. The recent child abuse campaign on TV and radio has pointed out the incidence of child abuse to more people."

Part of Ann's assignment includes arranging for foster homes for children without parents or children who cannot remain with parents.

"We have one foster home in Donley County at the present time, we're always looking for more. Though there are a number of foster homes in the Panhandle, it is sometimes difficult to arrange for a home for a child on short notice," said Ray.

The peculiar problems of small towns and child welfare were pointed out by Ray as she explained that many times children become conceivably do immense harm to them emotionally. If something happens to little Suzie and you're a parent you don't want your children to play with little Suzie, it's not intentional meanness but a reaction to other's problems that we sometimes make," said Ann.

To keep children from suffering the amount of publicity is kept to a low level by law.

"It's hard to let the public know that these problems exist in the community and that these kinds of children are here without harming the children themselves."

To aid and support the county offices Ray and other child welfare staffers continue an ongoing service training program with feedback from field people. Ray attends seminars herself and will attend the Child Welfare League of America conference in Austin next month.

"We keep trying to learn how to work with children and if something is successful elsewhere we try to adapt it to our programs here in the Panhandle," explained Ann.

Ann explained she liked the job, found it challenging and liked the people she worked with in the counties.

"The first beat up child I saw lying unconscious in a hospital emergency room got to me so bad. It was so hard to be understanding to parents who could do such a thing but I think I realize now that these parents need help badly. They need help as much as the child does. I don't know that you get hardened to seeing such incidents but you get used to it; you expect to see things like that occasionally," said Ray.

Ray pointed out that in many cases even with the chance of potential child abuse that children were sometimes better left in homes fraught with ongoing problems.

"When I first entered child welfare work I wanted so often to take the child out of the home and place them where they could be better cared for. I had to be taught that parents have problems and that the best way to help the child over the long-run was to work with parents on their problems," explained Ray.

Ray pointed out the benefit child care facilities might have for families with problems. By allowing mothers and fathers with problems to receive some counseling and not confront their children constantly it allowed some remedial work instead of breaking up the family unit.

"If your day care center in Clarendon gets Title XX funding, there is a provision in the funding agreement that the center will serve as a shelter for children in need of care and supervision from family homes with problems. We could use the center as a temporary shelter. If a child was being abused or neglected we could arrange for the child to be taken care of at the center for a set number of hours per day so that the parent could receive counseling," explained Ray.

Ray explained the arrangement allowed quick counseling with mothers with family problems burdening them and allowed a release from home pressures.

"Our primary goal is to keep families together," said Ann. "We want to work with problems in families as a unit and not separately."

Do You Understand The Bible?

While the Bible remains the world's best seller year after year, millions within reach of the sacred volume lack knowledge of its teachings.

Why? Some are confused over religious division. Others are convinced they are unable to understand the Bible. It should be emphasized that the Bible was written for common folks, not just ministers or professional theologians. Finders of Bible truth must have (1) honest hearts, (2) open minds, and (3) a desire for the truth only.

Now, in the privacy of your own home, you can enjoy an organized and systematic series of fundamental Bible lessons designed to increase your knowledge, understanding, and appreciation of the Book of books.

The correspondence course is free . . . non-sectarian . . . and your own Bible will be the only textbook.

Your life will be blessed and spiritually enriched for undertaking this home study course of the Bible—described as a "lamp" unto our feet and a "light" unto our pathway (Psalms 119:105). Enroll today by mailing your request to the address below. All lessons will be by correspondence only.

Building Good Family Communication

Family relations is a topic in which every person is interested and is always striving to improve. The PEP Seminar to be held in Amarillo on April 19 is titled "Communication: Life Line of Family Life". Dr. John Drakeford and his wife are going to concentrate upon family communication. If you are unable to attend the seminar, perhaps the following will help you improve and build good family communication.

Open, honest communication is one tool for improving family relationships. But learning to communicate effectively with loved ones isn't always easy. Differences in values and feelings cause conflict and misunderstanding.

First, remember that both words and actions communicate. Facial expressions, tone of voice, posture, breathing tempo and many other actions communicate a person's feelings and attitudes.

Actions should speak the same as words--not louder--for best communication. It's hard to understand when a speaker says one thing but his actions don't back up his words. For example, it's especially confusing to a young child when his parents tell him "we don't hit anyone in anger" as they spank him hard for hitting someone else.

Sharing feelings--even negative ones--is another way to build good communication within a family. Everyone feels angry, jealous or sad at times, and it's encouraging to live in a home where expressing these feelings is acceptable. Trusting and sharing problems or concerns with family is a signal that communication is working well.

In order to share feelings, mutual trust and respect are necessary. Communication is improved when family members discard methods that lead to resentment and self-doubt.

Name calling, constant criticism, threats and accusations tend to break down effective communication among family members. Instead, concentrate on positive feelings and aspects of the situation. Specifically, state your own ideas and feelings, rather than verbally attacking the other person.

Listen--with understanding--to learn other family members' views of the situation before taking action or responding.

There are several ways to create opportunities for open conversation with others.

- Plan a time for relaxed discussion in privacy without interruptions.
- Establish and follow basic ground rules to say what you mean without attacking or blaming others.
- Listen carefully to what others say.

--If you don't understand what someone means, ask rather than making assumptions.

--Look for body motions and facial expressions, because people communicate physically just as much as verbally.

--Consider your own non-verbal methods of communication, how and why you do them.

WASHINGTON -- Sen. John Tower (R-Tex) today announced he is accepting applications from Texas senior citizens who wish to participate in an intern program in his Washington office for two weeks in May.

Two citizens will be selected from the applicants to spend from May 16 through 27 in Tower's Washington office observing the legislative process, meeting with representatives of departments and agencies and participating in the operations of a Congressional office.

"This program will be helpful both to the senior citizens and to me as their representative in Washington," Tower said.

"I hope to learn from them about their problems, needs and opinions," the Texas Republican said. "At the same time, I hope they will learn about the legislative process and government programs designed for their needs and communicate their knowledge to their fellow senior citizens in the State."

Tower said a demanding schedule of activities will include meetings with various agency, department and committee representatives, an all day trip to the Social Security Administration in Baltimore and the opportunity to attend committee hearings.

The interns will work on a briefing book explaining the programs designed to benefit senior citizens at the city, county and state level.

However, all will not be hard work, Tower said. Plans also include a private tour of the White House and social activities with the Congressional staff and other interns.

While the senior citizens intern program is authorized and funded by Congress, Tower stated that he is the only member of the Texas delegation who is sponsoring the program this year.

Tower said the two interns will be chosen by a panel of representatives of senior citizens and retirement associations. He said applicants should be senior citizens who are at least 65 years of age, are active in their own communities, have an interest in legislation and would be willing and able to share with their age group the experience and information gained in Washington.

Interns will receive their airfare to and from Washington as well as a stipend to cover expenses while in Washington.

Applications can be obtained from Tower's Houston office at 515 Rusk, Rm. 6626, Houston, Texas, 77002. The deadline for returning the applications with letters of recommendation to the Houston office is April 22.

IOWA FARMERS transplanted in Hartley area include the Robert Fickbohms, Jo, Cindy and Bob and their two other children have joined half a dozen already settled in the Hartley area. Like others they were drawn to the lower priced land in the Panhandle suitable for development with center pivot irrigation.

Iowa Farmers-New Immigrants To Panhandle

By LOWELL CARLSON

They don't come with threadbare hopes and scant possessions like immigrants from Europe in the 1880's. Most of them left farms in the Midwest where land values are climbing toward the $4000 per acre mark.

These new immigrants have found the Texas Panhandle to indeed be the new frontier of corn farming and they are making heavy investments in land and improvements in the northern counties of the Panhandle.

Bob Fickbohm and his wife Jo mortgaged the home farm in the Fort Dodge, Iowa area two years ago after visiting with one of the initial families to make the move to the Hartley-Dalhart area.

"Howard Sorrenson came down here first, he saw there was an opportunity to get in on the bottom floor before land prices went up and for him it's been a very profitable investment," said Bob.

Most of the farmers who have invested in land around the Hartley area have come from a three-county area around Fort Dodge. Families have come from Sac, Webster and Calhoun counties.

A John Deere dealer at Dalhart characterized the Iowa farmers as shrewd corn growers.

"When those boys grow corn they put down an ungodly amount of fertilizer, more than local people are used to. They go first class. They've bought some big equipment but don't seem to go for the big tractors, four-wheel drives, like the locals do."

Bob brought some major tillage equipment with him and unbelievably cropped both the home farm in Iowa and his section and a half of center-pivot irrigated land west of Hartley the first year.

"Jo and the girls stayed home and cultivated corn and soybeans while Randy and I came down here and continued to break out this pastureland, put in center-pivots and the bin system," explained Bob.

During the first three months after the entire Fickbohm family was settled they had 38 Iowa guests register in the logbook they kept. Some just shook their heads when Bob showed them the land he was developing. Sandy with little loam like Iowans are used to they couldn't believe Bob raised 180 bushels of corn to the acre the first year after the center pivots.

"I took a coffee jar of soil back home with me when we went back for a visit and asked my friends to tell me what it was. Some said coffee, others thought it was pure sand. They just wouldn't believe me when I told them how much corn we took off," laughed Fickbohm.

Adjusting to a new community and a different culture was not entirely smooth for the five members of the family.

"Jo's the kind of person who makes a few very close friends and it was hard for her to leave old acquaintances behind. Me, I can walk into a cafe and talk to anybody; the move didn't bother me that much," said Bob.

For Pam, a senior at the time the family made the decision to move to Texas, it was unbearable. Though she came with the family and stayed for one semester of school, old ties and friends back in Iowa eventually forced her to return to graduate with her senior class.

"It seems strange but she married a boy she'd known vaguely all those years back in Iowa after she returned to stay with her grandmother for those last months of school," said Jo. "And Cindy, our second oldest is going with the son of another Iowa family that moved down here after us. It's a small world I guess."

The Fickbohms believe the schools spend more time with students involving them in actual situations here in Texas but questioned the stress placed on academic excellence feeling there was much more emphasis placed on athletics in Texas than in Iowa.

The trend seems to be a widening interest in investment in Texas lands. Word of mouth, feature stories and of course ads placed in state farm magazines has stimulated interest in Texas farmland among farmers in Minnesota, Indiana and Illinois.

"We were at the point where room for expansion didn't exist. When you have a dozen people competing for a farm to rent or buy, there's not much hope of getting big enough to take a son into the operation. And we thought we could increase our net worth considerably by investing when we did. I think it was a wise decision," said Bob.

Yet, Bob explained that sometimes when the wind blows hard all day and crop prices stay low it makes him wonder if its all worth it.

"On paper I'm a rich man but actually all we're doing right now is holding our investment together. We aren't making enough on corn to pay the cost of production. In a way we know that this increase in land prices can't go on without an increase in commodity prices. Somebody is going to get hurt. Already, several of the early Iowa farmer investors down here have sold to people from Illinois and Indiana. I don't know how the new owners think they can even pay the interest load let alone principal."

Moving once might make another move less unthinkable to the Fickbohms. Bob hates to think he's married to a tractor and there are other things he'd like to do. Developing land in Arizona holds his interest. He's toyed with the idea of building a campground for motorhome campers. They even think about going back to Iowa.

"The hardest thing to get accustomed to is the wind. And we do miss the trees and water. There are a lot of us that do miss things about Iowa," pointed out Jo.

Last year Jo and several other Iowa farm wives organized an all-Iowa picnic for recent immigrants. Over 168 people came. This year, the picnic is scheduled for the last Sunday in August at Dalhart's city park.

Community reaction to the influx of Iowa people and money has been mixed.

"I'm sure there was some resentment toward us. I know when Carroll County farmers started buying land in our area we resented it. They bid up the price and we couldn't assume we'd have a shot at land when it came up for sale," said Fickbohm. "A

Program For Control Of Bovine Brucellosis In Texas

Plans of the Texas Animal Health Commission have been outlined for an expanded program for control of bovine brucellosis in Texas, says Ronald Gooch, county Extension agent for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Although not in effect at present, the program could assist livestock owners in reducing the disease incidence more rapidly. The expanded program would be dependent on additional funding requested of the legislature by the Texas Animal Health Commission, along with an expected $1.80 in federal money for each state dollar designated for this purpose.

The proposed program is responsive to recommendations resulting from the International Symposium on Brucellosis held at Texas A & M University in 1976. Key livestock industry groups have indicated an endorsement of the proposed program, Gooch adds.

Areas of emphasis included in the proposed program are:

1. An active program of incentive based calfhood vaccination.
 2. Use of Strain 19 adult vaccination in problem herds.
 3. Increased surveillance and improved traceback from the market identification program.
 4. Use of supplemental diagnostic tests.
- "The expanded program would provide emphasis on the use of Strain 19 brucella abortus vaccine for producers wishing to follow a calfhood vaccination program, as well as the selective use of adult vaccination with Strain 19 in so-called problem herds, improvement in the present system of finding and tracing infected cattle, and the increased use of supplemental testing on those cattle reacting to the card test," Gooch explains.
- The bovine brucellosis problem is still present in many areas. An expanded program to reduce the incidence and reinforce the overall program goals is the objective of this thrust by the Texas Animal Health Commission.

Iowa Farmers

neighbor of mine here resented us but by the same token we've made his land more valuable because there's more interest in buying land in the community."

On the whole community reaction to the Iowans, many of them Catholic, has been wholehearted acceptance.

"The son of an Iowa couple that had just moved down was killed in an auto accident. The family was Catholic but the Methodist Church here in Harley held a memorial service for him," said Jo.

There remains a type of clannishness about the Iowans that's easier to understand if seen in the varying difference in mid-western lifestyle compared to the Southwest.

"It took some getting used to to drink ice tea in the winter and I never saw so much corn bread or pinto beans. Blackeyed peas all the time also. And a soda pop is a coke no matter what flavor you want," pointed out Jo.

Do they like Texas? Bob wears jeans, western cut shirts and boots and goes everywhere in his pickup. Unless he opened his mouth he would look just like his neighbor across the fence.

Statistics And You

"Of the 211 million people living in America today, more than 80% had not yet been born when the first World War took place. Two-thirds of all the people living in America were not alive in 1931 when the Great Depression got underway and yet we have all these people talking these days about the Great Depression. "Fifty-five percent of all the people living in America today had not yet been born when John Kennedy was inaugurated President of the United States."

"And listen to this last one—it's unbelievable, but true—more than 20% of our people living in America today had not yet been born when John Kennedy was inaugurated President of the United States."
