Jail Reform - Biting the Bullet

A potential flash point for increased county taxes or a bond issue surfaced Wednesday, June 1 in a special meeting of county judges and commissioners at the Donley County Courthouse Annex. Present were members of county commissions from Donley, Hall, Wheeler and Collingsworth counties.

Panhandle Regional Planning Commission representative John Scott from the Criminal Justice Division explained the county's situation regarding current jail conditions and those outlined in both state and federal regulations now on the books.

In essence, the county and others with outdated jails must take a long hard look at meeting new jail regulations or face possible closing of jails by January 1 by federal court orders.

With the prospect of no federal monies now available for construction grants the county appears to have two alternatives at present. The county can remodel the present jail facility at an approximate cost of $18,000 or build a 72 hour holding facility at approximately $200-250,000 and make arrangements with a nearby detention center for holding longer-term prisoners on a contract basis.

The specifics of the new jail codes will make increased demands on county funds regardless of which alternative the county opts for. Both state and federal regulations require hourly checks on prisoners. Federal regulations are more stringent in relation to single cell occupancy while Texas standards outlined in Article 5115 do not make this requirement.

Commissioners and the Sheriff's department are obviously caught in the middle and play the difficult role of seeking to meet state and/or federal regulations while still seeking to keep county property taxes at a realistic level.

"What if a bond issue to build a new jail fails in this county?" asked Commissioner Jess Finley. "You're talking about something nobody is interested in!"

Collingsworth County Judge Zook Thomas outlined the course his county was pursuing stating funds were being placed in a special account and that they would seek revenue sharing funds to supplement local sources of funds for the inevitable day a jail would have to be built, multi-county arrangement or one-county jail.

"You can expect plenty of opposition for the construction of a new jail. It's not a popular item for a bond issue or for increased taxes until your son or daughter gets put in jail," said John Scott of the PRPC. "What we're saying is that you can probably expect to have your jail shut down come January 1 by a federal judge because it will not comply with federal jail standards."

One of the major reasons for Wednesday's meeting was to gain commissioner sentiment for a proposed multi-county jail facility to be located centrally in an area including Donley, Hall, Wheeler and Collingsworth counties. Donley County's share for such a facility would be approximately $70,000.

Judge Christal explained that though the county could possibly build a 72-hour facility it still ran the risk of being sued if the contract facility for longer-term prisoners did not meet federal and state standards.

"There are some very hard decisions to be made here," explained Christal. "While I personally think that each county should stand on its own right now it doesn't look like we can afford to build either a new jail by ourselves or go in with the other counties on a central detention center. The only problem with the latter decision is that if we don't get in on the ground floor it's going to cost us a whole lot more."

Christal believes a 72-hour facility won't be that favorable for one-term costs because when a prisoner is held over that period he must be contracted even with a jail renovation.

Both Christal and Sheriff Behrens expressed concern about the amount of increased taxation Donley County property owners could realistically shoulder.

"I know we need a new jail facility in this county and I think most people realize it's in sad shape but let's be realistic about what people can pay in taxes," said Behrens. "In most cases we have few people who stay in jail in this county more than 72 hours with the exception of felony cases sometimes. I think we might think first about a 72-hour facility and then go from there. I don't want to get into the position of having to look the other way so I wouldn't see a person commit a crime to save driving 90 miles round trip to a facility located in Wellington."

Hall County's Judge, Lester Campbell, explained his feeling about a county facility saying he didn't want a jail in Hall County and would be happy to pay a contract fee for prisoner maintenance. Hall County barely escaped a major law suit over a prisoner's well-being some years ago when the county maintained a jail.

Since closing the jail Hall County prisoners have routinely been held in the Collingsworth County jail.

But the nub of the problem revolves around meeting federal and state standards for jail construction. Because there is no grant money currently available for new jail construction in the Panhandle, counties are faced with the prospect of shouldering the cost on a per county basis or a multi-county arrangement such as the plan discussed Wednesday.

Statistically, Donley County housed 63 prisoners over 72 hours in the past 261 weeks. This information is from a PRPC study. Hall County, by comparison, housed only three prisoners over 60 days in the last five years.

Yet even comparatively new facilities are not immune to threat of closure. Castro County's jail was constructed in 1969 and they have been forced to close its doors for

Hommel First Tax Head Since 40's

CHAUNCEY HOMMEL, recently appointed Tax Assessor-Collector, took oath of office Wednesday, June 1 in the office of County Judge Billy Christal. Hommel will be the first to hold the office since 1940 when enabling legislation allowed counties with declining populations to combine tax duties with those of the sheriff.

Donley County's new assessor-collector enters office at a time when fiscal demands on county tax payers could increase following word from PRPC representative John Scott that the county's jail faces closure for failing to meet state and federal standards.

Some cotton farmers might feel funny about wishing for the rain to end but with June pushing relentlessly toward the end of safe cotton planting days the recent clear skies and end of the almost nightly showers spelled welcome release from the shortening planting schedule. The Barbees, who farm south of Clarendon, will plant nearly 750 acres of cotton this year. The 8-row outfit can cover 180 acres per day in good conditions. The field Earnest was planting though still remained waterlogged last Thursday when the photograph was taken. The Barbees have planted on the bed for several years now and Ernest feels it was the best move they've made with such a wet planting season this year. County Extension Agent Ronald Gooch estimates the bulk of the cotton crop will be planted by the end of the week - if the weather continues to hold.

Presenting the button is Mrs. Neal Collier, Wichita Falls, president of the Texas CowBelles. Briscoe, a widely-known rancher, has endorsed the up-coming Beef Referendum. He urged all Texas cattle producers to register between June 6-17 at their county ASCS offices and then return to vote "Yes" during July 5-15. The Referendum, if passed, would authorize a self-help program of beef research, education and promotion.

Commissioners Hear DA Reform List

Commissioners gave their approval to tentatively accept the wording of a final report from the office of District Attorney Charles Darter concerning financial reforms for the court.

Meeting in special session Tuesday morning at 10:00, precinct commissioners went over the document detailing recommended procedures to standardize budgeting procedures for the county's government.

"We need to change procedures so that you can turn this thing around to take in more than you spend out of the general fund," said Darter. "We aren't trying to tell you what to do but rather get the county operating in the black and to do that it takes some better budgeting procedures."

Some of the recommended changes will necessarily involve more bookkeeping responsibilities and most of that will fall to the County Judge. While Darter and the commissioners agreed some additional time was required to critically evaluate the proposed procedural changes the commissioners indicated a willingness to seek a uniform set of operating rules to guide this and future courts in proper financial accounting for purchases and expenditures.

"Central to the changes is the appointing of a purchasing officer and a set of rules governing what expenditures can be made and by who," said Darter. "In cases of emergency purchases, such as items like batteries and tires for county vehicles it's important that a procedure be developed to allow purchases without tying up equipment when it's needed."

Another point of concern was the lack of any detailed knowledge of exact department operating expenses.

Among the document's recommendations is naming a central mailing point with limited access to postage.

Banker Recounts Past-Looks to Future

"If you stay around long enough you'll see a lot of changes," says Emmett O. Simmons of his 39 years of banking in Donley County. "When I went to work in the bank I was the only bookkeeper; Mr. Van Kennedy and Miss Anna Moores took care of the customers and Mr. J. D. Swift made the loans. We had about $1.2 million in deposits. Today, we have 15 employees and have reached 15 million in deposits 5 times this year." For Simmons and his family Clarendon has been home his entire life except for five years naval service during World War II.

Emmett credits his interest in radio communication and being a member of the U. S. Naval Communications Reserve with the path his military service took during the war.

He built a bank by helping people by understanding their needs and made loans that would enable them to grow and better themselves by increasing their income."

Clarendon's future looks very favorable with the recent announcements of two new industries bringing payroll money into the local economy. With Skinner Enterprises moving their wholesale leather goods manufacturing business to Clarendon and Bill Allen's hitch manufacturing business starting up, Simmons sees substantial benefits to increasing personal incomes and the spin-off in retail sales and investments in property.

Now he never sees a day the lake doesn't have some influence on the life of the community. With its increasing attraction as a retirement community and recreational asset to the county, Greenbelt Lake becomes a powerful attraction drawing people of all ages to the county.

Simmons' continuing interest in the life of his church led to his being named chairman of the architectural committee assigned the task of construction of the new First Baptist Church and Anna Moores Chapel.

SIMMONS looks for the county's economy to grow with the recent addition of new industries for Clarendon.

"I was called to active duty as a First Class Radioman the early part of 1941. It was unusual to jump to that rank but I had skills the Navy needed. After 5 years, 200,000 miles of ocean on three different ships and 5 schools including the Post-graduate School of the U. S. Naval Academy, I was discharged a full lieutenant," recalled Simmons.

Simmons returned to the bank where his father-in-law, J. D. Swift, had a great influence on his life. Emmett credits him with being not only a great small-town, country banker but also a good teacher.

"He knew human nature and people," said Emmett. "He could read people like a book. He built a bank by helping people by understanding their needs and made loans that would enable them to grow and better themselves by increasing their income."

When Swift passed away in 1968 Simmons became president of Farmers State. During those years of banking Simmons became active on the National Advisory Council of the Small Business Administration and for the past eight years has served on that council. Prior to that Simmons served four years on the Lubbock District Council.

To the bank president,

These people didn't ask anything of Clarendon. They wanted to move to Clarendon for what the community offered them. We are going to see the importance of what a payroll can do to the growth of a community," said Emmett.

Simmons admitted having doubts about the impact Greenbelt Lake would have on the economy during the early years of development.

Retirement isn't a subject

Many parents are bitterly opposed to teenagers using drugs such as marijuana—yet they object less to alcohol, another drug. More than half of the heroin addicts in an Eastern United States drug program were abstaining from heroin but were drinking heavily instead.

That is merely substituting one drug for another.

Simmons' continuing interest in the life of his church led to his being named chairman of the architectural committee assigned the task of construction of the new First Baptist Church and Anna Moores Chapel.

A few months after the church building was completed I found myself in an Oklahoma City hospital with the doctors telling me I couldn't live," said Simmons. "I haven't decided yet if the Lord spared my life for something I had done or for something that was to be done."

Emmett and his wife, Anna Moores, have two children. Anna Beth McNabb, a Baylor graduate, lives and works in Clarendon as a Child Abuse worker in the Department of Public Welfare office. Her husband, Bronnie, is a Vice-President of Farmers State Bank.

The Simmons' son, JEM, a recent graduate of Texas Tech, will continue his education with work on a masters at West Texas. "This is a good community to live in. We have a diversified economy here and besides, where else could you live and have your county designated a drought relief area by the federal government after receiving over 13 inches of rain so far this year?"

Jail Renovation

failure to comply with current jail standards. Yet some counties are going to bite the bullet and finance new jail construction reasoning that they will be able to recoup some of that money by handling contracted prisoners from other counties unable to comply with jail standards.

Part of the willingness of counties like Deaf Smith and even Collingsworth to forge ahead with jail facility plans is the tax valuation of property within those counties. Part of the Collingsworth story is also the past record of Judge Zook Thomas's court to apply for and get grant funds.

"There are no easy answers to this one," said Christal. "We can try to get along until we get inspected here and then try to do something about jail reform. Honestly I've not heard much interest at all in jail renovation and I expect it will be unpopular judging by some reactions at Wednesday's meeting."

The entire issue is open-ended because not even John Scott could assure those commissioners at the meeting that once a jail is completed it would meet future standards.

Because good law enforcement in a county is linked to the quality of facilities and law enforcement officers who put it on the line the problem of priorities enters into the picture. Sheriff Behrens questioned the propriety of building improved facilities without first increasing the wage level of deputies above a minimum level.

"How can you ask professional people to risk their lives enforcing the law for low salaries but still build a new jail facility?" asked Behrens.

At Wednesday's meeting County Judge Zook Thomas asked Donley County Commissioners to give his office some indication of their intentions about joining a multi-county detention center plan by next court day. With commissioners court scheduled for June 13, Donley County's commissioners must decide if they too will have to bite the bullet.

Court Reforms

Since tax office business dominates postage demands Darter suggested delegating that office with the responsibility of mailing all out going mail with certain exceptions for registered mail and legal documents of a sensitive nature.

Commissioners agreed with the need to meter fuel consumption more carefully to provide budgeting information.

"What we do here in the next few months in setting up this comprehensive audit will influence generations to come. This will not be a usual audit in that out of it we hope to establish some sound procedures to put the county government on a uniform accounting and budgeting framework," said Judge Billy Christal.

Commissioners will meet in regular session Monday, June 13 where, beside regular business, they will vote on the recommendations presented today.

Day Care Completes Playground Facility

Clarendon's Day Care Center moved closer to settling into its permanent home with completion of a playground facility for youngsters kept at the center. Volunteer labor and donation of materials and the playground space itself proved once again that community concern for the facility remains strong.

"The entire effort couldn't have been done without the help of a lot of kind people in this community," said Robbie Hill of the experience. "Mr. and Mrs. Junior Spier donated the use of the lot across from the Post Office and even volunteered to provide more space if the present 75x80 enclosure for the children proved inadequate."

Day Care parents and supporters provided fencing materials, posts and a tractor-mounted post-hole digger to quickly put up the vinyl covered mesh fence around the playground equipment.

Clarendon Hatchery supplied bait to kill red ant beds in the playground while County Judge Billy Christal donated his pickup to haul fencing materials. Steve Smith donated posts and gates and Marva Lee Mays, Ross Hill, Bryan Hill and Bryan Foster helped put up the 4 foot mesh fence.

Other good news for the center included agreement by the County Commissioners to pay $800 for plumbing costs of the new Day Care facility. New facilities inside the center include a recently constructed 16 foot bar with storage drawers built by Steve Smith.

"In all we've had somewhere in the neighborhood of $7000 in labor and materials donated to the center. I've got to believe we're going to make it with that kind of loyalty," said Hill. "We even got the Mayor, Tex Selvidge, to help us here one night in his business suit."

dertaken. Hill is confident the center can make it's goal of meeting local financing for the center to comply with Title XX regulations.

"We now have $2000 and while that doesn't sound like much it's one month's cost of operation and that's what we need to qualify for Title XX funding," explained Hill.

Hill also announced the selection of Pat Foster to serve as new Assistant Director of the Day Care Center.

Brown, Lowry Attend Conference

Rev. Bob Brown

Rev. Bob Brown and Sam Lowry attended the 68th session of the Northwest Texas Conference of the United Methodist Church held in Abilene at St. Paul United Methodist Church, May 31-June 2.

Bishop Alsie H. Carleton presided over the conference where a key issue before the group was reduction of conference numbers in the district or maintain the present seven. Members voted to maintain the current number.

Plowin' Out the Corners By Uncle Zeb

Thank you Clarendon for your friendly spirit both in your churches and in your town. Most of the time our column has gone into your homes through the paper for thirty years, that is a long time. Thank You.

I want to be friendly, and I want to have friends. I seem to try but it is so easy sometimes to say or do the wrong thing and wind up with the losing of a friend. The other day I was thinking along this line and tried to think of everyone who might after all my years not like me. There seemed to be too many. Even though after all these years we could still count them on our fingers it was too many. Sometimes it seemed almost the hand of fate that we seemed to lose a friend. The real hurtful ones were those that seemed to happen almost over nothing. If we had used another word, or done just a little different it could have been avoided. Do you ever wish you could just start over and try to do a better job...

I love the little poem... Was it from Edwin Markham?

He drew a circle to shut me out - Rebel, heretic, a thing to flout, But Love and I had the will to win, We drew a circle and took him in.

Is our religion based on...

True conversion to Jesus Christ is based on conviction—not convenience. Likewise, faithfulness to Christ is based on conviction—not convenience.

It is a sad spectacle, therefore, to observe so many professed believers in Christ who are following Jesus according to convenience rather than conviction. The tragic part about it is that such church members are not truly converted to the Lord, because if they were really converted on the basis of their conviction they would faithfully obey Christ out of the same conviction.

Somewhere along the way, somehow, these casual church members have led themselves to believe that while Christianity in theory represents their religious profession, it is optional whether they practice it or not. Such have been deceived into believing there is an easy, comfortable and convenient way to Heaven.

Self-denial is essential to true discipleship; further, it must be a daily relationship with the Lord—not seasonal. His will must be paramount in the Christian's heart—above every earthly consideration, whether it be family, health, finances, occupations or pleasure (Luke 14:26-33).

Today many are unwilling to pay the price of true discipleship. For example, worship has ceased to be a privilege and has become a burden to many. When the time comes for the saints to assemble for worship, it is inconvenient to turn off the television set and leave the comforts of a nice, cozy home.

The founder of Faith, Jesus Christ, did not find the path to Calvary's mountain easy or comfortable or convenient. Our Lord never taught or practiced a half-hearted, watered-down, spineless, inoffensive, faith-only religion. It is time for all believers to realize that Christ is the author of eternal salvation to all who obey him (Hebrews 5:8,9) and who live dedicated lives of faithful service to his honor and glory even unto death (Revelation 2:10). When faith works by love, service is not inconvenient nor burdensome.

State House Report

LEGISLATIVE REPORT

General Appropriations Bill Medical Malpractice Insurance Bill in committee

With only a matter of days remaining in the 65th Texas Legislative Session, several major items are still short of their final disposition. Both the General Appropriations Bill, and the Medical Malpractice Insurance Bill are residing in conference committees.

Representative Bob Simpson of Amarillo said the committee studying the Appropriations Bill is nearing completion of its work, and the House should be voting on it soon. Though generally pleased with the funding for the Panhandle area, Simpson added, "I believe the bill spends too much money overall. It is an increase of 30% over the last biennium. Also, there is no allowance here for the days ahead. In the not too distant future, Texas is going to experience a decrease in its revenues from oil and gas production, as these resources are depleted. We should be putting some funds back now, while they are available."

The Legislature has passed, and sent to the Governor, Senate Bill 34. This measure provides that Texans ticketed for driving between 55 and 70 miles per hour, could not be penalized by their insurance companies in the form of higher insurance rates, nor could these citations be used in proceedings to suspend drivers licenses. Simpson emphasized, however, that "people will continue to be stopped and given tickets for exceeding 55mph, paying fines in the same amounts, and those tickets issued for speeds over 70mph would be used in suspension actions, and for the purpose of rate increases."

The House has passed a bill which would allow religious groups a somewhat freer hand in running their child-care facilities. Representative Simpson explained that, "actually very little change was implemented here. It seems that some people running these religious child care facilities are afraid that the state might try to impose regulations that would prevent them from adhering to their religion in some areas. The bill states that these child care facilities would not have to actually receive a state license. However, they are still subject to the same standards as any other center of this type, they would still be subject to inspection by the Department of Public Welfare, and this department could still close the facility if it didn't meet the required standards, except as those pertaining to religious activities."

A couple of weeks ago it seemed as though an "oral confession" bill, by Representative Bob Close of Perryton, would remain stuck in a standing committee. But, the measure was finally passed out of that body, sent to the House floor, and passed with 99 votes. Close said it is now up to the Senate to see what they will do with the bill, as it has already passed a version of this bill of their own. He added, "I would hope that it goes to a conference committee where any differences of opinion could be worked out, and the state of Texas might have a truly meaningful oral confession bill."

The Senate concurred this week with the House amendments put on the bill that consolidates the three main water agencies in the state. This Close-sponsored measure is now on the Governor's desk awaiting final action.

House Bill 1400, also by Close, has passed the House, and is now in the Senate. It provides that natural gas well operators supply irrigation farmers with a portion of their natural gas for agricultural purposes. The Perryton lawmaker says he expects opposition in the Senate, and this being coupled with the fact that the session is nearing a close, it could be difficult getting it through.

Representative Close said that getting the Appropriations Bill out of conference committee, and reaching an agreement with the Senate on the Public Education Finance Bill as the main hurdles to be cleared now in the remainder of the session.

Representative Danny Hill of Amarillo said he, "hoped that each side would give in a little, if that's what it takes, to reach a reasonable solution on the Medical Malpractice Insurance Bill. I don't believe the Governor would call a Special Session of the Legislature over this issue, as he might on some other, so I especially hope it can be resolved by May 30th."

Its so-called "Sunset Laws" that, if passed would require a state agency to justify its existence every few years. Hill explained that, "the Senate bill didn't really get at the agencies that eat up the bulk of our state funds. The House added amendments that affected 177 agencies, as opposed to the 50 or so the Senate included. I feel the Senate bill made too many exceptions. Its when we start excepting certain agencies, that the problems begin. If an agency is doing a good job, is needed, and operating in a fiscally sound manner, it will pass any legislative review, and continue to exist. If not, it may be best to make changes where needed, or to eliminate it completely." Hill went on to say he felt legislation of some kind, in this area, would pass, because so many of the members feel it is a must.

On the possibility of a special session being called, Hill stated, "no one wants this; it means more money spent, but if the House and Senate can't agree on the Public School Finance package, its a possibility."

Representative Phil

Cates of Shamrock pointed out that the outcome of the Public School Finance Bill will depend on the Appropriations Bill. "Until the final dollar amount here is determined, it will be impossible to tell exactly what the bottom line will read," said Cates.

The 66th District Representative says there is too much politics going on in dealing with the Medical Malpractice Insurance Bill. A conference committee is making little headway at this time on this issue. Cates mentioned that, "there has been a lot of public interest in this area, and it is certainly one of the major issues faced this session. At this late date in the session, it can only be hoped that the parties involved can reach a reasonable compromise."

Cates expressed pleasure with the passage of the House Bill dealing with Sunset Legislation. He said, "I think it's a good bill. There are several different views on this subject as to how many, and which agencies should be covered. I believe it's a good idea to start out with a few, and then if the program is working, broaden the approach later."

287 Group Holds National Meet in Clarendon

Beryl Clinton, Academic Dean of Clarendon College, will host members of the Highway 287 Association as that group holds its annual meeting in Clarendon, Saturday and Sunday June 11-12. The organization promotes travel and tourism on the highway chain linking the southeast with Alaska via Canada.

The association will be hosted at a reception and dinner in Mrs. Bromley's Dining Room, famous nationally and ranked as Texas' top private home dining establishment in a recent Texas Monthly article.

Sunday's business meeting will be held in the Clarendon College Academic Building Room 102. In a letter to the membership president of the association, Paul Schorbach of Longmont, Colorado, indicated the main point of business would be the introduction of a new, more compact map with an up-to-date listing of new member businesses and institutions along Highway 287's length.

Clinton expected between 50-100 association members to be present for the weekend meeting. Slated to meet with the group are local representatives of the Clarendon Chamber of Commerce, Tex Selvidge, Mayor of Clarendon and President of the Clarendon Chamber will address the group Sunday at the business meeting. Western Skies Motel has been designated headquarters for delegates. For early arrivals a member of the Clarendon Chamber or a local 287 member will escort members as they gather for the Saturday night reception and dinner at Mrs. Bromley's.

Tax Breaks Offered by Retirement Savings Plans

Employees and self-employed workers not covered by a qualified pension or retirement plan where they work can set one up for themselves and realize a tax savings at the same time. These same workers, who have non-working spouses can open an Individual Retirement Arrangement (IRA) for the spouse as well.

A worker with an IRA can contribute up to 15 percent of his or her earnings, to a maximum of $1500 per year, into an individual retirement savings program or account. If the employee's non-working spouse is included in the plan, the maximum is $1750 per year, again limited to 15 percent. The concept behind an IRA is that the account will grow substantially over the years to provide a measure of retirement security for the individual.

While contributing to the IRA, the employee does not pay income taxes on the money set aside or on the interest or other income it might earn. The income tax is due when the money is actually withdrawn, at age 59 1/2 or later, or should the individual become disabled. Chances are at that time the effective tax rate will be lower than during the employee's earning years.

While IRAs do offer certain tax advantages, there are also some limitations or restrictions to bear in mind. Contributions which exceed the allowable maximum are subject to a non-deductible 6 percent excise tax, each year. To discourage premature withdrawals, taken out before the worker reaches age 59 1/2 or becomes disabled are taxed as ordinary income and are subject to an additional 10 percent penalty. Finally, distribution of the funds in an IRA must begin by the time the taxpayer reaches 70 1/2 years of age.

The IRS has a free booklet, IRS Publication 590, "Tax Information on Individual Retirement Savings Programs" which can be obtained by writing or calling the IRS. Banks, savings and loans, federally insured credit unions, insurance companies and certain brokerage firms can also help interested persons establish their IRA.

1976 Cotton Crop

Final tallies on the 1976 cotton crop show the value of production to be $1,122,018,000, just slightly under the record set in 1973, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Prown has announced.

The total Texas crop value was 84 per cent higher than the previous year. Number of bales was 3,307,000, according to the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

"An all-time high for U.S. cash receipts for cotton was $3.7 billion in 1976," Brown reported. U.S. production totaled 10.6 million bales.

"All of our reports show that the 1977 crop will be even bigger in Texas. There is little indication so far that foreign demand will lessen. Prices should remain good, despite the increased acreage," Brown said.

The average price per pound of lint in 1976 for Texas upland cotton was 62.4 cents, over a third higher than 1975. American Pima sold for an average of $1.18 a pound. Cottonseed prices moved up to $99 a ton, contrasted with $89.80 the previous year.

Upland cotton lint brought $990,513,000; American Pima, $4,191,000, and cottonseed $127,314,000.

American Pima production continued the downward trend that began in 1971. The 1976 crop was the smallest since 1949.

Northern Low Plains farmers were able to harvest 324,000 bales from 570,000 acres. Yield decreased 59 pounds from last year to 273 pounds per acre.

What Consumers Can Do with Tris - Fabrics

Clothing experts have pinpointed—and are answering—major questions posed by consumers about the now-banned TRIS finish (a flame-retardant fabric finish).

Since the April 7 ban of TRIS from the U.S. market by the Consumer Products Safety Commission, consumers are asking how to make garments safe that were purchased before that date.

Consumers can follow a specific procedure to wash the excess TRIS finish from fabric surfaces—or they can return unused merchandise still in original packages and receive a refund. Also, if they choose, they may discard these garments without fear of environmental damage.

Many consumers ask if they can remove the finish with soap and chlorine bleach—and the answer is "NO." To make a garment safe—according to the Commission—consumers should wash the garment three or more times according to the recommended care instructions on the label, using DETERGENT—NOT SOAP.

This removes much of the chemical from the fabric surface—and it removes the risk of illness, but it still allows the flame-retardant protection to remain, Commission experts say.

Also, consumers ask how they will know if a garment is finished with TRIS. TRIS is sometimes used on 100 per cent polyester—and always on acetate, triacetate and blends of these fibers. Consumers may find out about polyester garments by asking at the store in which they purchased the garment—because only the manufacturer of a polyester garment knows if it is TRIS-finished.

Many other consumers want to know if it is "okay" to buy new sleepwear for children at this time—and the answer is "yes", if they purchase flame-retardant garments of 100 per cent cotton or nylon or certain polyesters or inherently flame-retardant fabrics, such as modacrylic, vinyon and Cordelan.

These fabrics, all used for children's sleepwear, are not TRIS-finished. They have other flame-retardant finishes that have not been proven harmful.

Still other consumers ask if there is a difference between flame-resistant and flame-retardant—and the answer is "no." They both refer to fabrics that will not support a flame after the source of fire is removed.

Also, there are exact requirements for returning TRIS-finished merchandise and receiving a refund. Only garments that are in the originally purchased condition may be returned to the store where purchased. Fabric purchased for children's sleepwear that has not been washed or cut may be returned.

The April 7 ban on TRIS was the result of National Cancer Institute tests that revealed TRIS causes cancer in animals.

include or prohibit corporate land operations from the tax break. Naman says that a bill excluding corporate entities "is the only just way to deal with the matter and the only acceptable form in which the House, and more important the voters, will pass it into law."

Concerning the other matters, school finance and its effect on property taxes are still to be resolved in the Senate. The Family Farm Security Act has passed the necessary committee along with its Constitutional amendment and is awaiting a vote before the full House floor.

Naman warns that time is running out for these three agricultural matters and the Legislature should not fail to give the issues a hearing and a vote before closing shop for two more years.

Today, about one-third of the nation's teens drink with some regularity, according to some studies.

Summer Homemaking and C.P.R. Classes

Adults and students interested in taking the C.P.R. Class, June 27th and 28th, need to continue to contact Janie Midkiff. A close estimate of those who plan to attend this night class is needed to determine the number of instructors required and equipment needed from the American Heart Association, according to Pat Robertson and Billy Ray Johnston. They demonstrated C.P.R. techniques to the Home Management class at the Clarendon Homemaking Department during the regular school term. The preceding Monday and Tuesday nights in June will provide an opportunity for clothing help and instruction. Students interested in taking the Summer Phase of Homemaking for credit or non-credit may be interested in the following regulations outlined by Mrs. I. D. Haile, Area I Consultant, Homemaking Education.

1. There must be organized class at school 10 full days of the 11th month. This can be all day for 10 days or one-half day for the 20 days.

2. The same students do not have to attend all of the weeks, but must be in attendance for at least one week.
3. Students are required to do a Home experience along with the summer class. The more time in organized class, the less time should be spent at home and vice versa.
4. Students are required to be enrolled in class and carry out a home experience simultaneously.
5. The 11th month employment may not be split at all. All student work is to be completed in June.
6. Field trips must be kept to a minimum. Any trip must be an outgrowth of a class experience.
7. Employment time does not include out-of-district-trips with FHA. These activities may be included as a part of the 20 days (at school).

The incoming President of the Clarendon FHA Chapter is Ellen Green. She and the other incoming officers plan to meet during the Summer Phase to establish a tentative Program of Work for the coming year. Mary McGarity, past Area I FHA Second Vice President and I wish to thank all the Clarendon Officers and members who helped her locally, with workshops, and fulfill her duties at the Area and State Conventions.

Agriculture Legislation

Texas Farmers Union President Jay Naman has called on the 65th Legislature to focus its attention on three important pieces of state legislation which are important to agriculture before lawmakers rush to their final adjournment just days away.

The three legislative matters which Naman labeled as "deserving of immediate action due to their important effects on farmers" are the issues of school finance, property taxation of open-space land based on its agricultural productivity and the Family Farm Security Act, a bill which would assist young farmers purchasing land by giving qualified applicants a 90% state guarantee to their lending institution.

"The Texas Farmers Union commends the Texas Legislature for taking on these concerns," said Naman. "We especially recognize the Senate committee which as acted on ag-use taxation and the Constitutional amendment it requires for voter approval. This has been a top priority with Texas Farmers Union during this session, and we hope the House can now arbitrate its differences, pass the bill, and get it on the Governor's desk."

Differences have arisen between House and Senate versions of the open-space tax bill over whether to

$25,000 Grant for Disabled Veterans

A grant of up to $25,000 is available for seriously disabled veterans interested in "wheelchair homes."

This word came from Administrator of Veterans Affairs Max Cleland who, himself, lost both legs and an arm during the Vietnam conflict.

He reminded eligible veterans the grant can be applied to a new home, used to remodel an existing dwelling or to pay off the balance owing on a home the veteran has modified at his own expense.

Under the law, eligible veterans may obtain a VA grant of up to half the cost of a specially adapted home to a maximum of $25,000. Basically, eligible veterans are those who have suffered permanent and total military service-connected disability due to the loss (or loss of use) of both legs; blindness, plus loss of use of one leg; or other injury which prevents them from moving from place to place without the aid of a wheelchair, braces, crutches or canes.

Cleland urged disabled veterans to consult their nearest Veterans Administration office for detailed eligibility requirements.

He pointed out other eligibility requirements include a provision that the veteran must be able to afford purchase of the "wheelchair home" with the assistance of the grant and that it must be medically feasible for the veteran to live there.

To qualify for a VA grant, a new housing unit must have at least two entry ramps located to avoid fire hazards, doorways at least 36 inches wide, hallways at least 48 inches wide, specially equipped bathrooms, specially located electric switches and outlets, an automatic smoke detector, and other features. Cleland said VA field specialists will help eligible veterans in choosing a suitable lot for the housing unit, in obtaining the services of an architect, securing construction bids and arranging financing.

The VA Administrator also reminded veterans that some states provide special tax relief for owners of "wheelchair homes" and up to $40,000 mortgage life insurance is available to most veterans who receive the housing grant.
