Elliott Named College President

Dr. Scott D. Elliott, a veteran of eleven years in community college administration, has been named president of Clarendon College effective July 1, according to Bright Newhouse, chairman of the college's Board of Regents.

Elliott comes to Clarendon College from Central Florida Community College, where he has served as a vice president for the last six years. At Central Florida, Elliott serves as chief executive officer of a 1,500-student branch campus in Citrus County, Fla.

"I am honored to have been selected by the Board of Regents," Elliott said. "My family and I very much look forward to becoming part of the community and hope that we can be positive contributors in many respects."

The 41-year-old Elliott is no stranger to Texas. He began his community college career at Trinity Valley Community College in Athens, Texas, as a teacher and director of public relations. In total, the Elliott's have resided in Texas 12 years.

Elliott holds a bachelor's degree from the University of Texas, a masters degree from East Texas State University, and a doctorate in higher education administration from the University of Florida.

"My family and I look forward to getting back to Texas," he said. "Both my children are native Texans. Some of the most cherished years of my life were in Texas."

Elliott and his wife Claudia, grew up in the rural community of Hixson, Tenn., in the shadows of Lookout Mountain. They have been married 23 years. Their daughter, Stacie, is a freshman at Central Florida Community College and plans to become an elementary school teacher. Their son, Scotty, will be a freshman at Clarendon High School in 1995-96.

Claudia has also worked in education for the last 11 years as a school secretary and is a former winner of the Citrus County (Fla.) School Board's "Employee of the Year" award.

The Elliott's said they became captivated with Clarendon during their visit April 18-20.

"There are a lot of wonderful things about Clarendon," Elliott said. "The college and the public schools both have attractive physical plants. My wife loved the antique shops. We ate a lot of good food in the restaurants. But those things weren't what sold us on Clarendon. It was the people. We've never met so many nice people in one place in our lives, and their sense of community pride is obvious and contagious."

Before entering higher education, Elliott spent a decade in the print and broadcast industries. He rose to the rank of managing editor of a Texas daily newspaper and earned over 45 awards in regional and state writing competitions, including many sponsored by the Associated Press.

"I can't wait to start my new job," Elliott said. "Clarendon has a great college with a talented faculty and staff. I want to do whatever I can to help make the college even better. I very much appreciate the wonderful opportunity that the Board of Regents has afforded me."

DR. SCOTT D. ELLIOTT, President, Clarendon Junior College.

Scholarship To Be Awarded

The Charles E. and Thelma A. Bairfield Memorial Foundation will award scholarships to three deserving graduating seniors from Clarendon High School Wednesday, May 3, 1995 at 5:00 p.m. in the Board Room of Bairfield Activity Center, Clarendon College.

A total of $8,000 in scholarships will be awarded. The winners are being notified by letter. The letters to the winners will also advise them of the amount that each is to receive.

The award winners are welcome to invite family, friends, or other persons that have been influential in their accomplishments. Refreshments will be served immediately following the short awards ceremony.

Town Hall Meeting Held

An enthusiastic crowd of over fifty citizens came to the Town Hall Meeting, April 18, to do some brainstorming about things that could be done for our community with the proposed 1/2 percent economic development sales tax.

Thirty-one suggestions were made. Then the group voted individually on which seven suggestion should have priority. The results are as follows (in order of priority):

1. Paving streets and tourism (tied for first - 26 votes)
2. New fire truck (22 votes)
3. New business and main street project (tied for third - 19 votes)
4. Community center (18 votes)
5. Tourist information center (15 votes)
6. Street lights (14 votes)
7. Housing, help existing businesses, sewer/water improvements (tied for seventh - 13 votes)

The other items in the tally are as follows in order: motel (12 votes); summer job program, public relation training courses for businesses, remove dilapidated building in highway and in town (11 votes); entertainment, improved parks, employment incentives (9 votes); hospital, track facilities for North Clarendon, restaurants (8 votes); movie theater, baseball complex, street cleanup (7 votes); advertising/marketing budget for city (6 votes); expand police department, purchase street sweeper (5 votes); bowling alley (4 votes); Chamber of Commerce office (3 votes); more city library hours (1 vote). Fifty-four people voted, some voting for fewer than seven items.

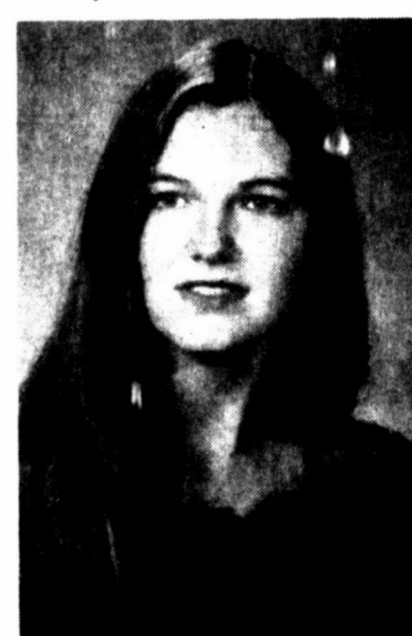

According to Don Stone, President of the Chamber of Commerce, "Your vote on May 6 for this economic development 1/2 percent additional sales tax can make these positive things happen."

BUSINESS MATTERS

Exporting basics for small businesses

Do small businesses have the same opportunities to export as large multinational companies?

There are many myths about who exports. Some people believe only huge corporations can export and compete in the global marketplace. According to the U.S. Small Business Administration, of approximately 90,000 firms that had export sales in 1988, 25 percent were firms with fewer than 100 employees. According to a Dun and Bradstreet survey conducted for the SBA, among the small firms currently exporting, 41 percent reported export sales growth above their domestic sales and 23 percent said their export sales had increased between 20 and 40 percent in the last year.

It is essential to learn the basics, because exporting is similar to doing any other type of business. The most fundamental reason to export is to improve a company's bottom line, and exporting is an avenue for increasing revenue. Market conditions around the world are not homogeneous, particularly for a given product or service. When conditions at home lead to a downturn in sales, exports can help minimize the impact and extend a product's lifecycle, especially in countries with less-developed technologies.

However, exporting is not for every small business. Before making a decision, compile an export plan, including a cost/benefit analysis. The U.S. Department of Commerce offers A Basic Guide to Exporting, which includes a summary of management issues that are important considerations for small businesses. A well-conceived plan is the first and most essential step for any export campaign.

Exporting entails developing new customers and business relationships usually spanning thousands of miles. Such relationships require trust, which takes time to build. Business America polled 50 successful exporters regarding what was most vital for exporting, and the overriding response was "make a commitment and stick with it." For exporting information, contact the Small Business Exporters Association at 703/642-2490; the American Association of Exporters and Importers at 212/382-2606; and/or the Texas Department of Commerce Business Information & Referral Section for an information

High Plains Better Health Notes

Claude Medical Clinic
A Service of High Plains Baptist Hospital
Tom White, PAC
Community Care Network

Last week we looked at health care reform. We discussed the need for a commitment by both providers and the community they serve to support healthy lifestyles that counteract the illnesses that our society fosters. Our question today concerns how to do this - how to transition our communities to healthy lifestyles? The responsibility for the change to healthy lifestyles is a shared responsibility between providers and the communities that they serve. Ultimately the individual members of the community must themselves decide to adopt healthy lifestyles. Each of us must decide that it is important to take the actions that we now know can usually delay the ravages of chronic illness - appropriate diet, adequate exercise, and avoidance of traumatic injury.

How do we approach such basic but difficult changes in the way we live? One way, no the only way, but a model that looks promising is to work with a program developed by the American Hospital Association called a Community Care Network. This program puts the emphasis on health in a community as the basic objective of the health care system.

Community health programs are examined using four main yardsticks. First, the emphasis must be on maintaining the highest level of health in the community. Second, health care services must be designed to contain costs. Third, health care must be provided to the community in a way that provides for coordination of services for the community member. These first three yardsticks have been talked about using other words in most, if not all, approaches to health care reform. That is, other approaches call for increased efficiency and effectiveness in health care, less expense, and greater access. What makes this approach truly unique is the emphasis of the fourth yardstick - making the health care system accountable to the community. This is a revolutionary approach, although it probably shouldn't be.

The idea of making the health care system answerable to the community it serves recognizes that it is the community itself that is ultimately responsible for its own health. In effect, this fourth characteristic recognizes that the responsibility for a healthy community is a shared responsibility between the community and the providers of services. How is this responsibility shared between the community and the providers in this new program? This approach proposes that the sharing be done in a partnership between the community and the providers of health services.

Advice From
The American Society Of Civil Engineers

(NAPS)—America's vital roads, bridges, sewers and water systems face their severest stress test: The Clinton White House is pushing hard to slash funds urgently needed to modernize our aging infrastructure.

Leaking pipes cause some major cities to lose as much as 30 percent of their fresh water supply each day.

But civil engineers believe that investing wisely in infrastructure is the surest path to improving everyone's quality of life.

When performing well, our infrastructure improves everyone's productivity and quality of life. But concerned Americans have discovered that much of our infrastructure is rapidly aging. Delaying vital maintenance and upgrade of aging infrastructure threatens our personal safety, productivity, employment growth and quality of life.

Traffic delays on inadequate roads will cost the nation $50 billion annually in lost wages and wasted fuel by the year 2005, projects the American Society of Civil Engineers (ASCE).

The partnership would exist as a working network of providers and the community designed to determine the needs of the community and allocate resources to meet those needs. This partnership then is the Community Care Network.

LEGAL MATTERS

BY TEXAS ATTORNEY GENERAL DAN MORALES

WELFARE REFORM: WE ALL MUST DO OUR FAIR SHARE

Child support is a key piece of the welfare reform puzzle. When absent parents fail to provide financial support for their children, custodial parents often must turn to taxpayer-funded entitlement programs to make ends meet. Delinquent parents not only cheat children, but taxpayers as well.

At the Office of the Attorney General, we see child support as a way of strengthening families and a means of reducing the cost of welfare to taxpayers. Failure to pay child support is a significant problem for parents who are hanging on by a thread. Child support payments can make all the difference in a family's struggle to achieve and maintain financial independence.

EFFECTIVE CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT CAN REDUCE WELFARE COSTS
Recognizing that one less child support dollar often means increased welfare expenditures, Congress created the Title IV-D program in the late 1970s to enforce stricter child support compliance. As a section of the Social Security Act, Title IV-D's intent is to recoup public expenditures for Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) and Medicaid. The program requires the absent parent to pay his or her current child support payments and to reimburse the state and federal governments for the government assistance the family received while no one was paying child support.

The hundreds of millions of dollars in child support collected in Texas each year directly benefit children, their families and taxpayers. Without child support, welfare caseloads would undoubtedly be much higher than they are today. Helping to stabilize families economically through the collection and distribution of child support payments is essential for independence and self-sufficiency for many families in Texas.

Welfare reform is a very complex issue. The problem cannot be effectively remedied by any one agency or group. Rather, it is going to take a collaborative effort to reform the system. To succeed, we must establish partnerships among businesses, educational institutions, community organizations, and individuals.

We all must do our fair share.

Soup to Nuts

This is good on a cool, rainy day—may we have more of them!

Sausage and Apples

- 1 lb. breakfast sausage in 1/2 inch slices
- 4 red apples cut in rings with seeds removed.

Fry sausage in heavy skillet over medium heat until browned on one side. Turn the sausage over and spread the apple rings over the top. When the sausage is browned on the second side, lift the patties up to the top of the apples, leaving the apple rings in the drippings. Cook until the apples are just slightly tender and beginning to brown. Serve hot with fresh biscuits and scrambled eggs.

It works ok to cut the apples in wedges (a little faster). I think the best sausage is Owen's with extra sage.

This is great for breakfast, but we like it for an evening meal—without the eggs.

If you are looking for a special recipe, or would like to see one of your's in print, drop by the newspaper office, or write to Lynne Williams, Box 807, Clarendon, TX 79226.

Children Blame Themselves For Divorce

It's all my fault. Divorced parents often hear those words from their children. A family psychologist at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston says parents can take away the guilt.

"Children tend to blame themselves for their parents' divorce," said Dr. James Bray, an associate professor of family medicine at Baylor. "Many parents don't want to discuss the changes that divorce brings because they're afraid of hurting the children."

Most children will have a lot of questions. Both parents should sit down with them and discuss the divorce, according to Bray.

"Share information with your children about the divorce, but don't get into specifics," Bray said. "Tell them even though you can't live together as husband and wife, you still care for them."

Bray says the older the child, the more important it is for parents to explain their situation.

"Kids ages 6 to 11 often blame themselves. But older children can discern what's going on," he said. "Four and five year olds need lots of reassurance since they can't understand the details."

In some cases, the stress of divorce causes some younger children to revert back to infancy, Bray says.

"It's no uncommon for an older toddler who's been potty trained for months to suddenly wet the bed," he said.

Although many children eventually endure the stress of divorce, Bray says parents should not expect their children to "come around" overnight.

"It takes one to two years for children to adjust to divorce," he said. "Family transition is the problem for children and not the divorce."

Bray offers the following advice for divorced parents:

*Strive for stability in your child's life. If possible, avoid changing schools or moving to another city. Allow the non-residential parent to stay active in the child's life. The fewer changes, the better. Younger children gain strength from maintaining the predictability of their old schedules.

*Avoid arguing in front of your child. Try writing notes to each other. Do not use your child to communicate with each other.

*Be expected to repeat information about the divorce. Younger children tend to ask the same questions.

*Let your child know that divorce is an adult problem. Be sensitive to your child's anger. Children do not want to see their parents separate.

*Divorce can affect a child's performance in school and friendships. If the child's grades and conduct score drop significantly, seek professional counseling.

*Parents and children fare better when they get support," Bray said. "Go to other family members or get involved in a support group at a church or other community group."

urine marks, immediately blot with paper towels, then spray with RESOLVE Carpet Cleaner, wait three minutes and re-blot. Formulated with DuPont TEFLON® Soil and Stain Repellent, RESOLVE safely penetrates carpet to repel dirt and guard against resoiling.

Cats will often climb on kitchen counters to make a meal of unguarded leftovers. To prevent your cat from getting hurt or causing messy spills, put food away immediately after mealtime and make sure trash containers are locked tight. Also, avoid feeding your pets table scraps. Eating certain rich foods, such as gravy and desserts, to excess can cause gastrointestinal problems, vomiting and obesity.

Pet Care

(NAPS)—For most pet owners, dogs and cats are more than just animals, they're part of the family. To keep your four-legged family members in good health, and your house from going to the dogs, keep these important pet care tips from the makers of RESOLVE® Carpet Cleaners in mind:

• Along with a balanced diet, regular grooming will help keep your pets healthy. Baths and frequent brushing help reduce dander, eliminate dirt, fleas and ticks, and collect the loose fur that often ends up on carpet and furniture.

• Dogs and cats are creatures of habit, so disruptions in routine may cause them to urine-mark carpet from anxiety or as a territorial gesture, which can cause permanent discoloration. If "accidents" do occur, do not clean stains with an ammonia-based cleaner, as animals may mistake the scent for piddle and resoil the area. To minimize the effects of

Minding Your Own Business

by Don Taylor

Words of Wisdom XIII

No Winter lasts forever, no Spring skips its turn. April is a promise that May is bound to keep, and we know it. - Hal Borland

Ah Spring, my favorite season.

I love the springtime with its longer days and renewed life. It is a time for new beginnings. Nature begins a delicious recycling of the old and dormant. Buds and blades burst forth with renewed vigor. It is a time for new life and new hope.

Like most of you, I approach the new year with resolutions of change and improvement. Then the promises of January 1st are besieged by the realities of Winter: Short dreary days and long cold nights. Somehow it seems wrong that the glorious beginnings of a new year should be followed by three depressing months of Winter.

Let's redo the calendar. The new year will start on April 1st. April Fool's day will be moved to January 1st. Now we can make our resolutions to lose weight, exercise more, etc. when the weather is more cooperative. Now we can honor those resolutions without trudging through Winter first. Doesn't that make sense?

With the seasons in sync with our psyche, we're set to conquer the world. Or, at least ready to plant our garden. Spring - the beginning of our new year - would become a true time of new beginnings. A fresh start on a new life.

I know we can't redo the calendar. However, we can in our own minds decide that we will start want to share other "new beginnings" thoughts.

The Clarendon Lions Club held its regular meeting at noon on Tuesday, May 2, 1995 at the Lions Hall. Seventeen members and one guest enjoyed a delicious chicken dinner before the meeting was called to order by Boss Lion Garland. After the Pledge of Allegiance, prayer was given by Lion Bernabe. Needed repairs to the restrooms in the Lions Hall were discussed. There was no program and the meeting was adjourned.

Clarendon, Mexico, NAFTA, And GATT

By Ben B. Boothe, Economic Consultant Ben Boothe and Associates, Inc.

Just as surely as the federal building in Oklahoma City has been destroyed in tragic violence, the credibility of arguments supporting NAFTA have fallen into rubble. I just returned from a fact finding trip in Washington D.C. in preparation for a presentation at an international symposium of economists in Mexico City. There is not much desire to discuss NAFTA or GATT in D.C. these days, especially among those who so vigorously supported them. Most of our elected officials would just as well bury the transcripts of their speeches extolling the benefits of NAFTA during the heat of the debate of it's passage.

Why? It has become ever more apparent that Mexico was not sufficiently developed and mature, either politically, economically, or socially for the massive influx of capital and investment that came along with NAFTA. Since December 15, 1994, when the peso was devalued, and started the massive financial crisis of Mexico, literally billion of dollars have poured out of Mexico. The U.S. and the IMF at our prodding led a bailout of 40 to 50 billion dollars, two things about the bail out are now apparent. First, 50 billion dollars will not be enough. Secondly, Mexico does not have the ability and eventually will not have even a desire to repay the loans.

For Clarendon and Texas as a whole, NAFTA has not benefitted Americans like giant business lobbyist had scripted that it would. Just a few examples are in order. Farmers had been told that NAFTA would bring them profits. But in reality, farmers from Texas to Florida are fighting a flood of cheap Mexican products, posting in at prices sometimes less than 1/5 the cost to produce in America. Tomato farmers in Florida cry out that their industry is dying in a flood of Mexican tomatoes grown in Mexico at wages of $.70 per hour. In Texas, rice farmers were shocked when they were notified by a huge rice grain elevator announcement that it would no longer be buying American grown rice because with NAFTA and GATT it could now import rice in from around the world cheaper than buying it from American farmers.

The disaster has not just been to farmers. NAFTA was supposed to create exports and by doing so create American jobs for consumer and industrial goods. In reality, since the Peso devaluation, exports to Mexico have slowed to a trickle, while Mexico's workers at $.75 to $1.50 per hour are now manufacturing hundreds of items formerly made in the USA and exporting them back to us. In reality, the primary export from America to Mexico, due to NAFTA has been jobs and the primary import from Mexico has been unemployment. Texas State Comptroller John Sharp recently said that 247,000 Texans work in export-related jobs, and that the Texas manufacturing sector would be losing many jobs as a result.

NAFTA according to Mexican Ambassador Jesus Silva-Herzog actually exacerbated economic instability in Mexico. "The rapid move to freer trade definitely played a big part in Mexico's crisis" he said in a speech in Dallas recently. The victims are workers on both sides of the border. A joke going around Mexico says, "Zidillo told a street vendor that he would have to tighten his belt, to which the street vendor replied "I'm sorry. I've already eaten it." It thus was not a surprise when former President Carlos Salinas tried a fast to gain public support and the Mexican people quickly said, "Let him starve." His fast was aborted after four hours and he wisely took the fast flight out of Mexico to teach in Boston. Salinas left Mexico the easy way, with some wealth and a job. But other Mexicans who wish to leave must do it the hard way, illegally. Since NAFTA, illegal migration from Mexico into America has become a flood in Arizona, California, and Texas.

I spoke to former Speaker of the House, Jim Wright yesterday. Wright speaks fluent Spanish and has long been a leader in Latin American relations. He believes that we should focus on the people of Mexico, and not it's financial crisis. Of course American's feel for Mexico's poor and downtrodden. But we have little sympathy for the 32 families of Mexico who are recent billionaires and who probably were the only ones in Mexico to benefit from NAFTA. Millions of dollars in U.S. investment in Mexico was funneled through their hands into offshore banks. Evidence that I found in Washington D.C. indicates that of the 40 to 50 billion dollar bail out package, that perhaps half of it is going not to rebuild Mexico but to protect the wallets of fat cats at Goldman Sachs and other giant investment houses.

Our firm conducted a research study to determine what the future impact of NAFTA, GATT, and other Mexican crisis would be on the United States? The conclusions should be noted, and shared with others.

1. The U.S. will experience rising interest rates as a result of monetary and economic pressure related to our ties with Mexico.
2. The U.S. dollar may show a continued weakness exacerbated by our monetary handcuff with Mexico.
3. The 47-52 billion dollar bill out package will not be repaid.
4. Mexico will experience continue instability, politically and economically, causing greater illegal immigration to America.
5. The Interstate 35 entry into America carries 85 percent of all imports, and illegal drugs, and contraband into America. This will continue to increase at an alarming rate due to relaxation of restrictions brought about by NAFTA
6. With labor costs in Mexico lower than ever, Mexico will continue to produce labor intensive goods cheaper than Americans can, therefore more and more American jobs will be lost to Mexico increasing U.S. unemployment.
7. America's trade deficit with Mexico will soar higher than ever.
8. The continued cost to the U.S. will continue to contribute to an erosion in confidence the U.S. economy and the dollar.

MDA Holds Camp

Every year the Muscular Dystrophy Association holds a camp for children with neuromuscular disorders. The camp is held at Ceta Canyon every summer. This year it is June 4-9. MDA is short on funds this year to completely fund everything for the kids and their attendants and need help. The following is a list of items that are needed to have a successful camp: sunscreen, insect repellent, tylenol, pepto-bismol, chloroseptic, throat lozenges, cough drops, Q-tips, benadryl, shaving cream, whipped cream, ketchup, black tarp, suitcase tags, temporary name tags (colored for units), glue gun/glue sticks, votive candles, wet wipes, prizes, markers, 33 MM color film, glue sticks, whiteout, christmas tree lights, decorations for dances, mustard, duct tape, large plastic bags, thumb tacks, flashlights/batteries, crepe paper, kool-aid, straws, popcorn, life jackets, eggs, flour, silly string, orange juice, small pool, ajax, kleenex, arts & crafts supplies, iodine, heating pads, pens, legal pads, 33 MM slide film, labels, large paper clips, decorations for fair, pvc pipe for banners, and syrup. They will also accept cash so they can buy what is not donated.

All of these items are needed desperately for the success of at least 150 disabled children. For more information contact Felicia Robinson or Christina Hommel at 874-3235. They will pick up the donations if necessary.

Loans Work for Students, Schools, and Taxpayers

"Getting a student loan was easier than I ever imagined," says Jennifer Phillips, a graduate student at the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University.

"I didn't have to shop around to find a lender and wait for all the paperwork to be processed. Instead I went to the financial aid office to coordinate all my student financial aid. There's so much to be done when you're going to school, and this was one less important thing to worry about. It was a tremendous relief."

Students like Phillips and financial aid administrators across the country, are praising the new William D. Ford Federal Direct Loan Program, which allows students to borrow directly from the federal government through their schools instead of through banks and other third-party lenders.

Schools cite a number of benefits to direct lending: it's simple, with less paperwork, less money spent on staff overtime and phone calls to lenders, and much quicker turn-around time for loan processing; improved cash flow; and flexibility to structure the loan program to fit their particular needs and capabilities.

In addition to having loan money earlier in the school term to pay for books and other up-front expenses, students all so report that they borrow less because it is now so easy and simple to obtain additional funds if needed compared to the hassle under the FFEL program.

Borrowers with direct loans also benefit when it's time to pay back their loans. They can open an Individual Education Account (IEA), giving them the option to repay their loan in one of four ways, to switch repayment plans as their financial situations change, and to assume more control over their finances and career choices.

The four repayment options are: Pay-as-you-can or income contingent plan - monthly payments are based on a percentage of annual income, family size and load amount, with payments rising and falling as income fluctuates. Extended plan - monthly payments are a fixed amount over a period of 12 to 30 years, depending on loan amount. Graduated plan - payments are lower initially and then increase every two years over a period of 12 to 30 years. Standard plan - monthly payments are a fixed amount for up to 10 years.

Taxpayers also gain from direct lending. From the Student Loan Reform Act that created direct loans, the government expects to save an estimated $6.8 billion from FY 1995 to FY 2000 by eliminating unnecessary payments to lenders and taking advantage of the federal government's ability to borrow at a lower interest rate. The administration's FY 1996 budget proposes speeding-up the phase-in of direct loans to 100 percent of loan volume by academic year 1998, for an additional $5.2 billion savings ($12 billion total savings).

"We are determined to take the expense and confusion out of how students finance and pay for higher education," said U.S. Secretary of Education Richard W. Riley. "We're determined to make the loan process simple easy and efficient, and it's working. Both schools and students recognize that direct lending accomplishes these goals - and saves billions of dollars at the same time."

Last month, the Education Department held a meeting in New Orleans to provide schools who will begin direct lending in the 1995-96 school year with training and technical assistance to get the program up and running smoothly. Campus officials from the 104 schools that began direct lending this year also attended, sharing their start-up experiences and describing its advantages.

"The program is so much simpler than the FFEL (Federal Family Education Loan) program that we've completed awarding aid to 800 more students this year than we did at the same time last year," said a financial aid administrator at SUNY-Brockport just a few weeks into the program.

And at the University of Idaho, the financial aid director said, "The biggest joy of direct lending is having the money ready for the students when they expect to receive it. Our students have definitely been the beneficiaries of better service."

The University of Florida pointed to other administrative benefits: "...a happier, more in-control financial aid staff who are better able to meet their customers' needs and an overall cash flow improvement for the school."

The thing that gives people courage is ideas.

Thank You

Thanks to all of you who called, came and shared at my retirement, making it a day to remember and cherish. No words can truly express my feelings of gratitude to each of you for the friendship we have had. A special thank you to my co-workers, bosses, and their families for all that we have shared and for making this day possible. I will truly miss each of you as I embark on a new career of full time housewife and traveling companion.
 Jo Anne Brown

Thanks for all the calls, visits, and prayers while I was in the hospital. A special thanks to Phil and Rhonda Vargus for their fast attention. Thank the Lord I am home and doing fine.
 Larry & Lura Helms

This is not the way I would like to personally thank each of you but due to circumstances it is the best I can do at this time. I want to thank each of you who sent the beautiful flowers, the sweet cards, and the good food, all of which I have enjoyed so very much. Friends are so special.
