The Danger in Sorghum and Corn Stalks.

Some time ago attention was called by the Journal to the sudden death of some cattle feeding in a sorghum field in the Northwestern part of New Mexico. No explanation of the cause of their deaths was suggested at that time, but in a recent letter to Breeders' Gazette A. S. Alexander, V. S., calls attention to the fact that sometimes nitrate of potash develops in the stalks of sorghum and corn to an extent which makes such stalks very poisonous to cattle. In the case of corn this occurs on very rich land where the stalks have been stunted in growth by drouth. The nitrate of potash (salt peter) is found in excess in the joints.

A veterinary in the British East Indies, Capt. H. F. Pease, says that a variety of sorghum grown there for fodder develops a poison when it becomes stunted or withered after having grown to a certain height. The nitrate of potash poisoning is rapid in its results sometimes causing death in a few minutes, but usually the animal lives half an hour and sometimes ten or twelve hours. Capt. Pease says he has found stalks containing 25 per cent of this poison. A very little of such feed would be

It may be inferred from the above that there would be no danger in feeding the stalk if cut before the stalk only, though this is not clear .-

Galveston, Tex., July 8 .- The school der from headquarters to the local ex- boards of the cities of Texas are now upon the anxious seat and are dreadfully desirous of knowing how the apportionment of state school funds is going to pan out. The reason for this anxiety is that the school census taken this year and upon which apportionment will be based, shows a falling off in children in the scholastic age from the last previous census in all cities of the state but one.

On the face of it this statement seems rather remarkable, and unless the United States; the papers were held accompanied by an explanation it up, and the officer who brought them | might be inferred that the cities of the state were retrograding in the matter of population. Such, however, is far from the fact. The decrease in the number of children of scholastic age according to the last census is due to the fact that the last legislature passed a law providing for a change in the method of taking the census. In years gone by the practice has been to employ a census taker, whose duty it was to ascertain the best way he could how many children of scholastic age there were in the district assigned to him. The census taker was paid 5 cents for each name reported and naturally his inclinations were in the line of getting many names rather than few. In this inclination he was also joined by the school trustees in every district. who, of course, wanted as large a share of the state school fund as they could possibly get.

Under the new law the census taker is required to list the name of each child of scholastic age and then obtain the signature of the parent or guardian to the lists and swear such parent or guardian to the truth of the statement. The rigidity of this requirement has the effect of excluding all names that should not appear in the census, obviates the listing of children who are too young or too old and, it is believed, excludes many names where the parents or guardians of children are absent from the city at the time of census, no provision having been made for obtaining names in such contingen-

As before stated, the effect of these requirements has been to reduce the apparent scholastic population in every city of the state save one and has reduced it very materially. In the country districts the falling off has not been so marked.

This means that the cities will get less money than they did last year, while the country districts will reap the benefit of it. What the city trustees would like to know is how much the reduction will be in their apportionments. They will probably be gratified this month. Superintendent Carlisle thinks the apportionment will the Woodmen of the World from Ter-be $4.50 for each child of scholastic rell, Kaufman Greenville and Ennis. age.

City of Mexico, July 12 .- The Germans are preparing to make a commercial move to regain some of the lost commercial ground here, especially endeavoring to secure the dry goods trade, which has passed into the hands of French merchants, who now monop-

Washington, July 11 .- At 5:55 o'clock yesterday evening Secretary Alger received a cablegram from Gen. Shafter saying:

"I have just received a letter from Gen. Toral declining unconditional surrender. Bombardment by army and navy will begin as near 4 p. m. as possible.'

Gen. Shafter, owing to his belief that all the Spanish soldiers had left the city and were in the intreachments, bombarded the intrenchments with a view to saving the buildings in the city for future occupancy. When Sampson ceased firing at 8 injured, but which one is not known here.

The bombardment began at 5 o'clock The enemy opened fire with light guns, which were soon silenced by ours. There was very little musketry fired, and the enemy kept entirely within their trenches. Three men were slightly wounded.

Gen. Shafter reports he will have considerable trouble in finding enough men to completely block all the roads on the northwest.

Gen. Garcia reports that the enemy Dos Caminos, about three miles from Santiago and near the bay.

The war department officials believe that Gen. Shafter has seen evidences of the Spanish army's intention to retreat to the mountains, and that quick work will be necessary to guard all the avenues of escape, for Shafter's army is hardly large enough to guard the great expanse of country that may be utilized by Toral in flight. The belief is, however, that without food such a retreat would soon become a rout.

Shafter's army was considerably re inforced yesterday by the arrival of the Catalonia and the St. Paul, the former bringing the first regiment District of Columbia volunteers and the St. Paul sixteenth Pennsylvania and second and bringing Gen. Herry, in command, and the quartermaster's stores. Gen. "On the 28th of Sept. 1896, while in the bloom of health, Beatrice was suddenly and severely afficted with spinal meningitis. Strong and vigorous before, in five weeks she became feeble and suffered from a paralytic stroke which twisted her head back to the side and made it impossible for her to move a limb. Her speech, however, was not affected. We called in our family doctor, one of the most experienced and successful practitioners in the city. He considered the case a very grave one. Before long little Beatrice was compelled to wear a plaster paris jacket. Prominent physicians were consulted, electric batteries were applied, but no benefit was noticed until we tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

"Busy in my kitchen one afternoon I was startled by the cry of 'Mamma' from little Beatrice, who was creeping toward me. I had placed her on an improvised bed in the parlor comfortably close to the fireside and given her some books and playthings. She became tired of waiting for me to come back and made up her mind to go to me. so her story, 'My Pink Pills made me walk,' which she tells to everyone who comes to our house, was then for the first time verified. She has walked ever since. She has now taken about nine boxes of the pills and her pale and pinched face has been growing rosy, and her limbs gained strength day by day. What He Carried on the Cars

To Take when Travelling.

Every traveller knows that continuous journeying on the railroad is very apt to derange the system in some way. In spite of springs and soft seats there is a continuous jar and vibration, which acts upon the nervous system, and produces results varying somewhat, according to the strength of the traveller or his predisposition to some specific aliment. The most common consequence of continuous carriding is constipation. And this condition invariably produces headache, and tends to biliousness. J. J. Converse, St. Louis, Mo., found a way to avoid the evil effects of constipation. And this condition "the pilt that will" cure constipation and all its sequent sufferings. This is what he says:

Plenty of Paper Money.

The war debt is piling up, and there that cost $750,000. After the war, we for the redemption of greenbacks? will have the greater part of its cost in the shape of bonds for future genindebtedness. This is, however, only one of the sad features of war.

Yu a former letter I urged the importance of issuing greenbacks or paper money instead of paper bonds. is that one draws interest and the other does not. Aearly every pound of ammunition and supplies will be purchased in the United States, where our paper money would be received as good as gold. It is probable that in foreign countries, like the Philippines. our soldiers should be paid in coin, comething they could utilize where they are situated.

But the bulk of the cost of the war could be paid in paper money and the people be relieved of the additional burden of interest which bonds impose. And this is no chimerical idea originating in the brain of a crank. It is not even a new idea. In the Napoleonic wars England was forced to suspend specie payments and resort to the issue of paper money. It resulted in the greatest period of prosperity ever employed by that country. During the civil war the United States was placed under the necessity of issuing large quantities of paper money and a like period of prosperity followed. The mistake the United States made was in issuing bonds after the war and calling in her non-interest bearing paper money, with a view to again returning to a specie basis, a mistake which has caused more suffering and

How do we propose to obtain that "other coin" without the issue of more bonds? What oppose is not a redeemable money, all money is redeemable if any account at all, but a money that is made redeemable specifically in one or two things, such as gold and silver. I oppose this for the same reason that I would oppose making money redeemable in cattle-it would give the men who controlled the cattle all undue advantage over others. Now why not make money redeemable in all things, and then have enough of it to meet the demand for it-that is to say, have enough so that the demand for money is no greater than the demand for labor or property. This can be done by the government taking sole charge of the money system, making old money receivable for taxes and a full legal

When the government does this that means the people and every man thereby agrees to receive such money in exchange for what he has to sell. He does this willingly, not for the intrinsic value there is in the money but greater loss of property than the war because he knows that he in his turn can exchange it for something of intrinsic value, inasmuch as others have agreed like him to take it as a medium of exchange, which after all is the sum senators who voted for bonds and and substance of what money is. If the gold standard advocates are right in their insistence that the dollar should contain 100 cents' worth of material, whatever that may be, and that any dollar that does not come up to this standard is not honest, we see nothing left for the government to do but to stamp coins with their true weight and value, and we see no reason whatever why it should refuse any longer to so stamp all the silver pre-Philippines, but how would we make to induce the government to stop its sented for that purpose. "For Valor." A little story that appeared not long ago in a Spanish comic paper is sent to us by a correspondent to show how Spaniards thought of their navy before the present events. A Spanish admiral touching at some foreign port, in the natural course of events, calls on the governor of the local fort, and on the return call the governor sees the one little gun of the Spanish man-of-war run out to fire a return salute; but at and he wouldn't have her hurt for the the critical moment the Spanish admiral rushes up and throws the gun, carriage and all, into the sea. "What!" exclaims the distinguished visitor, why do you throw your government's guns overboard?" "Because," replied the admiral, "if the gun had gone off it pieces! The Spanish and American Debta Some idea of the magnitude of the would have blown this whole ship to burden resting upon the Spanish people can be gained by a comparison with our own situation. Their national debt per capital is about 481/2 pesetas, or $94 in American money. Mulhall, a few years ago, estimated the wealth of Spain at about $455 per capita; perhaps by this time it could be placed at $460. The per capita debt of the Spanish government, therefore, is more than 20 per cent of the per capita wealth of the entire nation. The People's party of Texas favor liberal appropriations by the general government for the improvement of the harbors, rivers and waterways of Texas, and to this end we request our senators and representatives in congress to support such appropriations as will be sufficient to secure deep water in such harbors, rivers and waterways.

We condemn now as we did in our platform of In such harbors, rivers and waterways.

We condemn now, as we did in our platform of 1894, the policy of placing raw material on the free list while every article manufactured from said raw material is protected.

We are not the enemy of railroads, and we here declare that, while we favor government ownership of railroads, yet so long as such property is owned and operated by corporations it is entitled to fair and impartial treatment at the hands of the government and the people and to the same protection that is accorded to private property.

We condemn the setting aside of large contingent funds subject to the draft of one man as demoralising to good state government. funds subject to the drait of one ing to good state government.
Without committing the party to the advocacy or rejection of government bounties as a principle of policy, we condemn the Democratic state administration because of their failure to collect from the general government the sugar bounty earned by
