

MOTION PICTURES OF BROWNWOOD TAKEN; TO BE FRONTIER FEATURE

Films showing scenes of interest in the business and residential sections of Brownwood and at Lake Brownwood were made Saturday by A. L. Osborn, cameraman for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce who is making films for the WTCC theater in the All-West Texas Exhibit Building at the Fort Worth Centennial Celebration. The order for films, originally for four reels, was increased to six, four of which will be in natural colors, after the cameraman started his work.

The films will be shown daily at the WTCC exhibit and duplicates will be obtained by the chamber of commerce for use in advertising Brownwood. Pictures taken include: 100 feet of film of Lake Brownwood and 100 feet of film in Lake Brownwood State Park, all in natural colors; Saturday afternoon crowds at the courthouse and on the square; postoffice; scenes at Daniel Baker and Howard Payne colleges; high school buildings; Soldiers and Sailors Memorial Hall; Santa Fe depot; Carnegie Library; Center avenue from the postoffice west; Center avenue from the postoffice east; churches; Austin avenue from the Gravens home south; two scenes on Vincent street, including the Renfro, Rosenberg and Dildy homes; and the D. S. Camp and Redmond homes; Brownwood Cotton, Oil Mill; Hightower Refining Company; Texas Brick Company; U. S. Pecan Experiment Station; highway 10, showing Hayes Park; and Austin Mill & Grain Co. elevators. The films taken at the lake will be used for advertising the Regatta if they can be secured soon enough.

NEGRO FACES CHARGES

Charges of forgery have been filed against Jesse Shaw, negro, arrested by members of the Sheriff's Department last week. Officers said that Shaw, who has served one term in the penitentiary from Brown county for burglary, and who was at home on a parole, gave a worthless check for $5.64 to J. D. Hintner, filling station operator at Bangs.

Texas Legends and Folklore

By Olive M. Johnson, Director of Speech Arts North Texas State Teachers College

I. The Legend of the San Saba Mine

Texas is the land of legends, with a most unusual history and romantic tradition. Six flags have claimed her. Every section has a stock of legendary lore, left by Indian aborigines, French explorers, Spanish conquistadores and monks—legends of pirates and freebooters, of filibusters, of cowboys, and rangers, of settlers and pioneers. These are not only "twice-told tales" but tales told many times. "Some one told it to Grandfather, he told it to Father, and Father told me." Oral tradition; true legendary lore! Like the stories of Grimm and Andersen, these tales were built from repetition upon very slight beginnings.

There are few localities in Texas that do not have legends of lost mines. The most remarkable of these is that of the San Saba Mine, sometimes called the Bowie Mine. The Lipan Indians, according to the story, had wrested the mine from the Spaniards and stored the bullion, James Bowie cultivated the friendship of the Lipans and gained the confidence of their chief. He lived among them and was adopted into the tribe, finally they revealed their treasure to him.

The amazing quantity of gold seemed to turn Bowie's head, for he left the tribe, hurried to San Antonio, and organized a force to wrest the treasure from the Indians. He met the Indians at Calf Creek, McCulloch county, in one of the most brilliant fights of early days. There were 164 Indians and only eleven whites. The Texans had one man killed and seven wounded; the Indians had eighty killed and many wounded. Bowie was the only white man who knew the secret of the mine. Before he could resume his quest, he fell at the Alamo, carrying his secret with him; and through the years, countless Texans have striven in vain to find the lost San Saba Mine.

'Dust Bowl' Gets a Great Soaking and Likes It

A flood hailed as a blessing instead of a disaster was this one from the Arkansas river that poured over thousands of parched acres in the heart of the "dust bowl," near Las Animas, Colo. Heavy rains and late snows sent high water surging over parts of Colorado and Kansas and brought relief to four other states in the southwest. A week before, every breeze stirred up choking clouds of dust where the water now is shown inundating this farm.

CLYDE GARRETT AND BLANTON OPPONENTS IN CONGRESS RACE

With no serious contest in sight for this year in the 21st congressional district, where Representative Charles L. South is serving his first term, interest in congressional races in Brownwood centers in the 17th district, where Congressman Thomas L. Blanton of Abilene faces stiff opposition. Mr. Blanton represented Brown county in Congress for many years until the northern part of the district was cut away in the redistricting two years ago. He has many staunch friends here.

Mr. Blanton is being opposed this year by Judge Clyde L. Garrett of Eastland, well known in Brownwood. Judge Garrett has been county judge of Eastland county, second most populous county in the district, for a number of years, and in such capacity has visited Brown county frequently. He was here last spring as president of the West Texas County Judges and Commissioners Association, when that organization held its convention in Brownwood. Judge Garrett is now president of the County Judges and Commissioners Association of Texas. He is a popular official, an able campaigner, and has warm support in Eastland county, where he has resided for many years, and is perfecting his organization in other counties in the district. Judge Garrett has announced that he will open his campaign for Congress in Sweetwater on May 28. An active campaign organization has been formed in Eastland county to assist his candidacy.

Mr. Blanton has shot a few darts at his opponent from Washington, and the tone of these has indicated the temper of the campaign will be to the liking of those who appreciate a rough and tumble contest. Mr. Blanton concedes nothing to his opponent, and makes no apology for speaking plainly on all occasions. He is probably the most aggressive member of Congress, and his activity has not always brought him personal popularity. Until the advent of Maury Maverick of San Antonio into Congress two years ago, he was beyond all odds the most voluble member of the Texas delegation, but has had to yield this honor somewhat to the Bexar county representative. In any campaign in which he is interested, there is sure to be plenty of action. Mr. Blanton, incidentally, has always been a popular vote getter in this county.

The campaign in the 17th district is just getting under way, but it already gives promise of being a lively one.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE 125TH LEGISLATIVE DISTRICT

Zeno C. Ingram, a resident of Brownwood for the past 21 years, today authorized the announcement of his candidacy for the Texas Legislature as a representative of Brown and Coleman counties. During his long residence in Brownwood Mr. Ingram has been active in the business, civic and social affairs of the city and is well qualified for the high office to which he aspires.

Mr. Ingram was educated in the public schools of Fort Worth and later attended Brownwood colleges, doing his literary work in Daniel Baker and studying commercial law and business administration in Howard Payne. Mr. Ingram withdrew from college early in 1918 and enlisted in the United States navy, serving throughout the remainder of the World War. Since completing this service he has been active in Brownwood business circles and during the time was engaged in executive service in various organizations, serving in numerous official capacities.

During the past four or five years Mr. Ingram has been an employee of the Texas Railroad Commission in the oil and gas division. While in this work he learned much of the state's greatest industry and has definite ideas as to how oil, the world's greatest natural resource, should be conserved and taxed.

Mr. Ingram plans to conduct an active campaign in the two counties he aspires to represent and from the platform and personal contact will outline his ideas of legislation most beneficial to Brown and Coleman counties, as well as to the entire state. Briefly Mr. Ingram stated today that he favors paying in full and promptly the old age pensions and would raise the money needed for this by increasing taxes on natural resources—natural gas, sulphur and carbon. He would increase the per capita school apportionment in an effort to reduce or eliminate local school taxes. He also would favor a more equitable automobile registration tax. Mr. Ingram heartily endorses soil erosion programs now under way and would enlarge and continue this great work.

During the past few years Mr. Ingram has been in close contact with the inner workings of the state government and believes that he is well qualified to render the citizens of Brown and Coleman counties a valuable service in the Legislature and during the next two months will present his candidacy to the voters in language they can understand.

Mrs. J. W. Trapp has been named council chairman for the Brownwood organization. Work of the various troops organized and sponsored individually in the past will be carried on under her supervision. The local council will operate through the region of the national organization which includes the states of Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, and Arizona.

No One Knows Who Occupies Graves

No records have been found to establish the identity of persons buried in a half a dozen unmarked graves found in one corner off the 200 acre poor farm tract by WPA workmen who are clearing the site for construction of the municipal airport. Presence of the graves was unknown until the workmen discovered them recently, and all efforts to secure identification of the dead buried there have been futile. A hearing on an application made by the city for a permit to remove the remains from the tract to Greenleaf Cemetery will be held before County Judge A. E. Nabors at 9 a. m. Monday.

Officials believe that the graves are those of one-time occupants of the poor farm, as the county has used the tract for that purpose for many years. No one is expected to appear to contest the application.

CROP INSURANCE PLAN DRAWS SUPPORT FROM BOTH MAJOR PARTIES

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 20.—Promises of at least partial support for the principles of a new Federal crop insurance plan came from some Republicans as well as Democrats Wednesday, immediately following instruction of a bill to this end by Senator Pope, (Dem.), Idaho.

Broadly, it would create a Federal crop insurance corporation from which the owner or operator of a farm could purchase insurance against all natural damages to any growing agricultural commodity. Premium charges would be based on actual cost and any profits to the corporation would be used to reduce premiums on subsequent policies.

George N. Peek, a former new deal farm administrator who has been active for a number of years in both the Republican and Democratic parties in behalf of farm legislation said the principles of crop insurance are well worthy of consideration by Congress and the national political conventions.

Principle Is Indorsed
"I would keep the government out of it as far as possible however," he said. "There is no reason private agencies could not provide adequate crop insurance with limited government support."

Chester Gray, Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said the national farm program under any political party eventually must include crop insurance.

Secretary Wallace withheld immediate formal comment. He would be on the board of directors of the corporation. Two other members would be appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate.

Senator Bulow (Dem.) South Dakota (in whose State farmers have suffered repeated crop losses from drought and dust storms, said he hesitated to put the Government in to any more business, but that he favored crop insurance as a part of any future national farm program. Senator Capper (Rep.), Kansas, declaring that crop insurance features of outlawed AAA benefit payments must be continued in some form, said Pope's bill probably had the nucleus answer.

Risk Declared Great
"I would favor a government corporation if crop insurance could not be worked out on a national scale any other way. The risk is too great for a single company or an individual State to assume."

Capper said Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, who he is supporting for the Republican presidential nomination, had been giving a lot of thought to crop insurance.

Sen. Pope said the selling point in his bill is the provision that crop damage liability be limited to the loss suffered at the time of disaster.

"Heretofore companies have gone broke trying to pay damages on the basis of what the crop would have been worth had it matured and sold at prevailing market prices," he said.

"I propose, for instance, that if corn is damaged in July the farmer be paid on an estimate of what the crop was worth at that time rather than on the basis of a yield in September."

All County Schools Will Take Part In Centennial Singing
Practically every school in Brown county will be represented in the chorus of 50,000 school children of Texas which will appear at the Texas Centennial exposition at Dallas June 13, according to Miss Opal Gilstrap, deputy state superintendent. More than 400 Brown county children are expected to go to Dallas to take part in the program, which is expected to draw the record crowd of any of the Centennial programs. Schools which have already announced their intentions of sending delegations are Brownwood, Early, Bangs, May, Williams and Clear Creek.

The quota for the seven counties in the district which includes Brown County, has been set at 2,500, and Miss Gilstrap said this week that efforts to meet the quota are nearing success. Other counties in the district are Eastland, Comanche, Mills, Erath, Hamilton, and Lampasas.

Rubioff Holds World Record for Broadcasting

Rubioff and his violin—and Chevrolet—are a combination that few, if any, radio listeners in the United States have not received in their homes via the air. The famous violinist and his Stradivarius, stars of the Chevrolet Musical Moments programs, have the distinction of going on the air from more broadcasting stations than any other program in the history of radio. Three hundred and seventy-eight stations broadcast Rubioff three times a week, a total of 1134 fifteen-minute programs. That figures out at 233 hours, and if one week's programs were broadcast one after the other, day and night, it would require 11 days. The illustration shows Rubioff, carrying his precious violin, posing with his car after a special appearance at Detroit.

history department of the Brownwood High School, according to an announcement made by Mrs. Mary E. White, president of the organization and Joe L. Wiley, history teacher in the high school. The essay winning second prize was written by Miss June Stevenson. A cash prize of $2.50 was awarded to Miss Avinger.

Subject matter for the contest essays was limited to "Women of the South in Wartime." The winning essays were devoted to interesting accounts of the hardships, trials and changing conditions to which women of the South by necessity adapted themselves during the Civil War.
