

Wheat Contracts Be Explained County Agent

Public Meeting Called; No
Average Is Permitted
This Year.

Wheat contracts will be explained and all wheat producers will have an opportunity to sign revised forms at a called meeting of wheat growers to be held at county court house Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. In making the meeting County Agent C. W. Lehberg made the following statement:

Operation of the Wheat Adjustment Act was explained when the Secretary of Agriculture approved the Wheat Adjustment Contract for 1936-1939 on October 15, 1935. This contract will cover the years 1936 to 1939, inclusive, unless unforeseen circumstances should make it desirable to terminate it at the end of any year.

Period of operation under the contract covered the crop years 1933-1934 and 1935. Wheat contracts in a National Referendum held October 25, 1935, voted nearly 7 to 1 in favor of the wheat adjustment program along the same lines as followed in the 1933-1935 program. The 1936-1939 adjustment program is a continuation of the 1933-1935 program. The fundamental framework and general objective remain the same.

Years of experience under the wheat adjustment plan of 1933 emphasized the need of some modification for the purpose of the plan. The modifications which have been made, do not affect the general principle of the method of operation under it.

Difference in Contract

The wheat adjustment contract for 1936-1939 differs from the 1933-1935 contract in that the wheat allotment contract in 1936-1939 is drafted to conform with provisions of other commodity contracts in order to maintain as uniformity as possible between contracts and also to incorporate such new provisions as are requested by farmers.

Men Charged With Grain Theft

E. Dyer and "Dutch" Garms were arrested leaving a grainary owned by C. A. Cavell, eight miles from the Cross Cut road, Friday night with a trailer loaded with more than 25 bushels of grain allegedly taken from the grainary. Mr. Cavell was watching the pasture and had the officers ready to apprehend them by the time they had finished loading. They are being held in county jail charged with theft of wheat. They are also charged with having taken 35 bushels from Cavell's grainery earlier in the week.

More Fish For Lake

Ruin Left in Wake of Montana Earthquake

Typical of the ruin wrought by the quake which caused more than $2,000,000 damage and claimed two lives in Helena, Mont., is that shown at this home, where the occupants narrowly escaped with their lives when the structure collapsed. More than 400 buildings were damaged in the Montana capital, a city of 14,000, and the Red Cross has taken over the relief of scores of families. Hundreds of Helena residents fled in terror into the open country as shock followed shock.

NEW FACTORY TO ADD $400 TO LOCAL PAYROLL

Capacity production of the Brownwood branch factory of Fort Worth Barrel Company will be started about November 1st, according to R. D. Miller, superintendent of the local plant. At present the daily output of the factory is around 500 barrels; capacity output is around 1,800 barrels.

The present half scale production is being maintained to accumulate a surplus of turkey barrels, the factory's output, to accommodate any rush order that may be received after full production starts.

With the factory operating at capacity the increase to Brownwood's payroll will average around $400 monthly. Total cost of conditioning the factory for operation was $218.

LOCAL ARTIST WORKS ON MISSION PAINTING

Mrs. A. J. Canatella, Brownwood artist, spent Monday doing research work for paintings of two of the subjects she is to use for the series of Mission pictures she is doing for the Centennial Exposition next year in Dallas. With an artist from San Antonio she went to the old San Saba Mission and Fort McKavitt near Menard to get the dimensions, coloring and other features of the original buildings.

MAN CHARGED WITH DRUNKEN DRIVING

Bond for E. J. Thompson was set at $500 in each of two charges, one for driving while drunk and another for falling to stop and render aid after an automobile accident, in justice court Monday. He was bound over to await action of grand jury which will be in session here next week.

The charges are the outgrowth of an automobile accident Sunday afternoon on highway 7 at the foot of the "Bangs" hill west of Brownwood. It is charged that Thompson, driving a truck loaded with pecans, sideswiped a light sedan owned and driven by T. B. Akin of San Angelo, and that after striking the car Thompson continued without stopping.

PECAN GROWERS ASK GOVERNMENT AID TO BOLSTER 1935 PRICES

Means of raising the price of pecans to a fair level was the main topic of discussion at a called meeting of the West Texas Pecan Growers Association at Hotel Brownwood Thursday morning. Action taken at a meeting of growers held here earlier in the month when representatives of the Texas Pecan Growers' Association, the West Texas Pecan Growers' Association and the Central Texas Pecan Growers' Association voted to ask the government for an 8 cents per pound loan on pecans, request the President to raise the tariff on cashew nuts and ask growers to form pools for holding off the market part of this year's production was discussed.

Action Urged

A letter urging that growers take action for their protection has been sent to members of the association. The letter:

"Since the meeting in Brownwood October 10, at which the present low prices of pecans were discussed, numerous injuries have come from interested growers over the state. Willingness to cooperate in any move which will help strengthen the market has been made by growers," the call for the meeting sent out to pecan growers over the state today said. The letter to growers continued in part as follows:

"If we pecan growers attempt to get the government to fix a loan value of 8c per pound on pecans, some cooperation on our part will be required. We may have to agree to put a part of our crop in a surplus pool. As the pecan harvest is now getting in full swing, quick action is necessary. The quickest and most direct way to get the matter before the proper Government officials will be to send a committee of growers to Washington at once, with a definite offer of cooperation on the part of the growers.

"Do we want 4c pecans or 8c pecans? With an eighty-eight million pound crop in prospect some drastic action will be necessary to secure a fair price.

"The addition of only 1c per pound will mean one-half million dollars to Texas pecan growers. 5c pecans will mean two million dollars additional to Texas growers."

Work Relief Not Possible With Cut In District Funds

All funds received from the Texas Relief Commission are being used for direct relief and commodity distribution this month. No direct relief projects are being carried on.

Allotment for district 14 A, for the last half of this month, $6,200, has been received and is apportioned as follows:

Brown, $2,435; Coleman, $1,550; Concho, $400; McCulloch, $715; Runnels, $1,100.

A trial jury awarded H. L. Allcorn $300 damages from Western Produce Company Saturday. The suit resulted from an automobile collision which occurred near Brownwood in June.

S C S WORK HASTENED BY NEW EQUIPMENT

Engineers of the Soil Conservation Service working from the soil conservation CCC camp here will start work in zone two, which includes farms in a five to ten mile radius of Brownwood, soon. Engineers and soil maps have been completed for 26 farms in zone one, which includes farms in a 5 mile radius of town, and plans for all work have been completed on 14 of these farms. One project, the terracing at Shelton Brothers Dairy, is nearing completion, and engineers are now locating sand, gravel and rock suitable to be used on structures on all surveyed farms in the first zone.

Organization of Brownwood Soil Conservation Association has been completed and the board of members named. Officers elected are: W. R. Chambers, May, president; L. W. Gorman, Brownwood, vice-president; O. J. Orton, member of the technical staff of the soil conservation camp, secretary; Olin Stranace, Bangs, treasurer. Other directors are Joe Shelton, Brownwood, and Fred McCormick, Santa Anna.

Pending arrival of tools and equipment preliminary work has been held back, but with the equipment now on hand rapid progress is expected.

STONE COLLECTION LATEST ADDITION TO H. P. C. MUSEUM

Stones representative of types found in Llano, Burnet, Mason, San Saba, Gillespie, Bexar, Brewster, Jeff Davis, Cooke, Brown, Travis, Williamson, Sutton and Culberson counties, comprising a collection of about 250 different specimens, have been contributed to Howard Payne Museum by the Bureau of Economic Geology of the University of Texas. The gift was obtained through C. L. Baker and G. A. Parkinson, of the University's bureau of economic geology, who made a stone survey of Brown county several weeks ago. They offered the collection to Professor O. E. Winebrenner when he was assisting them in their work here.

Among the different kinds of rock samples obtained are granite, sand stones, etc., among the siliceous variety, and marbles, limestones, travertine, Mexican onyx, etc., among the calcareous.

Among the great variety of stones available, there is a rock for nearly every use, including foundation, heavy walls, pillars, interior decoration, monumental, statuary and many others.

Prospects For Retaining CCC Camp Are Good

State Parks Board Joins Local Agencies in Requesting That Camp Stay Here.

PROSPECTS that the CCC camp at Lake Brownwood might be retained for another six months period were considerably brighter this week as the efforts of various agencies were combined in a final effort to avert removal.

Removal of the camp, which has been located at the state park on Lake Brownwood for the past 11 months, is scheduled for November 15, and army officers at the camp have received instructions from the War Department to make preparations for removal to New Mexico not later than that date.

Hope that the camp would be retained past the November 15 deadline was based largely upon receipt of a letter from D. E. Colp, chairman of the State Parks Board, to David Henley, past president of the local Izak Walton chapter. Mr. Colp's letter indicated that the State Park Board would join with United States Senators Morris Sheppard and Tom Connally, Congressman Chas. L. South, the Brownwood Chamber of Commerce and others who have been working to retain the camp here until the work at the state park is completed.

During the week letters and telegrams have been received from the two United States Senators and Mr. South in which all stated they were renewing efforts to secure an extension of time for the local camp. The messages were in response to telegrams sent them by local officials at Mr. Colp's suggestion.

Both Senators Sheppard and Tom Connally and Congressman South have been working on the matter for the past several weeks. Senator Connally reported in August that no camp had been assigned to Brownwood because state park authorities at that time had not made application for continuation of the camp. Senator Sheppard made a similar report early in September. Now that application has been made by state park authorities, local officials hope to receive word soon that the camp has been assigned to the park for another six months period.

OTHER STATIONS WILL EXCHANGE CALLS WITH LOCAL POLICE RADIO

As soon as connections can be checked, a regular broadcasting schedule will be arranged between the new police radio station at Brownwood and the Lubbock station. Police traffic calls will be sent between the two stations at 10 o'clock each night.

Plans are also being made for a hook-up between the station here and those at Austin, Dallas and San Antonio as soon as connections can be checked, according to Alton Stewart, operator of the Brown county station.

The station here is now being operated without license for the 30 day period allowed for final checking. Calls are being sent daily and reports of their reception have been received from a number of places over this section of the state.

Sets have been installed in three police cars, and extensive remodeling is under way at city hall to provide adequate broadcasting facilities. The police station desk and the microphone for broadcasting police calls are located in the new main office, formerly the room used by Chief of Police Bert Hise.

TWO COLLEGE TEAMS FACE HEAVY BATTLES

Both Daniel Baker and Howard Payne football teams face stiff competition Friday night with the Jackets meeting the traditionally wicked McMurray Indians on the home gridiron and the Billies going to San Marcos to meet Cheaney's Bobcats. The High School Lions are laying off for the weekend, but have begun preparing for their invasion of Abilene Friday November 1.

The Jacket-Indian clash here is expected to be a great fight, with the local team in prime condition and the visitors using all their extensive football lore in their attempt to take home a victory. The San Marcos tilt will be Daniel Baker's final non-conference game. Following week-ends they are to take on Trinity, McMurray, Abilene, Southwestern and St. Edwards in succession.

Everything seemed against the Lions in their battle against Breckenridge there last Saturday afternoon. More than 200 Brownwood fans accompanied the home team to see them play for a 18 to 6 losing score. Pettis, substitute end for the Lions, made the single score when he grabbed a Breckenridge fumble behind the goal line late in the fourth quarter.

Howard Payne's and Austin College's evenly matched teams played here last Friday with neither side being able to score. Their inability to chalk up points against the Kangaroos may have cost the Jackets their chances of retaining the Texas Conference title won last year. The probability is that they will tie for honors if present indications mean anything.

Boy Scout News

for four months. Kimble county: Fencing both sides of right-of-way on highway 27 for eight miles; total cost $4,406.18; WPA $2,824, sponsor 1,482.18; 23 men to be employed for three months. Lateral road improvement projects in San Saba, Menard and McCulloch counties have received preliminary approval. Further action will be taken upon completion of plans and specifications by the project sponsors. Highway officials are now working on plans and estimates for two highway projects in Coleman county on highway 7 which have been tentatively approved. The four projects for work in Kimble county which have been approved are being delayed until sufficient labor is available. Relief clients, who are to be employed on the projects, are now occupied with seasonal employment. District headquarters has received notice that Malcolm R. Jones has been appointed deputy procurement officer of the United States treasury department and has established headquarters in Abilene. His office will have charge of purchases for four WPA districts, Brownwood, Abilene, San Angelo and Big Spring. Materials still will be purchased on a bid basis except in emergencies when the procurement office can make purchases up to $300. The district office here is now compiling a list of all material dealers in the district so that all will be given opportunity to submit bids when materials are needed for projects. Workmen on jobs in McCulloch county and at Eden school in Concho received the first pay check issued to workmen in WPA district 14 last week. A second payroll for workmen on a Coleman county project has been prepared and sent to state headquarters at San Antonio. The McCulloch county payroll amounted to $238.71, and went to the foreman and 17 workmen, and for hire of one truck for the period September 24 to October 8. The project is for manning nets and seines to rid McCulloch county streams of obnoxious fish. The Eden payroll totaled $105.39, and went to the foreman and eight workmen for the period September 24 to October 8. The project is for construction of two concrete tennis courts. The Coleman payroll is to be issued October 20 for the period October 2 to 16. It will amount to $475.39 and go to a foreman, 27 workmen and for hire of four trucks. The project is for paving eight blocks of city streets. More than 60 project superintendents and applicants for positions as superintendents in WPA district 14 attended a one-day school of instruction held at roof garden of Hotel Brownwood Monday. Following an opening address by Major Karl E. Wallace, district director a program of talks by department heads and assistants was given. Carl A. Blasig, assistant district director, presided at the session. Talks included on their programs were on the following subjects: "General Duties of Projects Superintendents," Chas. S. Chase, Jr., district supervisor of projects and planning; "Material Requisitions," E. A. Shingle, senior examiner in the projects and planning division; "Physical Progress Reports," W. H. Barnum, district field supervisor; "Labor Management," James T. Padgett, supervisor of the labor management division. The afternoon program included the following addresses: "Safety Precautions," Major H. C. Gamble, supervisor of the division of safety; "Compensation," W. Allen Bell, Jr., supervisor of the compensation department; "Finance and Reports," A. N. Thomason, supervisor of the finance and reports division; "Receiving and Inspecting Slips," L. L. MAKING
CLOTHES

Are you the mother of a daughter so grown-up that she astounds you? Or is your figure suddenly taking on mature curves? Or are you nearing fifty and defiantly determined to "do something" about it? Here are six rules set down by the fashion editor of Delicatore for mature chic. I think you will find them interesting. 1. Nothing can make a woman look her age as easily as an unkempt air. Always be flawlessly groomed—whether it's for the grocer boy or a dinner party. It's a nice habit. 2. Have your clothes made—or make them yourself—because you can achieve better fit. And fit is vital. 3. Use as good fabric as you can afford. 4. Don't buy "mama" hats—choose becoming styles. 5. Think about becoming lines when you're buying clothes. 6. And do have a good corset each season—and wear it all the time.

Butterick 6433

The dress sketched here is just the sort Delicatore's fashion editor was talking about. It's a Butterick Pattern, one you can make that fits you as if you were poured into it—yet with enough comfortable fullness at points of strain. The bodice is very becoming. The skirt is cut exceptionally well to give you freedom and smartness. It's the sort of dress in which mature women will feel well groomed at any daytime hour. You can buy this Butterick Pattern at your favorite department store for 45c.

A round table discussion concluded the program. Several came out for the Townsend meeting Sunday afternoon, but our speaker disappointed us. J. R. Briley made a short talk explaining some features of the Townsend plan. It was agreed to have another meeting two weeks from Sunday which would be the afternoon of the first Sunday in November. Uncle Newt Kelly did not come home from Brownwood last week as was expected. He was moved to the home of his daughter, Mrs. F. L. Crowder of Oakland. He wished to come home, but consented to go there as it was more convenient to the doctor and much more convenient for the ones who could wait on him. Mrs. Kelly is there with him. Also Tom Philen has been employed to nurse him. His condition is rather serious. W. M. Clements visited F. M. Sawyers Saturday. Mr. Sawyers is one of the few remaining pioneers of this community. He now resides with his son, Elmer Sawyers, at Brownwood. Mr. Clements says the old man is very feeble. Mr. and Mrs. Wells, Toli Chaille, and Mrs. Wilhelmina Crowder, all of San Angelo, visited at the J. C. Crowder home Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. B. Singleton of Oakland spent Thursday and Friday with Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Singleton. B. was helping his Daddy get his cotton out. J. C. Crowder returned from taking his truck load of pecans to El Paso Friday. He went right back with another load. Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Dwyer and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Briley were guests for dinner at the Wilmett home Sunday after church. Mrs. Janie Hanna attended the meeting here Sunday afternoon. M. L. Jernigan and his daughter, Miss Thekla called on friends and looked after business interests in this community Thursday. Miss Wilma Cummings, the primary teacher, is staying at Billie

PECAN GROWERS TO SEND COMMITTEE TO WASHINGTON

A committee representing the pecan growers of Texas will be sent to Washington next week in an effort to secure higher prices for this year's crop of pecans. Growers in every pecan growing county in the state will be asked to contribute toward the expense of sending the committee. Wendell Mayes, Brownwood pecan grower, has been appointed to receive contributions to the expense fund. Decision to send the committee was reached at a statewide meeting of pecan growers held in Brownwood Thursday which was called for the purpose of taking some action for the growers' protection. The low price of pecans in comparison with other food prices motivated the growers in their action. Among plans for government aid suggested was a recommendation that the Agricultural Adjustment Administration be asked to make an eight cent per pound loan on average woods run pecans which the growers will place in storage. Some steps recommended by West Texas Pecan Growers Association session here recently have already been taken, and cooperation of all growers in the movement is sought.

H. G. Lucas, Brownwood, presided at the meeting. Attendance was less than expected because of inclement weather, but messages were received from many growers unable to be here sanctioning action taken by the growers here. The committee appointed by the growers includes H. C. Lucas, Brownwood; E. W. Harrison, South Bend, and C. H. Mathews of Eagle Lake. Other pecan states are being asked to send committees. In this section requests have been sent to Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana, and it is hoped that pecan states in eastern United States will unite in the movement to raise the price of pecans.

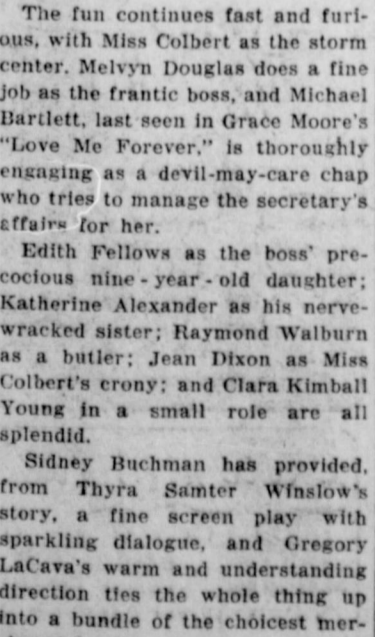

Medical Arts Hospital has been reapproved by the American College of Surgeons which makes inspections and issues new approvals to the hospitals on its list from time to time. The local hospital has been on the approved list for some time.

COLBERT PICTURE TO OPEN AT LYRIC SAT.

The problems of a private secretary are briskly dealt with in Claudette Colbert's new Columbia picture, "She Married Her Boss," which opens at the Lyric Theatre Saturday night at the mid-night preview and runs Sunday and Monday. Produced by the same company that gave you Miss Colbert in "It Happened One Night," the new film has the same buoyancy and freshness that made its predecessor a five-way prize-winner. "She Married Her Boss" is undoubtedly the grandest fun since the falling of the walls of Jericho. Miss Colbert herself is delightful; her inherent charm and vivacity have never been shown to better advantage. As a very efficient secretary who carelessly falls in love with her boss, she sees to it that he takes time off one day to buy her a wedding ring. That proves a costly mistake for the marriage turns out to be one of the maddest things one can imagine. The fun continues fast and furious, with Miss Colbert as the storm center. Melvyn Douglas does a fine job as the frantic boss, and Michael Bartlett, last seen in Grace Moore's "Love Me Forever," is thoroughly engaging as a devil-may-care chap who tries to manage the secretary's affairs for her. Edith Fellows as the boss' precocious nine-year-old daughter; Katherine Alexander as his nerve-racked sister; Raymond Walburn as a butler; Jean Dixon as Miss Colbert's enemy; and Clara Kimball Young in a small role are all splendid.

Attention is called to the life of Andrew Carnegie, through the plans of the Carnegie Corporation of New York to celebrate the Carnegie Centennial on November 25, 1935—the hundredth anniversary of the birth of the Great Scot who became one of America's foremost citizens of all times. As a part of the observance of the centennial, a portrait of Mr. Carnegie is to be presented to every Carnegie endowed library in the United States.

Mr. Carnegie was one of the first immensely wealthy men in the United States to present the theory that his wealth was not his private property, but was held in trust by him for the general good of the country at large. That theory he put into practice, not only throughout his lifetime, but at his death in providing bequests for innumerable public enterprises. He did more, possibly, than any other man to erase the feeling of antagonism in the public mind for wealthy people. His policies were followed largely by the Rockefeller family, and in later years by numerous other of America's wealthy class.

Mr. Carnegie was known best throughout the country through his donations to public libraries, which he termed "the best agencies for improving the masses of the people, because they give nothing for nothing." "They only help those who help themselves," was his theory, and he was reminded that "they reach the aspiring, and open to these the chief treasures of the world—those stored up in books."

He should be remembered most, however, for his logical view of the wealth he amassed. Of this he said:

"This, then, is held to be the duty of the man of wealth: To set an example of modest, unostentatious living, shunning display or extravagance; to provide moderately for the legitimate wants of those dependent upon him; and, after doing so, to consider all surplus revenues which come to him simply as trust funds, which he is called upon to administer, and strictly bound as a matter of duty to administer in the manner which in his judgment, is best calculated to produce the most beneficial results for the community."

In the rural South it is necessary to have more livestock in order to utilize properly our land, our labor and our intelligence, the Progressive Farmer points out. Livestock doesn't pay just because it is livestock. It pays because it offers the cotton farmer an opportunity to put in more hours of labor and therefore earn more money. The magazine points out that the great reason why the Southern farmer is poor is that a relatively small part of our land is under cultivation.

Concerning greater utilization of land, the magazine says editorially: "In a great part of the West more than 50 per cent of all the land is in cultivation while the percentage in various Southern States is as follows: Virginia, 23; North Carolina, 21; South Carolina, 30; Georgia, 33; Florida, 5; Alabama, 25; Mississippi, 22; Arkansas, 20; Tennessee, 28; Texas, 15.

"With increased livestock production we can not only put millions of idle acres to work making profits for us by growing feed crops for animals, but we can put other millions of idle or unprofitable acres to work providing pastures. Lastly, we need more livestock in order to utilize our intelligence. More brains are required for the work of feeding, breeding, and handling livestock, dairy stock and poultry than are required for producing cotton or tobacco, and in the long run, the more brains we use, the greater will be our profits. We have too much idle brain power on Southern farms as well as too much idle land.

"For all these and many other reasons the South must turn increasingly to 'two-armed farming.' It must add animal production to plant production. And it is reassuring to know that Dr. Butler, who for forty years has studied livestock problems and speaks with the candor of a scientist facing all the facts, declares that the main thing needed to make Southern livestock production a success is a will and determination to try and to persevere."

Time and again during recent years the public has challenged the railroads to improve service in many ways—and every time the rails have met the challenge, as Dr. C. S. Duncan, Economist, Association of American Railroads, recently pointed out. The people want speed. Every year witnesses faster travel between major points—and developments in the direction of diesel and electrical power, coupled with stream-lining, promise much for future achievement.

They want safety. According to the National Safety Council, railroads have one fatality for each 400,000,000 passenger-miles—as compared with a fatality for each 11,000,000 passenger-miles on our highways.

They want comfort. Few homes or hotels are as comfortable as the modern, quiet-running, air-conditioned, perfectly balanced railroad car.

They want dependability. They have it now—interruptions in railroad service, no matter what the climate or the operating conditions, are very rare.

They want adequacy. The capacity of railroad carriers is not half used today. They have abundant tracks, equipment, terminal facilities and a network of lines embracing every part of the nation.

They want economy. Railroads provide the cheapest available form of mass transportation, both for persons or goods, comfort and service considered.

So it goes, all down the line. The rails are not only meeting the public's needs and wants—they are anticipating them. Railroad progress is never ended, and the march toward better, more flexible, more inexpensive service knows no halt.

HOW TO TRAIN CHILDREN FOR LEISURE

TO BE successful in anything these days one needs training because competition is so keen. If one had five centuries to live one might be content to progress by the trial and error method. We should build on the experiences of the past, though history proves that man moves slowly along this line.

Learning comes through two avenues to the child, namely, precept and practice from the small home duties up through the professions. Today a certain part of child life is neglected from precept and practice, which needs as much direction and guidance as their schooling. This is their play time.

Play is an important and necessary part of every one's life. It is not idleness nor is it unoccupied time, for it recreates physically and mentally. If it fails to do this it "wreck-reats" and breaks, rather than re-creates and builds. For this reason it is necessary to train children in part of their play time, making it as educational as the other hours of their day. Planned play by parents, rich or poor, is a powerful force in character building.

A friend of mine who has three sons, seventeen, fourteen and ten, wondered what to do with them when school closed. I suggested to her to let them use the basement to build book shelves for their den. It may cost a little, but it saves more in character, by keeping them busily happy and happily busy.

Children should be taught in part of their playtime to be industrious and inventive—for loving and knowing how to work is a blessed heritage. They should be given tools and materials to play and work with instead of finished, painted toys, soon laid aside when the thrill is gone. This learning how to do things and how to make things trains head, hand and heart, at the same time it gives the child a sense of achievement.

Much in modern life today tends to make our children lazy and blasé as they sit idly and listlessly, listening to the radio, auto riding, or watching a movie. Training for leisure enables them to grow stronger intellectually as well as physically in their playtime. Are we directing this creative energy of our children for their coming leisure so that they may enjoy the things that will enrich them throughout their lives?

Macaroni and spaghetti in Italy have almost as many shapes as there are cities in the country. At Bologna it is ribbon-shaped; in Rome it comes in strips, but that of Sicily amazes travelers most of all. It is skillfully rolled around knitting needles to make it a tiny spiral.

"THE LUNATIC FRINGE"

"There is a lunatic fringe of drivers who create hazards, for themselves and everyone else, as they rush on their heedless way," said an article in the Ladies' Home Journal for July, 1935. "They are the 5 to 10 per cent of drivers who are responsible for 90 per cent of all accidents."

This "lunatic fringe" has so far shown itself to be 100 per cent deaf to the most elementary principles of reason. Its members know that excessive speed is the most prolific of all causes of serious accidents, and that a collision that would be unimportant at 20 miles an hour will probably prove fatal at sixty—yet this they continue to push the throttle through the floorboards. They know that passing on hills and curves is an invitation to the coroner—yet so important does time seem to them that they are perfectly willing to risk their necks and the necks of other drivers to save a few usually unimportant minutes. They know that weaving in and out of traffic, driving on the wrong side of the road and similar stupid practices, may mean sudden death in one of its most horrible forms—yet they persist in these practices. They know that many accidents, fatal and minor alike, can be attributed to cars in faulty mechanical condition—yet they continue driving many an "old heap" when its horn is silent, its lights are either glaring or inadequate, its steering shimmies, and its brakes are about as valuable a stopping device, as the accelerator.

Result: An annual death toll that hovers around the 35,000 mark.

Only the most stringent methods can hope to handle the lunatic fringe. Modern traffic laws, rigidly enforced not only by the traffic patrol but by the enthusiastic cooperation of the sane and careful drivers (the 90 per cent) are vital. The one way to hammer some sense into the lunatic fringe is to treat them as the public enemies they are.

The usual way of reclaiming land in Holland—about one-third of the country's area would be under water if there were no dikes or dunes—is to enclose a marshy region with dikes and pump out the water. As a result canals must often be higher than the land they drain, so that from a boat one way look down and see people cycling and walking along roads and paths by the waterway.

FENCES INCREASE FARM INCOME AND ADD TO PROPERTY'S VALUE

By HENRY FIELD The Semi-Weekly Farm News

LIVESTOCK are essential to balance farming, yet livestock will play havoc with crops if not restrained by fences. Fences thus become a means of increasing the farm income. A farm with well-planned fields will bring in more income than the same farm with none or a poorly-planned system, and that without any extra effort on the part of the farmer.

Fences must not only be in the right place, but they also must be suited to their purpose and strong enough to stand the strain imposed on them. The minimum fence that can be depended on to keep cattle in or out is a three-wire fence, with posts four feet above ground. If they extend less than eighteen inches into the ground, some vigorous animal will push them down in places. With part of the fence down, the rest might as well not be there, and, besides, fences in such a condition are apt to injure animals walking across them. To be really good, a fence should have posts six and a half or seven feet long, set four and a half feet above ground. A post two or three feet in the ground is likely to stay put. When posts extend more than four feet above ground, three wires will not be enough. Four will be needed.

Corner posts are very important and should be very substantial. If the line posts are six feet long, with tops four inches in diameter, the corner posts should be at least seven feet long and six inches in diameter at the top. The extra foot of length should be set in the ground. As nearly all the strain that is put on a fence when animals push against it is carried along the wires to the corner post, it should be securely braced with smaller posts in both directions, or in three directions if at corners on a property line. It is best to set the smaller posts in notches in the larger one, over half-way up, and to anchor the small posts in the ground with short posts, or to the bottoms of the nearest line posts.

Posts That Last The material of which posts are made largely determines how long they will last. A galvanized iron post, set in concrete, has a life expectancy that can hardly be calculated. A galvanized post driven into the ground will last nearly as long, but will not be as substantial. An untreated pine post, on the other hand, is hardly worth putting into the ground. A bois d'arc or black locust post, will last indefinitely. Even a pine post may be made to last, possibly, twenty years if the butt and aboveground portion for several inches up is well saturated with creosote. Simply painting the butt is of small value.

Posts with treated butts may be bought, or they may be treated on the farm. To do this, secure a metal tank, put in a quantity of creosote, set as many posts in the tank as it will hold and bring to a slow boil. Add more creosote until the proper level is reached, and still more as the level drops because of some of the creosote being absorbed by the wood. After the creosote has boiled slowly for several hours, let the fire die out. When cool, remove the posts and stack them. The tank is then ready for another batch of posts. Fungi, aided by moisture, are the chief cause of posts rotting. When the butts are saturated to a distance of several inches above the ground line, the posts are so filled with creosote that water can't get in, and fungi (mold) find them poisonous.

A hog-tight fence can't be made of barbed wire alone unless the wires are placed very close together for the first two feet. A better plan for a hogproof fence is to string one barbed wire almost on the ground, put woven wire above this to a height of eighteen inches or 2 feet, and finish with two or three barbed wires. A fence five feet high built this way is not only pig-tight, but bull-strong.

Keeping Hogs Penned Hogs, possibly, are the most difficult of all farm animals to fence in or out. They must be kept up while crops are growing but may be turned out later. Even though there is only a three-wire fence, hogs can be depended on to stay where the eating is good. No fence is necessary to keep them in a field from which corn has just been gathered, and none is necessary to keep them in a field from which peanuts have recently been harvested.

A hog-tight fence around each field will permit the farmer to turn hogs into each field in succession as it is harvested they may be turned in on then the corn, and last ton, with such other crops nuts coming in between. several advantages in uretures in rotation, the chief being that two pastures size, each being permitted its season of growth, more than the same acre tured twelve months in At the same time, the lives have luscious grass all du growing season, instead of satisfactory growth all sea close pasturing will in the grass that depends on s propagation.

Temporary two-wire fence posts set shallow in the can be used to confine he cows to fields from which have been removed, even there may be growing crop other side of the fence. B farm animals are not s controlled. Probably the lution of the cross-fencin lem is to so rotate crops farm can be divided into more fields of equal size; fences may be permanent.

There is some land that is to nothing but pasture. Of pasture is remote from the In such case, there is not do but run a lane from t to the pasture, and from ture, to the others, if th others.

Menace of Erosion

Many a man is cultivating below a break in a hill that fit for cultivation because eroded so badly. This ero often a menace to better above, in that gullies develop the steep land may in the back into and destroy the land. There is much land kind between level field streams at lower levels. A land should be put into both for the purpose of using what it is good for and for the good land above.

Before building a pasture some planning should be d make the pasture as conven the barn as possible. Plann so should be done to redu amount of fencing to a mi There is no use in forcing o walk long distances to get pasture, or back to the barn treatment uses up their ener decreases the amount of mil give. Neither is there any forcing farm hands to walk way to where horses are g in order to catch them.

One of the best tests of how a man has planned his farm arrangement of his fences. piece of land has a use for it is best fitted, but the dista that land from the barn at time it takes men and anim travel to and from it also portant. Let us plan well we build our fences. It re labor to move a fence; yet, have any poorly-placed on will be better in the long move them.

Pride of Emperor Haile Selassie's armies, the Imperial Guard here is shown in a great parade near Addis Ababa before leaving for the Ogaden front to face the Italian invaders. NEW families . . . new homes . . . new stores . . . new factories . . . improved homes . . . growing families . . . bigger and better stores . . . expanding factories . . . all forms of growth and change in the life of a community add to the demand for more electric service.

New and better electrical devices are daily put into use in more homes, stores, places of business and industry. They "get the job done" with greater ease, comfort and convenience . . . and, for less money. At the same time they call for more electric power.

Life is movement. The life of a community is never at a standstill. All of it demands more electric service. A surprisingly large amount of it depends upon the constant availability of dependable, low-cost electric service.

It is easy to see, therefore, that the Texas Power & Light Company can not build its equipment to supply only today's demands. Tomorrow's demands will be bigger than today's. They must be provided for . . . they must be foreseen, that, regardless of the increase in size of a community, and in the activity of the people, adequate electric power will be available to answer all demands.

"Growing Pains" of Our Own

Inventors and scientists are steadily perfecting better methods of producing and distributing electric power. Yesterday's equipment is frequently made obsolete by the perfection of a newer method. The use of these newer methods sometimes makes it possible for us to lower the cost of Texas Power & Light service. Therefore, we must use the highest degree of engineering skill and foresight to take advantage of better methods with the least amount of loss through discarding of obsolete equipment.

This alertness, this "stickin'-to-the-job," has made Texas Power & Light service unexcelled anywhere. During the past ten years the average cost of residential lighting service has been lowered more than 35 per cent to Texas Power & Light customers. Yes, the Stork, the Builder, Dan Cupid, the Mover, and the Inventor have kept us on the jump, resulting in better and cheaper electric service to our customers.

EXCLUSIVE TOT TOGGERY

EARLY HISTORY OF TEXAS AS SHOWN FROM THE AUSTIN PAPERS

This is one of a series of special collections of the University of Texas library. The collections cover all periods of history, from the early days of the Spanish mission in the province of Texas through the colonial period to the present. This series presents interesting material from a number of family collections, some of their intrinsic significance in the development of the empire of Texas, others purely human interest, portraying personal and economic conditions and intercourse.

of loneliness, of disappointments, of family sorrow, of fear for future disaster, of letters of pioneer women, of the home forts, man-of-war, handled negro labor, produce, reared small children alone while their mothers were at the front of Southern independence. Of bravery were many, but of heroism there was of mark tragedy. Wars which passed between men and wives often revealed unhappy plights, and misery into the recitals of happy days despite the fact that each kept a note of cheerful optimism. In the correspondence between Will H. Neblett, in the Confederate army, his wife, Lizzie Neblett, there is a read between the lines of the unhappiness and that existed in Civil War days. These letters are now in the possession of the University of Texas.

January 3, 1864, Mrs. Neblett writes to her husband, who was stationed at Galveston, the letter reads in part as follows: "I received your Christmas letter reached me on New Year's day, just one day old and that is a quick trip for me to get it. I can't tell you how the fault lies but think it is the office at Anderson. There is a difference in our Christmas letters and the manner in which we spent the day. I read to the children your history of the day, and I finished, Bob said, 'Why is it better Christmas than we have here is a gloomy, bitter and sad spirit that bore me away and entertained me all night, and far into the night, the same spirit still occupies me. And this morning I feel within myself shall I write to you? But if I should cease to write you would think some of the children were dangerously ill and for that reason I continue to write, better that perhaps than be kept in uneasiness and suspense about the welfare of the children. I came up here the 29th ult. and that day it began to turn cold and we had a very heavy spell of cold weather. Several of mother's large hogs died and I don't know how many pigs and some sheep. The children were more comfortable than they would have been at home, for that is an awful house but they were running all the time in the cold, all except the baby and she was so hungry she did not feel the cold. I fear that the negroes did not do anything at home and that they and pigs froze to death. I felt some fear of Nance letting her children freeze. She has been treating her bed clothes in a manner that they are all rotten and worn out. My husband tells me that he had a power of detailing 10 negroes in the hospital at Brenham. He says he put Randall in there. Randle told me, before he was vaccinated, that he had been vaccinated, before we owned him. That is so but he may have many other contagious diseases in the hospital. As to Joe, I know what has become of him. He had not come home when I was in the 29th, and you wrote that he would start home the 23rd. I heard nothing of him yet. I know he has been conscripted and gone to Mexico or the Yanks and I reckon it will be many months before we find out what has become of him. Seward lost on his trip to Mexico 75 yoke of oxen, and he had to take his negro and went over into Mexico. He says he didn't lose money on the trip. He landed 200 bales of cotton in one English warehouse in Mexico. He was fixing, the last time I had of him, to go into the States, had been sworn in. He had been near everybody over to bring things for them from

Brownsville, but the people in Washington county swiped all he brought. He did not promise me anything so I am not disappointed. I have been forced to wear the shoes Collins made and brought me, though they don't fit at all. I was to let Mary Collins have them as they fit her exactly and he was to make me a pair of her calf skin, but it is now too late and I don't suppose he has commenced Mary's or Walter's yet. If he lived nearer I would go there and get my leather and try and get somebody to make them. McCune has reached home, wounded by the accidental discharge of a cannon. A piece of shell struck him on the neck and came near cutting that large artery which would have killed him. His wife went after him and brought him home. Jack Montgomery was powder burnt on the neck. None killed that I have heard of. "Our potatoes are keeping tolerably well! a few rotten ones in them. I am afraid the seed bank froze this cold spell, for I noticed that the top was wet from a leak in the roof that I did not know of and intended having the seed bank covered with a hide before I left and forgot it so I expect a good part of them froze. "I was provoked beyond measure at Walter this morning. I was combing my hair and had my tucking comb in my lap. He was by me and unknown to me took the comb and straddled on a chair round and broke out three teeth in the middle. It is now almost worthless. I took it from him before he broke it and he stole it out of my lap again. It suited my hair better than any comb I ever had. The teeth were so long and it was such a strong one I would not have taken 50 dollars in Con money for it. I received a letter from Owen the same day I did from you. He writes that Peel & Dumble have promised to pay him that money and he writes that salt is 73 cent per lb. Thornton said that Wm. Terrell has gone for salt when he was down there. I have the thread ready to send Nella to knit your undershirts and will send it while I am up here. Don't Pa have had luck with his negroes? He lost the two he sent to the breastworks. Jess and Jim. "One of Hoage's negroes, a blacksmith, took the smallpox from a soldier, who stopped to have his horse shod. And Jim Brown, Dr. Brown's son, was boarding there going to school and has now come back home and Dr. Brown has vaccinated him, but it seems to me it would be too late after being exposed to it to vaccinate. Hoage lives at Huntsville. You remember seeing his daughter at Dr. Brown's. If it don't spread at Huntsville I am going up there to get some cloth, soon. That is the only way to get cloth to go after it and insist upon having it. I am very fearful that the smallpox will spread here and some of our negroes will bring here. I forgot to tell you that Coleman is certainly off for the wars at last—finds he will have to go in the 2nd division of militia and has joined the regular service—is trying to raise a company. He is going to send his children to his sister. I know it nearly kills him."

"One of Hoage's negroes, a blacksmith, took the smallpox from a soldier, who stopped to have his horse shod. And Jim Brown, Dr. Brown's son, was boarding there going to school and has now come back home and Dr. Brown has vaccinated him, but it seems to me it would be too late after being exposed to it to vaccinate. Hoage lives at Huntsville. You remember seeing his daughter at Dr. Brown's. If it don't spread at Huntsville I am going up there to get some cloth, soon. That is the only way to get cloth to go after it and insist upon having it. I am very fearful that the smallpox will spread here and some of our negroes will bring here. I forgot to tell you that Coleman is certainly off for the wars at last—finds he will have to go in the 2nd division of militia and has joined the regular service—is trying to raise a company. He is going to send his children to his sister. I know it nearly kills him."

"I was provoked beyond measure at Walter this morning. I was combing my hair and had my tucking comb in my lap. He was by me and unknown to me took the comb and straddled on a chair round and broke out three teeth in the middle. It is now almost worthless. I took it from him before he broke it and he stole it out of my lap again. It suited my hair better than any comb I ever had. The teeth were so long and it was such a strong one I would not have taken 50 dollars in Con money for it. I received a letter from Owen the same day I did from you. He writes that Peel & Dumble have promised to pay him that money and he writes that salt is 73 cent per lb. Thornton said that Wm. Terrell has gone for salt when he was down there. I have the thread ready to send Nella to knit your undershirts and will send it while I am up here. Don't Pa have had luck with his negroes? He lost the two he sent to the breastworks. Jess and Jim. PYROIL actually enabled a car to run 745 miles with no oil in the crankcase! Ask for the complete story.
Think of the power of plunging pistons... sufficient to move tons of rock up steep mountain grades. Yet the efficiency of pistons depends on the adequacy of the combustion chamber. Carbon-stuck valves, leaking rings, weaken the piston stroke and make motors lag and balk.
PYROIL increases power in motors because it seals rings and keeps valves carbon-free. Simply added to regular gas and oil. Supplies constant lubrication to the entire motor head where withering heat kills ordinary lubricants. Actually builds lubrication into the metal.
PYROIL deposits a patent-processed, heat-, wear- and dilution-proof element on all metal parts, building and constantly maintaining an actual self-lubricating surface. Bearings run freer, cooler. Power, endurance, are marvelously improved. Easily saves many times its small cost.
Ask at your filling station or garage for further details. Try PYROIL today.
GENUINE PYROIL is patented in the U. S. and Canada by W. V. KIDDER, its inventor. Packaged in copyrighted, unbreakable and tamper-proof containers. Manufactured and distributed by W. V. KIDDER on many labels.

MAGAZINE DESCRIBES LARGE TRADE AREA AROUND BROWNSWOOD

The importance of better highway connections between this section and San Antonio is stressed in an article in the October issue of San Antonio, official publication of San Antonio Chamber of Commerce, which also carries a map showing the large territory covered by the trade area around Brownwood. The article gives observations made by D. R. Thomas, field representative of the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce, who visited in this section during September.

The article in "San Antonio" is given in part as follows:

"The urgent necessity for filling in gaps in existing roads and constructing connecting roads, to provide more easy access to San Antonio from the territory north and northwest of this city, was emphasized by a recent personal survey of that section by a member of the Chamber of Commerce staff.

"Interviews with merchants and other representative citizens of that part of the area pictured lying south of an east-west line down through Coleman revealed a friendly feeling toward San Antonio, but also disclosed that only a minimum of trading was being done with merchants and other business men here.

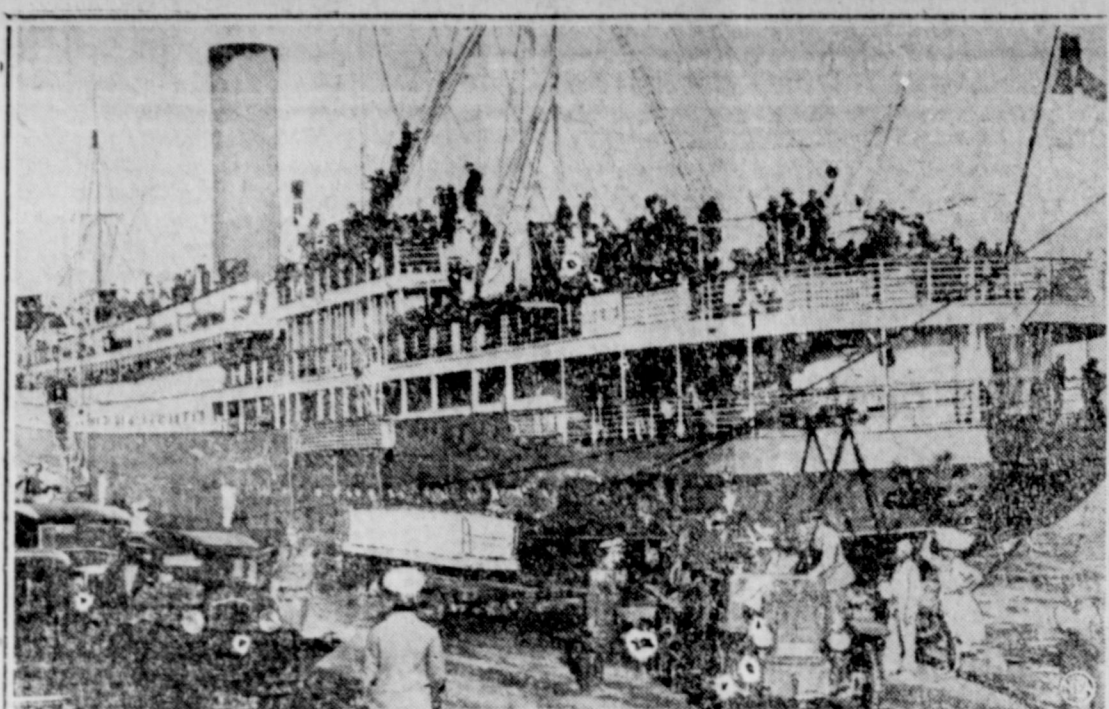

"The principal reason for this situation is the fact that many of the roads leading from that section into San Antonio are bad in places, in contrast to the wide and well-paved highways leading into other metropolitan centers, and that in many cases no direct routes to San Antonio are provided.

"Towns in the northern trade area which were visited in making the survey included Blanco, Johnson City, Marble Falls, Burnet, Lampasas, San Saba, Goldthwaite, Brownwood, Coleman, Ballinger, San Angelo, Brady and Llano.

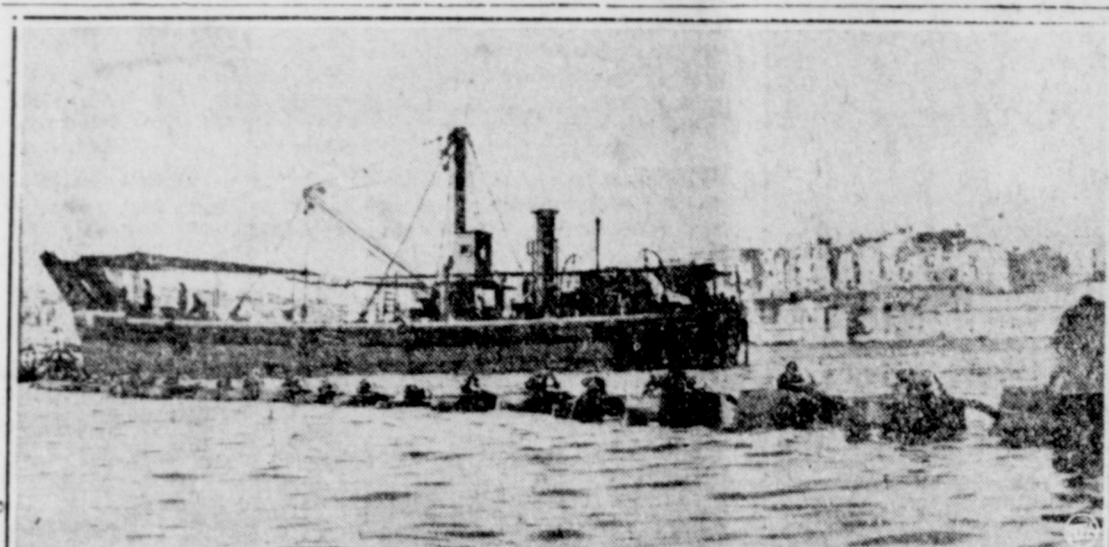

"The map shows Brownwood as the center of a circle which has a radius of 119 miles. In this area live approximately 915,500 persons, with purchasing power estimated at $364,136,750.

"The highway and public works committee of the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce realizes the urgency of improving roads leading into this rich territory, as well as building some new bridges and repairing some of the existing ones, so that these people can get into and out of San Antonio with a minimum of discomfort.

"As a result, this committee and the Chamber of Commerce department which it supervises already have taken steps toward making this area more accessible. Co-operation to this end is being given by the State Highway Department, and it is hoped that within a short period of time the necessary work will have been done to connect at

This is why Great Britain, London reports state, refuses to withdraw her huge fleet from the Mediterranean, pending discussion of French proposals for peace between Italy and Ethiopia. The transport Cesare is shown docking at Tripoli with thousands of Italian troops, part of 17,000 rushed from Rome to the Libyan desert on the border of British-controlled Egypt.

Refusal of British authorities to admit Italian ships to the harbor at Lazzarato, in Malta, is indicative of the critical state of affairs in the explosive Mediterranean zone as the League of Nations seeks to stop the Ethiopian war. A British ship is shown building the boom across Lazzarato harbor to keep out undesirable ships while the island prepares for any emergency.

MRS. STAMPER DIES IN MINERAL WELLS

Brownwood friends have received word of the death of the mother of Miss Lois Stamper. Mrs. Stamper had been seriously ill for several weeks, and her daughter had been at her bedside for the past ten days.

Among those who went from here to attend the funeral services were Mrs. W. A. Stanley and Mrs. Emmett Evans.

A goodly share of the wealth of John Barrymore was awarded to Dolores Costello, shown here in Los Angeles court, when she won a divorce on the ground of desertion. Alimony of $850 a month, $163,000 in securities, and custody of their two children was given her. Barrymore was not present at the hearing. Miss Costello has signed for a screen comeback.

No Longer Wife of Great Lover

It never occurred to Peter Lorre, until a short time ago, that there's money in coin collecting—nickels especially. The good-natured Hungarian actor, shown above, started collecting when he had to shave his head for a picture in Hollywood and everyone wanted to rub it. He let them do it, for a nickel. Business was so good that he's willing to do anything now—for a nickel!

MARBLE MACHINES ARE BANNED FROM COUNTY

Confiscation of all marble machines in operation after Tuesday was threatened owners of the machines this week after local opposition to the devices was strengthened by decisions of the higher courts declaring the machines to be gambling devices. The Court of Criminal Appeals upheld a decision from McCulloch county last week in which it was claimed that they were gambling devices, and a similar decision was given recently at Waco by Judge James P. Alexander of the Tenth Court of Civil Appeals.

"We are not warning nor asking that the machines be moved, but are demanding and commanding that they be moved, and that immediately," County Attorney Connor Scott said Tuesday. The decision to close the tables came after a conference between District Attorney A. O. Newman, the county attorney and Sheriff W. E. Hallmark.

Members of the Sheriff's department announced that all machines operating in the county will be confiscated. There have been 62 machines licensed to operate in the county and a number of others said to be operating without licenses.

"It is perfectly clear to me that the tables are gambling devices and there is not the slightest element of skill in playing them," District Attorney Newman said. "I have always thought they were gambling machines, but the Legislature did not make any clear laws regarding their operation, so I did not know what to do until these decisions," Connor Scott declared.

"With the county attorney and district attorney backing up my men in closing the tables we will have every table in the county closed," Sheriff Hallmark said.

GENEROUS STRANGER TAKES BOY'S CLOTHES

B. H. Blackwell, visiting here from out of the state, has recovered all the clothing stolen from him by a stranger who had generously shared his hotel room and taken the clothes while Blackwell was asleep. The man was arrested here Sunday. He was wearing Blackwell's hat when taken and upon questioning told police where to find his missing suitcase.

He is being held in jail pending filing of theft charges.
