PERJURY CHARGES FILED AGAINST DEFENSE WITNESS IN RYAN TRIAL

Dick Shafer Is Indicted For Testimony In Cattle Theft Case By Grand Jury Here Monday; Bond Set at $1,000

Dick Shafer, star defense witness in the Ryan cattle theft case here recently, was arrested in Amarillo Tuesday in connection with his testimony at the trial.

A recalled grand jury returned the bill Monday.

Shafer was brought to Clarendon where he waived preliminary hearing and was released on a $1,000 bond.

Shafer testified for the defense at the trial of J. E. Ryan, who was charged with shipping cattle owned by J. E. Hunt to Oklahoma last year.

In substance he said he helped the defendant drive the cattle from Ryan's pasture north of Jericho to a "trap" south of Jericho the night before the shipment alleged in the indictment.

Hunt's pasture is south of Jericho.

Ryan's jury was released after deadlocking 10 to 2 for over 30 hours.

Fair Fruit Crop Promises In Old Donley County

While all the orchardists have not reported, a number have and it is claimed that apples, cherries, plums and peaches of the late blooming varieties will produce a fair crop. In fact the cherry and apples will take on a full load of start.

Grapes are the surest crop, the vines just beginning to start. Grapes are protected from the ravages of the woolly caterpillar by spraying with an arsenate of lead preparation which may be had of any drug store. The black butterfly with seven spots on its back does the dirty work, and is technically known as the "seven spotted forester."

DAME NATURE TURNS THE TRICK.

From a South Dakota exchange we learn that the "Roaring Jim" river up there is out of her (or should we say his?) banks. This river was featured at times from 1928 to 1937 in national magazines as the one river without water and wells were dug in the stream bed.

WHAT? A PETTYCOAT GOVERNMENT!

In primitive America men did the hunting and fighting, leaving the management of everything else to their women. At this time it appears that we are coming back to conditions in America representing the earliest forms of social organization.

more and more since Woman Suffrage came into being some 20 years ago. We may not have a woman president for some time yet, but since she added her amendment to the Constitution, she has been steadily advancing toward first place.

But few realize that there has been an even greater tendency toward the accumulation by women of control of the national wealth. An eminent statistician has recently estimated that the collective wealth of the women of America, including life insurance policies made out to them, is rapidly nearing the two thousand million mark.

Today women own one-fourth to one-third of our American industries and they comprise from 30 to 55 percent of the stockholders of our largest corporations. They are beneficiaries of 80 percent of the life insurance written, which totals over $100,000,000,000.

The taxable income reported by women, is 38 percent of Uncle Sam's list.

Women buy 80 percent of all the consumable commodities, and one out of every five persons gainfully employed is a woman.

Those are facts to think about, especially for women to think about. While it represents a great opportunity, it also carries a grave responsibility. If women are to become the real owners of America, as seems possible, then the sooner the combined common-sense of their sex is applied to affairs of government, business and industry, the better off the nation will be.

1937 Ford V-8

● If you think that "all low-price cars cost about the same" — forget it! They don't.

Ford makes a car — a 60-horsepower economy Ford V-8 — that sells from 30 to 60 dollars under the prices asked for any other car of comparable size. The lowest Ford prices in years!

Check delivered prices in your town and see for yourself.

● Of course, first cost doesn't prove "low cost" — you must consider operating cost also.

The "60" has definitely established itself as the most economical car in Ford history. Ford cars have been famous for economy for 34 years, so that means something!

Owners who have driven it thousands of miles report that the Ford "60" averages between 22 and 27 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

You can prove those figures — on the open road — in a car provided by the nearest Ford dealer.

● When you've finished your personal check-up, ask yourself:

"Do I want to save money the day I buy my car and every mile I drive it?"

"Do I want a safe, roomy, comfortable car of advanced design — created from the finest materials to the highest precision standards?"

There's only one answer, of course — the 1937 Ford V-8.

Newcomers here frequently compliment our postoffice force. Of course the postmaster and his assistant, and all the clerks have their instructions, but they show extra courtesies at every opportunity. Seldom do people express an appreciation to the individual direct. They tell others, perhaps, but let's tell the folks at the postoffice that we appreciate every favor shown us, as well as the competent discharge of their regular duties. Anyway, the Apostle hereby pays his compliments and appreciation of this loyal bunch of public servants. No more competent or agreeable folks anywhere than right here in our postoffice.

Dailies using "canned" editorials are many. But of all the headings, one appearing in practically all of the dailies and some of the weeklies recently carried the caption of "The Passing of the Spittoon." Only rising prices were discussed in the editorial—no cuspidors or even tobacco prices in the list.

Winter staged a sit-down strike in the lap of spring Friday. Garden sass and poke salad jumped right out of the ground. Asparagus sprang up over night. Those who have the urge, certainly are planting the gardens this spring, a lot of which will go into cans for next winter's use.

By golly! Do you know that you can now buy tomato juice in a quart can for two-bits! That's cheaper than you can buy the fruit, extract the juice and can it yourself. Or at least that's what several women canners have told me this week.

Speaking of women, Nero's wife seems to have set a standard not yet equaled by modern-day women. She had her wish by taking a bath in the milk of 500 white burros.

Hastoon Yazzie, operator of Bitter Lake fishing park on his farm near Split Lip was taken down last summer by a young lady from the city who was visiting relatives on an adjoining farm. When the hot days of August rolled around, the young lady began to meander in search of a cool place. Finally she arrived at Bitter Lake nearby, and instantly began to prepare to take a plunge. About that moment old Hastoon Yazzie raised up out of the cattails and said: "Young lady, we uns dunt allow any swimming in this lake!" Incensed, the sweet young thing riveted (yes riveted) her eyes upon the weather-beaten old man and screamed: "Why the dickens didn't you tell me before I got undressed?" Old Yazzie was in a tight place for argument, but stood his ground. He came back with an alibi by saying: "Well, it ain't agin the law to undress!"

Since my little grandbabies and their mothers are around quite a bit, I get a lot of kick out of watching them. Somehow, a young mother and her babe has always had a peculiar fascination. When I was a kid, they frailed the little folks upon the slightest provocation. It was a custom—a relic of a barbarous age. Now the little mother starts some form of amusement to get her babe's mind off the devilment it had started. Within a few moments the incident is forgotten. Somehow, grown-ups as well as babes may be persuaded to do things much better than by being driven through some form of fear. In after years, the little tot will have grown up. It will have pleasant memories of a sane mother, rather than the taunting memory of beatings or other forms of unexplained punishment.

"Hearts, After Leaps, Ache." Years ago young ladies would come from the east to spend some of the summer on a ranch. The young, courteous cowpuncher endowed with health and genteel looks fascinated her. She had experience, lots of it. Soon she, like the spider, wove a web for the unsuspecting young man of the range. Finally he walked into the web. He was generally the most harmless individual of the male persuasion of the entire country. She specialized in that variety. Then followed rides that gradually became longer. Picnics in the beautiful canyons, a veritable oasis of the so-called desert. Dances. Trips to the river for grapes and plums and the jolly times of jelly-making that followed. Trysts in the moonlight listening to the songs of night birds and 'sweet nothings.' Visits became more frequent as the time drew near for her to return to her home in the east. Finally the sad day of all days for the cowpuncher came. It was but an incident in her young life perhaps, but sincerity was written all over his face. His sleep and appetite had vanished. He lost interest in himself and the world in general. Often he consumed a year or more in recovering. Yes, "Hearts, After Leaps, Ache."

Sentimental? Sure! We had quite a bit of it back in the old days. Modern day thrills were nothing as compared to it because at least one person became the unsuspecting victim. Then there was another side to the story. Some girls would write home of finding "the best man in the world," and keep staying in the west. Many of our best people here today had just such parents. Life was far more than a dreary waste of a "blossom blooming to blush unseen."

During slavery days Stephen Foster, a native of Indiana, drifted up into Pennsylvania. He sought to make his way by song-writing. He found little appreciation among his own folks. But there came a time when his products drifted into the 'deep' sentimental south. Then "Old Black Joe" and "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" became classics. To this day they hold a sacred place in our programs. Stephen Foster wrote many songs, and only recently a monument was erected to his memory at his Indiana birthplace. Most of the funds came as an expression of appreciation from the Southland.

A farmer near Pampa by the name of R. R. Mitchell (Adv.) advertises in the Pampa Press thusly: "Real country sugar cured pork sausage, lard, dried fruit and brooms." There's a real business man on a small scale, and perhaps not so small at that. Anyway, if you don't appreciate one thing, he has other things to offer you. So many of our farmer friends could spend two-bits in our Want-Ad column and turn their extra things that they don't need, into real cash.

* WHEN MY TEA-KETTLE SINGS *
* I am happy to-day in my little home *
* Much comfort to me it brings. *
* Far a-field I ne'er wish to roam *
* When my tea-kettle sings. *

There's many who seek and find happiness
In sundry and mundane things.
My soul finds rest from wariness
When my tea-kettle sings.
Some may tread the mazy way
To music that's meant for kings.
I care not for that glittering fray
When my tea-kettle sings.
So give me my home filled with love
Where the laughter of children rings.
And glittering stars gleam from above
While my tea-kettle sings.

According to federal conservationists, Texas' most beautiful pine forest is on the campus of Stephen F. Austin State Teachers College, Nacogdoches. The perfect state of the pines is due to the fact that the campus was originally the home-site of General Thomas J. Rusk, revolutionary hero, who provided for their protection more than 100 years ago.

ROBERT E. LEE'S INDICTMENT ON TREASON CHARGE FOUND AT LAST

RICHMOND, Va., March 17—A faded yellow document, the indictment of Gen. Robert E. Lee for treason against the United States, has been found in the basement of the Richmond post-office building where it had lain unnoticed for years with other historical papers.

The indictment, one of 34 similar records found in a wooded box by a workman on a WPA archives project, has been considered lost by Virginian historians who have sought for years to obtain a full pardon for the Confederate leader.

The individual true bills found during the 1865-68 terms of the United States District Court of Virginia, charged that such Southerners as Robert E. Lee of Richmond, James Longstreet of Georgia, and Fitzhugh Lee of Henrico (Va.) county... Armed and arrayed in a warlike manner... did maliciously and traitorously gather themselves together... did ordain and carry on war against the United States of America... against the Constitution, government, peace and dignity... against the form and statutes... in such case made and provided.

While charges against General Lee and other Southern leaders were not prosecuted and, ultimately, were nolle prossed, the leader of the Army of Northern Virginia never received the pardon he requested of President Andrew Johnson.

Wasn't the poem "Somebody's Little Boy" the Leader published last week, the sweetest and saddest you've ever read? How nice it would be if every driver of a motor vehicle could read that over and over until it would be ever present in their mind. How many less accidents would we have; how many less heart aches!

Thank you, Mr. Estlack, for the poems. I am sure every one that read it will try to be a safer driver afterwards.

Miss Rachel and Messrs. Beryl and Harley Longan entertained a group of their friends with a party Thursday night in the home of their brother, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Longan. Games were played until refreshments of ice cream was served to the following: Misses Reba Higgins, Robbie Zoe Moreland, Lucille Goldston and the hostess Rachel Longan; Messrs. J. T. Stone, George Seaton, Boyce Pierce, Herman Higgins, Allen Hardin, hosts, Beryl and Harley Longan; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Longan and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Gather. Everyone reported a good time.

Midway is still on the map, although some people did not realize it until she has begun "going places." How's this for a beginning? Boyce Pierce, Beryl Longan, George Seaton and Lucille Goldston, after winning first places in the Interscholastic League meet of the county, made known their presence at the District meet at Pampa last Saturday when Boyce Pierce won first in the Rural Pentathlon with first place in all five events, and Lucille Goldston won first in Rural Senior Girls declamation and second in the Ready Writers contest. Boyce goes from District to the state meet at Austin. Good luck, Boyce! Lucille goes to the Regional meet at Canyon in declamation. The boys were accompanied to Pampa by Mr. Owen Seaton, and coach Jimmie Millsap. Mr. and Mrs. Gene Chamberlain and Miss Betty John Goldston accompanied Lucille.

The Midway Literary Society met Wednesday evening of the past week. It was voted to use the money that had been made up at programs, pie suppers, etc. to defray the expenses of those whom had won 1st place in the Interscholastic League and were to go to Pampa to the District meet. The following program was presented by the school children, which was enjoyed very much. Several songs were sung, two playlets by the primary room presented, a reading by Betty John Goldston entitled "Johnnie's History Lesson," and the school children and Mr. Millsap, after having visited court, presented a mock trial in which Boyce Pierce was tried for Failure in School Work.

Resolved: The student body of Midway school vs. Boyce Pierce for Failure in School Work.

Prosecuting Atty.: J. B. Millsap, Defending Atty.: George Seaton. Judge: Boe Longan. Secretary: Miss M. Ireland. Sheriff: Doc Higgins. Witnesses: Students of Midway school.

SIGNS OF ANCIENT CANNIBALS FOUND ON TEXAS ISLANDS

Evidence of the existence of a race of cannibals, connected by scientists with the prehistoric pit-down man and a later Egyptian civilization, has been found in Texas.

A recent planning board bulletin says relics of the ancient people and the Karankawa Indians, believed their descendants, have been discovered in abundance on the Laguna Madre islands, 15 miles south of Corpus Christi.

Sometimes called the "cannibal islands of North America," the narrow strips of land gradually have been sinking beneath the water of the laguna which lies between Padre island and the mainland.

Spectrums of mineralized bones of the cannibals, thought to have lived on the islands 25,000 years ago, were exhibited at a meeting of the Society for the Advancement of the Sciences.

The late Dr. Henry Fairchild Osborne, president of the American Museum of Natural history and noted archaeological authority, said no bones of that type had been found before on the North American continent.

The only beetle scarab ever found on this continent was unearthed on the site of a vanished lake in Corpus Christi, linking descendants of the race with the Egyptians of thousands of centuries earlier.

The Karankawas, well known to settlers of Texas less than a century ago, were adept at using waterways for transportation, facts leading archaeologists to believe their descendants of the island-dwelling cannibals.

At Poet island many skeletons may be seen on the floor of the bay and beside them black spearheads, axes, arrowheads, and other weapons and implements of the fierce aboriginals.

Human bones, hacked deeply by flint weapons and apparently originally gnawed clean of flesh have been found on Baboon island along with crude fetishes and specimens of pottery.

HUMAN INTEREST STORY OF 1812

Toward evening, on December 30th, 1812, the schooner "Patriot," loaded with rice, sailed from Charleston, S. C., for New York. Next morning she was seen to cross the harbor's outer bar and stand out to sea. Presently, mist settled in, hiding her from view—forever!

Ordinarily the "Patriot" would have been listed as just another lost ship. But she had as her only passenger Theodosia Burr Alston, daughter of Aaron Burr, who was going to New York to meet her father. Burr, broken by misfortunes, had long been a voluntary exile in Europe. Largely through his daughter's efforts he had come home. This was to have been a joyous meeting.

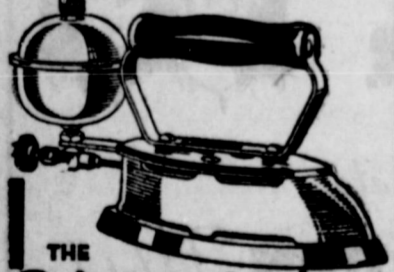

Theodosia Burr was one of the most beautiful, gracious and accomplished women America had produced. When she was 9 her mother died. Her brilliant father—lawyer, soldier, founder of Tammany Hall, intrepid party leader—tempered his grief at loss of his wife by personally training his daughter to be, as he himself wrote, "the equal of any woman in the world." Before her teens Theodosia was proficient in several languages, and, at 14, was the young but capable mistress of her father's New York mansion. At 18 she married Joseph Alston, Southern planter, soon to become one of South Carolina's great Governors.

Then came the troubles following her father's mortal duel with Alexander Hamilton, his social ostracism and his arrest and trial for treason. The fortitude and cheer with which Burr's daughter stood by him through every shock won her a place in the heart of the Nation. Then came the "War of 1812." Her husband went with the army. After months of sickness her son, only solace of her loneliness, died. Broken in health and spirit she was going to meet her father when the ship on which she sailed disappeared.

There the story should end—but it doesn't. Moths passed. Then came from the West Indies reports of a pirate chief who had captured and brought home, to rule his nest, a woman of queenly poise and grace. Pressed for details, rough sea-dogs who claimed to have seen her, described a living image of Theodosia Burr. The story gained credence. Under guise of warfare, piracy had sprung up all about the West Indies. It could have happened. Efforts to trace her were met with reports that the pirate lord had moved to Mexican waters; search there found him gone to South America. From there all trace of her—if it were she—is lost. For years Burr could be seen about the Battery, in New York, trying to glean some word of her. But none ever came. And now the mists of time have settled down, hiding the answer, probably, forever.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Russell went to Amarillo Monday. Mr. Russell attended the cow sale, and Mrs. Russell visited her sister, Mrs. S. A. Woodie.

SIDELIGHTS
By Cong. Marvin Jones

I think the President's recommendation that the departments be reorganized is a good one.

A number of the different agencies of government could be merged and their work simplified.

The conditions that prevailed at the time that new program started were so severe that quick action was necessary. The farm problems had been so long neglected and conditions prevailing on the farm and ranch were so desperate that immediate and far-reaching programs were essential in order to prevent wholesale bankruptcy and distress.

It was necessary to approach many things hurriedly. Benefit payments to the farmer as an offset to the tariff, soil conservation and rebuilding, refinancing farm mortgages, crop production and other activities were begun. Each of these applied to a vital phase of the problem.

In preparing, however, for long-range activities, it seems to me that in the reorganization, provision can be made for a central point in each county where the different phases of these activities can function, either together as one agency or closely linked so as to prevent overlapping and duplication. In some instances the same local personnel can be used. Where this is not feasible, the various groups can work alongside one another so as to make the entire program harmonize.

The work of the different agencies has meant much to our section of the country. Had it not been for these activities, it is difficult to see how many of our people could have stayed on our ordinarily free and fruitful land during the period when the blight of the drought caused it to lose temporarily a great part of its productivity.

For many years the nation thought about and discussed only water erosion. It now appears that there is an equally great loss from wind erosion.

When thinking people first began to talk about prevention of wind erosion, many people scoffed. They scoffed again when other thinking people decided there was a way to prevent erosion by wind. Practical, hard thinking people have found that there is a way.

I feel that in working out our national activities under the President's plan of reorganization, a committee should represent the Great Plains area so that the vital activities that have been directed toward saving our section of the country shall not be dominated by people of counties in the flood regions near the final outlets of our major streams.

I think it is important to merge and to simplify and have united action in a less cumbersome way. However, I feel it is important that the fine work that has heretofore contributed so much to the welfare of our section and to the preservation of opportunities for its people shall not be allowed to be discontinued.

For this reason I feel that under the plan of reorganization, the problems of the Great Plains should be carefully considered in order to promote in the best possible way the interests of the people who live on the farm and ranch.

When the dust storms began anew in the Southwestern area a few weeks ago, Congressman Phil Ferguson of Oklahoma and I began a drive to secure special provision to combat the effect of these destructive winds. In this we were assisted by several other members from that area.

At first we endeavored to secure an appropriation similar to the one which made two million dollars available under my amendment last year. The Budget Bureau, however, declined to approve an additional appropriation.

In making this drive, we found there was an unobligated balance of funds in the current soil conservation program. When attention was called to this, the Department and the Director of the Budget agreed to recommend that a sum not exceeding five million dollars of this balance be made available for a wind erosion control program planned especially for the Dust Bowl area of Texas, Kansas, Colorado, Oklahoma and New Mexico. The President has also approved such an allotment.

Congress must now act on the appropriation, and while the Appropriations Committee is reducing appropriations wherever practicable—and properly so—we nevertheless have hopes that this amount of the unobligated funds may be made available.

The program would be emergency in nature and would be in addition and supplemental to the regular farm program. It is intended to help farmers curtail the blowing of dust this season and next and lessen present losses.

The Department of Agriculture has outlined the provisions for this emergency work in the event the funds are made available. The main feature is the enlargement of the area of land on which wind erosion control practices may be carried out for payment under the soil conservation program. Under the present set-up, land diverted from general soil-depleting crops is eligible for payment if wind erosion control work is done. The new arrangement would provide that all the crop land in the Dust Bowl area is eligible for the wind erosion payment, if recommended practices are carried out.

If funds are allotted, a maximum allowance of 75 cents per acre will be provided for each farmer who participates in this program, and on practices completed before June 1, 85 per cent of the amount earned will be paid as soon as possible after their completion. The payments for the regular program will be made at the end of the crop season.

The practices which the farmer may carry out include several types of contour listing and furrowing and planting of cover crops. Any practices put into effect are to be approved first by the county committee.

An allowance of 25 cents an acre will be made for contour listing, and payment will also be made for certain other types of listing and furrowing. Fifty cents an acre will be allowed for cover crops seeded on the contour or in combination with certain types of listing. The allowance for other planting is 35 cents an acre. The cover crops in this instance are limited to sorghum, Sudan grass, or millet.

Well Known Plant Firm Has Quit the Business

Some thirty years or more ago, T. Jones established a vegetable plant business here. In time his customers numbered into the thousands, and were located in many states.

Since the death of Mr. Jones a few years ago, and the poor health of Mrs. Jones at present, she will not continue the plant business as she has since Mr. Jones passed on. She is already receiving orders and requests for price quotations in large number.

Mrs. Jones expresses her deep sense of appreciation to her former customers who have loyally purchased from the firm of T. Jones & Company, but she finds at this time that she is unable to continue the business.

Over $1,000,000 is now available for Resettlement loans to farmers in this region, R. C. Land, RA supervisor, said yesterday.

These funds were obtained for farmers who, with planting time approaching, are finding they need more money in order to plan the years work.

Land said the loans would go to make it possible to operate a sound farm unit, permitting the retirement of the loan and the rehabilitation of the farm family.

Farmers in need of this financial aid, as well as the help and advice of rural and home management should visit the Resettlement Administration office at the City Hall in Clarendon on Tuesdays.

The Resettlement Administration this year is emphasizing livestock set-ups in its lending program Mr. Land asserted. "Loans of this type have proven quite successful in the way of financial rehabilitation of distressed farmers. They also lend themselves toward rehabilitation of the land in the area, which has been subject to severe erosion due to the several years of drought.

"Hundreds of farmers in the region have already received Resettlement crop loans. The program is weeks ahead of last year's lending program according to Resettlement officials in the regional office."

Pickering to Plant Squaw Corn This Season

Most every one has seen the corn that wears its Sunday clothes. Some refer to it as 'calico' corn, but the generally accepted name is "squaw" corn. It comes from nature's laboratory arrayed in bright colors of white, red, blue, purple, pink and all the variations of tints and shades.

W. M. Pickering, plant specialist and farmer deluxe over on Salt Fork, is all set to give squaw corn a trial. In fact he has ten ears of the long, big fellows hung in the parlor as an ornament.

The ears are extra large because they grew in New Mexico, a climate well adapted to corn production of this variety. The Indians tie up the corn in strings of ten ears each and use them in their religious ceremonies. Friend Pickering is not interested in ceremonies so much as he is corn. But he does crave corn in great gobs, and if any one can grow it here, Pickering can.

afternoon drivers, it is an excellent field for the study of geography, history, biology, botany, geology and wild life.

Palo Duro Canyon is the most perfect geologic calendar and time table in this section of the southwest. In its depth are represented five stages of the earth's composition, viz. from the top to the bottom, Pleistocene and Pliocene in white upper layer; under this lies a thin layer of Jurassic shale; next is perhaps the most interesting and important layer in the Canyon, at least to the picnics eye, and that is the beautiful rainbow-colored layers filled with prehistoric teeth and bone fragments of the Phytosaur and other reptilian ancestors, and great quantities of petrified wood. This layer is more commonly referred to as that "purple layer," but which we found to be properly named Triassic.

We learned that Triassic coloring is not accidental. It is the result of several millions of years work on the part of nature's laboratories in the breaking down of iron, sulphur and great masses of animal and vegetable matters and compounding them into a soil that just wouldn't quite mix. Thus we have neither sand nor stone, but a colored shale which adds not only beauty to the Canyon, but value to its scientific volume.

Next below this strata is the Permian—red clay. Chief interest in this layer lies in the curious fact that, while Palo Duro Permian contains absolutely no fossil remains, the same layer down around Electra and Wichita Falls is rich in skeletal material. The reason for this is said to be the probable difference in climatic conditions at the time.

The lower you go into the Canyon, the worse the water tastes. The reason for this is very definite and exact. No gypsum is found above Permian clay.

We found that almost every variety of bird from the jack-snipe and the crane, to the blue jay and the cardinal, and every kind of animal and reptile from the rattlesnake and horned toad to the raccoon and the deer, not only are inhabitants of the Canyon, but that they dwell there in abundance. Our party can vouch for every one of these inhabitants, from the cardinal that kept us company through the day, to the raccoon that picked his way between half a dozen beds, raided the bread box leaving only a bread paper and many tracks in his wake.

We found that station KGNC of the Amarillo Globe-News has the most courteous and obliging personnel imaginable. We learned from them that the steel tower from which their waves are sent is 229 feet in height, 14 feet square at the base and 22 inches square at the top. It is fastened to the ground by only one bolt. Each corner post of the tower is set on glass insulators, and the posts are not connected with the ground. The entire tower is charged with electricity. By instruments and registers set in a panel, the engineers know when your reception on your home radio is as it should be. We were guests of the station for about an hour. Space will not permit here to describe in detail information learned there, but we do say that the men in charge left out nothing in their explanations and demonstrations.

BENEFICIAL RAIN NETS CITY OVER .50

Showers Range From Half Inch to Three in County

Low flying clouds early this week gave Donley County varied moisture and brought the official total in Clarendon to 1.15 of an inch for the month of April.

Most wheat farmers in this section are of the opinion the moisture assured a large crop while feed and cotton men are jubilant over the timely precipitation for spring planting.

The heaviest downpour was received southeast with the Mitch Bell ranch reporting 3 inches. The rain fall lightened toward the northwest with official recordings of .55 for the two days in Clarendon.

Martin received only light showers and the Rowe ranch vicinity, along Salt Fork river, estimated precipitation at .50.

Rain fall this year is 1.55 of an inch short of the first four months in 1936. Current figures show 2.55 as against 4.10 last year.

Two and thirty five one hundredths of an inch fell on April 27, 1936 to boost that month to a total of 3.15. One hundred and fifteen one hundredths have been recorded here in April.

| January | .56 | .40 |
| February | .18 | .00 |
| March | .21 | 1.00 |

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Busby and family of Lockney spent the week end visiting in the home of Mrs. Busby's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Z. N. Williams.

Canyon, we found that fossil bones are not made of plaster, as some believe. Restoration of missing parts are colored to show the true bone parts. Each bone represents many tedious hours of patient labor, and skill of the highest degree. Truly, the most interesting place in the Museum is behind the walls in the laboratory.

Visiting the zoo at the Amarillo fair grounds, we found that a boy's favorite place of amusement is a cage of monkeys. Many and varied are the animals of the zoo.

If you are pleasant and courteous, even if dumb, people everywhere will treat you very, very nicely.

Then let us express our appreciation to those who helped to make our trip a success. First, to the ladies who so faithfully tolerated our foolishness and kept our camp in order, and our stomachs full. Secondly, to all those strangers with whom we came in contact, especially the Park men, Prof. C. S. Johnson of the Museum, KGNC radio operators, and the manager of the old Goodnight ranch. To each of you we are indebted for a very pleasant experience that shall abide with us throughout life's journey."

(The Leader will be pleased to publish similar stories for schools and individuals. Let the public have the benefit of your experience. This particular story is one of the most interesting the writer has ever read. May our readers get enjoyment and information from such as we have here in the Leader office.—Editor.)

THE EDITOR'S FIRST SERMON

DO YOU BELIEVE in the Golden Rule? Which I think, is "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you," or words to that effect. Maybe you've drifted a little and the words of the Good Book don't register. Well, then, do you believe in 'reciprocity'? Which for the edification of the unedified means, co-operation, mutual dependence, erasing, an intertrade involving friendly relations, ultimately profitable to both.

DO YOU BELIEVE yourself to be a fair-minded person? If you do and of course you do, are you treating your home merchant as you would be treated? Where did you buy your last month's groceries? Your last suit of clothes? Your radio? Your new car?

A SILVERTON DEALER, dealing in an article which we all have in our homes, told me that out of seven prospects that he and two other home merchants had interviewed, five had bought the article from mail order houses. Well, may be the article was almost as good, and maybe the price was just a little cheaper (not counting the freight).

A NEARBY BANKER said that from that bank alone last year, went over $40,000 to mail order concerns. And that remember, does not include the money orders from the several Post Offices.

WELL, LET 'ER RIP! And while we're at it, let's send our kids to the mail order houses for their education. Let's have them send us a preacher. Let's drive to Dallas or Fort Worth or Kansas City, and bring back some taxes for the running of our city and county government, our schools and our roads. And when we want 90c worth of groceries or 50c worth of medicine (in a hurry), or a shirt—charged till the first of the month—let's get that at mail order houses too. (Try it!) Let's let our Silvertown charge accounts run another month, so we will have the CASH to send by mail. These home birds don't want, need, nor deserve the money. All they do is support the churches and schools, donate to this and that, keep our bank exchange open, and several other little things like that.

I'LL TELL YOU what. Order up from your favorite mail order concern a nice Bible, and a good dictionary. Look up the Golden Rule in the one, and the word 'reciprocity' in the other. Think and meditate over them very carefully. Read between the lines a little maybe—and then do what you think's right by your home merchants and yourselves.

YOU NEVER CAN tell about me—I might have another sermon

Mummified Indian Head Added To State University Museum

South American Indians Use "Curing" Process as Crude Embalming Ceremony

AUSTIN, April 20.—Shrunken to the size of an orange, the "cured," or mummified, head of Ayule, a chief of the Jivaro tribe of Indians in Ecuador, has been presented to the anthropology museum of The University of Texas, through Dr. C. D. Hearne of the health department of the Panama Zone. This head, almost black in color, still bears its long black silky straight hair and thick black lashes. The features are perfectly preserved, and ears and lips are pierced for ornaments.

Smuggled out of Ecuador in the camera of Dr. John E. Hartsaw, a mining surgeon of Cristobal, C. Z., the head, known as a "Tzantza," could be purchased by the museum for not less than five or six hundred dollars, according to Helen Donovan Barnard, in charge of the museum. Dr. Hartsaw obtained a complete history of the head from an Ecuadorian official who seized it while attempting to stamp out the practice of "curing" heads, Mrs. Donovan said. He desired that it be given to the University, and transmitted it by Dr. Hearne to be placed in the Mary Hearne Collection, named for the latter's daughter, who is a student in the University.

THEY'RE JUST AWAY

I cannot say, and I will not say That they are dead.—They're just away!

With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand, They have wandered into an unknown land, And left us dreaming how very fair It needs must be since they linger there.

And you—O you, who the wildest yearn For the old-time step and the glad return,—

Think of them faring on, as dear In the love of There as the love of here; And loyal still, as they gave the blows Of their warrior-strength to their country's foes.—

Mild and gentle, as they were brave— When the sweetest love of their life they gave. To simple things:—Where the violets grew Pure as the eyes they were likened to. The touches of their hands have strayed As reverently as their lips have prayed:

When the little brown thrush that harshly chirred Was dear to them as the mocking-bird; And they pitied as much as a man in pain A writhing honey-bee wet with rain. Think of them still as the same, I say: They are not dead—they are just away!

—Anon.

Adamson, and none other than Buddy Ebsen, whom Miss Stanwyck regards as tops in eccentric, comic and character dancing, was selected as her partner.

It was wholly unnecessary to instruct Miss Stanwyck in the art of dancing, even in the type of numbers for which the original and inimitable Ebsen is famous. When she was only fifteen she joined the Ziegfeld Follies chorus later appearing in George White's "Scandals." Her first step toward acting honors came while she was in the chorus of a revue on the Strand Roof in Manhattan. Producers of the play, "The Noose," needed a cabaret girl for a small role and she was the one to get the part.

The following season, while acting in "Burlesque," Miss Stanwyck made her first screen test and was awarded a contract, and pictures have claimed her ever since. Preferring the screen to the stage she has nevertheless never lost her desire to dance, and her wish is amply fulfilled in "Banjo on My Knee."

The screen play of "Banjo on My Knee" is by Nunnally Johnson, who was also the associate producer of the picture, and is from a novel by Harry Hamilton.

An exceptionally fine cast was assembled by Darryl F. Zanuck, in charge of production for Twentieth Century-Fox.

Trench Silos Prove Worth In Northwest Texas

Farmers in the grain sorghum belt are reporting to their county agricultural agents that the feed they put down last fall in trench silos became more valuable with the passing months and that "their cattle couldn't have done without it."

A 200 ton trench silo filled in September of 1935 was opened during March by Ben J. Teague of the Rivercamp community in Childress county. Approximately 100 farmers gathered at the Teague farm to see the silage which had been stored for 18 months.

In October, 1935, I. S. McMillin, ranchman of Stonewall county, stored 100 tons of red top cane in a trench silo. He opened it in February of 1937 to feed out to 50 heifers which were calving. McMillin says that the heifers immediately began to do better, gave more milk, and that the calf crop is his best in years.

Farmers filled 35 trench silos in Motley county last fall and much of the silage has already been fed. In most cases, the silage is being used to feed out steers or calves or to winter cows. The comment of Fred Bourland, Matador ranchman, "My trench silo will make me more profit than my cotton crop," seems to be the sentiment of most of those who experimented with trench silos during the past year.

Silage from his trench silo resulted in an increase of two quarts of milk per day per cow, according to S. O. Montgomery, dairyman of Ranger, Eastland county. Montgomery also found that his feed cost went down, as he was able to decrease his grain ration.

Although the State of Rhode Island can be put into Travis county, the Texas Planning Board points out that Rhode Island has a population of 687,497 and has 240 textile plants.

The East Texas pine belt area is as large as the State of Indiana, according to Texas Planning Board statisticians.

Central Texas Excavations Shed New Light On Race Of Gigantic Aborigines

Skeletons Estimated at 800 Years Ago Found In Williamson County Believed to Be Remains of Huge Comanche Indians

(From The Houston Chronicle)
Austin.—New light on habits and customs of a race of Indians of gigantic stature who roamed the hills and plains of Central Texas 800 years ago is being shed by discoveries being made at Cobb Spring, eight miles northwest of Georgetown, in Williamson County according to E. F. Phol of Houston in charge of the explorations.

Sixty-seven skeletons of Indians, estimated by Phol to have been seven feet tall, have been unearthed by the executive excavations of Phol and his crew of eight men during three months of effort. Countless thousands of arrowheads were unearthed along with the skeletons.

Terrific Battle
Phol believes he has discovered evidence of a terrific battle between rival tribes of redmen, possibly in a pre-historic drought year for possession of the life-giving waters of Cobb Springs, for 53 of the skeletons were dug up a short distance from the spring from a space only 12 by 14 feet in dimensions.

"The bodies apparently had been just dumped into the hole," Phol stated. "Contrary to the usual care with which an Indian buries his dead, these skeletons faced in all directions, some of them face down." Three skulls were found pointing in as many directions.

"I believe these bodies were buried by the enemy, who sought to vent their wrath by merely dumping the bodies into the hole and covering them up unceremoniously. Apparently, war was just as ruthless in those days and men hated their enemies just as strongly as do modern men who now exemplify their capacity for cruelty in the horrors of the present Spanish revolution.

Perfect Teeth
"Teeth of all the skeletons dug from this mound are in perfect condition, leading me to believe that the slain men were all young, probably the flower of the losing tribe's young braves.

"Since most of the arrowheads dug up with these skeletons were of the type used by Comanches, and the skulls were also of the Comanche type, it is reasonable to believe that the battle was one between rival Comanche tribes."

But not all the skeletons were those of defeated warriors. Most of the remaining 14 skeletons had been buried in the customary Indian manner, in a setting position with the knees up under the chin, and facing towards the rising sun. With them were buried arrows for use in the happy hunting grounds, ornaments, and utensils bearing food for the long journey.

Some Skeletons Crumbled
Many of the skeletons, entombed for centuries in the moist, black waxy soil of the hillside, crumbled soon after being exposed to the air, and so were covered up again. However, a number of the skulls were in good condition, and have been sent to private collectors and public museums. Four of them were given to the anthropology museum of Texas.

However proud Phol may be of the skeletons, his prize discovery is a large clay pot—one of the few pieces of Indian pottery ever unearthed in this section. The pot is 16 inches high, 53 1-2 inches in circumference, and 12 3-4 inches across the mouth. It was removed with the greatest of care from the diggings during rainy weather. It was left exposed to the air for four days before finally being removed for fear the rain might damage it. It came out of the hole in perfect shape.

When the reporter visited the exploration camp, the pot was still encased in the original mud, awaiting expert advice on how it should be cleaned. Therefore it could not be determined whether it bore any Indian designs.

Scalloped Pot
Two miniature pots, were unearthed from the mound, the mouth of one of them scalloped. Inside this one were found two round ceremonial beads.

Evidence of widespread trading among the Indians is believed to have been discovered among the relics. Among the spears, knives, bird points and arrow heads in Phol's collection are many made of moss agate, a material not obtainable in this part of the country. Phol believes traders from the mountain states probably exchanged them with the Central Texas Indians for articles of value.

Came From Far Away
A perfectly preserved and ornamented peace pipe, made of red pipe stone, dug up among the relics, is another evidence of widespread commerce among the Indians. The nearest known source of pipe stone is in Minnesota, so that the Indians were either migratory or traded with aboriginal traveling salesmen.

For money, it is believed they used beads manufactured from shells or rocks, samples of which were dug from the mound. An exquisite ornament made from a conch shell was unearthed. It is highly decorated with designs drilled with small holes through the thin shell.

One interesting piece, although broken, is of slate, with a number of notches in the edge. While it is generally believed that the piece was used in ceremonies, some hold to the belief that it represents an Indian calendar, with each notch denoting a moon. Still a third theory is that the stone was used to keep account of the number of warriors slain by some individual, antedating the custom of the Southwestern bad man of putting a notch in the butt of his gun for each man he killed.

Some War Implements
Among the war implements found were exceptionally long curved knives, measuring 7 1/2 inches long; spear heads, the longest of which are seven inches in length; scalping knives, lances, bird points, arrow heads, etc. Some of the arrow heads and bird points, the later popularly supposed to be small arrows used only for hunting birds were found embedded in bones of the skeleton, Phol said.

Some of the pastoral and domestic implements were unearthed, including hoes and spades, celts used in tanning hides, blanks, corn grinders and metates, scrapers, hammers and drills, all made of flint or stone. Discoidal, stones with dents in each end, used in an Indian game, were also found.

That the Indians yearned to express themselves in art is revealed by several effigies, laboriously fashioned out of flint. One of the best is of a forked-tailed lizard. Another, although unfortunately the head had been broken off, is readily recognized as the effigy of a dog.

To Do More Digging
Ceremonial pieces were prominent in the discoveries. In addition to beads of various kinds which took an important place in the rituals, were found banner stones, shell ornaments, and grooved boat stones.

Test holes sunk around a 14-acre tract near the spring indicate much more Indian lore is hidden in the huge mound, and a great deal more digging is expected to be done. Phol, who is joined in his explorations by his wife lives in a tent a short distance from the spring, and his helpers live nearby. They expect to go over the entire tract thoroughly in search of other interesting relics, and later expect to begin explorations at a tract south of Austin, already under lease.

Phol said he is not connected with any organized research institution, but is undertaking the excavations under his own initiative and financing. Much of the lore is added to his already extensive collection at Houston, he said, while other pieces are sold to private collectors and museums.

Professional teacher-training in Texas began in 1870 when 110 students enrolled at Sam Houston Normal Institute, Huntsville. Today, seven state teachers' colleges, at Huntsville, Denton, San Marcos, Canyon, Commerce, Alpine and Nacogdoches, enroll more than 8,000 during the regular college year.

Probably the most unusual dormitory in Texas is a three-story building just completed at Southwest Texas Teachers College, San Marcos. Located on a hilltop, it is built in a "U" shape and is only one-room wide, a windowed corridor providing perfect cross ventilation for every room.

Highest college campus in Texas and one of the highest in the world is that of Sul Ross State Teachers College, Alpine, 4,550 feet above sea level. Canyon, home of West Texas State Teachers College, has an elevation of 3,551.

The growing demand for better-trained, better-paid teachers is attracting an increasing number of male students to the seven Texas state teachers' colleges. Fifteen years ago the colleges enrolled two girl students to each boy. Today boys make up almost half of the total enrollment.

WITH OUR NEIGHBORS

Uncle Rich Bowlin is to have a birthday the 25th. He used to have them in his 80's. This year it will be most anything, but presumably under a hundred. But you wouldn't think it to see that grand old man getting around, clear of vision, quick step, witty remarks and keen interest in all public affairs. Having an invitation each year to this annual event is one of our most pleasant experiences. GW and I expect to be with Mr. and Mrs. Richmond P. Bowlin again for the big event as in other years. It will be at Hedley this time. They've moved.

Northwest Texas Farmers Raise Sheep And Goats

Sheep and goats have been found to represent excellent sources of cash income as well as eradicating undesirable growth on many North west Texas farms, reports from county agricultural agents indicate.

In Wilbarger county, John Carmichael of the Odell community, started in March of 1932 with 22 sheep, and constant improvement through the use of good rams has resulted in a marked difference in quality of the 75 ewes now kept on the Carmichael farm. The improvement in quality has resulted in an average wool production of 14 1-2 pounds of wool per ewe, with some individuals producing as much as 20 pounds in the past year.

The gross income during 1936 from Carmichael's flock was $255.44 from the sale of mutton and $300 from wool.

Another Wilbarger county farmer, J. M. Collins of Jackson Springs community, purchased 20 head of sheep in 1931, and the income from the flock which grew from the original purchase was $793 in 1936. A culling and breeding program has done much to improve the quality of the 120 head of ewes that Collins now maintains, and cockleburrs and other weeds have virtually been eradicated from the pasture.

A Gaines county farmer, J. H. Westcott, bought 8 nannies to put in a section of shinnery; in April of the past year 208 goats sheared 1,044 pounds and in September 280 goats sheared an additional 1,260 pounds; the mohair sold for $1,133.75; the goats are gradually killing back the shinnery and an increase of good grasses is to be noted.

More than 200,000 teachers have been trained by the seven state teachers colleges of Texas since the first institution at Huntsville was opened, 58 years ago.

Donley County Leader, $1.50 a year.

Uncle Jim Says

"When nature takes 100 years to make an inch of topsoil, it's a shame folks don't realize how fast land goes when erosion starts." Approximately 50 million acres of farm land in the United States are already so badly eroded as to be essentially unfit for cultivated crops; another 50 million acres are in a condition almost as bad.

There are now in cultivation some 100 million acres seriously impaired by erosion and misuse, and another 100 million acres on which erosion and poor management have begun to take toll.

Part of this condition has been due to the plowing up of grasslands which should have been left in sod. Most has been due to the farmers' inability, in the face of distressingly low prices for their products, to take proper care of their land.

A recent report from the National Resources Committee to the President pointed out that "in another century this great American granary may have become inadequate to support our population if erosion is permitted to continue at the present rate."

More than a score of years ago the Texas Extension Service began its campaign to save soil and conserve moisture by terracing. More than 12 million acres have been terraced and contoured in Texas since that time; and in 1936, under the stimulus of the Agricultural Conservation Program, more than two million acres were terraced or contoured under the supervision and leadership of county agricultural agents in this State.

The insects which are waiting to attack the farmer's crops and his wife's fruits, vegetables, flowers and shrubs are of two general types, sucking and eating, and two different types of control measures are necessary to control them according to R. R. Reppert, Extension entomologist of Texas A. and M. College.

The sucking type of insects suck the sap from plants, and include such common insects as the aphids or plant lice. Where insects suck the sap, stomach poisons are seldom effective, and a contact poison which attacks the insect from without is effective. Noctine sulphate is the most widely adopted contact poison, and can be used either as a dust or a spray. To get good control contact poisons should be used on hot, still days, Reppert said.

The chewing insects, such as the cabbage worms, web worms, potato beetles, tomato worms, and similar types can be controlled with stomach poisons, most of which are on an arsenical base. For spraying, lead arsenate is preferred, while calcium arsenate is generally preferred as a dust. Non-poisonous substances, such as derris or pyrethrum may be used on vegetables for the table.

Such insects break the general rules, Reppert said, and pointed out that the adult of the cotton boll weevil is controlled with stomach poisons while the striped cucumber beetle, a chewing insect, can be best controlled with contact applications.

The best way to determine the type of insect which is infecting a plant is to observe the type of injury, according to Reppert. If part of the plant is eaten away, it may be concluded that a biting insect is responsible; while if the plant appears unthrifty and the leaves are turning yellow and are withering, a sucking insect is responsible. County agricultural and home demonstration agents should be consulted as to the class and formula of poison to use.

BANK NIGHTS ARE UPHELD BY COURT

SANTA FE.—The New Mexico Supreme Court placed its sanction on movie "bank nights" Monday in a four-to-one decision upholding the right of the Yucca Theater of Roswell to award cash prizes.

Three justices concurred with Justice A. L. Zinn whose majority opinion held the bank night as operated by J. E. (Ted) Jones and Fred Morley, appellees, was not a lottery.

Justice Daniel K. Sadler, dissented from the prevailing opinion which sustained Chaves County District Court in its dismissal of the complaint after Jones and Morley were fined $25 each in police court. The city of Roswell had charged the two with violation of a lottery ordinance.

Free Registration
"Bank night," as operated at Roswell, was a plan of free registration, the drawing of a number corresponding to a number in the registration book, with the presence of participants required inside or outside of the theater at the time of the drawing. A cash prize was awarded to the person whose number was called, if the person was present in the theater or immediately outside.

The court held that the necessary element of consideration which, with the other elements of prize and chance, constitutes a lottery, was not present in the Yucca Theater's bank night.
"The spirit of gambling," Justice Zinn wrote, "the squandering of savings, the evils aimed at by our lottery statute, can no more be found in 'bank night' than they can be found in the numerous advertising schemes seen daily where thousands of dollars are given away as prizes to 'slogan coiners' or 'lucky guessers' who send to the manufacturer a wrapper from a can of soup or bar of soap."

Mrs. John Platt of Pampa spent the week end with her sister, Mrs. Lester Schull.
Mr. and Mrs. Brown of Claude spent the week end with her mother, Mrs. Frank Smith.

HERE AND THERE

By Dick Cooke

HERE—After serving in Clarendon as Western Union agent for more than 20 years, T. W. Welch will shortly be transferred and a Simplex, teletype machine installed at the Anstro Hotel. The move was necessitated by the planned re-modeling of the First National Bank building. Welch will probably go to Hereford and Barcus Antrobus will be the new agent here.

HERE—Although officials of the First National Bank are not ready to confirm reports relative to the renovation of the bank building, it became an open secret when workmen began moving furniture from the second story Wednesday. Erected in 1889, the structure was one of the first brick buildings in Clarendon.

HERE—For the third consecutive time in less than a year, O. D. Leisburg failed to appear in District Court here Monday to answer to murder charges. Allegedly sick in Amarillo last fall and in California both times his trial was set this spring, defense lawyers introduced doctor's certificates attesting to his illness. Judge A. S. Moss refused to set a trial date. Leisburg, upon his return, may be jailed unless he can find signers of a new $10,000 bond after the forfeiture of the original $5,000 last week.

THERE—Two negroes were recently lynched in Mississippi with blow torches by angry citizens who seared the victims after they were arraigned on a charge of murdering a white merchant.

HERE—Out of approximately 52 criminal cases in District Court here since March 1933, records show only one acquittal. In October, 1934, a weak case was verdicted not guilty after the defendant pleaded not guilty. The total number of years in the penitentiary from these trials reaches about 116 and suspended sentences amount to approximately 78. Jail sentences add to exactly 100 days and fine $50.

HERE—With planting time curtailing the terracing program in Donley County, agent H. M. Breedlove said the figure of lines run this year would probably stand at 21,000 acres. Lines on 18,000 acres were run last year to total 39,000 acres for two years. Breedlove estimated 60 per cent of tillable land in the county was either terraced or lines for terracing or contouring run.

THERE—Approximately 450,000 farms have been ruined by top-soil erosion according to house committee records in Washington.

HERE—H. T. Burton, superintendent of schools said today that the new WPA school project would probably get underway Monday. Under the new work order, the new class building would be re-roofed and improvements on the campus and athletic field completed.

HEREDR. J. A. Hill, president of West Texas State Teachers College at Canyon will deliver one of the commencement addresses in Clarendon. H. T. Burton, superintendent said today. All city schools will close May 19th.

THERE—Father Devine, bald negro, who is "god" to thousands, was wanted yesterday in connection with the stabbing of a man in the Harlem "heaven." The riot started when a process server interrupted a midnight service to slap a legal summons against Devine.

HERE—Plans for a larger and better Donley County fat stock show for next spring are beginning to materialize with 10 calves already on feed, according to County Agent H. M. Breedlove. Breedlove said Club boys were looking for calves and 25 would be on feed soon.

THERE—The father of slain Charles Mattson, 10, who was mutilated by a kidnapper in January, has received recent threats against members of his family. The threats were against the lives of Muriel, his 15-year old daughter, and William, 16.

HERE—Temperature readings hovered around 90 degrees over the week-end for the high of the year. Saturday was the warmest with 98, rising 6 above Friday's 92. The short heat wave was four days late of last year when 90 was recorded of the 12th, 96 of the 14th and 96 on the 15th.

HERE—Workmen began re-cleaning brick from the Ashtola school Monday in preparation for rebuilding. The new school will probably be a one story structure over the basement of the old building. Ashtola citizens hope to complete the school without a bond issue, using only money received from insurance.

HERE—Only a few 1936 federal farm checks remain unpaid in Donley County. Over $225,000 dollars were received by farmers here.

THERE—Rev. Richard A. Stewart, pastor of the First Methodist Church in Shamrock, died at six o'clock Wednesday night as a result of a stroke of paralysis. He had been in ill health for the past few months.

The exes line up will include Cornell, Holtzclaw, Baxter, Slaven, Jay, Butler, Robinson, Noble, Rolls, and Gilbert, but playing positions were not listed.

The Broncho's starters, as released by Jones, is Lumas, center; Huffman and Palmer, guards; D. Robinson and Lane, tackles; McGowan and Wilson, ends; Cooke, quarter; Allison, half; McWhorter, half; Mears, full.

MRS. NORA DAVIS DIED HERE TODAY

Funeral Arrangements Are Pending Arrival of Relatives From Arizona

Mrs. Nora Davis, 63, died at her home here early this morning following a few days illness. The body is in state at Buntin and Son Funeral home pending arrival of relatives.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Mrs. Davis was the wife of J. S. Davis who died here in 1934. She was born in Cleburne in 1873 and had been a Clarendon resident for about 4 years.

She is survived by five children, three daughters, Mrs. Alberta Adkins of Clarendon, and Mrs. J. H. Bullard and Mrs. Bud Philley of Phoenix, Arizona; two sons, Kenneth Davis of Phoenix, Arizona and Gilbert Davis of Amarillo.

Porter Addresses Methodists At Childress Monday

Judge J. R. Porter addressed the meeting of the Vernon District of the Methodist Church at Childress Monday. Porter's address was on lay activities.

More than 100 out-of-town delegates attended the convention.

School Cafeteria Is Ably Supported

An Average of Sixty-Five Children Are Given Food Each Noon

Some of the children taking advantage of the school cafeteria pay their way. Approximately four dollars a week comes into the fund, but the food is sold practically at cost if it were bought and prepared at home.

Approximately sixty-five under privileged children are given food each noon, soup being the principal diet with milk for drink. W. B. Halle alone contributes one gallon of milk daily. Others have been liberal in making contributions of milk.

Clarendon people have responded generously. Some voluntarily, others when the matter of necessity is called to their attention. The children are given food under the direction of one or more teachers. The little folks are clean and observe table manners as well as the average child in the average home. To do otherwise would be a reflection upon the teachers, the parents, pupils and the county health officer.

Among these pupils accepting food gifts from the more fortunate may some day come men and women of worthy renown. No one knows, but poverty is not always a handicap, and does not always last through life.

Dude Gentry collected $22.50 within a short period Tuesday forenoon. Those contributing to the fund were Bert Mayfield, 50, F. E. Chamberlain $5, W. H. Cooke Jr. $2, J. T. Patman $2. Those giving one dollar each were Geo. Norwood, Allen J. Bryan, Frank White, Dude Gentry, Mrs. Emily Ryan, Dr. H. F. Harter, I. Mellinger, Elmer Palmer, Doss Palmer, G. J. Teel, J. C. Estlack, L. T. Shelton and one party whose name did not appear on the list given the Leader.

MUSEUM SIDELIGHTS

Recent gifts to the Donley County Museum include a large clock that has been in the Herington family since 1836, having been brought to Texas from Albany, N. Y. in a covered wagon. Miss Lee Patten, granddaughter of the immigrant in 1836, loaned the clock to the exhibit.

Nothing like old school books to roll back the mists of years and bring to memory happy school days of the long, long ago. A McGuffey 5th reader has been given the Museum by Miss Willard Clayton, member of the local school faculty.

A beaver tooth, several inches in length, from one trapped by Edwin Bale on Sweetwater creek in Wheeler county in 1902, is added to the collection through the generosity of Mr. Bale.

A. C. Stultz of the college faculty has contributed specimens of his own mounting in a hummingbird nest, horned toad. Also a cedar from the grave of Sam Houston, first president of Texas.

Amarillo Firm Sells Picture Postals of Local Scenes

A number of local firms stocked up with picture postals when Jas. L. McCormick, of the McCormick company of Amarillo, called here Tuesday.

The picture postals represent several scenes on the J A ranch, Palo Duro Park and other Panhandle scenes of leading interest. They are printed in Chicago. Eleven rows of nine cards each are printed in five colors at one time at the rate of several thousand an hour. The grade is exceptionally good and the pictures very beautiful.
