CANNING PLANT WILL BE REOPENED MONDAY IF FUNDS GET HERE

Efforts were being made this week to re-open the county relief canning plant on Monday of next week. If funds are secured, the plant will be re-opened on that date, authorities state. At any rate, the plant is not expected to remain closed long.

The plant was closed Wednesday night due to lack of funds. The fact that no funds for July had been received, and no assurance could be obtained from Austin as to amount or date of receipt of July funds caused local authorities to shut down the plant for the present.

Notice will be given when the plant is to reopen. Producers are asked not to bring any more products to the plant until it is again in operation as they cannot be handled at the present time.

The plant has been in operation since June 4, employing 40 persons per day. In order to care for the big demand for canning, the plant has been operating two eight-hour shifts daily. Those who furnish products for canning receive 40 per cent of the amount canned. Sixty per cent is retained by the relief office for distribution to the needy. The government furnishes the cans and labor for canning.

BEAUTIFICATION OF CITY PROPOSED IN NEW WORK PROJECT

A project for beautification work in the city of Brownwood is included in the list of tentative applications for projects under the new works progress administration program now being prepared by local governmental agencies. The project will include cleaning up vacant lots, trimming trees and shrubs, painting names of streets on curbs and other work. Total cost of the project is estimated at $7,477.

Other proposed projects are construction of two miles of new lateral road between Byrds and Cross Cut which is needed to detour traffic around a section of the Byrds-Cross Cut road now covered by water of Lake Brownwood. It would include building of two bridges and would cost $10,225.

Extensive work on water district land around boat docks at Lake Brownwood is contemplated in another application being prepared. Under this project, land around the docks would be cleaned up and leveled, scenic roads would be constructed, a boat dock would be built and several picnic structures would be placed on the lake shores. The project would cost $10,714.

NO ACTION IS TAKEN ON PETITION ASKING VOTE ON LIGHT PLANT

Matters in Brownwood's battle of petitions on the question of whether or not Brownwood shall have a power plant plebiscite are at a standstill pending decision of the city council on the legality of names added to the petitions after they were filed. At a meeting of the council Friday a petition was filed asking the city to call a referendum election on a franchise to build and operate an electric light and power plant granted May 22 to R. O. Mathews. Mathews and his attorney, Gib Callaway, presented counter petitions listing names of people who wished to withdraw their names from the first petition.

City Secretary F. E. Scott reported at a meeting of the council Monday night that of the 1,940 names on the petition requesting the referendum 670 were found to be qualified voters. On the list filed by Mr. Mathews there were 144 names. These, deducted from the 670 names leave 526 names of qualified voters on the petition. The total number of qualified voters in the city is 2,439 and 26 per cent of this number is 488, the required number to call the election, Scott said.

At the Monday night meeting C. L. McCartney and E. P. Woodruff, attorneys who presented the petition seeking the referendum, contended that the council had taken final action on the petition when they received it and ordered a check made by the city secretary. Callaway argued that the council had not taken final action on the petition in receiving it Friday and that final action would not be taken until an election was called or refused. Both sides filed additional lists of names before the 29 days allowed by law for filing petitions after publication of a franchise expired midnight Sunday.

McCartney and Woodruff said they did not want their list of additional names which was filed before the expiration date considered if Council did not consider the additional counter lists filed by Mathews. Callaway said Mathews would file no more names to be taken from the petition but he did want the lists filed since Friday to be considered.

The council took no action on the matter before adjourning. Mayor W. H. Thompson said at the close of the meeting that he did not know when definite action would be taken.

Whether or not it is as impractical as The Dallas News would lead its readers to believe, the proposal of Representative Martin Dies to restrict immigration and make mandatory the deportation of 3,500,000 aliens illegally in this country, has done two things. It has given the able Texan national recognition; and it has caused him to be mentioned as the foremost among the possible opponents of United States Senator Morris Sheppard at next year's elections.

In addition, his efforts, and we believe them sincere, have created a widespread demand that the ideas advocated in his bill be enacted into law. Hearst newspapers, for example, include the Dies bill in one of two that should be classed as "must" legislation in the present session.

The Dies bill would suspend all "pioneer" immigration for the next 50 years—in itself a logical measure. And, in addition to deporting the 3,500,000 aliens illegally in this country, it would give 4,000,000 aliens here legally twelve months in which to take out naturalization papers or return to their native countries. The final provision which makes the measures appeal to those endeavoring to solve the unemployment problem specifies that aliens be barred from jobs that can be filled by American citizens.

The Dies plan is logical. If there are 3,500,000 aliens illegally in the United States, and there are 3,500,000 unemployed people that must be supported by taxpayers' money—whether these unemployed are illegal aliens or American citizens—wouldn't deportation of such aliens relieve the situation to a great extent? And if they are in this country without the sanction of law, is there any reason why they should remain here? It is no wonder that Mr. Dies has received more than 50,000 letters and telegrams in support of his bill, and has behind it the support of more than 150 loyalty organizations.

While it is unfortunate that the success of the measure should be tied up with Mr. Dies political fortunes, in that some support that otherwise would be secured for the bill will be withheld in the fear that it would make him a formidable contender for Mr. Sheppard's job, the peculiarities of American politics make no other result possible. Mr. Dies is a capable man, and even in politics, worthiness eventually makes itself felt.

A few years ago one of the bitterest political battles witnessed in Texas was that of James V. Allred and Robert L. Bobbitt for Attorney General. Bobbitt held the office by appointment, and Allred, who narrowly missed having been elected a few years previously, felt that the appointment should have been his. He said so in no uncertain terms, and the scathing denunciation of the incumbent—the manner in which he hurled every ounce of his bitter sarcasm at Bobbitt—left little to be desired by those who like their politics rough and raw.

It was an interesting campaign, and Allred won. A year ago found Bobbitt supporting Allred for Governor. And last week, when Presiding Justice Bickett of the San Antonio court of civil appeals resigned to re-enter private practice, Governor Allred appointed Mr. Bobbitt to a place on the bench. Incidentally, Mr. Bobbitt graciously declined appointment as chief justice, insisting that Justice Smith, veteran of the bench, be elevated to that position, and he take the minor assignment.

It seems that the old political maxim, "if you can't beat them, join them," is the best policy to follow, after all.

Central Texas lost a valuable friend and newspaperman, and Texas a worthy citizen when W. H. Carpenter, published of the Comanche Chief, died in Brownwood this week. Mr. Carpenter was widely known throughout the state, and especially in West Texas where his scope of activity had been largely confined during the past few years.

Although primarily interested in his publishing and insurance businesses, both of which he had extended to practically all parts of the state, Mr. Carpenter found time for active participation in civic affairs. He had served both as secretary and as president of the Comanche Chamber of Commerce, and at the time of his death was a director in the organization. He was interested in the development of good roads in this section, and was president of the recently organized Central Texas Highway Association, which was taking a lead in promoting construction of paved highways in Central Texas.

In the prime of life, Mr. Carpenter had reason to look forward to many years of usefulness to his family and his community. His death leaves a place that will be hard to fill.

The need for reform of pardon procedure in Texas is graphically illustrated in the case of Que R. Miller, whom Governor Allred characterized as a "dangerous enemy to society" when he revoked a pardon issued in the closing days of the preceding administration.

No criticism of the act of granting a pardon was made, other than it was obtained fraudulently through failure to disclose Miller's record.

Miller at present is serving a term in a federal prison at Atlanta, Georgia. Upon completion of this term, he will be required to serve a two to seven year sentence in the Texas penitentiary. Nine reasons, all of them containing serious charges, are given for the revocation.

Miller is under six indictments, two of which have been returned since the pardon was issued, the Governor pointed out.

The case illustrates the ease with which unworthy persons may obtain pardons under the present system, and certainly indicates the pressing need for more stringent regulations.

By EDWARD G. ROBINSON Motion-Picture Star

"In my early barnstorming days of one-night stands, I landed in a small hotel in a New York hamlet. The room was dismal, but I felt fortunate that I could occupy it alone," related Edward G. Robinson, the bad man of the films.

"During the night a queer, cold tingling sensation pervaded my body. There were slight noises in the room, and I attuned my ears to catch what they were.

"This was not the sound of a person moving or breathing. It seemed at first that there were stifled groans, but these subsided and gave way to a sort of gurgling rattle which came intermittently. The hair at the back of my neck bristled and burned.

"About two minutes later this queer rattle ended with what sounded like a cask of breath and one louder rattle. It seemed to be right close to me, and yet from far away. The last rattle did not give me any better clue, but a new sound had appeared which immediately followed on the last.

"It was a steady drip, drip, drip, like a faucet dripping into a pan of water.

"The continual drip, drip, drip persisted until I thought it would drive me out of my mind. It seemed louder than the other noises.

"Fear overcame me and as I could not sleep any longer, I decided to investigate.

"My clothes were thrown over the chair near the dresser, and I decided to find a match in my trousers pocket to light the gas and dispel once and for all this ghastly experience. Accordingly, I began to crawl gingerly out of bed, but no sooner did one foot touch the floor than it landed in a small puddle of warm liquid. Hurriedly, I drew my foot back and huddled myself under the covers.

"It could not have been water, for it seemed to my then sensitive touch to be of a little heavier consistency and its warmth was unnatural. Instinctively, I felt something supernatural in it, but my rational mind refused to accept it.

"I was too frightened to get out of bed now to search for matches and the gas jet, but I knew where the pool was into which I heard the drip, drip, dripping of whatever it was. With upturned palm, I held my hand over the place. Nothing came from the ceiling, but still the drip, drip, drip kept on.

"For more than an hour this continued, and then the drops seemed to fall seldom, until, at last, they ceased entirely. Sleep came welcome to my almost shattered nerves.

"When I awoke my first thought was of my night's experience. Hastily I looked at the floor where my foot had encountered the warm liquid into which something had dripped for more than an hour, but to my relief the faded carpet was clean and dry.

"Laughing at what I now considered a silly nightmare, I slid out of bed and prepared to dress. But my sheepish smile froze on my face when I saw the foot that had stepped out of bed during the night.

"It was red with blood, which was now dried by the warmth under the covers.

"Searching for a wound which might have caused it, I could only discover that the skin on my foot was as clear and unscarred as it was on the day before.

"Out of the corner of my eye I could see the hotel owner studying me while I ate breakfast downstairs.

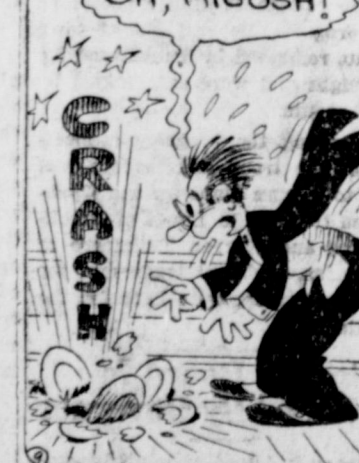

"The landlord put on a furtive air, as though he wanted no one to hear him, as he approached me, and told me of an event which happened some ten years before.

"It appears that a man who was later unidentified had passed thru the town and taken a night's lodging in that same room in which I had just had my strange experience. No sooner had he gone up

SENSIBLE VACATIONS MEAN A CHANGE

(Clisco Daily News)

A health authority gives a bit of sound advice on vacations. It isn't worth while spending time and money on a vacation, he says, unless you get a change, physical and mental.

Plan for the most complete change possible. If you are all fagged out and need opportunity to relax and live quietly, rebuilding the worn body, nerves and mind, don't go to a lively resort where the activities will keep you up and going all day and jazz will keep you awake at night.

If you have been "slumbering through the year," and need a waking up, it may be good to go to just such a place for stimulation.

Housewives especially, he remarks need a change of environment. This is a fact that too many husbands fail to appreciate, when they plan a joint vacation that will keep their womenfolk in about the same old round of work and responsibility as usual. But many a man needs to see and feel something different from his office or workshop just as a woman needs something different from her kitchen.

To prove effectiveness of the bow and arrow, Dr. Saxton Pope and Arthur Young, both of San Francisco, obtained a permit to shoot five grizzly bears in Yellowstone Park in 1920. Not only was the test successful, but in some cases only one arrow was needed to bring down the mighty grizzly.

Midland—By washing dewberries before packing them, M. O. Prestridge, Midland county truck gardener, found a better market for his berries, according to Miss Myrtle Miller, home demonstration agent.

Prestridge made a berry tray using a screen wire bottom. Water was then poured over the berries in the tray. As a convenience in packing, a trowel was used to crate the berries. The crop has found a ready market in Midland and surrounding towns.

Denton—Impressed with the results of her work as bedroom demonstrator of the Belev Home Demonstration Club in Denton county, Miss Mary Hunn has gone further and remodeled her entire house.

Miss Hunn made her bedroom attractive by adding a new floor, constructing a clothes closet and having the room papered and new draperies hung. Remodeling work on the rest of the house included the addition of porches, a bathroom with a bath tub, built in cabinets in the kitchen, a sink, and water piped into the house. The house has been painted, papered and the woodwork refinished. A new roof and new steps have been added.

Waterhouse sprayed his orchard in late winter with lime sulphur. At the suggestion of the county agricultural agent he also used two to three pounds of 6-12-6 fertilizer around most of his larger trees—those six years old and older. It is these trees that have the heavier set of fruit and the larger size of fruit.

Albany—"During April and May, my 235 hens produced a net income of $140.56, running a close race with my herd of 16 dairy cows that chalked up a net return of $110.22 for second place," Robert Bradford, Shackelford county farmer, told D. F. Eaton, county agricultural agent.

The hens had a feed bill of $44.20 for the two months, while the expenses for the cows were $72.60.

M. Cantrell, county agricultural agent.

Newton—J. H. Waterhouse of Newton is convinced that it pays him to care for his 100 peach tree orchard, for there is a heavier set of fruit and the peaches are one-third larger where he fertilized his trees than where he did not, according to J. B. Dorman, county agricultural agent.

Waterhouse sprayed his orchard in late winter with lime sulphur. At the suggestion of the county agricultural agent he also used two to three pounds of 6-12-6 fertilizer around most of his larger trees—those six years old and older. It is these trees that have the heavier set of fruit and the larger size of fruit.

Next time your angling friend tells you of the big one that got away, take the tale with a grain of salt, for he may have succumbed to the machine ace that has invaded Ike Walton's art. Seen in this picture is G. M. Thompson, co-inventor with John Stewart, of a mechanical sword fish, shown at left. The machine of the Long Beach, Calif., inventors simulates all the actions of a marlin by means of an electric motor, windlass, intricate arrangement of brakes, and reverse gears.

We can't blame everything on the flies. The soap advertisements tell us, probably quite correctly, that 'green kinds of diseases can be contracted from eating with unwashed hands.

ARGENTINE PLANS DRIVE TO OBTAIN COTTON FARMERS

Buenos Aires.—A plan to bring Texas cotton farmers to the Argentine Chaco Territory took shape Thursday as the latest development in the drive of three South American nations—Argentina, Brazil and Paraguay—to capture part of king cotton's empire.

The campaigns, actually under way or proposed, derive primarily from the cotton restriction program in the United States and lower South American production costs.

Gov. Jose Castells of the Argentine Chaco said he would go to the United States within three months to seek American cotton farming families willing to settle in the Chaco where, he said 7,000,000 acres of good cotton land await colonization.

Admitting he was somewhat afraid of the difficulty presented by the different standard of living in the United States, Governor Castells said an inducement would be the fact that Argentine production costs are the lowest in the world even lower than Brazil.

Brazil's phenomenal increases in production since 1932 and her 500,000-bale export last year already have become an important factor in world market.

Paraguay, underpopulated and war-battered, is studying reconstruction plans involving systematic immigration and increased agricultural production.

Although the hot land of the Argentine Chaco is limited in area compared with the 2,000,000,000 undeveloped acres Brazil claims is fit for potential cotton production.

Castells' plan illustrates how South American countries are pushing cotton as the instrument for developing their tropical and subtropical land.

Crawford Tops Everything In Sparkling Hit

In a story that fairly bubbles with comedy, Joan Crawford and Robert Montgomery come to the Lyric Theatre Sunday and Monday in "No More Ladies," the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production directed by Edward H. Griffin.

Adapted from the Broadway stage hit, the film retains all the fine drama and sparkling humor of the original—with the addition of one of the finest screen casts of the year.

Prominently featured with the co-stars are Charlie Ruggles, Francis and Edna May Oliver, Gail Patrick, Reginald Denny and many others.

When Marcia Townsend (Joan Crawford) marries Sherry Warren (Robert Montgomery), she knows his past; but they are sure that, in spite of their many "happily divorced" friends, they can make marriage work.

When, later, Marcia discovers she may have made a mistake, she decides to dry her tears and throw a party. And what a party! All Sherry's ex-sweethearts are invited with their new swains and ex-husbands.

Under Adrian's deft eye, Miss Crawford is more exquisitely groomed than ever—and that's saying a great deal. She introduces at least a dozen different ensembles which will certainly thrill the women of the nation.

Cedric Gibbons' settings, in the "Modernized Victorian," are his finest since "When Ladies Meet." Smart New York and Westchester county is the locale of the picture.

Produced by Irving Thalberg, "No More Ladies" is framed with characteristic finesse, elaborateness and attention to detail.

Florists have found too much moisture will cause lilies to wither and die.

A campaign for quail eggs and for bantam hens to incubate them, has started with the opening of a hatchery in Cooke county, Texas.

Increases POWER

Think of the power of plunging pistons... sufficient to move tons of rock up steep mountain grades. Yet the efficiency of pistons depends on the adhesion of the combustion chamber. Carbon-stuck valves, leaking rings, weaken the piston stroke and make motors lag and balk.

PYROIL increases power in motors because it seals rings and keeps valves carbon-free. Simply added to regular gas and oil. Supplies constant lubrication to the entire motor head where withering heat kills ordinary lubricants. Actually builds lubrication into the metal.

PYROIL deposits a patent-processed, heat-, wear- and dilution-proof element on all metal parts, building and constantly maintaining an actual self-lubricating surface. Bearings run freer, cooler. Power, endurance, are marvelously improved. Easily saves many times its small cost.

Ask at your filling station or garage for further details. Try PYROIL today.

VICTOR HUGO'S Les Miserables. From the screen play by W. P. Lipscomb starring FREDRIC MARCH CHARLES LAUGHTON. A 20th CENTURY PICTURE.

CHAPTER 6 WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE Jean Valjean, fugitive from the French authorities and one Javert in particular, plans to escape once and for all to England...

Free at Last Jean and Eponine come out. They are in the light for a brief second as they look around cautiously. Javert has the house spotted from an opposite window.

Through narrow streets around dark corners and then up a dozen or so stone steps reach Jean and Eponine.

Javert arrives just as they disappear into the building. He fires with a command to "Stop!"

"He's Mine!" "Let me. This man has persecuted me for ten years—he's mine!" It's Jean's voice.

"I'll do it as it was done in the gallery—the pistol in the mouth. Cries in the distance attract the others and they rush off, leaving Jean and Javert alone.

"Now, Javert, the hunt ends." "End it then."

"It had to be one of us. You hounded me; you pursued me—it's you who drive me to this—you and your law!"

"Do your part. I've done mine. I stand by everything I've done. I take what comes."

Jean can't bring himself to do it. There is a terrific struggle going on within him. He shakes his head.

"Go, before the others do what I can't." "You fool, you know what'll happen. I shall take you in the end. You know I will—you know I must—I can't help myself—I am what I am."

"I take what comes. Go!" Jean remains looking after Javert as he fires the pistol into the air. He returns to the barricade. Eponine tries to pull him down from his exposed position and herself falls dead.

Mounted gendarmes begin to attack with drawn sabres. There is a scrimmage. Marius is felled with a blow on the head. Jean pulls him down through a half-open manhole into the sewers, picks up the unconscious boy and stagers along...

Through dark alleys they wind their way back to Jean's house in the Rue Bruant. Cosette, on her knees before a small altar, rises and comes forward to Marius eagerly. For a moment it looks as though she has forgotten everything Jean has done.

Jean closes the door on them and backs into the hall. He senses the presence of another person. "Javert! You're here, I know it—where are you?"

A shadowy form moves and Javert steps out into the light. "I'm ready. All I ask is a few moments to say goodbye."

"The law allows you nothing." Jean raises his head to Javert, a face so agonized, helpless and hopeless that even Javert is moved. He nods slowly. He knows this man has saved his life but still he can't help himself.

"It's not I—it's the law that wants you—the law. I can't help myself." (ashamed of his weakness.) "Go ahead. I'll wait."

Jean goes in. "Cosette, I've come to say goodbye. It has to be—there are reasons. My dear, what little I could do I have done—in my poor, stupid way I have tried to do what I could. Now I give her to you (to Marius)—let her be as precious to you as she has been to me. Look after him, Cosette. Look after her."

His face is bathed in perspiration from the struggle going on within him. He turns, looks back and takes down the two candlesticks which he has kept with him all this time. "Keep these always." He fingers them. "Silver, they say—but more than gold to me."

Cosette kisses him and clings to him, overcome with emotion. He moves over to Marius with her. "Love each other—there's scarcely anything more in the world but that. Remember, as was once told me—Life is to give, not to take. What I give—take and give again."

The door clicks and he is gone. It is over. He has given up Cosette and now he has to face the other—the gaolers. He tries to move to the door to the street, but his strength cracks and he drops to one knee.

"Father of all—I've done what I could—take what you will—I've given all I can—I'm ready!"

With a great effort he rises and marches towards the open doorway to the street, his hands in front of him, his wrists drawn together to receive Javert's handcuffs, his eyes half-closed, repeating in a whisper the word "Give!"

Javert Disappears But there is no Javert. The moonlit street beyond is empty. To Jean it is unbelievable—Javert is gone. He has left him. We can almost hear the voice of the old bishop over the scene. "Well done, my son. Well done!"

His eyes go up to the heavens—to the voice—his face lights up with a smile as if the whole soul were lifted—at last he is free.

Excited cries of "Down here! Down here! Hurry!" snap him out of his trance. Through a narrow opening in the street opposite is an alley leading to the river. There is a small crowd gathered—others are coming up.

Jean pulls himself together and as if drawn by a magnet races to the scene. "What is it?" "Suicide—must be—"

"I tried to stop him," adds another onlooker, "but he pushed me away and jumped in—The river's in flood."

Still another, "Look! It's a policeman's cloak—"

A gendarme takes it and looks it over. Jean immediately recognizes it as Javert's. He turns and looks at the river. The water is swarming past. He now realizes that Javert has left him for good. He is free, indeed—free to go back to Cosette and Marius. (The End.)

Colored Singers In First Free Concert

The next free concert of the series being arranged by D. K. Doyle and sponsored by a number of local merchants will be given in about two weeks. The first of the series was presented last Friday night to an audience of about 1000 people.

The Brownwood colored singers, under the direction of Vance Hall, were presented in a program of old plantation melodies and spirituals Friday night. Several of the singers also sang solos.

Tourist Camp Is Being Built Here

A modern tourist camp is being constructed on a tract of land north of the junction of highways 10, 23 and 7 within the city limits. Mrs. Grace Blackstock of Brownwood is having the camp built and will be in charge of its operation. City permit for construction of the camp lists the cost at $5,000.

The camp, which will be completed in about three weeks, will include a grill and five cottages. The buildings are of frame construction and will be covered with composition shingles.

Taylor Will Direct Anti-Repeal Forces

The anti-repeal campaign in this Senatorial district will probably be formally launched within the next two weeks, according to an announcement made by Dr. Thomas H. Taylor, county and district chairman. An intensive campaign to retain the prohibition amendment in the state constitution is contemplated. Preliminary contacts have already been made and a campaign program is now being considered. The personnel of the repeal organization in this county has not been announced.

GRAIN IS MOVING

Daily shipments of the 1935 grain crop over the Santa Fe local lines averages about fifteen cars. Much of the grain is coming to the Brownwood elevator. The shipments are from the Eden, Sweetwater and San Angelo branches of the railroad.

To My Friends and Neighbors:

During the past few weeks there has been considerable newspaper and sidewalk discussion of the proposal to grant a franchise for another electric light and power plant in Brownwood. In view of the fact that those seeking the franchise have devoted all their efforts and energy to shouting careless statements about the Texas Power & Light Company, I feel it is my duty as a citizen and as manager of the Company to ask a few questions pertinent to the situation.

1. Instead of shouting "Power Trust," WHY HAVEN'T THE SEEKERS OF THE FRANCHISE TOLD THE PEOPLE WHAT KIND OF AN ELECTRIC LIGHT PLANT THEY PROPOSE TO BUILD?

2. Would the proposed plant be a real up-to-date one, big enough to SERVE ALL THE PEOPLE IN ALL PARTS OF THE CITY, OR WOULD IT BE THE ALLEGED SMALL PLANT INTENDED ONLY TO SERVE THE CONGESTED BUSINESS AREA? IF SO — AND THERE HAS NEVER BEEN ANYTHING SAID TO THE CONTRARY — HOW WOULD SUCH A PLANT BENEFIT ALL THE PEOPLE OF BROWNWOOD? After all, a public franchise carries with it the obligation to render adequate and dependable service to ALL THE PEOPLE within the city limits.

3. Exactly what kind of a plant is to be built? Will it be new and modern, or, will it be second-hand and obsolete? What kind of poles will be erected, short, long, sturdy, or just any kind of an old pole? What kind, size and quality of wire will be used?

4. What guarantee is offered that the people who might patronize this proposed plant could always depend on having enough service at all times, regardless of the size of their demands?

Facts, affording correct answers to these questions undoubtedly would be brought out in the event the people had an opportunity to vote on the proposition. IF THE SEEKERS OF THE FRANCHISE ARE WILLING TO HAVE THESE FACTS KNOWN, why should there be any objection to the efforts of local citizens to have an election so that the voters could have an opportunity to judge the merits of the whole proposition at the ballot box?

For 22 years I have managed the affairs of the Texas Power & Light Company in Brownwood. I know that it is not a "wishing" matter to render the type of service you people need, want and must have. Years of training, constant alertness, investments of large sums of money in equipment, materials and man-power have made possible the organization which serves you today. It is not possible to duplicate these facilities without large expenditures of money.

I would be negligent in my duty as a neighbor and a friend if I did not call your attention to these unanswered questions.

County Court Jury Cases To Be Heard

Both the civil and criminal dockets for the July term of county court, which opened Tuesday morning, are unusually light. County Judge A. E. Nabors said a number of default judgments will be returned this week but no cases will be tried.

A jury has been called for next week and at that time jury cases will be heard.

THE EARLY HISTORY OF TEXAS AS SHOWN FROM THE AUSTIN PAPERS

(Note: This is one of a series of articles taken from the 200 special collections of family archives in the University of Texas library. The collections cover all periods of Texas history, from the earliest days of the Spanish missionaries in the province of Tejas, through the colonial era, to the present. This series of articles presents interesting excerpts from a number of these family collections, some chosen for their intrinsic significance in the development of the empire of Texas, others for their purely human interest in portraying personalities, economic conditions and social intercourse.)

CLAIMS against the government for losses suffered on the Texas frontier from Indian depredations must have been numerous during the years that followed the Civil War, for this subject occupied Congress' attention many times in the last two decades of the nineteenth century. In the James B. Barry papers, now deposited in the archives of the University of Texas library, there are dozens of documents and communications concerning this problem. Barry himself was one of the victims of Indian violence and thievery, and these letters and legal papers reveal his long drawn out efforts to obtain some recompense for his losses.

It was early in 1858 that Colonel Barry wrote to Washington seeking information as to how to present his claims. He received a reply from J. W. Throckmorton, evidently a member of the committee on pensions, as follows:

"In answer to your letter I have to say that claims for depredations committed (by Indians having treaties with the United States) prior to December 1, 1873, were required to be filed with the authorities of the government within three years after the time the depredation was committed, and if not so filed within the three years were barred by the statute.

"Claims for depredations committed by treaty Indians since December 1, 1873, if not heretofore presented may be hereafter filed.

"If the claims you speak of are of the latter class, and you can prove the tribe or tribes of Indians committing the offence, the time, the character and value of the property stolen or destroyed, and the locality when it occurred by the oath of the claimant two or more witnesses we will, upon request, send you blanks and instructions.

"If any action of congress is had that will remove the bar to claims prior to December 1st, 1873, that were not presented in time, you will as notified. There is an effort to get legislation to let in the barred claims and to create a tribunal before which all these claims can be tried.

"There is no law to pay any of these claims—only measures authorizing their investigation after they are established they have to go to congress and appropriations to pay them.

"There is no use to get up testimony for the claims that are barred—if congress relieves the bar then will be time enough for that.

"I have made an arrangement with one excellent attorney living here to attend to these matters. His fees are 25 per cent on amount of recovery."

Eleven months later, Colonel Barry received a communication from Isaac R. Hitt, Illinois state agent, dated February 5, 1859, stating:

"The Indian depredation bill which passed the House last session has just been favorably reported in the Senate with some amendments. "This bill provides that all Indian depredation claims go to a special court for adjustment. If you have no attorney in Washington to look after your interests we would offer our services for a fee of 25 per cent charging nothing if we fail.

"Reference given if desired." Barry evidently did not accept Hitt's offer until some months later, but he did submit his claims, attested to by a Bosque county notary. On April 6, 1859, he made the following affidavit:

"Before me, D. R. Mitchell, Justice of the Peace and ex-officio notary public in and for Bosque county, Texas, on this day personally appeared James B. Barry of said county and state to me well known who after being duly sworn deposed and says that on or about the twenty-ninth day of December, 1857, the Comanche Indians made a raid through his settlement in the day time, killed one Mr. Bean and his negro fellow, killed one Mr. Johnson and carried his son, Peter Johnson, off captive; that they taken off seventy-eight head of his horses from where he had them herded, seventy of which he never recovered or received any remuneration for from any person whatever, that said horses were well worth fifty dollars per head on an average, making in the aggregate $3800; that he knew them to be Comanche Indians from the following circumstances: That he and one John Walker followed after them 150 miles to near the Comanche agency on the Clear Fork of the Brazos River near Camp Cooper; they went to said Comanche agency; saw some of theirs and neighbors horses there that the sub-agent one Coln-Leeper made them give up; all he and Walker could recognize amongst them were eight of his own, that he talked to one the friend by Comanche chiefs through the government interpreter. One Jim Shaw. He understood from him to be a Delaware Indian who told him his, the chief's wild brothers came there to the agency and persuaded his young men to depredate on his white brothers that in the division of captured horses his young men brought in those he recovered.

Further one Shawnee-Indian who followed the trail while fresh said he knew from the sign found on trail that they were Comanches. That he, Barry, is now sixty-seven years old and lives on the same place he did in 1857 that his P. O. is Walnut that he was induced to move where he now lives by the Indian agent's reporting all the Indians friendly on the frontier. That the damage of said loss was at least ten per centum per annum since 57 making 31 years amounting to ten thousand eight hundred dollars both loss and damage."

(Signed) James B. Barry. Barry's testament was accompanied by the sworn statements of several other Texans whose story of the depredations corroborated his. The matter was caught up in a mass of red tape.

That Barry's claim was by no means an isolated one is clearly indicated in the letter which his friend, Jo Abbott, a member of the United States house of representatives, wrote him from Washington, April 26, 1850:

"I am in receipt of yours of the 16th addressed to Col. Stewart and myself enclosing the affidavits of several gentlemen as to the loss sustained by you from Indian depredations.

"The Secretary of the Interior who has to pass upon such claims will not act on your papers because the same are barred by limitation. The only chance for you is through a special relief bill and candor compels me to say this is a slim chance. "There are now between six and seven thousand bills asking for similar relief said claims aggregating over nineteen millions of dollars. Some of these claims perhaps half of them have been before Congress for many years, some of them for twenty years. "The committee on Indian depredation claims have before the House a bill which has for its object the creation of Court of Indian Depredation claims, and providing for the transfer of all these claims, without regard to the age of the claim, to said Court. "Of course, I can't tell whether this bill will pass or not. If it does, you may in the course of time get your money. But if congress refuses to create this court and take the claims out of the statute of limitations, I see no chance in the world ever to secure what is due you. The chairman of the committee tells me that the committee is so overrun with these claims they have quit reporting any of them and have concluded to make a general law referring all these claims to a court to be before stated. In order to preserve your claim, I have introduced a bill for your relief, and sent the same with the affidavits to the committee. Committees never give receipts and therefore I can't send you one, but every committee has a clerk whose duty it is to reserve all papers, records, etc. I shall vote for the bill creating the court to pass on these claims (as I regard it as the only way by which any of these claims will ever be paid."
