BROWNWOOD BANNER

Established 1875. Published every Thursday by Brownwood Publishing Co., Inc., 112 East Lee Street, Telephone 112. Mail Address, P. O. Box 419, Brownwood, Texas. Subscription price in Brown and adjoining counties, $1 per year; elsewhere, $1.50. Entered at the Postoffice at Brownwood, Texas, as second class mail matter. WENDELL MAYES, Editor JOHN BLAKE, Business Mgr.

Any error made in advertisements will be corrected upon being brought to the attention of the publishers, and the liability of this paper is limited to the amount of space consumed by the error in the advertisement.

Last week The Banner suggested, as an alternative to three-year licenses for automobiles, permanent licenses to be attached to the car at time of purchase, and good for the life of the automobile. Other minds evidently have been working on the problem, for we read in the Dallas News that a bill has been drawn by H. S. Bonham, Corpus Christi attorney, for submission at the current session of the Legislature, which would put the idea of permanent automobile license plates into operation.

Permanent Licenses

The idea is a good one, even though Mr. Bonham's bill may not be suitable to practical application. Without an opportunity to study the bill, we gain from the News that Mr. Bonham would supply only a permanent car license plate, and an additional tag would be sold the automobile owner each year to show that the annual license fee had been paid.

Our own suggestion was that the idea be carried even further, and we still think this is best. We believe it would be simpler merely to charge a fee that could be arrived at by the determining expected life of the automobile, and charging an original fee for this pre-determined number of years. The tax could be paid by the automobile dealer, charged to the purchaser, and pro-rated among the installment payments through which the average automobile owner eventually gains title to his car.

The plan would relieve the state of the tremendous cost of collecting the automobile license fees each year, a saving that would not accrue under the Bonham plan. And, if a permanent fee had been paid upon purchase of the car, there would be no necessity for the annual purchase of tags. The only additional bookkeeping expense to the State would be a method of recording subsequent sales of the car after the original purchase.

A value of the plan which the News points out is that, being permanent, the license tags could be made more difficult of removal, which would eliminate an aid to our thieves. The plan also could be tied into the uniform automobile title law in use in some states, the News points out, the adoption of which by Texas has been urged as the most effective move toward reducing motor theft.

Permanent license plates are practical, would result in easier collections, less expense to the state, and would work a hardship on no one. Some such plan should be worked out by the legislature at the present session.

A group of college students, in convention at New Orleans last week, adopted a resolution calling upon colleges to come out in the open in the matter of granting athletic scholarships or other favors to athletes. The boys are talking sense. If schools are to grant privileges to members of the football and other athletic teams representing the colleges, there is no logical argument why such action should be camouflaged.

Paying Athletes

It is well known to followers of college athletics that many star football players are induced to enter school, and are retained in school after entry, largely through the fact that, under one guise or another, they are granted scholarships. This practice is in general use by colleges and universities throughout the United States. It is not particularly offensive, nor is there great objection to this either from the colleges themselves or from outsiders.

Good football teams are recognized as good advertisements for the colleges they represent. They receive too much attention, to be sure, but nothing we can do will change that. If some of the athletes are kept in school through scholarships, why not acknowledge such a fact, and come out in the open with it?

We believe it would result in fewer outright payments to athletes, would make for cleaner athletics, and would remove much of the stigma of the scholarships and other favors being granted in semi sub rosa fashion by many schools today.

Many people confuse the so-called "Rayburn Bill" pending in Congress, with efforts of the State to establish orderly supervision over the operations of the public utility companies within the state. The two measures are entirely different; the one a vicious measure designed to throttle development of utilities, the other a state attempt to establish sane regulations which would be uniform throughout the State.

The Rayburn Bill is a definite threat to all business. It would destroy the public utility holding companies. In doing so, even though it wiped out the savings of the thousands of individual stockholders in utility companies in this country, if it stopped there the bill might not be vicious. But it is the opening wedge for drastic Federal control and supervision over all business, large or small.

If holding companies are wrong in the utility field, they are wrong in every line of business, and, during recent years, holding companies have been important agencies in the development of banks, automobile companies, and almost every other form of industry that extends further than the one-store business.

The United States government, it has been pointed out, stands in the same position toward the 48 states as does an electric holding company that has an interest in 48 operating companies.

The errors of some companies should not be chargeable to all companies. To legislate them out of business would not only cripple the utilities, none too prosperous under depression conditions, but would cause tremendous personal loss to many investors.

By ARCH SELWYN Theatrical Producer

"Arnold Rothstein always fascinated me, although he was a menace to organized society. I had known him as a boy. He came from upright people, who felt disgraced when he ran away from home, to follow the career of a gambler. I always followed news of his career," related Arch Selwyn, the theatrical producer. "Rothstein had a weird and definite premonition of fate that was going to overtake his later career, and he didn't run away from it. "I once told Rothstein," he continued, "that I would like to see a certain gambling house where, it was reputed the leaders of gangdom gambled with one another and where fabulous sums were exchanged in cash."

Mr. Selwyn is a good theatrical producer and the sight of $50,000 in cash is a good show, even to a veteran theater man, he admitted.

"Rothstein promised to take me to a private house in New York city to watch the gambling. One night he called me for dinner. A Mr. B. joined us and Rothstein exacted from us a promise that neither of us would gamble. "This gang," he said, "has a code and a language all its own, and you fellows can't play with it."

"Rothstein started to throw the dice. The first bet was $25,000.

"In the meantime Rothstein was losing. In the end he lost $300,000 to three men. Usually these men in gangdom pay their gambling debts at once, in cash. This time, Rothstein could not pay in cash. However, he promised to pay soon.

"In fifteen minutes, after B's departure, Rothstein called me from the scene which had fascinated me like a bizarre foreign spectacle. He rushed me to Dinty Moore's.

"There, in a panic, in the cold perspiration of fear, was B. He collapsed before us.

"You can't imagine what happened to me," he whispered. "When I came down the steps, three fellows stuck their guns in me and ordered, 'Hand over the $1,500.' I never was so frightened."

"Didn't I tell you to wait for me?" said Rothstein.

"Yes, but," began B.

"You'll learn not to gamble with guys like those," Rothstein admonished. Then, seeing that B. was trembling, he said, 'Give back the money,' to the fellows in the corner whom he had planted on the stairway to give B. a scare.

"Two months later I was in the Warwick hotel, where it happened Rothstein had an apartment. He saw me in the lobby and said he wanted to talk to me. 'It's about those fellows I lost that money to. They sure have been giving me a ride. I can't pay now. I will later, but I must stall them off.' "We went upstairs. The phone rang. Rothstein's premonition now haunted him. After answering it, Rothstein said, 'It's those very guys calling me. They want me to come over to the hotel.' "Why do you go?" I asked.

"Because if I don't they will think I am a coward trying to run away. I know what it means, I must go."

"That night Rothstein was fatally shot. He had several chances to tell who shot him. He refused. "There is nothing more ghostly or macabre than thus coming face to face with a consummated premonition of violent death."

NEED OF BEAUTIFYING ALONG RAILROADS, TOO

By WILL H. MAYES Efforts to beautify the Texas highways are most commendable and will make our roadways, and especially the approaches to the cities and towns, very attractive to the visitors who will be coming to the Texas Centennial and touring the State in 1936 by automobile and bus.

But what about the other 40 or 50 per cent of our visitors who will be coming by rail? What impressions will they get of Texas when they see the badly neglected right of ways over which the railway trains are operated, and especially when they approach the railway stations through lanes of the most unsightly and uninhabitable shacks imaginable, with the railway property in many cases uses as dumping grounds for the uncleanly shack dwellers?

The railroads can hardly be held responsible for the kind of buildings that line their tracks through the towns but the citizens of any place can and should create a sentiment that will result in the removal of these unsanitary, unsightly health and fire hazards from the conspicuous locations to less prominent places. Could a movement of this kind be started now, the railroads will render every possible assistance. They can't start a movement to get the shiftless population moved from along their lines, but the towns can do this, and they should be backed by public sentiment.

There is one thing, though, that the railroads can do and should begin immediately. They can follow the example of the State Highway Department and grade their right of ways to proper levels and seed them to native grasses and flowers, rather than leave unsightly dumps wherever the railroad builders years ago found it convenient to leave them.

There has been little or no improvement of this kind by Texas railroads since they were built. They have spent large sums for attractive stations and for beautifying station grounds in many places, but the right of ways, even in the cities, remain neglected and unsightly.

Making them a bit more sightly for travelers should be a profitable investment, for as between routes in travel, tourists almost invariably select that which gives promise of the most attractive scenery.

College Station—"From district schools in mattress making for home demonstration agents conducted by the Extension specialist in home improvement, carried by the agents to demonstrators in the women's clubs, and by the demonstrators to the cooperators and others, information worth thousands of dollars to rural women has spread rapidly in the past few years," says Mrs. Bernice Claytor, Extension specialist in home improvement.

"In 1932, 1317 mattresses were made at home by rural women; in 1933, 1723 were made; and in 1934, 1553 were made. No exact figures are available for 1935, but reports from home demonstration agents show that there is wide interest in the idea," Mrs. Claytor added.

Incomplete figures show that 25 mattress making schools have been held in the State during January and February of this year, and training has been given to a large number of women. These figures do not include demonstrations of mattress making and mattress renovating given to only one club or to one community, but take in only schools held for the benefit of several clubs or communities.

As part of a county-wide campaign to improve old mattresses, one mattress making school and three schools on the renovation of old mattresses were held in Montague county, five of whom were men, attended these schools. Committees will repeat the demonstration in five different communities where it is needed.

The first mattress making school in Hardeman county was held in November, 1933, and since that time more than 350 mattresses have been made. Other mattresses are being made in the county at the present time.

Falfurrias—A 30-ton trench silo filled with begarri bundles is being used by John Negri, Brooks county dairyman, to carry his dairy herd until Sudan pasture is available, according to Louis Franke, county agricultural agent. The work of constructing the silo, harvesting the feed, and filling the silo cost Mr. Negri $18, and this figure includes his own labor at current prices.

More than 50 persons have visited the Negri farm to observe the silo while construction, filling and feeding operations were under way. The trench silo is new to Brooks county, but Negri's demonstration plus the current shortage of roughage has converted many local dairymen to this economical method of storing feed, according to the county agent.

Panhandle.—In choosing a balanced menu from the 659 containers in her pantry, Mrs. L. L. Stalls of Carson county can supply everything except bread, according to Miss Dalton Burleson, home demonstration agent. Mrs. Stalls has a total of 60 varieties of meats, vegetables, fruits, pickles and relishes from which to choose, and even has 12 cans of fruit cake. She produces milk, eggs and butter at home and also has enough home made soap stored in the cellar to last for a long period of time.

Gilmer.—With a total cash expenditure of $1, Mrs. Ivey Reynolds of Upshur county has transformed a bare unpapered clothes closet without shelves or rods into a nicely painted and papered one with shelves for folded clothing, and a rod for hangers, she reports.

EFFORTS MADE HERE TO SECURE ARMORY FOR NATIONAL GUARD

Efforts are being made to secure a federal appropriation for the construction of a National Guard armory here. Chester Harrison, secretary of Brownwood chamber of commerce, has received a communication from the Adjutant General stating that the federal government plans to appropriate from $40,000 to $80,000 for each National Guard unit for the construction of armories. The appropriations are to be used for materials and labor, and the funds will be obtainable only in cases where the land is donated.

City Council, at a called meeting Monday afternoon voted their approval of plans made to secure an armory for Brownwood. Telegrams were sent to various government officials sanctioning any efforts that might be made to secure an appropriation if the appropriations are made available.

In telegrams to Senators Connally and Sheppard Mayor Thompson said, "We respectfully urge your support of the movement to allocate sufficient funds from the work relief appropriation to construct armories for National Guard units in the United States. Our two local units are inadequately housed. No better use could be made of the money appropriated for work relief. The city of Brownwood will donate the site for an armory."

Resolutions expressing approval of the plan to set aside funds from the new public works program for the building of armories were passed at a joint meeting of the Isham A. Smith American Legion Post and Auxiliary Tuesday night. They sent telegrams urging this appropriation to President Roosevelt, Secretary of War Dern, Senators Connally and Sheppard, and Congressman South.

Answers to the telegrams sent officials were received by Mayor Thompson and by Commander Joe Blagg of the Legion Post later in the week. Senator Sheppard said in his telegram to Mayor Thompson that he would work to secure allocation of part of the public works funds to be used for the construction of the proposed armories.

FARM CENSUS DATA SENT TO WASHINGTON

Final figures released from the headquarters office of the Federal Farm Census of 1935 show that there are 351 more farms and ranches in the 27 counties of the 21st congressional district than there were in 1930. There are 24,767 farms and ranches in these counties as compared to 24,416 in 1930.

The office was closed with the completion of work in this district last week. T. J. O'Connell of San Antonio, area census supervisor, was here for the closing of the office. The census was begun January 2.

W. R. Chambers of May was district supervisor of the census. Fred Bell was his assistant. Others who worked in the headquarters office were Brooke D. Smith, Chas. Bynum, and Miss Lillie Bowman. Sixty-five enumerators were employed in the 27 counties in making the actual census.

Brown county gained in number of farms and ranches the past five years. An increase of 156 was shown by the census. San Saba county showed no change, Coleman, Sterling, Concho, Runnels, McCulloch, Kinney and Mason had fewer farms than they had in 1930. All other counties showed an increase in farms and ranches.

Figures on the value of farms, and farm property, livestock values, acreage, and other similar data can be released only by the Bureau of Census in Washington. It will probably be several months before this data is available.

Figures for the 27 counties of the district on the number of farms and ranches now as compared to the number in 1930, are as follows:

Where the FAMILY Really Counts

WHERE the people live and earn and work... together. Where joys and sorrows are shared. Where little things mean so much to happiness. Where success is still measured by the good old standards. Where family traditions are founded and handed down to new generations. Where modern conveniences are really appreciated because they come as a striking contrast to the background of pioneering hardships which the families of people have experienced.

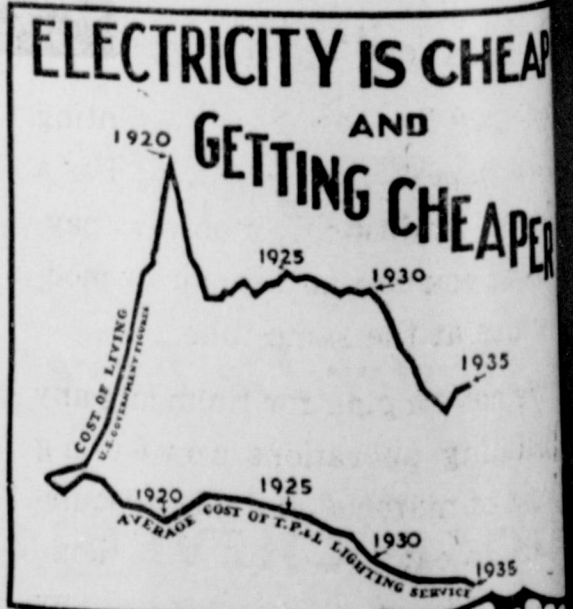

That is where the services of the Texas Power & Light Company have been extended during the past 22 years. To the people. Where they have hewn out homes and communities from the raw resources of nature. These people could not pick up their property and move it to some favored place where electric service already existed. It had to be brought to them!

They wanted this service. They needed it! It was brought to them by the initiative of private industry working for the public good. The Texas Power & Light Company built the first transmission line in Texas 22 years ago. Each year these lines have been extended to serve more communities. Today more than 300 Texas towns are served by these lines (230 of them having less than 1,000 population).

One hundred and ninety-seven of these towns served today never had electric service... the people had no electrical conveniences... until this Company made the investments necessary to serve them.

To the people transmission line electric service brings comfort, convenience, health, safety, and opportunities for individual and collective advancement. The business of the Texas Power & Light Company is... and has been... and always will be... to bring transmission line service "To Those Who Need It Most!" And to serve it at the lowest possible cost to the people.

This Company's rates for lighting service have been reduced... voluntarily... more than 35% during the past ten years.

All Tax Renditions Should Be Made By May 1, Palmer Says

Renditions on all property for county and state taxation, must be in the office of Tax Collector Winston Palmer by May 1. All property not rendered by that time will go on the unrendered rolls. Mr. Palmer urges all property owners, particularly homestead owners, to render their property at once if they have not already done so.

He also calls attention to the fact that the penalty on delinquent taxes will be increased from 3 to 4 percent May 1st, will be 5 per cent after June 1 and that regular period and interest will go into effect July 1.

A total of $34,163.94 was collected in delinquent taxes in Brown county during the month of March. The current 1934 taxes collected totaled $6,215.54. To date a total of 4,395 automobiles have been registered, which is only 1,400 short of the entire number for 1934.

Ebony — A net profit of $28.85 was made from a flock of 194 hens during February by Homer Foster of Rains county, according to his report to Roy King, county agricultural agent. Foster's hens produced 2,958 eggs during the month, and he believes that by keeping a good laying mash before his birds at all times he can continue to expect good production. Foster sells infertile eggs which he guarantees to be good, and therefore he receives a small premium on all sales.

Eldorado — Seven Schleher county 4-H club boys received a total of $2100 for their club work during 1934, according to C. Snell, county agricultural agent. The boys fed 112 head of lambs and won $409 in prize money at two shows. The sale prices for the lambs varied from seven and one-half cents to $3.50 per pound. Cecil Moore sold his prize-winning club lamb at $3.50 per pound, and Edgard Sauer sold his lamb for $1 per pound. A car load of lambs brought $9.75 per hundred.

Kashgar in Rich Oasis Kashgar is in a rich oasis at the confluence of roads leading to Peiping, India and Russia. It is a collection of squalid huts enclosed within a mud wall. The new town, which was constructed in 1838, is almost as large as the old. From 1804 to 1877 Kashgar was the capital of an independent Mohammedan kingdom embracing the western portion of the Chinese empire. The population is about 50,000.

Preliminary Work On Road Beautification Ends, Planting Starts

Preliminary work in the highway beautification program now under way in this county was completed last week and the work of planting shrubs and flowers started Monday.

The preliminary work included installation of a drainage system at the Y north of the courthouse, digging of planting beds and filling grade dump to specifications in preparation to actual sodding of the embankment on either side of the pavement.

Rapid progress is being made on the two buildings being constructed at division headquarters. The roof has been placed on the steel frame of the warehouse and the wall is practically completed. Laying of brick and tile on the two-story office building is up to the second floor.

COLOR IN THE GARDEN

By DR. C. R. CONNORS
Head, Department of Ornamental Horticulture, N. J. College of Agriculture and Experiment Station, Rutgers University.

Every garden should have its quota of those perennial flowers which come up with so little trouble year after year. The gardener will make his selection according to the section of the country in which he lives, of course, but peonies, iris, day-lilies and hardy chrysanthemums are among the old, familiar favorites that are reasonably permanent and adaptable over a wide range of climate.

Since these plants are to remain in one spot for a period of years, it is essential that the soil be especially well prepared prior to planting and that fertilizer be applied every year.

The aster Mauve Cushion, at the right above, is one of the newer hybrid hardy asters. The name is descriptive of the color, and since the plant is dwarf in growth it is particularly well suited to the rock garden or the perennial border.

Most asters should be divided every year or two for best results, but this one will go for three or four years without any need for division.

Annual flowering plants provide the gardener with some of the most desirable of cut flowers and may be grown either in beds by themselves or as filler for the perennial border when their bloom has past.

The fresh, crisp color of the nasturtium, shown below, makes this sturdy little plant a general favorite with gardeners everywhere. It is very satisfactory as an annual if it is kept free of plant lice. The double variety, Golden Gleam, created a sensation when it first appeared, and double flowered varieties can now be obtained in many colors.

Similarly other annuals are constantly being improved. Snapdragons, for example, may now be obtained in varieties that are resistant to snapdragon rust, and China asters in a wide range of colors and types are now resistant to wilt.

A very fine, yellow cosmos is on the market, and the feathery daintiness of this plant in the white, crimson and pink varieties makes it excellent cutting material. Improvements in the old-fashioned zinnia and marigold also are noteworthy.

Success with annuals is assured only when the best is purchased, and when it is sown at the proper time in carefully prepared soil. Thinning or transplanting to prevent the plants from growing too close together, frequent cultivation and prompt removal of withered flowers are other essential practices.

Nobody's Business

By JULIAN CAPERS JR.

Austin, April 15.—Whether conditions on Retrieve prison farm are disgraceful, as charged by Dolly Boyett, prison board member, or whether sensational stories of mistreatment of prisoners are exaggerated, will be finally determined by a house probe committee. Houston newspapers "broke" the story. Prison Manager Lee Simmons denied it. Ranger Capt. McDaniel investigated at the governor's order, upheld Simmons. The house, unconvinced, named its own committee to look into the matter.

Outraged at propaganda stories in favor of federal oil dictatorship being published in national magazines and elsewhere, in which immoderate attacks on the integrity of Texas public officials, and wild statements about the volume of "hot" oil flowing in Texas—which are refuted by official figures of the U. S. bureau of mines—Rep. Augustin Celeya of Brownsville has written a resolution calling for a house committee to investigate the charges, and if they are found untrue to issue an official denial. The house was to consider the suggestion during this week.

Texans are active on other fronts this week. In New Orleans ex-Gov. Dan Moody has been making good on advance forecasts that he would cause the Huey Long political machine some sleepless nights in his prosecution of federal income tax evasion indictments against certain Long henchmen. Whatever the jury decides, observers are unanimous in New Orleans, according to word reaching Austin, that Moody was never a more relentless prosecutor than in his presentment of the government's case against State Representative Joseph Fisher, in U. S. district court at the Crescent City.

In Washington this week Col. E. O. Thompson, railroad commission chairman, was to offer an eloquent and logical plea against federal dictatorship for oil before the senate mines and mining subcommittee. A statement prepared for presentation to the committee by Col. Thompson asserts the Thomas bill ought to die in committee because:

- "1. There is no conceivable necessity for this drastic legislation.
- "2. It is undoubtedly unconstitutional.
- "3. It will retard recovery and cause chaos and uncertainty in the third largest American industry.
- "4. It seeks to change our system of government and violates every principle of state sovereignty in express contradiction of President Roosevelt's public utterance on the oil question of April 3, 1933.

"3. The overwhelming majority of the industry and the oil producing states are opposed to it."

Col. Thompson eloquently developed this brief by pointing out that the Cole oil investigating committee, named by congress to study the whole oil question, failed to recommend federal oil dictatorship and asserted specifically that federal control "was full of constitutional questions."

"Even the most ardent supporters of the present Thomas federal dictator bill will not contend that hot oil in any appreciable amount is being run today," he said. "It has been reduced to a minimum. The price is firm at $1 a barrel, and production is a quarter million barrels less than consumption and export daily."

Decision of the Third court of civil appeals, at Austin, that the Texas anti-trust laws are invalid, and holding the state has had no anti-trust laws since 1911, will not mark the end of the Allied suits against major oil companies. Atty. Gen. Bill McCraw, inheritor of the suits, remarked tersely: "The question is deserving of an expression from the supreme court," and forthwith prepared to take the case there. But the decision does present an interesting sidelight on legislative blunders.

The court found that in 1902 the U. S. supreme court held Illinois anti-trust laws invalid, because they exempted farmers and stockmen. The following year, Texas revised its anti-trust laws to meet this objection. In 1911, in recodifying Texas laws, the legislature managed to get the original version back into the revised statutes. In 1925 the statutes were again revised, again the exemption of farmers appeared in the revision.

The Austin district court dismissed the attorney general's conspiracy suits against 15 major oil companies because, it held, the NRA superseded the Texas anti-trust laws. The appeals court did not pass on this interesting question, but held the legislature clearly intended to exempt farms, since the exemption was carried through two revisions. When the supreme court rules, the legislature may have to enact new anti-trust legislation, possibly also new laws to permit farm cooperative associations.
