Kidnapper draws 25-year prison sentence

John Edward Arbuckle received a 25-year prison sentence for a 2008 kidnapping when the district court met in Donley County Monday.

Arbuckle pleaded true to allegations listed in the State's Motion to Adjudicate Guilt and was convicted and sentenced to 25 years in the Institutional Division of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice.

The defendant originally pleaded guilty on May 18, 2009, to the first degree felony offense of aggravated kidnapping that occurred on July 28, 2008 in Donley County.

On that date, a McLean man was kidnapped in Amarillo and was later being taken through Clarendon when the suspects stopped at Lowe's Family Center. There the victim managed to get loose, make his way into the store, and seek help.

Arbuckle was one of two defendants indicted for the first degree felony of aggravated kidnapping. James Brinkley was convicted and sentenced to 20 years in 2009.

District Attorney Luke Inman prosecuted the cases for the State of Texas with the Honorable Judge Dan Mike Bird presiding this week by assignment.

"This closes out a case where a kidnapping victim broke free from his assailants here in Donley County," said Inman. "Both defendants now will be doing a substantial amount of time for this crime which spanned over several counties."

The State filed the motion to adjudicate on June 3, 2010, alleging six violations of community supervision. Arbuckle pleaded true to all violations contained in the State's motion and was sentenced to 25 years in the TDCJ.

Judge Bird also found that a deadly weapon was used during the commission of the offense, which will require Arbuckle to do at least 50 percent of the sentence before becoming parole eligible.

Arbuckle is also required to pay $640 in court costs to Donley County.

Clarendon man saves old furniture from the junk pile

By Ashlyn Tubbs, Clarendon Enterprise

An abandoned chair lay by a dumpster in the alley. Abused, broken and regarded as junk, it waited the arrival of the Clarendon city trash truck.

But then Wayne Tubbs entered the scene. After looking the chair over, he picked it up and carried it back to his workshop, where it became one of the many pieces of old furniture he reconstructs to look brand new.

"That was about six years ago, and we still have that chair today in our upstairs bathroom," said Patsy Tubbs, Wayne's wife. "He's redone a lot of the furniture in our household, and for many other people as well. I call him the Chairman of Clarendon."

Wayne said that his inspiration to begin fixing furniture came from his grandfather.

"I used to help my grandpa, Earl Berry, in Carrizozo, New Mexico, fix stuff in the late 40s and early 50s," Wayne said. "Back then they didn't have any money, so they had to make just about everything they had. He did all kinds of work as a blacksmith and carpenter, and he even made windmill towers out of wood. He was a jack of all trades."

Wayne started repairing and refinishing furniture for people in 1996, after he retired from his position as superintendent over El Paso Natural Gas Company.

"I've been working with furniture all my life, but it became a hobby after I retired," Wayne said. "We were living in Roswell, New Mexico, at the time, and there was a lady there who had a warehouse full of antiques. She wanted her stuff fixed, so I started working for her, mainly on rebuilding chairs and tables, until I moved to Clarendon in 2003."

His work did not stop there though. Since he moved to Clarendon, Wayne has rarely had an empty workshop or any idle time.

"I've done work on a roll-top desk, tables and chairs for the Saints Roost Museum; redone doors for the Clarendon Schools; rebuilt stairs and made stair railing for the First United Methodist Church; did quite a bit of work for Poor Boys Antique Shop; built the box that held Kevin Johnston's spurs that were presented to George W. Bush; and I make picture frames for Patsy's paintings," Wayne said. "I also do a lot of work for many other local customers."

One of his local customers is Virginia Patten.

"Wayne refinished a slant top desk that's in my office, and it was a piece of junk," she said. "It was my grandparents' desk from the late 1800s, and my parents used it at The Grocery Store. He saw it and said he could fix it, and now it's one beautiful piece of furniture. As a trademark, he even left one of my father's cigarette burns on it. It's worth millions to me. If my house were on fire, I would get that desk out."

He has also done numerous pieces for Freddie Jo Moreman.

"Wayne is an artist in his trade," Moreman said. "He is very thorough and detailed in his work. There's not many people anymore who can do woodwork like him. I've been pleased with everything he's done for me."

Hedley taps Conatser for secretary

By Ashlyn Tubbs & Roger Estlack, Clarendon Enterprise

Jason Conatser was tapped as the next city secretary in Hedley during a called meeting of the Board of Aldermen last Thursday.

Conatser succeeds Randy Shaw, who has held the position for almost 19 years. Shaw's last day of full time employment was Friday. He announced his resignation July 1, and City Clerk Rhonda Shaw and maintenance worker Roger Hager resigned also.

Conatser was originally hired for Hager's position at a July 20 called meeting, and Bill Farris was hired as secretary. Farris quit three days later.

During last Thursday's meeting, Alderman Leon Ward suggested offering the secretary's position to Conatser, and Shaw put in a good word for him.

"He's had a great attitude and is catching on fast to a lot of stuff," he said.

Ward said he would like to see Conatser have a month with Shaw to learn everything that needs to be done. Shaw said he could help for a couple of weeks but not for 40 hours a week.

The board unanimously approved motions to hire Conatser as secretary and to hire Shaw on an hourly basis.

Wreck injures Memphis family

Three people remained hospitalized at press time following a single car rollover Sunday afternoon four miles east of Clarendon.

According to Department of Public Safety Trooper Kellan Roberts, Neil David Alderman, age 29 of Memphis was traveling eastbound on US 287 in a 2003 silver Pontiac Grand Am at 6:29 p.m. when he ran off the road and hit a culvert at County Road 16.

The car then became airborne and came down on its right front, beginning to roll until it ended up in the median. The car came to rest on its top facing southbound.

Alderman along with front passenger Sandra Shahan, 27, and rear passengers nine-month-old David Neil Alderman and two-year-old Cody Alderman were all transported to Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo, where they all remain in critical condition except for David, who suffered minor injuries.

The wreck are still under investigation, and charges are pending.

Trucker avoids serious injury during Friday rollover

By Ashlyn Tubbs, Clarendon Enterprise

A California man escaped injury during a single freightliner rollover that occurred July 29 about two miles west of Clarendon.

According to Department of Public Safety Trooper Chad Simpson, Jose Quinones, age 50, from Long Beach, Calif., was traveling northwest bound on US 287 at 7:59 a.m. in the inside lane, and the outside lane was closed and barricaded with construction barrels.

The left wheels of the freightliner traveled off the roadway and into the muddy center median, and the left wheels dug into the mud, pulling the freightliner into the center median. Quinones overcorrected while steering to the right, sliding the freightliner sideways across the northwest bound lanes of US 287 and rolling onto its left side into the north ditch.

Perry Harrison of Bismarck, Illinois, told the ENTERPRISE that he witnessed the accident.

"He got into that construction area and lost control," Harrison said. "I've never seen anything like it before in my life."

In order to free Quinones from the vehicle, the Clarendon Volunteer Fire Department had to cut him out. Simpson said Quinones suffered no injuries, and no citations were issued.

Responding to this accident were DPS, Donley County Sheriff's Office, Associated Ambulance Authority, Clarendon VFD, and the Texas Department of Transportation.

Jose Quinones' Freightliner rests on its side after a rollover west of Clarendon Friday morning.

Judge Bean a historic Texas figure

Nearly 130 years ago this month, a larger than life figure with a colorful past and an unorthodox set of principles became the first justice of the peace to serve in the lawless country between the Pecos and Rio Grande. Dubbing himself the "Law West of the Pecos," Roy Bean was appointed as justice of Pecos County on August 2, 1882, leaving a trail of questionable encounters and his own narrow escapes from the law behind him.

To this day, the line between fact and fiction in the life of Roy Bean remains blurred. According to most accounts, Roy was born in Mason County, Kentucky in 1825 to Francis and Anna Bean. He left home as a teenager to join his brother Samuel driving oxen down the Santa Fe Trail to Chihuahua, Mexico. The Bean brothers began working as traders in Chihuahua, but Roy soon got into trouble and fled to San Diego, where his brother Joshua served as mayor and was well respected among the residents. In 1851, Joshua was appointed major general of the state militia and relocated to San Gabriel.

In February 1852, Roy was thrown into jail after a duel, but he managed to escape and moved swiftly to join his brother in San Gabriel. Joshua owned a general store and the Headquarters Saloon there, which Roy inherited after his brother's murder in November 1852. With jet black hair and a fair complexion, Roy was considered attractive and well-dressed, once even described as "handsome as an Adonis." In San Gabriel, Roy quickly used his looks and charms to his advantage, trying his luck with gambling and cockfighting, and winning the attention of many local ladies. Roy was known to carry two revolvers in his belt and a Bowie knife secured in one of his boots.

Trouble soon found Roy again, and after several duels, Roy was once again forced to flee the region in the late 1850s. Roy was eventually reunited with Samuel in Mesilla, New Mexico, where Samuel served as sheriff. The brothers soon continued the family trend and opened a saloon, which flourished until the Civil War reached the Rio Grande Valley.

Roy then moved to San Antonio and earned a reputation for his sly ability to escape creditors and the law; a portion of South Flores Street became known as "Beantown" in his honor. In 1866, he married Virginia Chavez, with whom he had four children. Their marriage was short-lived, however, and in 1882 Roy traveled west with the men building the Sunset railroad. He eventually made his way to Vinegarroon, just west of the Pecos, where he set up a "tent saloon" and found the railroad workers to have an appetite for the whiskey he peddled.

With lawlessness running rampant in the region, as was typical to the end of any railroad tracks, Texas Rangers were called in. They determined a local justice of the peace was needed to bring order to the region and also save them from making the 400-mile round trip required to deliver prisoners to the Pecos County seat at Fort Stockton. Roy had earned the respect of the Rangers and was officially appointed as justice by Pecos County commissioners in 1882. He would go on to serve in that capacity, with at least two interruptions, for the next 20 years.

A December 1882 article in the San Antonio Weekly Express described Roy as "generous, brave, courteous, and a keen lover of fun. He holds court anywhere and carries a pocketful of blank warrants, one of which he will fill out and sign at a minute's notice." The same article painted a colorful picture of his leadership style: "Recently his honor got very drunk and wanted to run things. 'I'm the law here,' he cried, jerking out his six-shooter, 'and if anybody don't like it, they better hide out, for I've got my war paint on, and when Old Roy gets his paint on, he's hell.'" Still, Roy was respected for bringing order to the region, albeit by questionable means. On one occasion, when a man fell off a bridge and died, Roy fined the corpse for the same amount he had been carrying when he was found - $40. Roy figured that money would cover the funeral expenses. While he was known to intimidate, cheat and make up the rules as he went, he never hanged anyone during his tenure. Roy passed away in his saloon on March 16, 1903. He is interred at the Whitehead Memorial Museum in Del Rio.

Today Judge Roy Bean remains a fixture in Texas and American folklore, even serving as the subject of the Oscar-nominated 1970s film, The Life and Times of Judge Roy Bean, starring Paul Newman as Bean. While billed as a fictitious account, the film was fitted with a tagline that probably best summarizes the colorful life and legacy of Roy Bean: "If this story ain't true... it shoulda been."

Preserve flexibility in health care

It has always been my view that Americans are better qualified to make decisions about their own lives than the federal government. This is especially true when it comes to something as personal and consequential as health care. I have long advocated for the broad availability of health care insurance options that maximize patient choice and planning.

Health savings accounts (HSAs) and flexible spending accounts (FSAs) are innovative and popular health options that employers, both large and small, are increasingly offering to their employees. These accounts allow individuals to set aside a certain amount of money each year on a pre-tax basis in order to pay for various health care expenses. Because employee contributions are made before they are taxed, these accounts are another way to ease Americans' growing tax burden. Enrollees have been able to use these funds for costly medical services, such as dental or vision, and to help allay the expenses associated with chronic illnesses.

Americans are flocking to take advantage of these benefits. Over 35 million employees are enrolled in FSAs, and another 10 million have chosen to receive benefits through HSAs. Consumers are drawn to these plans because they emphasize flexibility and choice. The programs are also growing in popularity because they help Americans plan for upcoming medical expenses, which can factor significantly into household budgets.

For many Texans, enrollment in FSAs and HSAs is not merely a choice of common sense or convenience — it is an imperative. Individuals who are self-employed or work on a contract or commission basis, for example, may not have the same income level from year to year. Enrollment in an FSA or HSA ensures that, in the event of a medical emergency or when facing a costly chronic illness, families have a safety net to help cover out-of-pocket costs.

Despite the popularity — and, in many cases, the necessity — of HSAs and FSAs, the newly enacted health care law, pushed through by the Obama Administration, will place significant limitations on these plans. Starting next year, the health law will prohibit individuals from using either HSA or FSA funds to purchase over-the-counter medication unless they have a prescription from their doctor. One of the reasons these programs have been so popular is that they give patients the freedom to use their benefits for non-prescription purchases without the added costs of needless visits to their physicians' offices.

Another provision in the new health care law will also limit patients' cost savings by placing an arbitrary across-the-board cap of $2,500 on flexible spending accounts. Prior to enactment of the Democrats' health care bill, there was no federal cap that an employer had capitol comment

by sen. kay bailey hutchison

to comply with in order to offer FSA benefits to employees. Consequently, the median limit on FSA benefits has been $4,500. Reducing the contribution level to $2,500 will indirectly raise health care costs and add to the tax burden for many Americans who subscribe to these benefits.

By placing these limitations on HSAs and FSAs, the health care law undermines the fundamental benefits of flexibility, choice, and cost savings. These unexpected provisions in the health care law defy common sense and deny Americans' flexible access to quality, affordable care of their choosing. For these reasons, I have introduced the Patients Freedom to Choose Act, which would repeal these provisions. My legislation would repeal the $2,500 limit on FSAs. It would also allow over-the-counter drugs to be purchased through these accounts.

This is just one of many efforts that my colleagues and I will undertake to reverse the damaging policies of President Obama's health care "reforms." As the true effects of the rushed health care bill come to light, we are sure to see more of these types of disastrous consequences. The alarming reality of this new law is that it makes the federal government a part of every health care decision Americans make for themselves, their families, and their businesses. The law will raise taxes and premiums. It is laden with mandates, fines, and hidden cost increases. The health care law signals the increasing size and role of the Federal government in every family and business decision.

Still time to get in some summer reading

During the past several days, how many times have you heard the question, "Where has the summer gone so quickly?" The first week in August has a tendency to direct our thoughts in those terms. Especially when we realize school will be starting for our children in less than three weeks.

Since other activities may become more demanding at this time, you might not have as much time to complete as many books as you usually do in a month. As you continue your library visits for books, how about using some of that time to enjoy authors you haven't considered recently but whose writings you once cherished and have even re-read?

Mystery fans, how long has it been since you have read Phyllis Whitney, Nora Roberts, Belva Plane and Mary Higgins Clark's romance suspense or John Grisham's and Tom Clancy's "spine-tingling" mysteries? How about George E. Turner who successful elements are combined in Murder in the Palo Duro and Other Panhandle Mysteries? And Tony Hillerman with his stories of Southwest Native People?

You may want to "skim" inspirational selections from Rosamunde Pilchey and Janette Oke. Oke's eight-book series, Love Comes Softly, is dramatized on Hallmark Channel now.

Max Lucado, among the seven most admired Christian writers in America, writes with a matchless style which holds readers' interest from first page to last. His talent enables him to present a serious point in an interesting, clever, thought-provoking manner.

You are in for a treat when you discover Lois T. Henderson's novels of Biblical Fiction. Her writings adhere to basic truth of stories as told in the Bible. Her accurate research allows presentation of Biblical facts intertwined with imaginary events.

Readers might also want to examine Texas and Western selections. Popular John Erickson, Louis L'Amour, Earl Thollander, A. L. Morgan, Will James, and Jean Andrews are only a few authors you might enjoy reviewing again.

There are only a few suggestions in which you might be interested while waiting for more time to return to Burton Memorial Library's abundant selections.

Plans continue for H-wick summer festival

The month of August is here, and it promises to be a busy month. It will be hot with us in the middle of the Dog Days of summer.

This time of year has been called "dog days" for at least 2000 years and originally had nothing to do with an old dog finding a cool, shady spot to rest in. Sirius is the brightest star we can see and was named the "Dog Star" by ancient Egyptians after god Osiris whose pictograms resembles a dog's head.

In the summer time Sirius was in conjunction with the sun, meaning they rose and set at the same time. Being smart people those Egyptians deduced the reason it was hot in summer was because of the added heat from Sirius. They named the 20 days before and 20 days after the conjunction "the dog days." In modern times, anything that slows down during summer time is referred to as dog days, such as the slowing down of the stock market.

Another August event is the Howardwick summer festival to be held in the park August 21. There will be live music, vendors, games, and food so come enjoy your neighbors.

An event I am hosting is an old-fashioned quilting bee to be held at the Howardwick Community Center at the park on August 17, 18, and 19. The pattern is called "Lone Star" or "Texas Star" and is hand pieced of hundreds of small diamond shaped pieces by my son-in-law's grandmother, Mildred Violet McAlister with the fabric dating to the late 1960s.

It is a large quilt, 108" square and anyone that is interested is invited to come quilt or if you are curious, come watch. My daughters, Cindy and Lori have never quilted; but before I began the project, it was with the understanding they would participate. So there will be newbie's along with the Golden Needles quilt club ladies.

I will be there from around

'wick picks

9 a.m. until everyone runs out of energy. Come and go as you please. I am looking forward to the event and hope some neighbors show up. Just bring a thimble if you have one and a sandwich if you are quilting through lunch.

The annual Perseides meteor shower will begin the evening of August 11 with possibly the best viewing the morning of August 12. Find a dark area of sky, put on some bug spray, sit back in your lawn chair and enjoy the show.

Last but not least, that big old yellow school bus begins its rounds again August 23. It seems as though the summer vacation time is getting shorter. I was right; August is a busy month.

Clarendon man works volunteers in Kenya

The first time Ashley Ratcliffe traveled to Kenya in 2005, it was to accompany her grandmother there as she taught a class for Wayland Baptist University's Kenya degree program there. That trip awakened in her a desire to return to the African nation, this time with a bigger purpose.

Ratcliffe got her wish recently as she participated in the Wayland Mission Center's three-week endeavor to Kenya for missions work. A junior secondary education major from Lubbock, Ratcliffe was primarily part of the trip's education team, charged with working at the Christ-Like Academy in Limuru for the duration of the trip. Aside from a few short trips into other parts of Kenya, the group worked with the small Christian school started in January 2009, serving lunch daily and helping the four teachers with their duties. The group also led a Vacation Bible School for one week and brought new clothes in extra suitcases for the students, who range in age from 6-12.

"I had always wanted to go back to Kenya, and I liked working with children in the schools," said Ratcliffe, who said she's long felt a call to missions and wants to be a teacher. "Even after the first time, I thought maybe Africa would be a good place to teach and minister."

This second trip, from which Ratcliffe and the group returned on Sunday, was not a disappointment. Ratcliffe said she also got to work with the medical team as they set up a clinic in Masailand, treating minor medical issues for about 800 people. All of those experiences made an impression.

"What really stuck with me, I think, is the joy of the people there," Ratcliffe said. "They have nothing, and they don't know they have nothing, but they are so grateful for a smile and someone to talk to them in English. It always seemed like they were in good spirits."

Another experience that blessed Ratcliffe was being able to live with the Kirimi family for the final week of her stay in Kenya, immersing herself in the Kenyan culture and learning how to cook some of the native meals. Linus Kirimi, who serves as the vice-principal of Kenya Baptist Theological College – which partners with WBU to offer degrees to native residents – and his wife Liz, who is the Wayland program coordinator on-site at KBTC, started the Christian school at which Ratcliffe served.

Besides the education team, a construction team built desks for the teachers at the school and put a tin roof over the kitchen area in order to free up more classroom space. The medical team served Kenyans in various locations, bringing along several extra suitcases of medicines including basic pain medications and antibiotics to treat minor medical cases. Discipleship and evangelism teams also were able to make many visits and share the gospel, with great results.

"The Kenya trip was quite successful, and quite a few persons professed faith in Jesus for the first time," said Dr. Rick Shaw, director of the Wayland Mission Center and the Kenya program and the trip leader.

The entire group got to travel to Western Kenya and the city of Kakamega, where they visited a church pastored by a Wayland-Kenya graduate and ate dinner at the home of the deputy mayor.

Religious education and English major Bradley Sell, a senior from Clarendon, spent his three-week stint on the construction team but got the added bonus of preaching twice on the trip. In his first venture outside the United States, he said the experience was different than back at home thanks to a translator.

While Sell said he feels a call to ministry with students, he knew the trip was ordained by God to open his eyes to His work around the world. And though he originally planned to go on the mission trip to Kosovo and Macedonia, other conflicting events left Kenya the next opportunity for overseas mission work.

"It was good for me because we have several Kenyan students who go to my church, so it was good to know more about their culture," he said. "Over the past year, the Lord has been working on me and making me realize I know nothing outside the Bible belt. I think He wanted me to experience (Kenya) to help in my ministry here in the future."

Sell said the trip made an impression on him spiritually and also reflected on the joy of the people as several of his teammates had.

"I was really affected by how universal the need for the Gospel is. The people there who knew the Lord were so joyful, even though they didn't have a lot of material things or even food. Those without the Lord were not joyful, even if they had more," he said. "It put things in perspective for me. The people were very giving and it was neat to see that. It's also made me see the urgency of sending people out everywhere and how big the world really is, yet how small it is at the same time."

The visiting Americans were also able to attend the graduation ceremonies at KBTC on July 23, where 30 students earned degrees from Wayland. The event lasted four hours – quite a change from the Plainview campus version of around 90 minutes – which Ratcliffe attributed to the celebratory nature of the event.

"It's really a big deal for people there to get a college degree, so they really have a big time," she said.

original condition. Wayne refinishes and repairs the old fashioned way, which he said is "still the best."

"I use a lot of tools that people used years and years ago, in fact I still use some of my grandfather's tools," Wayne said. "I make a lot of my own tools as well. Most of the old furniture I do by hand without the use of power tools or strippers with harsh acid."

Wayne and Patsy figure that he has worked on thousands of pieces of furniture throughout the years.

"When people bring furniture to me that's in pieces, I see it like a puzzle and I enjoy reconstructing it," he said.

Wayne's workshop continues to be full of old furniture awaiting an extreme makeover as more customers bring in "junk," but pick up works of art.

"I love seeing the furniture before and after he gets done working on it because it's always such a drastic change," Patsy said. "He continues to amaze me and each of his customers with his endless talents in woodworking."

Clarendon Church of Christ "I AM THE VINE, YOU ARE THE BRANCHES"

In John 15:5, Jesus makes the above statement. There have been misunderstandings about this scripture. It does not support authority for denominations or different churches. All we need to do to understand what the Lord is saying is read all of verses 5 and 6. (John 15:5-6) "I am the vine, you are the branches. He who abides in Me, and I in him, bears much fruit; for without Me you can do nothing. "If anyone does not abide in Me, HE is cast out as a BRANCH and is withered; and they gather them and throw them into the fire, and they are burned.

I emphasized he and branch because the Lord is saying the branches are individual Christians. All of these people would of course be lost if they do not continue or abide in Jesus. This scripture not only shows that Jesus was not condoning different denominations, but, that a person can be a follower of Jesus and still be lost. If a person is still unconvinced, he could also go back to verse 5. Jesus said "YOU are the branches." Who is the "YOU" in verse 5? If we remember, chapter 13 of John is the Passover feast. Jesus shows the great example of being a servant by washing the apostles' feet. If we remember, chapter 14 Jesus tells the apostles in verse 1, "Let not your heart be troubled...." The group Jesus is talking to is the apostles.

The apostles are the YOU of John 15:5, they are individuals. They do not represent different churches. They are to be the spokespeople of the church (singular) that Jesus spoke of in (Matthew 16:18) "And I also say to you that you are Peter, and on this rock I will build My church, and the gates of Hades shall not prevail against it. Notice, Jesus said church and not churches. Please study this vital subject for yourself.

BACK TO SCHOOL BASICS

Make back-to-school easier on whole family

(StatePoint) The start of a new school year is a hectic time for families. Between shopping for clothes and supplies, doctor appointments and adjusting to new schedules, parents and children can feel frazzled and frayed.

Here are some ways to beat back the chaos and ease your family's transition:

Establish a Routine

Set a wake-up time and decide whether to serve kids breakfast before or after getting ready. After school, let kids decompress alone or by playing with friends. But set a time when all entertainment stops and studying begins.

Make sure to take into consideration all those standing appointments and pre-scheduled activities.

Go Digital

Families traditionally turned to pen, paper and the refrigerator to coordinate calendars, schedules, shopping lists, and other to-dos -- but nowadays, this is often inefficient. Go digital instead, so your schedule comes to you and you can coordinate from your computers and cell phones.

Consider one of the free Web services available that brings families together online, such as Cozi.com, which allows you to create a calendar, coordinate schedules, and send text or e-mail reminders to family members about appointments and errands. You can even sync your Cozi calendar and shopping lists with your cell phones and mobile devices, so nobody has an excuse for missing that soccer game!

Create a Studying Space

Create a quiet place for schoolwork, making sure it's well-lit and stocked with supplies, like highlighters, calculators, and a computer. It's best if it's not the kitchen table, where noise and dinner can interrupt concentration.

The breakfast and dinner table, however, is a great place to discuss your family's schedules and to-do lists.

Relax

Scheduling recreation is as important as scheduling homework. By asking kids what their favorite activities are and making time for them to do things they like, you can teach your kids balance. Pre-scheduling recreation, like a family game or movie night, can show kids that relaxation time is important.

Check it Off

Creating checklists can keep things straight. Ironing outfits and packing gym clothes at night avoids morning bedlam. Packing lunch the night before also saves time and you're more likely to provide healthy foods, instead of slapping something together last minute.

Checklists also ensure no one forgets to pack the day's essentials. Introducing lists the whole family can access will also eliminate nagging and teach kids responsibility and independence. Most importantly, keep them short and manageable.

"Given today's fast pace, most families have to multitask to survive. With good common sense and the latest free online tools, it's easier to get parents and kids on the same page and make a busy life into a better life," says Robbie Cape, CEO of Cozi.com.

Good coordination can save more than time -- it can improve family communications, bringing everyone closer.

Texas families save with sales tax holiday

Texas shoppers get a break from state and local sales taxes on August 20, 21 and 22 - the state's annual tax holiday.

Lay-away plans can be used again this year to take advantage of the sales tax holiday.

As in previous years, the law exempts most clothing and footwear priced under $100 from sales and use taxes, which could save shoppers about $8 on every $100 they spend. Backpacks under $100 and used by elementary and secondary students are also exempt. A backpack is a pack with straps one wears on the back.

The exemption during the sales tax holiday includes backpacks with wheels, provided they can also be worn on the back like a traditional backpack, and messenger bags. The exemption does not include items that are reasonably defined as luggage, briefcases, athletic/duffel/gym bags, computer bags, purses or framed backpacks.

Ten or fewer backpacks can be purchased tax-free at one time without providing an exemption certificate to the seller.

The 81st Texas Legislature passed HB 1801 (2009) expanding the list of items qualifying for exemption from Texas state and local sales and use taxes during the annual sales tax holiday in August.

Effective this year, in addition to clothes, footwear and some backpacks, Texas families also get a sales tax break on most school supplies priced at less than $100 purchased for use by a student in an elementary or secondary school.

No exemption certificate is required - with one exception. If the purchaser is buying the supplies under a business account, the retailer must obtain an exemption certificate from the purchaser certifying that the items are purchased for use by an elementary or secondary school student.

Under a business account means the purchaser is using a business credit card or business check rather than a personal credit card or personal check; being billed under a business account maintained at the retailer; or is using a business membership at a retailer that is membership based.

Wind power representatives to speak in Floydada

FLOYDADA — A free meeting with speakers from Tres Amigas, a superstation which will serve as the nation's first renewable energy market hub, and OwnEnergy, a wind energy developer looking to help communities generate their own renewable power, will be hosted by Caprock Plains Wind Energy Association (CPWEA) on August 12th at 6 p.m.

The meeting, which will serve as CPWEA's annual membership meeting, is open to the public and will be held at the Floyd County Friends Unity Center in Muncy, Texas on Hwy 70 and FM 786 between Floydada and Lockney.

Nathan Vajdos, a developer with OwnEnergy, will be the first speaker at the event. As a wind energy developer that specializes in community wind, OwnEnergy develops projects jointly with local community partners.

"Topics in Vajdos' presentation will include an overview of OwnEnergy, community wind, an outline of the development process; and a discussion on landowner options," said Kelly Ayers, CPWEA's executive director.

Also attending the meeting, Frank Barbera, director of reliability assurance with Tres Amigas, will give an update on recent progress. The idea behind the Tres Amigas SuperStation is to build the first ever interconnection that will connect America's three power grids (Western, Eastern and Texas Interconnections), providing a reliable, efficient way to transfer renewable energies between regions.

"Attendees can expect to learn more about how this proposed superstation will work and how it could benefit communities in the Texas Panhandle," Ayers said.

For more information about these companies please visit their respective websites at <http://www.ownenergy.net> and <http://www.tresamigasllc.com>.

For more about the upcoming meeting please contact CPWEA at (806) 983-2793 or check out <http://www.caprockplainswind.com> to find an agenda for the event.

CPWEA is a non-profit association working to connect landowners and local businesses with the wind industry. Go to <http://www.caprockplainswind.com> to find out more.

Silverton to launch PRCA rodeo next week

SILVERTON — Each August, the folks in Silverton host Buck Wild Days. It's a fantastic celebration that brings in folks from all over the Texas Panhandle.

For 118 years, the rodeo has been a major player in the community's gathering, and that will continue for this year's Buck Wild Days Rodeo, set for 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 12-Saturday, Aug. 14. And this year, the grand excitement makes a significant turn in the event's inaugural step into being associated with the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association, the premier sanctioning body in the sport.

"We've done the TCRA deal for a while now," rodeo chairman Ken Wood said, referring to the Texas Cowboy Rodeo Association. "We had the rodeo of the years the first two we did it, and we were the richest TCRA event.

"We made the move to the PRCA because we decided we had a better opportunity to get some more sponsors involved and put on a better show for the fans, for the community."

Wood wants rodeo fans from all across the Panhandle and West Texas to see something exceptional.

"We're a small community," Wood said. "We have about 700 people, about 1,500 people in the county, and they'll all be there. We'll have a dance right there on the baseball field adjacent to the arena. They can bring their coolers in and just enjoy themselves.

"It's just a community celebration, but we draw from a pretty big area. It's gotten pretty good. When we took over a few years ago, there were 60 contestants the year before. It took three and a half hours to run the rodeo. Since then, we've had 500 contestants, and you couldn't get another person in there. All the surrounding towns were calling to ask how they could be involved."

Hedley Owl football setting high goals in '10

By Tangelia Copelin

The 2010 Hedley Owl Football team hit the field at 8:00 a.m. on Monday for the beginning of what promises to be a great year.

With 11 of the 22 players being returning varsity players, Hedley is getting geared up for a record setting season.

The team will have five seniors – Steven Siatta, Brandon Benton, Kolby Foard, Jacob Widener, and Reid Copelin – returning to lead the team to what will hopefully be the Owls' first trip to the play-offs since Owl Football began its program in the 1990s.

The team also has three juniors, nine sophomores, and five freshmen. With the numbers being so high, head coach Adam Cline is hoping to be able to play several J.V. games this year so that each member of the team is able to gain valuable playing time.

The team will be coached by Cline, who stepped in at the beginning of last year at the last minute, with help from maintenance engineer Buddy Isbell, and new basketball coach Daniel England.

Coach Cline said: "I believe in this group of young men, and I believe we will be successful with the level of intensity and hard work they exhibit on and off the field."

With the promise of Owl Football success floating in the minds of everyone, Superintendent Eric Hough is also pushing for success in all aspects of Hedley School. As he put it, "We plan to move toward success in every way possible."

And in the words of Marva Collins, "Success doesn't come to you; go to it."

With such a positive outlook on Hedley School this year, the coaches and the rest of the Hedley staff would like to invite everyone out to Midnight Madness on Wednesday night. Beginning at 10:30 there will be a brief introduction of the players, coaches, and cheerleaders, with homemade ice-cream being served.

After the introductions, the Owl team will practice with everyone invited to stay and watch the "fireworks" light the night sky at Memorial Stadium.

Two-A-Days underway at Bronco Stadium

By Sandy Anderberg

The Broncos officially kicked off their 2010-2011 football season Monday morning at Bronco Stadium with the annual two-a-day practices.

According to head coach Gary Jack, about 44 athletes attended the practice.

"It was a good start to our season," Jack said. "We had a good practice today. Some of the guys came out in pretty good shape. It was a little hot, but they need that."

Jack noted that the Bronco Midnight Madness will take place Thursday evening, August 5, at Bronco Stadium at midnight. The madness will officially begin at 12:01 Friday morning.

"We'll be in full pads," Jack said. "And we'll have a live scrimmage within our team. We are excited about the season."

Make plans to watch the Broncos practice Thursday evening at midnight and go into the early hours of the morning.
