Action At Last

There is nothing but praise for the Rehabilitation and Relief Commission, the Civil Works organization, or whatever name it chooses to be known by in this day of changing titles, for the prompt action in putting men to work for the winter months.

The speed with which Col. Westbrook cut through the maze of red tape that has been holding up public works projects during the past months will be a source of satisfaction to the thousands of men who are to be put to work throughout the state, as well as to those charged with the responsibility of seeing that these men and their families are provided for through the winter months.

Most of those on the relief rolls are anxious to secure work. Most of them are able to work. If given the opportunity. That this opportunity now is to be presented them will take hundreds of men in every Texas county off charity and put them to work.

The plan works out better for the men than direct relief, for work during the winter months not only offers relief to their minds, but keeps them in physical condition to withstand winter hardships. At the same time, the government is receiving more for the money expended in needed improvements that otherwise could not have been made during the present months.

This is one case where the government is acting wisely, quickly, and in a direction that will produce the most good.

More or Less?

County agents over the state met last week at College Station and listened to the government's plans for the coming year, as related to their work among farmers.

The agents will work during the major portion of the year reducing the acreage of wheat and cotton during 1934; then will work on corn and hog reduction programs.

But when they have the reduction programs well under way, they will turn their efforts toward securing greater production from the remaining acreage in Texas farms. In Brown county, it is announced, such work as terracing, soil conservation, live stock improvement, etc., will be launched in earnest just as soon as the government's crop and stock reduction programs are completed.

It is all so confusing to the lay mind. What is the ideal farm situation, viewed from the government standpoint, more production, or less production? Millions of dollars are spent to reduce the farm output, but just as soon as this money is distributed, and production choked off, more millions will be spent in building up greater surpluses.

No one would deny that under our present method of living and our present enlightenment in governmental and agricultural problems, instruction of farmers is a proper governmental function. So much good has been done along these lines that we have come to realize the importance of farm extension work and the untold benefit it has been to the American farmer.

But it is equally foolish to assume that the surplus in almost every line of farm products has not been brought about directly by government advice and instruction to the farmer.

Expert instruction along new lines of agriculture likewise will produce additional surpluses, which in turn, provided the present governmental program is to be continued, must be plowed under or purchased in order that a fair price can be maintained.

Just what the ultimate answer will be is a bit confusing to the lay mind.

A New Leader

Over in the revamped 17th congressional district, which does not now include Brown county, a new political leader has arisen who bids fair, should he so decide, to dethrone Representative Tom Blanton at the next election. It is no assured fact that Judge Otis Miller of Jones county will be a candidate for the congressional seat in 1934, but the repeated suggestions from different parts of the district are an indication that he is not adverse to doing battle with the bombastic congressman from Taylor county and give promise of a most interesting campaign, even to these bordering counties that have been taken out of the Blanton district.

Strange enough, Judge Miller's strongest support comes from two elements always considered Blanton's vest pocket vote—ardent drys and war veterans. Himself a war veteran and an active worker in American Legion ranks, Judge Miller's popularity with the ex-service men is not unexpected, but the incidents which placed him as the acknowledged leader of the dry forces in his district came as a queer turn of events that makes politics interesting.

During the beer- repeal campaign, Judge Miller was named chairman of the dry forces in his senatorial district, which embraces much of the congressional district as now revised. He worked hard, day and night and his leadership was of such character and his work so effective that only two small counties in his district voted wet, and these by slight margins. The dry sentiment in the district was overwhelming, surprising even the dry leaders.

Apparently it also was a surprise to Mr. Blanton, who declined to take an active part in the campaign despite repeated pleas from the dry forces. The result was the forcing of Judge Miller into a very favorable position with the people Mr. Blanton formerly had carried comfortably into his camp each election year.

Judge Miller offers an interesting contrast to the veteran congressman. He is calm, deliberate, a deep student of governmental problems and a natural leader. During the past year he served as president of the County Judges and Commissioners Association of Texas. His work in outlining and pushing through the legislature much needed constructive legislation affecting Texas counties attracted attention outside the borders of the state and he has become the accepted Texas authority on problems affecting Texas county government.

Judge Miller has another personal characteristic too seldom found among politicians. He is extremely modest and unselfish. At the annual convention of the county judges and commissioners, over which he presided there was almost unanimous demand that he serve as president for a second term. Such action on the part of his colleagues would have been of inestimable value should he seek office in 1934, but in spite of a number of laudatory speeches, Judge Miller refused to permit his name to go before the convention, stating that to do so would be in violation of the precedent of the association, and might cause embarrassment to future leaders of the organization should they not receive like recognition.

Judge Miller's talents and capacities are such that he is needed in Texas for higher office than that of congressman, but should he seek this office next year the campaign will be watched with keen interest by his friends in this section of the state.

Cotton and corn crops grew this season where there were ditches two years ago on the farm of Dave Link in Millam county. He terraced 75 acres at that time and the county agent is helping him terrace more this fall.

After selling 1986 fryers this season, Everett Dickard of Fairview 4-H club in Harrison county has completed a new poultry house which he hopes will make it possible for him to sell 100 fryers per week next year. He has 7 sections in the house and plans to put 100 chicks in each section in successive weeks.

TEXAS FARM NEWS

College Station — A small farm manufacturing enterprise of converting cottonwood logs into turkey crates has developed in recent weeks near Wetborn. In Brazos county as an outgrowth of the work of C. W. Simmons, farm forester of the Texas Forest Service and Extension Service of Texas A. and M. College. Finding the sale of cottonwood logs at $2 per thousand as scaled by the Doyle Rule an unprofitable business, several farmers got together for a demonstration in making cottonwood logs into useful products, using the college demonstration portable farm sawmill. A contract for 1000 turkey crates at 65 cents apiece was obtained and one of the men has now bought a portable sawmill for this and other work.

Several farmers are selling the logs, but it is D. D. Berkhater, H. G. Massey and W. D. Lander who are operating the business which is employing 10 to 12 men. Mr. Simmons says. Logs are bought by the International Rule which is said to be a fairer scale in measuring small purchases of logs. This is the first time this rule has been used in Texas. Mr. Simmons thinks. It is taking 1000 board feet to make 50 turkey crates.

The informal roadside lumber workers now have orders for split log houses and plan to make a complete bill of lumber for an all-cottonwood house including flooring, dimension stock and shingles. Mr. Simmons reports. These logs are also particularly good for gates, wagon tongues, and various long-handled stock. Orders have also been received for cedar shingles and for boards for cedar chests.

"This demonstration gives an idea of how many usable products may be made from farm timber by farmers themselves," Mr. Simmons states. "The cost of a small portable sawmill is not great if shared by several men. In many parts of Texas not regarded as timbered areas there is plenty of cedar, ash, elm, mesquite and other native woods that may be turned into dollars. One-third the timber of East Texas is farmer owned, and most of the useful hardwoods in the rest of the State are farmer or rancher owned. Small farm sawmill enterprises offer one way these owners may make some extra dollars," he concludes.

College Station — Before selling turkeys a grower should select out the best for next year's breeding flock, pick only the ripe ones for immediate sale, and prepare to feed the rest, according to Texas A. and M. College Extension Service specialists who are conducting turkey grading schools throughout Texas. More than 30 of these schools for farmers and ranchers have already been held for the purpose of showing growers how to select No. 1 birds, and how to handle the marketing of the flock to the best advantage.

College Station — A farmer living two miles north of here in Franklin county has rented the same land from the same man for 27 years with the best of feeling between the two all these years, reports V. O. Teddle, county agent.

Abilene — Taylor county farmers butchered a total of 37 hogs during the summer for curing in cold storage, reports C. Metz Heald, county agent. The cost of production was 2 1/4 cents per pound. They were fed on a self-feeder with a balanced ration consisting of home grown grains and equal parts of cottonseed meal and tankage supplied free choice.

Nacogdoches — A birthday dinner for her husband costing only 89 cents did not mean that Mrs. Barcie Lester, farm food supply demonstrator of Smith's Chapel Home Demonstration Club in Nacogdoches county, did not celebrate this anniversary with a good dinner, but instead it meant that the balanced-budgeted food supplies that have been worked out in that home this year need only to be supplemented with such staples as coffee, sugar, spices and rice in order to set forth an excellent meal at any time. The dinner which was served to 16 people, consisted of chicken, rice, gravy, green butter beans, sweet potatoes, hot biscuit, butter, plum jelly, pepper relish, coconut custard pie and coffee.

Wolf Club Will Meet Saturday

The Brown county wolf club tentatively organized at a meeting of livestock men of the county two weeks ago, will hold its first meeting Saturday at 2 o'clock at the county court room.

The meeting scheduled for last Saturday was postponed for one week on account of the Armistice Day holiday, only a few prospective members being present at time for the meeting.

All sheep and goat raisers, livestock men, poultrymen and others who are interested in the destruction of wolves and other predatory animals in the county are urged to attend the meeting Saturday which will be for the purpose of forming a permanent organization.

Wolves especially have caused heavy inroads in the flocks of sheep and poultry in the county and it was at the instance of the sheep men that the first meeting was held two weeks ago.

The commissioners court has

"Wasting my life on arithmetic when I was meant to be a cowboy."

employed a government trapper to work in the county for one month in an effort to rid the county of wolves.

Immediate efforts will be made to secure the full camp for Brownwood at once, and falling in this secure another pledge that the camp will be located in Brownwood in April, the end of the present six-months assignment.

Senator Sheppard's wire to Mr. Harrison follows:
 "Conservation Camps in State Parks have been transferred to jurisdiction of D. E. Colp and State Park Commission.
 "Have written him in behalf of camp for Brownwood. I suggest that you get in touch with him.
 "Governor Neff is also on State Park Commission, and I think it would be well to contact him. Am wiring him today.
 "Morris Sheppard."

For a total cost of $34, J. N. Swain, Somervell county cane demonstrator, has made and sold 200 gallons of syrup from one acre planted to certified honey drip seed. The syrup sold for 50 cents per gallon.

A three-year average of 25 bushels of wheat per acre due to sowing state certified turkey red wheat is the record of Dietz Brothers in Runnels county. The county average has been 18 bushels per acre, the county agent states.

Colp Again Head Of Forest Camps

D. E. Colp, chairman of the state park commission, again has been placed in charge of all civilian conservation camps on state park sites in Texas, and hence will have charge of the placing of a camp at Lake Brownwood, according to word received Wednesday by Chester Harrison from United States Senator Morris Sheppard.

Mr. Colp, as chairman of the state park commission has visited Brownwood a number of times and each time has definitely promised the location of a camp here. For a time he was helpless to act however, as the location of the camps was taken out of his hands and turned over to Lawrence Westbrook, Col. Westbrook stated that he did not know of Brownwood's application in time to secure a full camp this fall, but he had already secured a work camp for Brownwood and had promised a full camp in April if the conservation crops system were continued.

It is felt locally that the change in events which has placed Mr. Colp again in charge of the camp locations is a move in Brownwood's favor, since he is familiar

Combines With Most Food

... foods, like some people, are well with almost anything. It takes on flavor from the foods, and lends its delicate identity. Thus it makes flavors go farther. It is an economical food for this reason as because of its price. It is of high value, white rice is an excellent giver. That is to say, it is the same part the other play in the diet, and serves its purpose admirably. The point of view of the bureau of home economics of the U. S. department of agriculture, you cannot depend on the value of the grains alone. Polished, the ordinary white rice, is about the same food value as the milled wheat flour. It is considered chiefly of a very digestible nature. For this reason, says the bureau, are they trying to keep down the price of rice. It is a good thing to have a good start for a diet. As with other cereals, you can get more food from less rice, and if you begin with any combination. The cheapest rice is white rice, which is milled and polished. It is called white rice, or paddy, as it is called in the rice grain in its hull. It is unfit for food, but the hull is removed is known as brown rice. In some layers of that kernel and germ, are some of the best vitamins, and for most of the minerals and vitamins are found in the brown rice grains because of their long on shelves. This, and the fact that the demand for rice is small, make the price of rice greater and extra brown rice sells for a price more per pound than white rice.

Boy Scout News

Armistice Day.
Reports coming in are rather gratifying, how Scouts participated in helping in various ways in Armistice Day programs. Let's make it 100 per cent on the part of each troop in doing a special troop good turn during Thanksgiving and Christmas. Some troops are already planning a broken toy repair shop where Scouts will go out and collect broken and discarded toys as well as 'out grown' toys to aid Santy in seeing that each little boy and girl is not forgotten Christmas. Other good turns will suggest themselves as you hold your pow-wow meetings.

Investiture Ceremony.
An investiture ceremony will be held by troop 27 of Bangs Thursday night, November 16th, when the Scouts will be presented with their Tenderfoot badges and registration cards.

Scout Rally.
All Scouts in the Southern District which includes Goldthwaite, San Saba, Lometa, Lampasas and Richland Springs will have a Scout Rally Friday night, December 8th. The Scout Rally will be held in Lometa, due to this being more centrally located. Contests in different phases of scouting will be held. A program will be announced later.

Eagles.
The scout office has received Eagle badges for Scouts: Richard E. White, and Horace Horton, of Troop 103 of Eastland; George Gartman, Troop 33 of Lampasas; James Edwin Hundley, Troop 23 of Dublin; and James Snoddy, Troop 1 of Brownwood.

President's Award.
Reports coming in the office are encouraging from most troops in regard to winning the president's award. Several additional enrollments have been received the last few days. Let's make it 100 per cent this year. Most troops in the Council will qualify for the award.

New Ideas For Children Party

Children love parties of any kind. They need not be expensive nor planned with many great details. A few simple games and good, wholesome refreshments are all that is necessary for them to have a good time.
Knowing that to many children, ice cream is a most important feature of a party, most hostesses plan to serve it in some form. Homemade ice cream is delicious and may be easily frozen in an electric refrigerator. The peppermint stick ice cream, given below, will delight the kiddies. As a variation of this recipe, substitute one cup of crushed peanut brittle for the peppermint candy.

Attractive Flavors.
Now that apples are plentiful why not put an apple-on-a-stick at each child's place at the party table? A spoon painted to harmonize may be used as a stand for the apple. These will make a gay note of color. Small bits of marshmallow stuck onto the apple to form eyes, nose and mouth are sure to bring shouts of joy from the children. Cut a slice from one side of a whole marshmallow and press the cut side on the top of the bright red apple, thus forming a hat for the funny face. Cook it at a roguish angle.

Peppermint Cream.
Two-thirds cup condensed milk, 1-2 cup water, 1 cup cream (whipped), 1-2 cup peppermint stick candy.

Thoroughly blend condensed milk and water. Fold in the whipped cream and pour into freezing tray of electric refrigerator. Freeze, stirring at intervals. When partially frozen, add the stick candy broken in small bits. Freezes in about four hours.

Tasty Apples.
Red apples, skewers, 2 cups granulated sugar, 1-2 cup light corn syrup, 3-4 cup water, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, red pure food color, red pure food color.
Wash, polish apples and stick a skewer in the stem end of each one. Cook the sugar, syrup, water, cinnamon and pure food color to the brittle ball stage (300 degrees F.). Set pan containing syrup at once over boiling water. Plunge the apples into the syrup and coat smoothly. Place on a rack until syrup has hardened.

These books were made by club members. On the same order as a college annual, giving the year's work and history of club members, work in pictures, sketches and newspaper clippings.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED
 Apple Annie, an old Broadway apple vendor and good luck charm for Dave the Dude, a gambler, is educating a daughter in Europe. The daughter knows nothing of the fact that her mother is a drunken apple seller, for Annie sends letters to her daughter, Louise, on the exclusive Hotel Marberry stationery. Annie tips a porter each week to get her the paper from the hotel. Annie receives a letter from Louise saying that she is coming to New York with the man she wishes to marry—Carlos, son of Count Romero! Louise thinks that her mother is a society queen because of the letters, and, she has never seen Annie. Dave the Dude decides to help Annie out of her predicament and manages to secure from a friend of his a pretentious suit at the Hotel Marberry where Annie is to be known as E. Worthington Manville, the name which she signed to all her daughter's letters. Missouri Martin, a people—Apple Annie." The Dude had acquainted the Judge with the plan but when he mentioned that the Judge was to be Apple Annie's husband, Blake almost collapsed. "Now, listen, Dude—this is asking too much. Much too much. A mere apple vendor! Practically a mendicant! After all, I have my self-respect."

 "He stopped as a voice said, 'Good evening.'"
 "There she is now," said the Dude.
 "There who is?" Blake looked surprised.
 "Apple Annie!"
 Annie walked over to the group. Blake was over-awed by the impressive-looking dame before him. "The Judge," said the Dude, "just said how glad he was to be your ever-loving husband."
 Annie was charming as she said "Thank you, I'm deeply flattered." Blake took her hand. "The pleasure, I assure you, my dear lady, is all mine."
 Two days later the Judge and Happy sat in the Dude's apartment, with the Judge holding the floor. "You had no right," he said, "to build up Annie's hopes. Dude. When the plan fails, it's going to break her heart."
 "Who says it's gonna fail?" snapped the Dude.
 "My dear Dude, do you realize the number of reporters who cover incoming ships?"
 "Well!"
 "They'll want to know all about the Count. Why he came to America. Who his friends are. That means me and Apple Annie. The papers'll be full of it."
 Happy scowled. "Yea. A guy like Winchell'd give his right eye for a story like this. I told you you couldn't get away with it."
 Dude swung angrily on Happy. "Why didn't you think of that before?"
 "Why didn't I think of it?"
 "The Dude walked up and down nervously. This is a fine time to be tellin' me. Whadda we gonna do?"
 "Don't ask me. It's your party."

"Preposterous! Most preposterous!" The Judge exploded. "Of all

"Well," said the Dude, "I'm leaving it to you. You better see that those reporters stay away."
 "What do you expect me to do?"
 "Kick them around till they're lost. I don't care what you do. Just do it." The Dude turned to the Judge. "When's the boat get in?"
 "In about an hour," answered Blake.
 The Dude reached for his hat. "I think I better go down with you. See that nothing goes wrong. Come on, Judge."
 A half hour later, Annie, Dude and the Judge stood in a little group on the pier. Annie stood on tiptoes, craning her neck in an effort to see her daughter among the crowds that lined the ship-rail.
 Two detectives, unnoticed by the Dude, stood nearby conversing. "Something phony—bolognuss around here," said one.
 "Yea, Dave the Dude ain't down here for his health."
 "Hey, look!" He grabbed the other detective's arm. "'—his whole mob!"
 Happy and Missouri Martin stood off to one side and intermittently in a half-circle, stood a half-dozen pairs of swartly individuals. All had that nonchalant, furtive manner so common to gangsters waiting the attack. It was apparently a fort built around Annie, Dude and the Judge to avert any intrusion.
 Further away, huddled in a corner of the huge dock, were the panhandlers.
 "What's Annie like?" asked blind Schultz.
 "Awed, one of them answered. "You wouldn't believe it, Schultz."
 An old woman spoke. "I remember Annie when she used to be dressed up like that all the time."
 And then Louise was on the dock. Annie, teared, streaming from her eyes, hugged and kissed her beautiful daughter; then Count and Carlos were introduced. A reporter started towards them, but Happy and his two henchmen took care of that. The newspaperman was soon dispatched to a far-away spot in the Dude's car with Shakespeare driving and then deposited where the grass was green and the trees tall. The detectives, too, sensing something wrong, walked towards the group. But their attention was diverted, for a fist fight had broken out on the pier and a curious, milling throng had gathered around. The fight was between the two swartly-faced men who had been with Happy.

The Mandrake
 Boys and girls who live in the country are familiar with the white waxen blossoms that may be found hidden underneath the broad spreading leaves of the mandrake or "umbrella plant," as they call it. This strongly scented, exquisite flower develops into large round fruit, green at first, but later turning yellow, which has given this plant the name of May apple, hog apple and wild lemon. The fruit, often eaten by country youngsters, is filled with seeds and has a somewhat sickly sweet flavor.

For five years, Mrs. Evelyn Offield, mother of Jack Ookie, has prayed for the chance to appear in the motion pictures. Now, the prayer's been answered—and she's in!
 She was selected to play the role of the "reel" mother of her son in his latest picture, "Too Much Harmony," coming on Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 20-21 to the Lyric Theatre. Featured in the cast are Bing Crosby, Oake, Skeets Gallagher, Judith Allen, Harry Green, Lilyan and Ned Sparks.
 She's never had any film or stage experience, yet when Director Edward Sutherland learned of her ambition, he asked her to play this appropriate role.
 For years, Mrs. Offield has been a friend of practically every member of the film colony, known throughout Hollywood for her snappy come-backs, even faster and more "ribbing" than those of her wisecracking son.

Use for Mock Orange Wood
 The wood of the mock orange tree is pale-colored, hard, close-grained and strong and is sometimes used in Australia for carving and engraving, for heads of gold clubs and for wooden screws. As a tree it attains a height of 22 to 30 feet. The general shape is rounded and the foliage is quite dense. It grows more rapidly than many broad-leaved evergreen trees.

Baby Sees by Tenth Day
 A newborn baby sees fairly well by its tenth day, a specialist of Johns Hopkins university reported on the basis of tests with 150 babies at the Baltimore hospital. There is a popular belief that infants are functionally blind for several weeks after birth. He found that the pupillary reflex to light was well developed by the tenth day of life and that a child can follow with both eyes an object moving vertically, horizontally, or in a circle.

Revolving Knife
 In the preparation of lumber for commercial use it has been discovered that the sawing operation can be done more rapidly and much more economically by the use of a revolving knife instead of the saw. The cut made by the latter represents considerable material in the aggregate, but with the knife the waste is obliterated.

"Over the Waves"
 The composer of the old waltz "Over the Waves" was Juventita Rosas, a Mexican, and he dedicated it to the woman with whom he was in love. It was first written in Spanish under the title "Sobre Las Olas." Rosas received less than $50 for it.

Beauty's Day Off
 A forgotten law barring women from the hairdressing shops in Paris on Monday mornings has been brought to light by a newspaper which urges its repeal. Why the law ever was passed is unexplained.

Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Campbell of Goldthwaite, representatives of the county health department, held an immunization clinic at our school Monday morning at ten o'clock in which 33 children were made immune to diphtheria. Almost every child in this community eligible for the serum took advantage of this opportunity. We consider this a great favor, having this clinic brought, as it were, to our own door.

Monster Whale To Be In Brownwood

Presenting sixty-eight tons of bone and blubber, and more than fifty-five feet in length, the famous whale of San Clemente, is coming to Brownwood next Thursday and Friday, November 23rd and 24th, for exhibition on the railroad siding, near the Santa Fe depot.

Traveling in a specially constructed railroad car and inclosed in a glass case, the whale is said to offer one of the most unusual spectacles ever contrived and one that has attracted large throngs wherever it has shown on the trans-continental tour now being made.

The whale gave his captors a thrilling battle before he finally succumbed to the explosion of a bomb in the head of the harpoon. The capture occurred several months ago near San Clemente Island, off the southern coast of California.

The first harpoon bomb fired into the great bulk failed to explode and many hours of exciting conflict between the whale and the crew of the whaling boat ensued.

Baby, Mother

Don't transmit your cold . . . rinse hands with Listerine before any contact with children . . .

Do you realize that every year thousands of babies suffer colds needlessly because mothers fail to keep their hands free from bacteria?

Hands pick up the germs associated with colds and carry them to others. That is why a cold so often runs through an entire family.

So we say to you: If you have a cold, don't rely solely on soap and water to keep hands clean. Before any direct or indirect contact with baby, rinse the hands with Listerine.

Listerine, as you know, kills germs quickly. Yet it does not irritate tissues. Mothers of three generations have relied on it.

To Check Your Cold

Incidentally, if you have a cold, a regular twice-a-day gargle with Listerine will often relieve it. The moment Listerine enters the mouth, it reduces the number of dangerous bacteria. Reductions of as much as 99 per cent are often noted within 5 minutes.

At the end of four hours, examination have shown the bacteria still to be reduced as much as 64 per cent. That is germicidal action indeed!

Gargles Catch Fewer Colds

Our many tests, conducted under medical supervision, while not to be taken as conclusive, indicate that Listerine also has a marked effect in cold prevention.

These tests, employing several hundred individuals, show that those who gargled Listerine twice a day caught colds only one-third as often as those who did not gargle with it.

Why not guard yourself and family against colds and simple sore throat? Use Listerine twice a day.
