10 Cents Per Pound To Be Advanced To Farmers On 1933 Cotton Holdings

No information has been received by County Agent C. W. Lehmborg yet regarding the method of advancing 10 cents per pound on the 1933 cotton crop to farmers in this county.

It is known that to be eligible to secure the government loan, the farmer must sign the government's cotton acreage reduction plan for 1934, but the details of this plan also are being held back by the government.

Preliminary information secured by the Brownwood chamber of commerce indicates that it will not be necessary to ship the cotton to Houston, as first was suggested. This will save the farmer considerable expense.

Chiseling

President Roosevelt chose a term we all understand when he described violators or evaders of the NRA Blanket code as "chiselers." For while most merchants signed the President's agreement in good faith, still quite a few are chiseling away, trying to get by without living up to the agreement, or else have not signed the agreement at all.

There are several such chiselers in Brownwood. It is to be regretted that the Compliance Board so far has been unable or unwilling to take direct action against them.
But these gentlemen are sorely pressed from all sides, are trying to be patient and to work out the terms of the agreements with all business houses without working an injustice on any.

This NRA is a serious business.
It is one that cannot countenance non-observance from any source, if it is to succeed. And, if it succeeds, it will be because those who signed the consumers pledge are making it succeed.

Most businesses in Brownwood are small businesses. In signing the blanket code, they increased expense, and so far have not had increased business to justify the increase. They must have the patronage of the consumers who also have made a solemn pledge to their President.

There are a number of business houses in Brownwood that are not observing the codes they have signed, according to persistent rumors. Yet they are enjoying a measure of patronage from those who have signed.

This manifestly is unfair to those who are under the Blue Eagle. We feel, and feel strongly, that where there is any question whether any firm or any business institution that you are patronizing has signed the code, or is operating under its terms, the consumer should get in touch with a member of the compliance board and find out just what the situation is before patronizing such business.

The consumer is the key man in this program. Each has signed a pledge to President Roosevelt that he will patronize only NRA members. We feel that anyone who violates this pledge, knowingly, is as guilty of treason to the government as if he had violated a pledge of patriotism during the war. In patronizing a chiseler, you in fact become also a chiseler against the government.

Let's not let this program fall through because of spineless inaction. Let's all cooperate and put it over.

Sportsmanship

The special session of the legislature adjourned last week, too soon to get a special game law through for Lake Brownwood. It had been intended that a bill would be introduced in the special session to prohibit fishing at the lake until after August of next year.

The purpose of the law would have been to protect the young fish placed in the lake this year by the state, and allow them ample time to produce a new crop before fishing would be permitted in the lake. Such action, according to members of the game, fish and oyster commission, would more than double the number of fish in the lake, and assure better fishing for all time to come.

The lake is losing much of its value as a fishing resort even this year through the unsportsmanlike practice of taking large number of fish from the lake this season.

Fishing at the lake isn't as good as it might be this year, with so much water and so few fish, but many fishermen have been out, and have taken a sizeable number of fish from the lake.

In addition to the fish legally taken, it isn't doing the little fish any good to be caught and thrown back into the water. Experts know that a fish once caught has little chance to live when returned to the water, unless every precaution is taken in removing him from the hook and in not damaging the film that protects his body. Few fishermen take this trouble, and it is estimated that many of the young fish caught die soon after being replaced.

Brownwood has a big opportunity in Lake Brownwood. It is one of the finest bodies of water in the state, and in years to come should be extremely popular as a fishing resort.

But unless unsportsmanlike practices are stopped, it will be several years later than necessary in becoming of value to the city or to the sportsmen themselves.

The Centennial

Even though the legislature failed, during the special session just closed, to make any provision for holding the Texas Centennial in 1936, there is widespread demand that the Centennial idea be not abandoned. The legislature, in taking no action, defied the wishes of the people of Texas, as expressed at the 1932 election, that state funds be used for this purpose.

Among the many suggestions of means of assuring a Centennial for Texas is the following comment from The Houston Post, in which two other observers are quoted: Lacking in vision and patriotism, the lower house of the Texas legislature has put a heavy handicap upon the public spirited and far-seeing Texans who are behind the movement for a splendid Texas Centennial celebration in 1936.

Rather than proving a deterrent and a discouragement, however, this unbecoming indifference of the house of representatives (in this instance a rank misnomer) should prove a spur and a rallying point for a more determined effort and a stronger purpose in behalf of the centennial program.

An initial fund for the preliminary plans for a Texas-Pan-American exposition must now and can be raised by private, perhaps even popular, subscription. Both State and Federal aid will come later.
Such a course of initial private underwriting is all that is left at present as a means of getting the Centennial plan in motion. Such a course was followed by a Century of Progress exposition in Chicago, and that fair has been the most outstanding success of all similar undertakings. For example, the Business Week of October 7, in an article titled "Fair Profits," has these facts to reveal:

"Visitors to the fair already have brought more than $100,000,000 to the city." It has recently enjoyed a weekly pay roll gain of about $2,000,000. Chicago's figures are not reported separately, but its contribution has been the biggest factor in the improvement in the Middle West.

In a closing summary the above article says: "While it is generally conceded that Chicago trade has shown a material increase as a result of the world's fair, the figures are hardly believable. The Federal Reserve bank of Chicago is authority for the report that department store sales in August were 43.3 per cent larger than in August, 1932. Detroit, despite the pickup in automobile activity, showed only a 7.9 per cent gain.
The seventh district as a whole recorded an improvement of 29.3 per cent, largely through the help of Chicago's showing.

"The world's fair opening on May 27 marks the real turning point. Up to the end of May, department store sales in the city were off 13.3 per cent in comparison with the first five months of 1932. The first gain was recorded in June, when an 11.2 per cent increase was shown. July followed with a 21.6 per cent improvement over a year ago, and the August record bettered all of these. Those three months have practically offset the losses recorded in the first five months, for the total for the year to the end of August was 1 per cent under the figures for the corresponding period of 1932."

As M. H. Crockett observes, writing in the Austin American:
"The hundred million spent by fair visitors in Chicago has probably been respent and circulated to where it has meant not just a hundred million trade item but a half billion or more in actual cash spent in trade channels of some sort, and further circulated to

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

RESIN is a natural product which forms within the wood of various trees. It exudes from surface injuries and hardens with age. Copal, a form of resin, is used for varnish making, but to the entomologist it has a different use. Insects of past ages are frequently found imbedded in this product in a perfect state of preservation.

TEXAS FARM NEWS

Crowds of farm and town folk are gathering this month on farms in more than 1600 Texas communities to see for themselves how farm families have won for themselves health and plentiful living by following the 4-H pantry demonstration of the Extension Service of Texas A. & M. College. Known as achievement days these gatherings serve as rallying points for the further spread of living at home methods outlined by county farm and home demonstration agents.

Miss Mildred Horton, state home demonstration agent.
Farm home canning in Texas this year should exceed last year's record, estimated to have been at least 100,000,000 containers in all of Texas, according to Miss Horton. She points out that Texas is said to use more than half of all the tin cans sold for home canning purposes in the United States, in addition to large numbers of glass jars.

"The important thing about the 4-H pantry way of getting a food supply is not so much the large supply of canned food put on pantry shelves as it is the selection of that supply to give a healthful diet," Miss Horton declares. "A random collection of canned stuff may avert starvation yet bring ill health in its wake. The close relation of diet to health is well known. When storing food for the unproductive months it is just as easy to plan the supply to get the necessary amounts of each type of food needed for healthful living. That is what the 4-H pantry demonstration has done. It is to spread this useful information of how to plan and get a balanced food supply that the achievement days are held," she concludes.

Shifting production from wheat and corn to pasture and cover crops, expected to take place on millions of acres under the adjustment programs of the Agriculture Department, will help to cancel several hundred millions of debts. The effect is vastly accumulative and runs on and on to help strengthen and build every separate industry and business, not only in Chicago but in the entire State of Illinois and beyond. With its gasoline tax and other sorts of taxes, the State of Illinois collected millions of revenue directly and indirectly from the great fair.

"Texas can do exactly like Chicago has done, only on a smaller scale, and make its centennial draw an unbelievable financial profit to the State. The necessary funds to erect buildings and open a great fair would be of no consequence whatever from a standpoint of cost to Texas. It would be so certainly repaid so many times over that we should think only of how much do we need to hold a centennial of great magnitude, international in its scope, and of the highest character in every way.

"And we must remember that by 1936 the paved highway to Mexico City will be open and we can in a way add this great attraction to our centennial as millions of motorists would plan to see Texas and Mexico as a sort of double show in one trip. By these two features we should be able to attract the majority of motor vacationists of the East for 1936.
"But if we are going to have a centennial we must act at once."

August to November, reports J. H.
Sandlin, county agent. Farmers and ranchers believe that the buds tie into the bark better and come out in better shape in the spring if set in the fall. They also claim that the buds are not pinched off by the bark as badly when the buds are dormant on the trees during the winter.

Cisco — The use of gasoline in the "worming" of poultry has another advocate in Lee Hemphries who operates the Frazier Poultry Farm in Eastland county. He recently used five pints of gasoline to successfully worm 1500 hens and pullets.

As outlined by J. C. Patterson, county agent, a small 1-8th ounce syringe with short piece of rubber tubing attached was used to introduce the gasoline into the digestive tracts of he birds. About one teaspoonful per adult bird is the dose.
The remedy is effective and very cheap but care must be used to get the liquid safely past the windpipe and direct into the crop.

A total of 212 airports and landing fields were in service in Mexico the first of May, 1933.

It costs the Canadian government about one cent a letter to deof the country where dog teams, canoes and river steamers formerly carried it.

Wheat Contract

Out of Farming

Growers who sign contracts under the national wheat adjustment program are removing some of the gamble in wheat farming, according to M. L. Wilson, chief of the wheat section in the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

"We ask the contracting farmer to reduce acreage and meet certain other requirements," says Wilson, "and in return he receives adjustment payments which assure a parity return on the part of his crop which is covered by the processing taxes.

"The farmer who stays out of the plan is under no regulations or compulsion, but neither has he any of the protection or stabilizing features offered in the wheat plan. In short, he takes greater chances.

"The plan is a three-year program, but those growers who intend to take part are signing contracts this year for the whole period.

"It is important to remember," continues Mr. Wilson, "that the wheat plan guarantees to the contracting farmer a parity price, or fair buying power for that portion of his crop that is destined to be used for human consumption in the United States. If the world wheat prices should be low as a result of world-wide competition for export markets, the farmer who is under the plan would have protection, while the farmer who stays out might face low world market prices for his grain without the protection of the adjustment payments. If the prices of things the farmers buy are on a higher level than the prices of farm products, the adjustment payments will still give wheat full parity purchasing power.

"The wheat plan tends to stabilize the wheat business and places the farmer who participates in it on a much more sure basis than is possible for those who do not take part."

New Ways Given Prepare Oysters

About this time of the year the oyster-eaters seem to lead a little more cheerful life. They now know what to order when they go to restaurants. It's oyster cocktails... scallops... good old days are here again.

Oysters are judged by first appearance. You can tell a luscious oyster by his Bond street front. A clean cut shell denotes a good flavor inside. A rough, scraggy looking crust indicates a less delicate flavored oyster, the kind that eventually land in the stew pan.

A little ice goes a long way with oysters served on the half shell. They remain on ice too long after they are opened, the flavor suffers thereby. Better to serve them long after they are opened.

Almost everyone knows oysters are good for you—like spinach. That goodness, though, the oyster publicists have not aired that too widely else most people would stop eating them. (We usually don't like to eat things that are good for us). Among friends, we feel safe in revealing that the oyster is a veritable mine of iron, copper and manganese.

This dish its dashing flavor but we defy any of them to detect that it is Parmesan cheese.

Oysters a la Friandise: Beard a dozen oysters (bearding means trimming off the outer edge), roll them well in grated Parmesan cheese, dip into well beaten egg and then into finely rolled Zwieback or Zwieback and Brown's Saltine. Plunge into a frying pan of hot lard, fry for three minutes, drain and serve immediately.

Escalloped oysters, 30 crackers, 1 1-2 pints or 15-18 oysters, back or Saltine flakes crumbs. Flakes, 1 1-2 pints or 15-18 oysters, 2-3 cup milk and oyster liquor, 1-3 cup diced celery, parboiled, 10 minutes in salted water, 1 teaspoon salt, -4 teaspoon pepper, 5 tablespoons butter, melted. Grease shallow baking dish and cover bottom thinly with buttered crackers, crumbled. Lay in carefully half of oysters, and a layer of cooked, diced celery. Season and cover with Krispy Crackers, crumbled. Pour half milk and oyster liquor over this and repeat with next layer of oysters, celery and Krispy Cracker crumbs. Pour remaining milk and oyster liquor over whole and flake butter over top. Bake, well covered, in hot oven (425 F.) 25 minutes. Uncover and brown for a few minutes. Never have more than two layers of oysters. Serves 6. All measurements standard.

Beauty Brevities
Fatted calves can be trained down to neat, slender lines. Place hands on hips and run around the room, bringing the heels up as high as they will go. Walk on the toes; that's an elegant exercise.
High kicking is recommended. An easy reducing stunt is to sit on a low chair, legs crossed, swing one foot in a circle.

Haphazard buying of clothes is something that just mustn't be done. Buy the frock first, then hat and coat, then accessories. You will look smart and chic, the check book will have more vitality and there won't be any orphan hats and dresses in the wardrobe that somehow don't seem to belong to the sartorial family.

If some kind relative wants to give you a present, ask for a full length mirror. Every woman should possess one. It is the only means of sizing up the ensemble, looking yourself over from topmost hair to the heels of pretty shoes.

This is the season when hair needs to be reconditioned. Rub in hot olive or mineral oil the night before the shampoo, friction the scalp.

Every night release your tresses from slapped down finger wave confinement. Pluff lightly with the finger tips, give it an airing.

Get some kaolin, which is Fuller's earth made clean and usable. In a saucer place two level table-spoons, adding enough water to form a paste that can be handled. Spread over a clean skin surface, remove with tepid water when it begins to flake. Cleanses pores and has a mild bleaching effect.

MAKING Smart CLOTHES
HERE'S a bargain! Two coats in one pattern. If your's one of the many smart women who look best and feel best in a black coat, cast your eye on the one at the left. We suggest that you make it in a soft boucle or a ribbed woolen trim it with caracul or Persian lamb. It's a good coat to consider.

If you have to keep an eye on your budget for the smart scarf collar takes very little fur.

The other coat sketched is the classic type of tweed coat with deep shawl collar of raccoon or some similar long haired fur. There is no type of coat from which a business woman or college girl gets more satisfaction. It will look smart in a monotone gray, brown and tan mixture, or some bright colored tweed.

This pattern may be bought at your favorite department store.

A total of 18,457 pilots and 7,904 aircraft held active U. S. Department of Commerce licenses on April 1 of this year.

A total of 12,229 containers of food were put into cans in six weeks in the R. F. C. canning kitchen in Childress this summer half of which went to charity as toll, the home demonstration agent reports.

Employment Is Being Checked

A survey of employment during the period of the NRA is being made in Brownwood this week, as a part of a national check on the progress being made by the government's reemployment program.

Every signer of the President's blanket code this week received a request for information regarding employment on June 17, 1933, and on October 14, 1933, or the pay period ending nearest.

The report is confidential and is available only to sworn employees of the federal government, and no individual figures will be disclosed, according to the card.

The request for information carries a message from President Roosevelt. It reads:

"Two months ago I invited you to enter into an agreement with me to aid industrial recovery by shortening hours of work and by increasing wage rates.

"The time has come to take stock. The information here requested is necessary to determine the progress we have made.

"Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Potatoes Make Low-Cost Meals

Potatoes every day in the week. That is one suggestion in the low-cost food guide issued by the bureau of home economics of the U. S. department of agriculture. Does it seem like too many potatoes? It is not, the bureau says, and the reason is, of course, the substantial food values you get for your money, plus the fact that most people like potatoes well enough to eat them oftener than any other vegetable. Many people do eat them every day, just because they want to. That is true of white potatoes, wherever they are cheap and it is true of sweet potatoes, or yams, in their territory.

Some think of potatoes as meaning only Irish potatoes, or white potatoes. To them sweet potatoes seem a different kind of food—sometimes they even serve both at one meal. That is not good practice says the bureau, for both are starchy vegetables. In fact, although they seem to be different and are different in some respects, white potatoes and sweet potatoes are so much alike in food value that in planning a meal you can use either one in place of the other—paying due attention, of course to the best combinations of flavor and color for the meal as a whole.

In other words you might prefer to use sweet potatoes with ham and white potatoes with beef—and you would be quite as well fed on one as the other. That is something to remember just now because sweet potatoes, which usually cost more than white potatoes in northern markets are selling there for about the same price. In the South the sweets, or yams, nearly always sell for less than white potatoes—but for variety's sake it is good to change off now and then when you can.

Halloween Is Party Night
Halloween... night of spooks and skeletons, mystery and madness. Night of thrills and chills, when witches walk abroad like ordinary folk and the whole world is under the spell of the black cat. It's the night to have a party!

Decorations are simple. You can work wonders with a little crepe paper and some trick lighting effects. Shroud the chandeliers in blue paper, instead of the traditional orange and black, and you get a weird, ghostly effect, guaranteed to produce Grade A shudders among the guests. Get out that string of Christmas tree lights from the upstairs closet and hang them up around the room... there's no reason they shouldn't do duty on more than one occasion.

Cardboard cutouts of grinning Jack o' lanterns, green-eyed cats, and witches rampant on a broomstick will complete the picture and may be purchased for very little money from the five-and-ten or your pet stationery store. A quantity of colored balloons, adorned with faces and allowed to meander about the ceiling, will create the illusion of spectral visitation.

More than 545,550 miles were flown on Canadian air mail routes during 1932.

Non-shatterable glass in windshields and windows of all passenger cars sold in New York will be compulsory after January 1, 1935.

BROWN COUNTY BEDROOM DEMONSTRATION

By Betty Joe Sanderson, 4-H Club of May

I joined the 4-H Club in the year 1932. I joined because I wanted to be a good home maker, and I am interested in every phase of the work.

I chose to be a bedroom demonstrator because I did not have a bedroom of my own and had always wanted one, and I was sure with Miss Malone's help we could plan a pretty room with little cost. Another thing I had so little to start with that I thought I could make a great improvement in my room than any other project. I wanted to be a winner also as I have never been to a short course, and am very anxious to go.

We had a small unused room and I decided to make my bedroom there. I wanted it to be neat and clean, beautiful and useful. There was many improvements to be made, the walls and ceiling had to be repainted, and I was going to add another window and a closet for my clothes. The floor had to be improved, too. I had planned my color scheme and selected everything to harmonize.

Our home is old and the roof leaks terribly. I could not fix my room until the roof was repaired. The landlord told me to go ahead and make my plans and he would repair the roof. We went ahead with our plans and had everything ready when at the last moment he decided that he would not be able to repair the roof. So of course I could not finish my room. I was greatly disappointed, because I had worked so hard and planned to enjoy my room so much.

I had my rugs, dressing table, hanging book shelf, foot stool, bed spread and everything ready. The cost to furnish my room would have been very small as I made everything myself with my mother's help. I am hoping that we can get the roof repaired so I can be a bedroom demonstrator this coming year.

In cooking I have learned to serve balanced meals, also to prepare food attractively and to serve them properly, now that I can plan, cook and properly serve a meal it lessens the work for mother. I can serve more nourishing foods and make them more attractive and enjoyable at less cost.

I have learned about the selection and preparation of meats, our demonstrator has been stressing the cheaper cuts of meats. I have learned many different ways to prepare vegetables and desserts, so that now we have a better variety of foods.

The first principles in canning is the selection of fresh vegetables, the jars and equipment should be sterilized. The pack should be full and I should can a good variety. As a result of club work I have learned to select and prepare fruits, meats and vegetables for canning. This year we have canned beans, peas, corn, and beets and pickles. I planted a large garden and planned to can many things this year, but on account of the drought had so little to can.

The first step in the principles of clothing is appropriateness in dress. I have learned the types of dress that is appropriate for home, street and evening wear, neatness in appearance, as well as harmony in colors and appropriate accessories is of importance to the well dressed girl. Selection of material and plans for the wardrobe as a whole is important. I planned all my school clothes, and the first thing I consider was material that would wear and launder well. Then I selected patterns and colors that would be becoming to my type. I tried to make them neat and appropriate for school wear.

In yard improvement I learned to make a rock garden. When and where to plant flowers and shrubs. Which plants to use for my background and which for the foreground and borders. Also where to put walks, and how to make them. Then I learned about vines, too. In the house I learned how to arrange furniture properly and to take out of the room everything that is neither useful nor beautiful. Also which pictures are appropriate for various rooms and how and where to hang them. I removed useless bric-a-brac. I have greatly improved my home through what I have learned in my club work. I have changed the flower beds, planted new flowers and shrubs and made several walks. I planted some native shrubs, wild honeysuckle and algeria. I made a cutting bed, too.

I am not an officer in our club, and have not been. I am merely a club member. I try to do my part in the best way that I can. I have attended all club meetings during school term and most of them during the summer. I was unable to go to any of the countywide meetings for 4-H club girls but I hope to be able to go next year. The 4-H club work has meant much to me during the 2 years I have been a member. I think it is a very valuable enterprise. It teaches girls how to manage a home, how to cook, sew, and make a home beautiful, all praise should be given the home demonstration agent who has worked so faithfully with the girls.

Shop Of Youth To Hold "Going Out Of Business" Sale

The Shop of Youth, one of Brownwood's foremost shops for many years, has announced that it is going out of business forever. The business was established here in 1918 by Mrs. J. W. Jennings, and has since served thousands of women from throughout this section of the state.

Many of the sales force have been associated with this store for fifteen years, a record of loyalty and efficiency hard to equal.

The lease on the building where the store has been located since 1918 expires with the end of this year, and before that time, Mrs. Jennings states, the store will be past history. Mrs. Jennings has signed a contract with a merchandising expert, to handle the sale, which is said to guarantee the closing out of the entire stock.

A statement from the firm employed to close out the stock says: "It is no small undertaking to close out a stock of this size but a prospective period for the closing out to the bare walls is gauged at four weeks—this is based on the amount of business done prior to this announcement for last Saturday this store had the largest volume in piece goods in its history and that increased business under the Government's program of buy now has been the influence that caused Mrs. Jennings to decide to take this step now.

"The entire organization is entrusted over the success of the campaign for business has been good with this store—in fact, the regular help augmented with some extra have been busy as bees taking care of shoppers—and it is going to push them to be in proper order for opening day—Thursday, October 19th—but several extra sales ladies will be employed today, and it looks possible under the management of the Sales engineer they might be ready with colors flying—Mr. Wilson, the sales engineer says they will be gloriously ready with the most outstanding and commanding underselling event in the history of West Texas."

The cost of making 182 pounds of Americas cheese by home demonstration methods was found to be $9 and this for farm-produced milk, 109 Victoria county women recently discovered.

CHAPTER I
Bright, multi-colored lights that blinked in dazzling radiance. A myriad heaven of man-made stars on Broadway as the milling thousands of humans pushed and tugged along the crowded thoroughfare.

Old Apple Annie yanked her basket as it caught on the coat of a passing man.

"Hey! What's the idea! What do you think you're doing, you dirty old man!"

Apple Annie's words bit out. "Shut up, you pasty-faced pooka!" She tossed her head defiantly, and deliberately straightened her dress, which had been twisted around her body. To emphasize her haughty attitude, she ran the back of her hand across her nose and back again in two short strokes. The Broadway lights seemed to laugh. Though they never looked at Apple Annie—always with her, Apple Annie chuckled.

A mounted policeman eased his horse up to the curb and, bending over, took an apple from Annie's basket. He did it matter-of-factly, as though it were an every-day occurrence.

"Have the Dude's looking for you, Annie—over at Missouri Mar-

"Bless you, Dude. How'd you do last week?" (Posed by Ned Sparks, Warren William and May Robson) men and women who were crowded around one of the tables.

"Hey! What's going on around here?" she asked.

"Sh-h-h!" whispered an onlooker. "Dave the Dude's got a big bet on."

"Yeah! What kinda bet?"

"Sh-h-h! You're liable to scare the flies!"

"The flies!" Missouri's eyes widened.

"Yeah, He's bettin' the Greek a fly lands on his piece of sugar first."

Missouri squirmed her way thru the spectators to view the sport. She watched Dave the Dude as the tall handsome, suave gambler looked on amusedly. His two cohorts, Happy, a dour-faced individual, and Shakespeare, big, dumb and tough, gripped the table tensely as a fly hovered between the two pieces of sugar.

Shakespeare leaned forward, pursing his lips and buzzing. "Bzz—bzz."

Dave the Dude smiled. "What do you think you're doin', Shakespeare?"

Shakespeare whispered, "I'm deceivin' 'em over to your piece, Dude."

"Lay off. You draw enough flies as it is."

Everyone became still; only the buzzing of a fly was heard. Suddenly, the fly swooped down and landed on one of the pieces of sugar. A shout went up. It was the Greek's piece.

The Greek gloated. "Tough luck, Dude. That's fifteen hundred you owe me."

The crowd dispersed and the Dude and his two henchmen stood up. They walked to the lobby, threw their checks to the girl and received their hats and coats.

"I knew I shouldn't bet without my apple. I got to find Annie," said the Dude, as he slipped into his coat.

Happy scowled. "You're not gonna start searchin' for her now!"

"Listen, Happy—this is gonna be one of the biggest stud games I ever sat in. I ain't takin' any chances. Look what just happened to me. I even lost to the Greek."

"Did I ever tell you," said Happy, "about the guy that was superstitious about a hunchback? One day he's out searchin' for him and gets knocked over by a truck."

"Yeah," broke in Shakespeare. "a feller was tellin' me it's hard luck to be superstitious."

"Go out and find Apple Annie," said the Dude sharply.

"Sure, Dude, that's just where I was going," Shakespeare started out.

"I'm a first-class monkey," said Happy, sourly. "If I can see how you can win pots by buying an apple off an old dame."

"All right. So you're a first-class monkey."

Missouri walked up to them. "If you can't find your apple," she said "here's something for good luck." She kissed Dude behind the ear.

"Cut it out, will ya?" The Dude was embarrassed.

"He needs apples, not lemons," said Happy.

Missouri grimaced. "Hey, Happy, if you happen to break anything, be sure it's your neck."

A Dude and Happy walked out the door they were confronted by Apple Annie.

"Hello, Annie." The Dude smiled.

"Hello, Dude. Haven't kept you waitin', have I?"

Dude selected an apple from her basket. The wrinkles in Apple Annie's face deepened as she grinned. The Dude reached into his pocket for a bill.

"You got a great racket, Annie," Happy scowled. "Get a couple more suckers like the Dude and you can retire in a year."

"Pull your chin up, Happy. You're liable to step on it," retorted Annie.

The Dude handed her a bill. "Never mind the change."

"Bless you, Dude. How'd you do last week?"

"Okay." The Dude's tone became rough. "But where were you Saturday? Couldn't win a race."

"I wasn't feelin' so good, Saturday."

"Drinkin' again, huh?"

Annie's face was a mask of innocence. "Who? Me? Why, Dude, I haven't touched a drop in weeks."

"Well, cut it out. Doc Michel says your kidneys are all shot."

Annie flared up. "Doc Michel don't know what he's talkin' about."

Happy barked impatiently. "If you two are gonna discuss Annie's kidneys—"

The doorman touched his cap. "Your car's here, Dude."

Shakespeare, breathless, ran up to the group. "I couldn't find her. Boss," he panted. Then he saw Annie. "Oh, here you are. Uh—Dude wants to see you."

"Nice work Shakespeare," said the Dude. "Well, s'long, Annie." He stepped into the car. Happy and Shakespeare followed.

"I'll bet the cards treat you right tonight," said Annie.

Happy leaned out the window. "Oh, sure, they'll treat him right. I'll tell them Dude bought an apple from Annie."

The powerful car eased into the heavy Broadway traffic. Annie tucked the money Dude had given her into her bosom, then ambled away. She rounded the corner and stopped before an electric sign which blazed to the world. "Hotel Marberry." Two uniformed footmen stood on either side of the door. Well-groomed people walked in and out. Smart, low-cut evening gowns, top hats, ebony eaves—the Hotel Marberry was indeed exclusive.

Annie walked past the long canopy and made her way to the employees' entrance in the alley. An old porter came to meet her at the door.

"Did you get it?" asked Annie guardedly.

Oscar, the porter, nodded. "Don't I always get it?"

He looked around surreptitiously, then extracted some paper from his pocket. "Classiest stationery in the house," he said.

Annie held out her hand. "Thanks, Oscar."

"This bunch is gonna cost you fifty cents."

Annie was aghast. "Fifty cents! You never charged me more'n two bits."

"It's conditions, Annie. People don't leave things in their rooms any more. Gee, it's gotten so I hafta buy my own toothpaste."

Annie was genuinely sympathetic. "Why, that's awful, Oscar. Things'll get better, though."

"Yeah, I guess so. When you expectin' another letter?"

"There's a mail boat from Spain comin' in tomorrow."

Oscar nodded. "Okay, I'll watch for it."

"That's a good boy. And I'll pay you end of the week."

"Yeah. Don't forget it. If they catch me stealin' letters for you, I'd get fired."

Fear came into Annie's eyes. "Oh, no—you mustn't get fired!"

"Well, if they catch me—say, who you gettin' all these letters from, anyhow?"

"None of your business," Annie snapped, as she started away.

Oscar called after her. "A heavy lover, huh?"

Annie looked back over her shoulder. "Yeah. That's it. A heavy lover." (To Be Continued.)

"BUY NOW" MOVEMENT SPREADS THROUGHOUT UNITED STATES

That the "Now is the time to Buy" movement is not local, but national in scope is indicated in a communication received this week by The Banner from national NRA headquarters. The movement is spreading, according to these officials, and will be a vital step in the success of the NRA plan. The communication follows: "Reports submitted by numerous widely scattered newspapers, and all of the national advertising agencies, abundantly confirm data accumulated by state and local advisory board of NRA as to the potentialities of the 'Now is the time to buy' campaign now in progress. This view is reflected to an astonishing degree by a flood of letters and telegrams from merchants and manufacturers to NRA headquarters. "Thousands of local and national advertisers in all staple lines are assuring National Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson of their determination to cooperate by offering the people "good goods, fairly priced," in response to his suggestion. "These communications reveal new and improved products to be offered to the public and all pledge the maintenance of fair prices. The president of a great retail drug organization wrote: 'We are carrying out at once your suggestion to submit up-to-date, reasonably priced merchandise and have increased our advertising expenditure over anything we have spent in three years.' "The treasurer of one of the largest textile concerns said: 'In September we increased production 35 percent and pay rolls 84 percent. For the past two months production increased with us was 54 1-2 percent and payrolls 112 percent. We are assuredly on the upturn, and with fair treatment the people will buy.' "In a detailed report, one of the largest cigar manufacturers announced that from August 1 to October 1 their employees increased 31 per cent, pay rolls increased 53 percent, and average weekly sales of our most actively pushed brands of cigars increased 61 percent. "The housewives of the country are the purchasing agents who spend 85 percent of the family income," said General Johnson in a public statement. "They realize that Now is the time to buy, not only to save money, which is vitally important, but also they have decided that every dollar spent now is helping to keep the wage worker in her family on a pay roll. This sentiment has been reported from women in all walks of life, through the far-flung women's organization of NRA, and indicates that, as never before, women are giving deep thought to the psychology of buying home supplies before retail prices get back to normal. "Hundreds of thousands, even millions, long idle, are back at work," continued the statement of General Johnson. Many millions of dollars have been added to pay rolls. These pay rolls cannot be maintained and new jobs for millions more cannot be made unless every consumer does his or her best now. Industry is bringing into the market improved, practical products held back for these better times. Prices are going up, they must and will, and buying now is an investment, the safest investment it is possible for any one to find."

"Lover Come Back To Me" Idea Behind "Torch Songs"

What is a "torch song"? Everyone seems to know that a "torch singer" is a woman, forsaken by love, who sings of her heartache for the man who "did her wrong." But on the matter of the nature of the song and its origin only contradicting explanations are found. On the set at the Paramount studios while Claudette Colbert's newest picture, "Torch Singer," was being filmed, various theories of the term's derivation were propounded. The picture with Ricardo Cortez, David Manners, Lyda Roberti and Baby LeRoy in the supporting cast opens its engagement Monday at the Lyric Theatre. The most commonly accepted version is that of Ralph Rainger, who wrote the picture's music and who incidentally wrote "Moanin' Low" for the "First Little Show." This melody became the best known of all "torch songs." Rainger explains it as a "lover come back to me" song, offered by a singer who is supposed to be "carrying a torch in her heart" for the man who set it there. Going back beyond the advent of "Moanin' Low" is the explanation of another music writer on the "Torch Singer" set. Back in 1924, he said, a cabaret entertainer named Tommy Lyman sang in a New York cafe that had no electric lights. Bright torches flamed along the walls. With the gathering fame of Logan, Broadway columnists often referred to his contributions as "torch-lit songs." Still another version is "toriture song" the word "torch" being a corruption of "toriture." is ill, at Hesse Friday. Mr. and Mrs. W. Heptinstall and children, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Chapman and children, were shopping in Brownwood Saturday. Amos Porter was carried to the hospital last Wednesday. He is very ill, but we hope him a speedy recovery. Miss Lucile Daniels of Brysonville is staying with Mr. and Mrs. McDonald and attending school. Welta and Burley Richmond returned to Brownwood Sunday night to go to school after spending the week end at home. Oleta Heptinstall and Irene Lynch spent Monday night with Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Heptinstall of Gap Creek. Caraton Ezra of Clio was visiting Bill Simpson Sunday. Frank Stewart visited Jim Fisher of Salt Mountain, one day last week.

THE GOSPEL RECORDS A Fourfold Record of Our Lord Jesus Christ By REV. SAM ROSING

As was intimated, John's Gospel stands alone as preeminently the Record of the Deity of Christ. It is therefore, as we might say, the second division of the gospels and none of the other three have their characteristic features more marked and decided than that of John...

ble standing, and the knowledge of it gives character to our worship and sustains us in unflinching communion with God.

Then the voluntariness of Christ's sacrifice is emphasized in this record, as in none of the other three. As in the tenth chapter: "Therefore doth my Father love Me, because I lay down my life that I might take it again. No man taketh it from Me, but I lay it down of Myself. I have power to lay it down and I have power to take it again."

We have nothing of regeneration in the other gospels. Here we begin with it. On the other hand we have no repetition of the warnings already given, nor of the gracious invitation so uniformly rejected. Even the Baptist utters no word of judgment in this Gospel. We hear no "Repent for the kingdom of heaven is at hand"; no "bring forth fruits worthy of repentance"; no requirement at all: this is how a thing of the past, according to John's record, God demanding righteousness of men, on the basis of natural responsibility, could be by end in judgment. Yet it is not judgment that we get here, but grace—God's immeasured, unadulterated grace. For God is here viewed as the quickener of the dead, that men may live and walk before Him in the light, maintained there by the precious blood upon the mercy-seat.

John holds even before our gaze the "rent veil" opening a way into the holiest, and the light streaming out from thence to man. And the light sufficient, not only for Israel, but for the whole world; revealing the sin of men, but the blood covering the sin. Such are some of the great unfoldings of the first chapter.

And it is the beloved disciple, who leaned his head upon the Divinity, though clothed with humanity, who thus wrote. He entered the meaning of Christ's presence among men as none of the other apostles, and was thus enabled to tell of "the Only-Begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth." Therefore the glory which breaks out in transitory glimmers in the other Records here shines continually. We truly behold His glory and might fittingly call John's, the Gospel of the Glory. Therefore the very reason these occasional gleams are not in John. There is no Transfiguration scene, for the glory is not afar off upon the mountain tops; it dwells with us. In Christ we are familiar with it. The Word has been made flesh.

Even upon the cross where one would least expect to find it, the Divine glory is revealed. We read of no horror of great darkness hanging over the cross for three long hours here. There is no cry of desertion. There is no agony. If He cries, "thirst," it is added: that the Scriptures might be fulfilled. Christ is seen thru his gospel as the 'Doer of his Father's will, and the object of His Father's delight; just as in the burn-offering everything is for the eye and heart of God and all ascends to Him, a savor of a sweet smell. So here we view Jesus giving up His life in the calm and perfect assurance of acceptance—"When He had received the vinegar He said, It is finished and He bowed His head and gave up His Spirit."

This is a mighty witness, not only to the eternal security of the believer, but to the perfection of our acceptance in the Beloved. And it so beautifully harmonizes with the particular aspect of the Truth which we have here—communion in the light with God in the power of the new life which we have in Christ—a life in One in whom the fire only served to bring out the sweet savor of perfect devotedness to God: One in whom the Father could ever find unchanging delight. This is our perfect unchallengeable witness.

MORTUARY

ASHLEY—Brown county friends of Mrs. Susan Caroline Ashley, former resident of this county, will regret to learn of her death last week at Ashtola, Donley county, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. W. Lovell, with whom she had lived in recent years.

Mrs. Ashley was the widow of Alexander Campbell Ashley. The couple lived in Brown county from 1875 to 1904, when Mr. Ashley died. Since that time Mrs. Ashley had been making her home with her children. Among the surviving children are Mrs. E. J. Costen of Brownwood.

The following is from the Clarendon News of last week:

The Ashtola community was saddened last Monday when the news spread that "Aunt Susan" Ashley had died. This was the name of love given to Mrs. Susan Caroline Ashley, who died at midnight Sunday night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. W. Lovell.

Mrs. Ashley was born Susan Caroline Magill, on August 2, 1849, in the state of Missouri, and came with her parents to Texas in 1858, where she has lived for 75 years, faithfully serving her own and her neighbors since that time. She enlisted in the service of God in her young womanhood and joined the Presbyterian church.

In 1888 she was married to Alexander Campbell Ashley and with him became a member of the Church of Christ, to which she gave herself in loyal and faithful service. She was one of those rare souls whose service of God was not bounded by the church to which she adhered.

To the union formed by her marriage, were born nine children, four sons and five daughters. One of the daughters died early, all of the others remaining to mourn her going. They are Mrs. H. W. Lovell, Ashtola, Mrs. E. J. Costen, Brownwood, Mrs. J. H. Burroughs, Lubbock, Mrs. R. H. Arnett, Lamesa, A. R. Ashley, Del Rio, L. H. Ashley, Hermleigh, Rev. Aubrey Ashley, Weinert, B. P. Ashley, San Angelo. The preacher son is pastor of the Methodist church at Weinert.

In the assembly room of the Ashtola school funeral services were conducted by Rev. M. D. King, pastor of the Clarendon circuit, whose discourse was filled with comfort and inspiration. He was assisted by Rev. Leon O. Lewis, a long-time friend of Aunt Susan and her daughter, Mrs. Lovell, and family. A large company gathered to pay the final tribute and follow the body to the grave in the Citizens cemetery in Clarendon, where it rests.

EUBANKS—Mrs. Betty Ann Eubanks, 70, wife of J. W. Eubanks, prominent farmer of the Grosvenor community, died Monday, October 16, 1933.

Mrs. Eubanks was born in Kansas in 1863. She spent her early life with relatives in Arkansas, her parents having died when she was young. It was in Arkansas that she met and married Mr. Eubanks.

Mr. and Mrs. Eubanks moved to Brown county more than 50 years ago, settling on a farm that now is the Grosvenor community. They have since continued to live on this farm.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the Howe cemetery at Burkett, with Rev. Mr. Sayle officiating. Austin-Morris Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Surviving Mrs. Eubanks are her husband, and five children. The children are: Elbert Eubanks, Isaac Eubanks, Miss Maude Eubanks, all of Grosvenor; Mrs. Henry Smith of Whom and Mrs. Lee Lewis of Santa Anna.

SHEFFIELD—James Reeves Sheffield, 46, member of a widely-known pioneer family of Brown county, died at a Santa Anna hospital October 12, after a long illness. Mr. Sheffield was born December 9, 1886, and had been a resident of Brown county all his life. A detailed notice regarding Mr. Sheffield is contained in the Bangs news in this issue of The Banner.

An average of 90 tons of feed will go into the six new trench silos constructed in Gregg county last summer. The growing interest in silos is the result of one such feed saver built with the help of the county agent last year.

Use for Mock Orange Wood
The wood of the mock orange tree is pale-colored, hard, close-grained and strong and is sometimes used in Australia for carving and engraving, for heads of gold clubs and for wooden screws. As a tree it attains a height of 22 to 30 feet. The general shape is rounded and the foliage is quite dense. It grows more rapidly than many broad-leaved evergreen trees.

Which One Would You Prefer To Wear?

BLACK SUEDE BLACK ALLIGATOR TRIM

$3.98

This shoe and hundreds like it were made and sold just a few months ago when the country was not as sound as it is today.

The man who raised cattle for it lost money. The workers in the mill where the leather was tanned received starvation wages. The men that fashioned it into a shoe tried to keep the wolf from the door with $5.00 a week. Their employer lost money. Cut-throat competition forced the retailer to sell it, too, at a price which would attract you to buy it, but which netted him a loss.

At $3.98 it was a bargain. A bargain built on misery . . . distress . . . losses . . . and suffering, all along the line.

New Things First

Here is another shoe . . . manufactured under the Code of the NRA. Looks just like the other one, but it's different!

True, the leather is the same, the machine-made material is the same, BUT the workers now receive at least $13 a week. The workmanship, however, is different. Men and girls that are now receiving a living wage do better work than they did with hungry stomachs and with fear in their hearts.

At $5.00, it is a real bargain, a sound bargain, sound for your welfare and for the welfare of our country. Which one do you prefer to wear?
