City will accept tax roll under protest

The Muenster City Council has received and examined a proposed Tax Appraisal District 1990 budget which includes, among other fund requests, a $2,000.00 salary increase for Chief Appraiser Pat Pickett. The council tabled the budget, calling it unusual that they should consider the budget before the TAD Board of Directors even met to approve or reject it. Joe Fenton and Pat Dennis then asked the permission and approval of the council to attend the Tuesday night TAD board meeting to express the city's extreme disappointment with the revised tax roll they received after the first tax roll was rejected with numerous errors. Fenton said, "We want to tell them it's a mess and we expect them to fix it next year as promised. Properties are on the city roll that should not be and others that should be are not, but we can't force them to fix the problem in time for us to have a tax roll to use this year. Fenton, Dennis and secretary Celine Dittfurth have spent a great amount of time trying to correct problems they see coming, but they feel to no avail. To challenge the complete tax roll now would cause the whole procedure to be delayed and the city would run out of funds before statements could go out.

"In my opinion, the district has gone backward since she (Pat Pickett) walked in," Fenton said. "The tax rolls are wrong. I anticipate we will have to raise rates in order to make up for incorrect assessments. When people come in with their statement saying, 'I don't have this, we can't tax them for it,'" he said.

Mayor Ted Henschel expressed his exasperation but instructed Fenton and Dennis to accept the revised tax roll under protest. Hoping to continue trying to cooperate with the TAD and starting right now to remedy the errors he said we can't do anything about the problem when they run out of time each year.

Residents of north Muenster who have been ill-affected by excessive storm run-off attended the meeting, raising the same questions of last month's session. What progress has been made? The mayor said he has conferred with a Soil Conservation Service engineer who said the best solution seemed to be paving the streets which lost gravel during heavy rains. The washed gravel and rock change the drainage courses and cause problems where they finally come to rest. Residents asked if the city would start the paving project and assess the cost to property owners. The council indicated that would be a last resort. The question was raised if there was time to pave considering legal bid requirements and time before cool weather. That time is now pretty tight.

Basically, the people want the city to initiate action and the city wants the people to start the petition. Traditionally, the city does not demand paving projects unless there is a definite need. The city did finally agree to send letters to affected property owners on Ninth and Elm Streets, asking if they will participate in a curbing and paving project. The city can squeeze its usual share of paving and curbing costs from the street budget but time is critical. The mayor asked for the condition that the drainage would contact their neighbors to ask for their speedy cooperation. In the meantime, the city will experiment with a kind of built-up "speed bump" at Eighth and Cedar Streets to divert some of the flow.

In other action by the city council: Centennial Museum Chairperson Bertha Hamric requested that the city continue to operate the museum for at least another year, citing visitor interest and low operating expense. She volunteered to be interim chairperson and help to form a city museum board, similar to the library board. The council agreed, pending acceptance by Mr. Boyles, the property owner.

The council discussed a proposal to approve a small monthly charge to telephone users to fund improvements to the 911 emergency call system.

The council tabled a proposal by attorney Mack Barnhart to collect delinquent taxes.

The public meeting adjourned and council members continued in executive session.

No challenge from Muenster on 2nd tax roll

by Elaine Schad

The City of Muenster has decided not to protest a second preliminary tax roll of values presented by the Cooke County Appraisal District, but will not accept a roll in 1990 if inequities and errors persist, city officials told the CCAD Board of Directors during a regular CCAD board meeting on Tuesday.

"We're not going to challenge this appraisal roll, we are accepting it under protest, because we want the assessment process to proceed," City Administrator Joe Fenton told the CCAD board. "We won't accept this in 1990. I don't know how much longer we can wait."

The city received its preliminary tax roll last month. City officials claimed it was riddled with errors of property that wasn't listed on the tax rolls, property that was listed that isn't located within the city of Muenster's jurisdiction, and gross errors in appraisal. The city estimated that as much as $630,000 in property had been left off.

CCAD Chief Appraiser Pat Pickett claimed only about $50,000 had been lost. She said her staff, including Pickett personally, revisited Muenster and rechecked some of the figures. She denied that any staff member told any taxpayer in the city that their property was being checked again because someone had turned them in for not paying enough taxes.

Pickett said this was the first time she was told that Muenster wasn't satisfied with the second preliminary tax roll. "His (Fenton's) staff has not gotten back with me on the second preliminary roll," she told the board. "Nothing like washing your dirty laundry in public," she said. After rechecking some of the property, changes were made, while others were left untouched because the appraisers felt they had made proper calculations the first time, she said.

"There are still obvious inequities on properties that are obviously dissimilar," Fenton told the board. "In the city council and the staff's opinion, we haven't seen positive progress toward equitable assessment and appraisal in the county," he said.

Board members Roger Martin and Robert Klement will meet with city officials next week to review the second preliminary roll. "I would like to settle some of this," said Martin. "It's going to take some years to turn this around," said Klement.

Pickett has said the northwest quadrant of the county will be reappraised next year, including the entire city of Muenster. "We hope it will be appraised so that they'll all be on one level," said Fenton.

Muenster State Bank's bid approved by CCC Board

by Elaine Schad

Muenster State Bank received the construction fund bid for safekeeping of $1.2 million in general obligation bonds for construction of a new library and vocational center at Cooke County College.

The CCC Board approved the bank's proposal this week. North Texas Bank and Trust of Gainesville will receive the construction fund for other renovations, totalling $510,000.

Trustees viewed a $7,577,730 proposed budget for the college for the 1989-1990 fiscal year. "Our state funding is starting to catch up with our gains in enrollment," said CCC President Bud Joyner. Because of that, the college will have an estimated revenue increase of 20 percent, for a total of $6,279,000, allowing CCC to work toward expansion of some programs that had been delayed because of tight funds.

The new budget will be funded through a variety of sources, with 52 percent coming from the state, an increase from 45.7 percent last year. The local tax funding portion is 10 percent, a decrease from 13.3 percent last year. The rest of the budget will be funded through student fees, grants and auxiliary funding.

The new budget does not include the bond approved by voters in May. The college effective tax rate is expected to remain the same as the last four years for the operating budget, but could show a change to reflect the bond money, officials said.

CCC enrollment has increased 118 percent from the total of all semesters during 1985-1986. During that year, 3,782 students

Tower fate revealed at Chamber luncheon

The 200-foot tower built by Muenster Telephone Company and the subject of one of Muenster's biggest controversies, will soon be removed from its Walnut Street location. General Manager Alvin Fuhman made the announcement to about 20 members who were present for the regular monthly meeting Tuesday at The Center Restaurant. Fuhman introduced D. August Boto, counselor and attorney for the telephone company, who explained the reasons for the turnabout on their stand on the tower:

The decisions were arrived at after analyzing the longterm effect of pressing the legal issues. For instance, a judicial decision favoring the telephone company would adversely affect Muenster citizens by vacating a zoning ordinance upon which the public depends for orderly city development.

Additionally, Boto said that it had never been the intent of the company to avoid standard building permit procedures, and that it had done exactly what had been requested of it by the city in originally applying. After a review of the current situation, it appeared to the phone company that it could best prove its original good faith by now unilaterally removing the tower and absorbing the considerable expense of its initial placement and subsequent removal.

Another consideration before the telephone company was improving upon the relationship it has had in the past with the city council. The company realized that the council could hardly agree comfortably to any compromise concerning the tower as long as there remained a difference of opinion so strongly held among some of its constituents. Removing the tower seemed the best way of relieving local tension, a concern which the phone company feels now deserves primary importance over technical improvement, legal and monetary factors.

No firm date for the removal has been set, however, progress will reportedly be made toward that goal in a "timely and businesslike manner."

Boto said the telephone company is now looking for a tower site which will still provide TV and communications capabilities. Any new site could not, however, provide the technical excellence which they had been striving for. "In this case," Boto said, "technical excellence has to be considered less important than the need for unified progress and relief

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:
Enclosed is renewal fee for Enterprise. We enjoy the local news but wish you could encourage folks to submit little tidbits more often such as family home from colleges, family gatherings, honors and awards. Perhaps you could have a "drop box" for items located at various businesses.

Wilmer Walterscheid
College Station, Texas

Dear Committee Members:
Thank you all for a very wonderful book. It will be passed down with loving care to those who will be here after we are gone.

My mother, Mrs. Jacob (Jake) George Wolf, daughter of John Moritz Otto, (page 505) was born in 1888 - of which the last "8" was left out on page 506.

If you could submit this information to The Muenster Enterprise newspaper so those many of my relatives in Muenster could "pen it in" in their books, I would appreciate it very much. Also there is a "T" instead of an "F" under Grandma's picture on page 505. It should read "Finneke."

The book is very well put together and very beautiful. I realize it did cost more than you at first thought; so I am sending you a check for another $50.00 and hope others will too.

Sincerely,
Bill Wolf and Ardith

Enclosed is $10.00 additional for history book. It certainly is worth more than the original cost. The first day I had the book, I didn't get to bed until 2:30.

Thanks,
Teresa Kaiser

An outstanding job on a beautiful book.

Andrew and Celia Wimmer

I am enclosing $10.00 to help with the expenses of these books. They are so interesting. Thanks to all who worked on them.

Mrs. Ida Mae Herr

Lindsay City Council to decide on 911 emergency phone system

by Elaine Schad

The Lindsay City Council will decide at its August meeting whether to join with other Cooke County communities in planning a 911 emergency phone system through the Texoma Council of Governments (TCOG).

The council, at its regular July meeting, heard Art Olson, public safety coordinator for TCOG, explain the system that will go into effect by 1995 statewide.

House Bill 911, passed by the state legislature, provides for the planning, financing and implementation of an Enhanced 911 emergency telephone system throughout the state. It is required for counties with populations of at least 120,000 people. In other counties, such as Cooke, the plan can be implemented by resolution of its governing bodies, Olson said.

TCOG must submit a regional plan to the state by September. After that is approved, cities will be given the option whether to participate. Should they become part of the system, each phone customer in that area will be assessed a maximum 50-cent monthly fee for the service, Olson said.

The council asked Olson to clarify what average rate is being paid by the other 23 TCOG participants, and which agency is going to collect the money and how it will be handled before making a decision in August.

The program, which won't be operational for at least two years, features an automatic number identification (ANI), the minimum level of service with which Cooke County will probably begin, Olson said. With ANI, when a person dials 911, the telephone number of the residence is immediately displayed on the screen at a central emergency dispatching point, like the sheriff's department. The dispatcher then relays the type of emergency situation to the correct department, he said.

Customers may be paying the 50-cent service charge about 18 months before the operation actually begins operation in order to pay for equipment and installation, Olson said. County commissioners will probably bear the brunt of the cost of numbering all county roads to make the system serviceable, he said.

Even if Lindsay approves participation in the system, they still have the option to withdraw at any time, Olson said. It would be more expensive, however, to fail to participate in the planning now and then to decide to join the county system later, he said.

In an unrelated matter, the council has decided to pave Willow Street, and provide curb, guttering, and paving to half of Bezner Street in front of the residences of those people who have decided to participate and share in the cost of the project. The paving should be completed this summer, said Mayor Don Metzler. The council may have to wait until next year to do Pecan Street, a street which was also on the list, because of lack of participation by residents in that area, he said.

were enrolled during all semesters, while enrollment last year totalled 8,241. This will amount in more contract hours, which will result in more state aid.

The board approved hiring 10 additional professional personnel and four secretarial positions to deal with increasing enrollment. Starting salaries will be increased by 7.6 percent, while existing personnel will receive a 4.5 percent cost-of-living increase and a 4.5 percent raise. The increases are needed so that the college can remain competitive in hiring quality instructors, and because salaries had been frozen for several years before a 2 percent increase was received last year, Joyner said.

As part of the new budget, which should be approved in August, money will be appropriated to increase remedial courses which CCC will be required to offer as a result of new state-mandated testing of entering freshmen students. The college will also double its enrollment in its auto mechanics course offered to students at Gainesville State School, but will discontinue the auto body course. There has also been money appropriated to upgrade the computer system on campus, to automate the library, and to participate in the "Office of the Future," program offered by the Sanger ISD.

CCAD '90 budget faces controversy

by Elaine Schad

The Cooke County Appraisal District Board of Directors Tuesday approved a $441,810 budget for 1990, but it still must be approved by a majority of the county's 13 taxing entities in order to take effect.

The budget represents a 2 percent increase over last year's $435,000 budget, but doesn't include an estimated $25,000 in attorney fees the district is expected to pay this year because of lawsuits filed against the district claiming inequitable appraisals. Area taxing entities have 30 days to either reject or approve the budget, which would take effect Jan. 1, 1990.

The district made its third and final $37,000 payment on a computer system in 1988. While that is not included in the 1990 budget, an $18,000 expenditure for upgrading the computer system to increase response time has been added.

A major source of controversy during a public hearing on the budget Tuesday came on a budgeted $43,500 contingency fund, an increase from $4,000 that was budgeted for 1988. Four taxing entities represented at the hearing, including the city of Muenster, Cooke County, the Gainesville Memorial Hospital District, all told the board they would have a hard time defending such a contingency fund to their boards, especially since the CCAD has kept back some $50,000 in funds that have been unspent in prior years.

"We're talking about what ifs, and we want some flexibility," said CCAD Board President Jim Zachary. "We could just pad every line item by $1,000 and get it anyway," he said.

"As tight as our budgets are, we'd have a hard time selling such a large contingency," said GSD Business Manager Earl Husfeld. "Good management of budget would result in those reserves. You need to work the dollars as much as you can," he said.

Zachary said the district has probably spent about $25,000 of the $50,000 in reserves this past year, going over budget mainly in overtime expenses. After more than an hour of discussion, the board decided to retain a contingency fund of about 2 percent, or around $8,700, which is still double over last year's budgeted total.

Also included in the budget is what Zachary called "merit" pay increases, totaling a 4.9 percent increase in salaries. He said the increases won't be passed on unless they are deserved, or unless that amount needs to be paid to attract a more highly qualified person for a particular position. The chief appraiser's merit increase has been budgeted at $35,600, an increase from $33,000, which excludes an additional amount paid for car allowance. The senior appraiser's increase is budgeted at $24,000, from the present $20,500, while other positions are actually showing slight declines.

In other unrelated matters, Pickett reported that all changes in the preliminary tax roll for 1989 should be completed by July 20. The deadline for certifying the final tax roll is July 25. She also reported there are four personnel vacancies in the CCAD office, mainly appraisers. She said the Appraisal Review Board has heard about 40 tax protests, and that hearings have progressed smoothly.

from tension in this community." Mayor Ted Henscheid said Tuesday afternoon that he was very pleased that the problem was eliminated. "I'm glad that we won't be spending more time and money in court and that the zoning ordinance will stand," he said.

Other items of business presented by Chamber President Charles Bayer included:

- The Chamber of Commerce will soon move its office to Highway 82, in the previous location of Mom's Pie Company. Extensive renovations are proceeding inside and out. Bayer said the move is meant to take advantage of a better location which could also be used as a visitor center to promote Muenster even better. "We hope to make it a real showplace," he said.

- Chamber personnel hope to attend a hotel/motel tax workshop in the near future.

- 1990 Muenster Chamber members will receive a distinctive membership plaque of wood and metal. Yearly membership will be indicated by a removable tag.

- President Bayer urged everyone who deals with customers to make plans to attend the customer relations workshop scheduled during August. The date will be set when enough people respond to the Chamber office, indicating their participation and the best time for them.

- The Chamber is continuing with plans to rent a billboard on Interstate Highway 35 north of Gainesville. The message and art will encourage tourists and travelers to visit Muenster, a unique German community in North Texas. Budgeted advertising dollars will be used to pay for half of the $4,200.00 cost. Chamber members will soon be asked to help with the remainder.

- KGAF Radio of Gainesville is recording local stories and vignettes concerning the Muenster Centennial and Muenster history. A recording session is set next week in the Chamber office. Please call 759-2227 for information on recording your story. There is no charge.

- Ben Bindel reminded everyone that the Muenster Madness Bicycle Rally will roll Aug. 12. He still needs lots of volunteers to help with this major event to benefit the fight against Cystic Fibrosis. He expects this second annual event to be much larger than last year's first effort which drew 500 riders. Please start getting ready now to welcome and impress visitors to Muenster.

- 1989 Germanfest Chairman Alvin Fuhrman presented some awards to Germanfest workers who were unable to attend the Appreciation Dinner. Certificates went to Joe Fenton, cook-off chairman, and Jack Flusche, new committee member. Bertha Hamric received a plaque recognizing her many years as pavilion decoration chairman. She was C of C president when the first Germanfest was organized.

Laura Flusche named to Dean's List

Laura Flusche was recently named to the Dean's List at Trinity University, San Antonio, for the Spring semester 1989. In order to be placed on the Dean's List, a Trinity student must have completed 15 or more hours and achieved a grade point average of 3.65 or higher.

Colorado ceremony unites couple

MRS. CARL MICHAEL COONEY
...nee Brenda Kay Gremminger ...

Brenda Kay Gremminger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Gremminger of Denver, became the bride of Carl Michael Cooney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cooney, on May 13, 1989 in a double-ring ceremony and Nuptial Mass held in the Spirit of Christ Catholic Community in Denver, Colorado.

Father Ken Leone, close friend of the couple, was the officiating minister.

Presented at the altar by her father, and given in marriage by her parents, in a setting of lighted candles and flower arrangements with greenery, the bride was wearing a nostalgic gown of white taffeta featuring a high beaded collar, with crisscross beading on the bodice and long sleeves. Lovely organdy lace motifs framed the full skirt and also cascaded down the elegant scalloped cathedral train, finished in a pleated skirt hem.

Her fingertip veil was attached to a face-framing profusion of lace and delicate pearls.

She carried a bridal bouquet of white roses, white stephanotis, a white lily in the center, and tiny accents of fuschia and royal blue flowers.

For sentiment and tradition, she carried a rhinestone rosary made by her mother. She also carried the same prayer book her mother carried in her own wedding 36 years ago; it was a gift from her father. She borrowed a linen handkerchief from her sister-in-law, Andrea Gremminger; and she wore a penny in her shoe.

Each wore a spray of white flowers with seed pearls in her hair. Angela and Sarah Morrow, nieces of the bride, were flower girls, wearing white dresses with fuschia sashes. Each wore a halo of flowers.

Jim Brandt, a friend of the groom, was best man. Randy Morrow, bride's brother-in-law, and Ed Contreras, a friend of the groom, were groomsmen. They also served as ushers.

After the mothers of the couple were seated, a slide presentation showed Carl and Brenda from infancy through their relationship.

Wedding music was presented by Wayne Gremminger, bride's brother, Lauriena Miller, a friend of the bride, and Richard Deandar, a friend of the couple.

Selections included, "Prayer of St. Francis," "Evergreen" and "Wedding Song." Also "Sunrise, Sunset," "Nadia's Theme" and the "Lohengrin's Wedding March." Also "The Outlaw," "Peace Is Flowing Like A River," "All Good Gifts", "Yaweh, I Know You Are Near," "Most Of All" and "This Is The Day."

Lectors in the special liturgy, planned by the couple, were Demis and Judy Hoelting, friends; Randy and Kay Morrow, brother-in-law and sister of the bride; Jon and Cindy Calder, brother-in-law and sister of the groom; and Robert Gremminger, brother of the bride.

Offertory gifts were presented by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Victor Hartman; the bride's godmother, Edna Tompkins; Erin Calder, the groom's niece; and Marie Machosky, also a niece of the groom.

Prayers of the Faithful were led by Robert Gremminger, bride's brother.

The Communion Chalice used by the bride and groom was a gift from Denis and Judy Hoelting.

Jana Sweeney, a friend, presided at the guest registration book.

RECEPTION

A reception was held at Lowry Officers Club in Denver.

A seated dinner was served to 300 guests, followed by dancing.

The tiered white wedding cake was decorated with fuschia and royal blue flowers. It consisted of seven different flavors.

The rehearsal dinner was held May 10 in the home of the bride's parents.

The couple is residing in Denver since returning from a wedding trip to Hawaii, San Francisco and San Diego.

The bride graduated from John F. Kennedy High School in 1981 and from Colorado University in Boulder, Colo. with a degree in nursing. She is employed at St. Joseph's Hospital in Denver.

The groom graduated from Mapleton High School in 1981. The groom is employed at Denver Burglar Alarm in Denver and will attend the University of Colorado at Denver in the fall.

Out-of-town guests included Margaret Hartman, Alvin Harman, Bobby Hartman and Chris Pagel from Muenster; Edna Tompkins from Arlington; Gene and Judy Hartman, Dana and Pam Bloedel and Kimberly from Denton; Terry and Deana Halbert from Paris, Texas; and Carla Wolf from Gainesville.

Predictions posted by Dave Campbell (again)

The 15th edition of Dave Campbell's Texas Football hit the magazine racks this week, giving predictions for the coming Texas college and high school football seasons.

Locally, football fans first check out what is said about the Muenster and Sacred Heart teams.

In UIL Class A, Campbell's number one pick is Munday. The Moguls lost in the first round of last season's playoffs to Lindsay 16-8. The Knights also defeated this year's fifth-ranked Baird 12-0 in the Regional finals. Campbell does list Muenster as a "potential power" in Regional II, with a "solid defense behind LB Scot Vogel."

Leading District 12-A, the Hornets return 21 lettermen, including six starters each way from last year's 10-2 playoff team.

"The defense should be particularly tough," said Campbell's prediction. Top players listed are Donnie Boydston, who had 119 tackles and 9 sacks; and Scot Vogel with 127 tackles last season. The offense will be led by James Hennigan, who rushed 988 yards, and Mike Vogel. Other standouts mentioned were Michael Bierschenk, Jeff Hellman, Brad McDaniel, Troy Pagel, Marshall Smith and Yancy Culp.

Valley View is listed as a second-place finisher. "Valley View's days of dominating this district appear to be at an end," states Campbell. The Eagles finished 5-5 last season with 12 lettermen returning under the rule of a new head coach.

Lindsay, "one of the biggest surprises in the state last season," will also have a new coach, and are ranked third. After finishing 11-3, they return with only five lettermen. Kevin Parsons and Joel Metzler are the only returning starters. Other standouts include Tracey Huchton, David Fleitman, Lance Sandmann and Jerry Barnes.

Fourth place in the district goes to Era, who "has only 65 high school students, but at least 19 of them will be back on the field this fall." Hornet standout will be Chris Massengale, who rushed for 810 yards in six games, caught 15 passes for 370 yards and punted for a 38.3 average. Joining him is Carlos Rodriguez with 820 rushing yards and 111 tackles.

Windthorst returns with a 3-7 record with seven starters. The Trojans will be led by quarterback J.T. Hoffman.

Petrolia has nine lettermen returning and "must produce on defense if the Pirates are to equal or surpass last year's 7-3 finish."

Alvord has only four starters for a 3-7 season, but are looking for help from a Junior Varsity team that finished 8-1 last season.

In other area districts, leaders include Munday, Baird, Tolar, Bells and Union Hill.

"Despite defections and other uncertainties in the private school ranks," Campbell believes that defending TAPS Class A Champion Dallas Temple will have a battle to win the '89 title with Dallas Lexington Academy and DeSoto Brookhollow.

Sacred Heart again is in a dual district with Class A teams of Lexington and Dallas Lakehill and Dallas Tyler Street and Arlington Oakridge from Class AA.

Lexington tops the Class A teams with "speed, smarts and leadership" after a 10-2 season which ended with a loss to Dallas Temple in a title game.

Campbell believes the Tigers of Sacred Heart "could improve this year if the line play improves," after finishing 4-7 last year. Outstanding players include Randy Miller, "an All-District performer on offense and will anchor the defensive middle," and offensive All-District David Rohmer, who "continues to improve on the defensive side of the ball."

Chris Hess and Troy Berres also return.

Lakehill has a "solid front line and experienced runners" and brings back 14 lettermen after a 2-7 season.

Class AA Tyler Street will have two outstanding running backs and "definitely will run the ball in 1989" after a 6-5 playoff season. Oakridge has 22 returning lettermen from a 6-4 squad, including a second team All-Stater.

Sacred Heart will again compete against TAPS teams Denton Liberty Christian and Dallas Temple in non-conference play.

In other local interest, Campbell picks Gainesville to take the top honors in AAA competition, even though it lacks the large number of returning lettermen that pre-season favorites usually boast.

Pilot Point, followed by Callisburg, are predicted to take top honors in District 10-AA.

Bowie gets set for Fun Run

On Aug. 5, 1989, at 8 a.m., the 2nd Annual Crosstimmer Fun Run will take place in Bowie. This year, there will also be a one-mile walk. Any net proceeds this year will be donated to "Pennies for the Park," a program to repair/replace park equipment at Meyer Park in Bowie. Both the run and walk will begin and end at the park.

Awards will be given to the overall first male and female finishers in the 5K run, as well as medallions to the first three places of each sex in each of several age groups.

The first 125 entrants will receive a tank top; however, if more than 125 entries are received by July 14, all those registered by that date will receive tank tops.

Entry fees are: 5K run, $8.00 before Aug. 3, $10.00 thereafter; 1 mile walk, $8.00 with tank top, or a minimum donation of $2.00 without.

For more information, contact the Bowie Chamber of Commerce office, 817-872-1173; Jimmy Crumpler, 817-872-1140 work or 872-2466 home; James Tolbert, 872-3210 after 5 p.m.; or David McGrady, 825-3321 work.

Commission okays more regulation changes

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department has adopted several changes in fishing regulations for 1989-1990, including new bag limits on striped bass in Lake Texoma, length limits on billfish and a five-per-day limit on sharks in salt water. All changes will go in to effect Sept. 1.

The minimum length limits for billfish in state waters of the Gulf of Mexico are 114 inches for blue marlin, 81 inches for white marlin and 76 inches for sailfish. The length limits are intended to protect billfish from depletion. They are in line with current billfish regulations in federal waters of the Gulf.

However, the state length limits are for total length while federal regulations refer to fork length. Total length is measured by squeezing or rotating the fish's tail to achieve the greatest possible length. Fork length is the distance from the fish's snout to the center of the v-shaped fork in the tail. All measurements are done with the fish's jaw closed, and in a straight line distance rather than following the curvature of the fish's body.

The five-shark limit was established in response to a request by the Gulf of Mexico Fishery Management Council to the states to take regulatory action to prevent depletion of sharks from increasing commercial and recreational fishing pressure. Officials said the federal government is developing a shark fishery management plan, to be completed in about two years. The limit is in the aggregate, meaning a person may retain only five sharks of all species combined per day.

The new bag limit for striped bass at Lake Texoma will allow anglers to retain only one striper over 20 inches in length per day as part of the 15-per-day limit for striped bass. Currently anglers may retain five 20-inch-plus stripers.

Department staff told the commission that the regulation should reduce the catch of the larger fish that have declined in numbers in recent years. Oklahoma previously adopted regulations identical to those adopted by the commission.

The new regulation also specifies no "culling" of stripers. Fish caught from Lake Texoma must either be kept or immediately released, rather than being saved in a livewell or on a stringer and released later when a larger fish is caught.

The red drum minimum size limit was increased from 18 to 20 inches, and the daily bag limit was reduced from five to three in six freshwater reservoirs. This was done to maximize the usage of the fish stocked into these lakes, the number of which has been reduced in recent years.

Red drum have been stocked by the department in Lakes Braunig and Calaveras near San Antonio, Colorado City in Mitchell County, Fairfield in Freestone County, Nasworthy at San Angelo and Tradinghouse Creek near Waco.

The minimum length limit on black bass in Lake Raven at Huntsville State Park was increased from the current 14 inches to 18, and the daily bag limit reduced from five to three. Officials said the state park lake's bass population is currently dominated by fish smaller than 14 inches, and the new regulation would increase total number and average size of bass in the lake.

FARM AND RANCH NEWS

Walk a week in my shoes!

by Wayne Klement

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Wayne Klement was asked by The Enterprise to keep a diary for one week on the hectic schedule of a dairy farmer. So, here goes.)

On our dairy, as on any, everyone pitches in to help along. It's a necessity as there is just too much work for one sane individual. Tudor and I do most of the milking. Chris helps when he isn't working at his job. Tudor feeds the baby calves and I take care of the larger heifers. Misty and Jeff sometimes help with the calves, but they also do small jobs for Tudor at the house. Kami Jo just has a full job being Kami Jo. My mother, Eleonore, helps take care of the kids on numerous occasions, and babysits with Kami on a regular basis during school. I do most of the farm work in the field, but my dad, Walter, does a lot of cutting and plowing for me. He's also handy at going on errands, running to town for parts, fixing flats, etc., etc. There's always something to do and you never catch up, but it sure makes it easier when you have a family that chips in!

Monday - My week began on Monday morning at 4:00. We had to milk early, because I had jury duty at 9:00. Chris had to be at work at the same time, so Tudor cleaned up at the dairy after milking. I convinced the judge that my entire crop was at stake, and I really couldn't afford to get stuck on a jury this week. He postponed my duty until August and I raced home and began working on my hay cutter. At 4:00 p.m., we began the feeding and milking. After the chores, Chris and I put the cutter back together so it would be ready the next morning. Went home and ate supper at 9:00 p.m.

Tuesday - Alarm went off at 5:15 a.m. Ate breakfast and was milking by 6:00 a.m. After morning chores, I began getting machinery ready for the day and finally commenced to cutting hay at 11:00. I cut until 5:00. Dad took over and Tudor and I began milking. Dad broke down about the time Chris got off work, so Tudor ran to Gainesville for parts. Chris and I finished milking and then fixed the cutter (once more). I cut hay until 10:00, came home and ate supper around 10:30.

Wednesday - Alarm went off at 5:15 a.m. Ate breakfast and was milking by 6:00. This is Chris's day off at his job, so as soon as the dew was off, I was in the field once more. Dinner hours are never at the same time, but today I ate at 12:00. I finished my hay during the afternoon and then cut 10 acres for a neighbor who I owed a favor. Tudor and Chris milked and I got finished around 9:30. Ate supper around 10:00. Jeff had a T-ball game as he did on Tuesday, but thank God for relatives, he made it to both games.

Thursday - Alarm went off at 5:15 a.m. Ate breakfast and was milking by 6:00. Ate dinner around 10:30 and began cutting a different patch of hay. A large tree had got the best of our exhaust muffler that day and had to be taken apart. Dad went for repairs while we milked and later we reassembled the tractor. Got home around 9:30 and ate supper.

Friday - Alarm went off at 5:15 a.m. Ate breakfast and was milking by 6:00. Rain is in the forecast as it has been all week, so no time to lose. Began raking hay at 11:00. Hay is drying good, so I began baling around 2:00. Tudor brought a sandwich so I didn't have to stop. We're late with the chores because of baling, and don't get started until 6:00. After milking, I went back to the field and began hauling in round bales. Worked til 11:30, ate supper and got to bed by midnight.

Saturday - Alarm went off at 5:15 a.m. Shut off alarm clock and slept until 6:15. We were late the night before, I guess we'll be late again. Raked the remainder of my hay and finished by noon. Hauled in more bales while hay dried and began baling by 2:00. Finished baling and started milking at 5:00. Rain was still in the forecast, so I hauled hay bales until 11:00.

Sunday - Alarm went off at 5:15 a.m. Ate breakfast and started milking. Went to church at 10:30 and thanked the good Lord the week has only 7 days. Ate dinner, and with rain still in the forecast, I raked and baled my last small patch of hay. Tudor and Chris milked and the week was complete. Weeks usually aren't quite this hectic, but during harvest, they can be worse. During the week, I even hired one of my neighbors to combine my oats because everything was due at once because of the big rains which came this spring.

Dairy on the move...

If you think that dairy products in demand today are the same as they were decades ago, think again. Cholesterol-free ice cream, dried milk that tastes just like fresh milk, and lactose-free dairy products are on the horizon!

The dairy industry is on the move to meet consumer demands for nutrition and convenience. New technologies such as ultrafiltration, freeze concentration and supercritical fluid extraction, offer potential for major changes in the industry.

Ultrafiltration has been used in Europe for about 10 years. It is a process by which certain components of milk can be separated with the use of ultra-fine sieves that screen at the molecular level. For example, a large part of certain components such as lactose, could be removed from milk and used in the production of new or improved dairy products. An almost lactose-free product for consumers sensitive to lactose might be developed.

Cost savings and better flavor potential make freeze concentration attractive to dairy processors. In this procedure, water is removed from milk by lowering the temperature and forming ice crystals. Less energy and time is required than with traditional evaporation processes. And, it helps retain the original flavor of milk. For example, freeze concentration results in a dried product which can be reconstituted to taste like fresh fluid milk. This process can be used for both condensed and dried milks.

Another promising technological advance is supercritical fluid extraction. It has been used in Europe to decaffeinate coffee and tea, and scientists are hopeful that it can also be used to remove components from milk. This process works by adjusting the temperature and/or pressure of the product, thus changing the form of milk components to allow removal of certain substances. Right now, one possible application would be the removal of cholesterol and fat from super-premium ice creams.

What other potential developments might we expect from the dairy industry in the years ahead? •A spreadable light butter with significantly reduced fat and cholesterol (50 percent lower in fat and calories than margarine or butter). This product was test marketed in 1988.

•An all-dairy high calcium milk. (Numerous high-calcium milk today has calcium added from non-dairy sources such as limestone.) •Additional cavity-preventative dairy products. Cheese cultures which already have been shown to help prevent cavity formation would be added to milk, yogurt, sour cream and other products. (Research has shown that Cheddar cheese lowers the activity of cariogenic bacteria on the teeth.)

•Carbonated and flavored milks that can be displayed on grocery shelves along with soft drinks and juices.

CC Young Farmers sponsor Ranch Rodeo

The Gainesville Riding Club Arena on Old Hwy. 77 North will be the scene of a Ranch Rodeo on Saturday, July 15, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, July 16, at 2 p.m. It is being sponsored by Cooke County Young Farmers and Ranchers.

A Ranch Rodeo gives the spectator an opportunity to get an up-close-on-the-scene view of what happens on a modern working ranch. All the stock that is used comes fresh from the pastures of local ranches and all the participants are working cowboys from area ranches.

Five big events are planned: Team Penning, Double Mugging, Pasture Roping, Calf Branding and Wild Cow Milking. There will also be a Kids' Calf Scramble.

Each team that enters consists of at least two full-time employees of the ranch, and the other two may be part-timers. Ranches with teams signed up thus far are: McKamy Land and Cattle Co., Muenster; Culp Creek Ranch, Aubrey; Banjo Cattle Co., Gainesville; C Arrow, Whitesboro; Jackson Cattle Co., Bowie; Hudson Cattle Co., Decatur; Lew Lobban, Nocona; and a possible two or three more entries, all for Saturday. On Sunday, Lazy 7, Gainesville; Ogle Cattle Co. and C&A Longhorn, Bowie; Biffle Cattle Co., Muenster; Rocking Diamond R Ranch, Aubrey; Joe Combs Cattle and Bonita Cattle Pens, Nocona; Rocking I, Burns City; and Cross N Ranch, Era.

Members of last year's winning team will be returning this year. They are Charles Schroeder, Bob Schroeder, Scott Schroeder and Barry Schenk of Windthorst. They took first place last year with an overall time of 3:39.

During the Pasture Roping event, the cowboys must rope either end of the animal and then turn their horses facing each other and get the ropes tight. The animal can either be standing or laid on its side. This is the way the cowboys work on cattle in an open pasture when a pen is not available. This position allows the cowboy to work on the animal with a minimum of injury.

Wild Cow Milking is perhaps the most entertaining event of a Ranch Rodeo. The cowboys will attempt to milk a wild, pasture-raised cow.

Mugging is an event where the cowboy wrestles the animal to the ground and ties three of its legs together. On a working ranch, this procedure is used when an animal needs to be doctored in a pasture without working facilities.

Calf penning is an art which is still practiced today when it is necessary to separate or load cattle in an open pasture. During the Penning event, you can watch the cowboys and horses working in unison and it is the one event which emphasizes the skill of the horses in being one jump ahead of the cattle.

Branding is the most basic operation that is done to all calves on the ranch. The cattle are rounded up and worked. Today's cowboy uses a special table or cattle chute. But in a ranch rodeo, the cowboys ride horses into the herd and throw a heel loop, catching a calf by its two hind legs. The calf is taken to the branding crew to be marked with an identification brand.

Prizes which will be awarded are: buckles to the top overall team, cash to teams placing first in each event, and there will be a Top Hand Award and a Hard Luck Award.

Admission to the Ranch Rodeo will be $4.00 per adult and children under 12 will be admitted free.

Dairy Budget

The following is an average of the income and expenses of a Cooke County dairy farm for one month. The dairyman raises all the feed he can and purchases the remainder. He milks approximately 150 cows. Being the sole owner, he works seven days a week for at least 12-14 hours a day, often more. There are two full-time employees and two to three part-time employees. His wife does the bookkeeping.
