Locals donate expertise, assist children of Catija, Mexico

Dr. Alfredo G. Antonetti and Herman Carroll, MMH administrator and anesthetist, have recently returned from a week-long trip to Catija, Mexico. They were part of a team of surgeons, nurses, technicians and anesthetists who went to the area to give medical assistance to the people, primarily children, who wouldn't otherwise receive it. Each person donated their time and paid their own traveling expenses.

"Words can't describe it," said Carroll. "We saw things that you would never see here. For instance, there was a woman who had broken her arm three weeks earlier. The bone was protruding from the skin and had already begun to heal when we saw her."

Everyone who went was ready to go again next year, according to Carroll. There was a great need for medical attention and the people were very appreciative.

Hundreds of people were lined up to be seen. This was the third year that the medical team came and people were expecting them. In all, more than 70 surgeries were performed, many to correct birth defects. Also other types of medical care was given.

"Dr. Antonetti performed surgery like a 30-year-old and was given an ovation," said Carroll of his colleague. "It was a big, congenial group."

The clinic in which the medical team worked was completed only two days prior to their arrival on Wednesday. Eleven hours was spent in surgery on Thursday, with the team working until about midnight. Friday and Saturday were the same.

Sunday was appreciation day and the medical personnel had the day off. There was plenty of entertainment, which included music by a 17-piece mariachi band.

Myra VFD is 'cooking' in the park

Saturday, Sept. 7, is the date that the Myra Volunteer Fire Department has scheduled its 13th Annual Barbecue Cookout in the Myra City Park. All proceeds will benefit the Myra Fire Department.

The menu consists of barbecue beef, Suzie-Q potatoes, beans, trimmings, tea, kool-aid and pies and cakes. Serving will be from 5 until 9 p.m. and prices are adults $5.00 and children 12 years and under $2.50.

Besides providing a delicious meal, Doug Martin and The Rustlers will provide live entertainment.

There will also be the annual raffle with the top prizes being a Remington 129 pump shotgun, $100.00, 50 gallons of gas and two $50.00 gift certificates. Tickets are $1.00 each or 6 for $5.00.

In case of rain, the event will be moved to the Old Myra School.

MUENSTER MEMORIAL HOSPITAL AUXILIARY has planned a dance for Oct. 12. The proceeds from the event will be used to defray the cost of the portable vital signs monitor pictured here. The machine is of the latest technology and is being used in the hospital's emergency room to measure blood pressure, pulse rate and monitor the patient's heart. Hospital Administrator Herman Carroll, left, Auxiliary Dance Chairman Peggy Grewing, center, and Joan Walterscheid, Director of Nursing, are displaying the monitor.

Hospital welcomes Alfred Antonetti

The Muenster Memorial Hospital Board has announced that Alfred R. Antonetti, M.D., P.A., F.A.C.S. of Dallas will be available at least once per month on a regular basis for consultations and to perform surgery. Wednesday, Sept. 25 is the first day that he will be available for consultation in Muenster.

Dr. Antonetti has performed surgery for patients in the Muenster Hospital a number of times during recent years when requested to do so by doctors on staff at the hospital. Consultation appointments with Dr. Antonetti can be made by calling the hospital, 759-2271.

Both cosmetic and reconstructive surgical procedures are performed by Dr. Antonetti who is the son of Dr. Alfredo G. Antonetti of Muenster. He has been in private practice in the Dallas area since 1980.

A graduate of the University of Oklahoma Medical School, Alfred Antonetti, M.D. completed five years of Residency in General Surgery at the University of Texas Health Science in San Antonio. He served two years in the United States Army Hospital, Fort Riley, Kansas before returning to the University of Texas Health Science Center at Dallas for a Fellowship in Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery.

The doctor is Chief of Plastic Surgery at Methodist Medical Center and on staff at Medical City Dallas Hospital. He is a fellow of the American College of Surgeons and the American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeons. He is board certified by the American Board of Plastic Surgery and a member of the Texas Medical Association, the Dallas County Plastic Surgery Society, and The Texas Society of Plastic Surgeons.

According to MMH Board member Margie Starke, who has been working with Dr. Antonetti to arrange his association with the hospital, Dr. Antonetti feels that patients will be drawn to Muenster for several reasons including the fact that expenses will be noticeably lower here than in Metroplex hospitals. Also many may prefer to spend their recuperation time in nice, comfortable surroundings with a lakeside view.

All of the following types of surgical procedures can be done by Dr. Antonetti at M.M.H.:

-Blepharoplasty or eyelid surgery can brighten the face and restore a younger appearance by reducing fat and extra skin. It can also improve vision.

-Augmentation Mammoplasty is performed to enlarge small breasts.

-Rhytidectomy or facelift can reduce sagging skin on the face and neck.

-Rhinoplasty or surgery of the nose reshapes the nose to improve its appearance and proportion in

Camp Howze celebration set

—Special to The Muenster Enterprise

A monument memorializing the three divisions that were stationed at Camp Howze during World War II will be dedicated during ceremonies at Leonard Park on Friday, Sept. 13.

The activity is one of several being planned for Camp Howze Days, Sept. 12-14.

A Desert Storm participant, Lt. Col. Bruce Parkins of Fort Hood, will be the main speaker following a catered box luncheon and the monument dedication. Lt. Col. Parkins spent a lot of time on the front lines during the Iraqi fighting and will tell of his experiences.

The park activities will begin at 12 noon. Following lunch, representatives of all three Camp Howze divisions - the 84th, 86th and 103rd - are expected to take part in the monument unveiling and dedication. Mayor Charles Woolfolk will give the dedicatory address.

The monument later will be permanently placed at the entrance to Weber Drive, just off West Highway 82. The City of Gainesville will install the monument free of charge, according to Jerry Headrick, committee chairman. "The city also will construct a pull-off in front of the monument so travelers can easily get off the roadway to view it," Headrick said. The monument will be placed on a flatbed truck for the Leonard Park dedication before being taken to its final destination.

Headrick and other monument committee members - Joe Stout, Evelyn Yeatts and Shana Powell - worked to obtain a design that would be symbolic of the camp's main occupants from 1942-46.

The monument will be made of material similar to that of the Municipal Airport sign, also at the entrance to Weber Drive, Stout said. "Three bronzed plaques with each division's logo and the dates they were stationed at Camp Howze, will be placed in the center."

The monument will be six inches thick, 56½ inches high and 149 inches long. The cost will be approximately $3,000 and, since the committee has no funds, donations are being solicited from anyone interested in preserving this important time in history. Special accounts have been set up at all Gainesville banks, and all contributions will be very much appreciated, Headrick said.

Everyone in the area, whether or not they were connected to Camp Howze, is invited to attend the affair, and to bring a lawn chair, since seating will be limited. The cost of the lunch is $7, and reservations should be made at the Chamber of Commerce no later than Tuesday, Sept. 10.

CCC trustees able to cut back on tax rate hike

Several 11th-hour developments enabled Cooke County College trustees, meeting in regular session last Monday night, to trim a proposed 11.34 percent tax rate increase back to nine percent for the coming year. County taxpayers will be asked for an additional six-tenths of a cent per $100 of assessed valuation to fund operation of CCC's physical plant and auxiliary services.

If adopted, the M&O rate hike will push the college's total tax rate from roughly 11.1 cents up to 11.7 cents. Taking into account those times that trustees have voluntarily reduced the college M&O tax rate over the past six years, the net increase since 1985-86 would still amount to just four-tenths of a cent.

The lion's share of the college's higher operating expenses were attributed to new and expanded facilities - along with related cost increases for utilities, repairs and maintenance personnel - needed to accommodate an extraordinary growth in enrollment. Since 1985-86, CCC's student head count has grown by 130 percent.

It was reported at Monday night's board meeting, incidentally, that preliminary figures indicate the strong likelihood of CCC's setting yet another all-time record for enrollment this fall, possibly reaching as many as 3,400.

"It may not be clearly understood that state statute prohibits the use of state funds to support our physical plant or auxiliary services," CCC President Bud Joyner pointed out. "This has been and remains the responsibility of the local taxing district."

"By the same token, it should be noted also that no local tax dollars are used at Cooke County College to pay any part of salaries for administrators, faculty or classified employees. What we're talking about here is purely an increase in the tax rate to support our physical plant and auxiliary services."

Major contributors to the pullback on the tax increase were: significant reductions in insurance premiums and a less severe state funding cutback.

"As it turned out," Joyner reported, "the reduction in state funding will amount to 3.2 percent off current services. That's not quite as bad, to be sure, but it still means that over the next two years, we'll be getting some $123,000 less per year than we would have gotten if we had been funded at the same amount per student as last year."

"Credit for the lessening of that state funding cutback must be given, in large measure, to the outstanding efforts of Representative Ric Williamson and his extraordinary influence in the Texas House."

To put the proposed tax rate increase in perspective, Joyner said that it would cost the owner of a home with an assessed value of $100,000 about $6.14 per year in additional taxes. This assumes, of course, that the home's valuation is the same as last year.

"Even though the dollar amount of the proposed tax increase is relatively small," said Urban Endres, chairman of CCC's board of trustees, "we fully recognize that a nine percent increase is a significant one. We regret that we have to increase taxes by any amount, but we can give our assurance as a board that we are asking only for what, in our best judgment, we feel this college genuinely needs to remain viable. We will continued to do everything we can to keep the college tax burden at the lowest possible level."

The wrath of God is being revealed from heaven against the irreligious and perverse spirit of men who, in this perversion of theirs, hinder the truth.

CHAD ENDRES prepares to try out the slide on the newest piece of play equipment in the Muenster Park. Behind him, Tara Swirczynski waits her turn. The cousins are the children of Jim and Shirley Endres and Dale and Jill Swirczynski. The tubing used for the slide was donated by the Johns-Manville plant in Denison. The Denison plant is now closed, but the Johns-Manville Co. is worldwide. Ernie Martin has done most of the construction of the kids' activity center. He was assisted by his son, Joey, and also several Boy Scouts from the Bear Patrol. The Muenster Jaycees are financing the project, which isn't quite completed. A swing set and more wood trim are yet to be added.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,
I am writing in the hopes of dispelling the far-flung myth that law enforcement officers support gun control. The police administration on Capitol Hill, most of who haven't been on the street for decades, do not speak for the majority of rank and file police.

Take it from someone who knows. Gun bans and other harsh anti-gun laws directed at lawful gun owners ultimately do nothing to reduce violent crime. Semi-automatic gun bans in some states put law-abiding gun owners at risk of arrest and prosecution for refusing to register, surrender or otherwise dispose of their guns. Now a similar nationwide ban is proposed. I want to arrest criminals, not lawful citizens, made into criminals by means of misguided laws. That's why I oppose semi-auto gun ban proposals and other worthless anti-gun laws masquerading as crime control.

My job would be a lot easier if our elected officials would dedicate more time, money and effort toward developing anti-crime tools which legislate against the criminal, not law-abiding citizens. Let's cut out the easy parole and courtroom injustice and start enforcing the tough laws already on the books.

Sincerely,
Jeffrey C. Onstott

UIL academic program explained

by Gwen Trubenbach
Each year Muenster Public School students, grades 2 through 12, have an opportunity to participate in academic competitive programs of the University Interscholastic League. These programs are designed to support the basic academic curriculum.

Through UIL competition, students can achieve recognition for academic excellence, test their skills and knowledge, know the satisfaction of their best performance.

The categories in the UIL academic competition include:

-Number Sense (grades 5-8): This event is an exciting and challenging ten minute contest in mental mathematics requiring high speed solutions of math problems.

-Spelling (3-8): The spelling words are pronounced at approximately five words per minute. Contestants may choose to print or write the words. While up to 20 percent of the test words come from outside sources, at least 80 percent come from the current A+ Spelling List.

-Impromptu Speaking (7&8): Students are challenged to think quickly, communicate effectively and show good organization of ideas. Students select one of three familiar topics, organize their thoughts for one minute, and then speak for no more than five minutes.

-Listening (5-8): Good listening skills enhance any academic area and the study materials are useful for all students. The objective tests cover a variety of subjects, and measure skills such as identifying the main idea and supporting material, drawing conclusions, and distinguishing fact from opinion. The contest now includes grades 7 and 8.

-Music Memory (5&6): Students compete as a team to identify composers and selections from some of the world's best known classics. Listening maps that help the students relate to the pieces they hear and high quality records complement this activity.

-Storytelling (2&3): Contestants hear a story which they will retell for their audience. This activity encouraged children to use recall and also allows them to bring their own expression and insight to the story.

-Dictionary Skills (5-8): Students will use all elements of a dictionary and learn practical techniques for extracting and applying the information it contains.

-Ready Writing (3-8): This event is a challenge for the gifted writer. Students are given a choice between two prompts. Each prompt defines the audience and provides the purpose for writing.

-Science (7&8): There are two divisions - earth science and life science. Tests for each division consist of multiple choice questions covering subject matter from science textbooks and a reading list of science publications. Students are limited to one year of eligibility in each division.

-Oral Reading (4-8): In this event the student selects, prepares and reads a literary selection within a six-minute time limit. Students explore literature to share with their audience and are evaluated on aspects of their performance such as appropriateness of selection, understanding the material, control of the presentation, and overall effectiveness.

-Picture Memory (4&5): This activity is like a stroll through the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. as all prints are reproductions of paintings from the National Gallery. The Picture Memory Bulletin gives information on the artists and the paintings. Student teams are challenged to identify the artist, nationality and the painting when the reproduction is presented.

-Modern Oratory (7&8): A challenge in writing and speaking, students prepare a short original speech to examine the pros and cons of an issue and defend their point of view. This format can incorporate a variety of skills which complement the essential elements.

-Calculator Applications (6-8): A thinker's delight, this thirty minute contest develops mathematical reasoning and knowledge and requires the application of problem solving skills toward realistic problems.

Contests are held each spring. The local district has an elimination to determine teams to represent the school district. The district contests are held in March and April. Students wishing to compete should contact their teacher or principal.

Lindsay ISD approves 1991-92 school budget

by Elaine Schadt
Lindsay school trustees have approved a 1991-1992 school budget of $1.6 million at a special Aug. 19 meeting that includes $250,000 for the construction of a seven-classroom addition to the middle school.

An architect is completing preliminary drawings for the project, which will be built onto the present middle school building completed just four years ago. The district plans to fund the project from its reserve funds, said Superintendent Gilbert Hermes.

The district has experienced about a 7 percent annual enrollment growth the past four years, from about 350 students in 1987 to about 450 currently. Most of that growth was initiated at the elementary level, requiring that the school open additional class sections. Those children are now entering middle-school age, which is forcing the expansion decision, officials said.

The district was able to delay the building project this year by leasing a portable classroom that has been placed at the middle school to accommodate an additional sixth-grade section. The expansion will hopefully be completed by the time school begins next fall, officials said.

Excluding the amount allotted for the expansion project, the new budget is about $100,000 increase from the current year's $1.3 million budget. Most of the increase will come from the leasing of the portable building, from state-mandated teacher pay raises and from adding another teaching position in the middle school.

The district isn't expected to set its tax rate until mid-September, after the Cooke County Education District sets the county tax rate, horseback riding and lots of good food.

Monday was another long work day with surgery beginning at 9 a.m. and the last cases being completed by 11 or 12 o'clock that night. Before returning to the former monastery where they were staying, the group had to pack supplies and equipment for the return trip on Tuesday. "We came back Tuesday very tired, but well pleased," concluded Carroll. "The kids got medical attention that they never would have had otherwise."

Boxes of clothing, stuffed animals and other supplies accompanied the group to Mexico. Some of the items were donated locally. Many local people also donated money and the Muenster Bluebonnet Club made a $225 donation. It was thought that the money would be needed to help defray air freight, but American Airlines generously waived the cost of shipping the boxes. The money was then donated to the Committee of Health in Catija and will go directly to the people who need it.

"I would like to thank all who contributed to, and supported, this trip in any way," Carroll said. "When all of the donations have come in, I will compile a list of names and make a more formal thank-you in The Enterprise."

Herman Carroll also expressed his willingness to give a talk and picture presentation of the trip to any group that might be interested.

This arrangement was originally planned three years ago by Gonzalo Venegas, MD, and Alfred R. Antonetti, MD. Dr. Venegas is a native of the Catija area. The men again headed this trip.

The Enterprise asks readers to recall memories of Camp Howze

The "Camp Howze Days" Reunion, the dedication of a memorial monument, announcement of plans and activities for a gala weekend, a parade, a Big Band Dance and presentations by the Butterfield Stage Players and the prospects of seeing long-ago friends have rekindled personal memories locally, of the time when Camp Howze was under construction, and of the years when three divisions were housed and trained over the vast spaces of the army camp.

The Muenster Enterprise urges local residents to share some of those memories and help us to print interesting bits of information you can recall, whether military or civilian. Please send your notes, preferably, or phone calls to Elfreda Fette, Muenster Enterprise, Box 190, Muenster, Texas 76252, or 759-4311.

Sacred Heart students qualify for TIP program

The Talent Identification Program (TIP) at Duke University was established to identify the very bright among our nation's youngsters at an early age. The program's goals are to facilitate the education of those students, follow and nurture their talents, and to assist them in achieving high goals. Students admitted to the program take the SAT or ACT exam designed for college bound high school students. While far too difficult for the average seventh grader, these tests are helpful in discriminating the abilities of the very bright seventh graders scoring at or above the 97th percentile. To qualify for the program seventh graders must have scored in the top three percentile of the nation on the nationally standardized and recognized achievement test. This means that only three students out of every 100 would be expected to qualify. This year eleven students in a class of 23 qualified for admission to the Duke University Talent Identification Program. Sacred Heart students in the seventh grade that qualified for the T.I.P. are: John Bartush, Jennifer Campbell, Glen Dangelmayr, James Felderhoff, Greg Flusche, Tanya Knauf, Jake Luke, Brad Schilling, Bart Sicking, John Sparkman and Paul Swirczynski. Sacred Heart School is very proud of the achievement of these students.

Thank You

The prayers, cards, visits and flowers I received from friends have been a source of hope and consolation to me throughout my hospitalization and my convalescence at home. Please keep praying for me. I am recovering, but I see a long road ahead. In the hospital, it was a great pleasure to get the day's mail. Returning from daily therapy sessions meant finding cards and notes, making the wait more worthwhile. Thank you for every favor.

Captive Hearts Band to play for benefit dance Friday night

The Captive Hearts Band is playing a benefit dance at the Gainesville VFW Friday night to raise funds to help clients of the local Child Protective Services unit.

The country western band, a local group with a loyal following, plays mostly Top 40 type country music at clubs, events and private parties. The group is donating its services in order to help children, according to Becky Wolfe, a volunteer who organized the dance on behalf of the Cooke County Child Welfare Board.

The board uses charitable contributions raised locally to pay for clothing, medical costs, school expenses and other needs of children in foster care.

The dance begins at 7:30 p.m. and will last until midnight. Tickets are $7.50 each or $15 per couple. They are available at the CPS office, 215 S. Dixon, the Fried Pie, the office at Tom Thumb and at the Kountry Korner in Muenster. They will also be sold at the door on Friday night.

Andy Serna, lead singer for the group, grew up in Muenster and is a working cowboy at the 24K Ranch. Before Captive Hearts was formed, he was lead singer for Hoss Country Band, another local group.

Like Serna, the other members of the band have occupations outside their musical endeavors. Rick Arendt, the bass player, is a farmer. David Muller, the drummer and another former member of Hoss Country Band, owns an auto body repair shop. Mark Martin, lead guitar player, is the newest member of the band.

Captive Hearts plays mostly progressive country music, though it can also handle a few rock and roll songs if they are requested by a younger crowd, according to Serna. Band favorites include songs made popular by George Strait, Garth Brooks and Clint Black.

Though the band still hasn't made the big time, Serna is very pleased with the progress so far. Captive Hearts has made enough to pay for the equipment and has quite a number of regulars who come to dance when it plays at The Ranch or the Gainesville VFW. "It puts a little money in your pocket," said Serna. "At the same time, you really have to enjoy it."

Serna has written and recorded music, but so far nothing has made a splash in Nashville.

The band has played other benefit dances and stays busy with club dates, private parties and weddings. Serna said people from Dallas have seen Captive Hearts perform at dances, so he now gets frequent calls to go to the Metroplex for Christmas parties or similar events.

Several door prizes will be given away at the benefit dance.

Sacred Heart School holds dedication ceremony

On Thursday and Friday, Aug. 29 and 30, students of Sacred Heart School participated in a special prayer service. The high school students gathered in front of the Sacred Heart statue by the office at 12:30 on Thursday and the elementary students gathered in the hallway by Sister Genevieve's classroom in front of the Sacred Heart picture after Mass on Friday. The purpose of the prayer service was to begin the new school year by making an Act of Consecration to the Sacred Heart of Jesus. It was a reaffirming of the commitment of students' baptismal vows.

New immunization rules aimed at better disease prevention

The Texas Department of Health (TDH) reminds all parents and school or day care administrators that immunization rules for Texas children recently have been changed. In efforts to stop recent resurgences of so-called childhood diseases, the Texas Board of Health, in both 1990 and 1991, modified existing immunization requirements.

TDH urges parents to ensure that their children's immunization records comply with those rules. Physicians and local health departments can supply detailed information about the requirements. Low-cost or free back-to-school immunizations are offered throughout the year in many Texas communities.

One of the newest immunization rule changes eases restrictions against persons other than a child's parents who seek vaccinations for children in their care. Now, parents and legal guardians may formally delegate authority for signing immunization consent forms to other adults, such as a child's grandparent.

Other recent rule changes include a mandatory second dose of measles vaccine for all Texas school children by age 12. Also, children who are younger than 5 must be vaccinated against Haemophilus influenzae type b (Hib disease), a common cause of meningitis in children, and pertussis (whooping cough).

Wes Hodgson, epidemiology coordinator for the TDH Immunization Division, said, "The continuing measles outbreaks which began in 1988 underscore the tragic results of incomplete vaccinations. In recent years, some parents failed to protect their children against vaccine-preventable diseases, while some school and day care operators failed to keep adequate records so that inadequately immunized children went unnoticed. The result has been a growing number of insufficiently immunized children and young adults - all of whom are now vulnerable to infection."

Hodgson said that state law requires all children entering Texas schools or day care to show proof of immunizations at certain ages against polio, tetanus, measles, rubella (German or three-day measles), mumps and diphtheria. Younger children must also give proof of immunity to whooping cough and Hib disease.

"The law allows for some exceptions to these requirements," Hodgson added, "but each case must be considered individually."

He stressed that since a child's age and medical history are factors in which vaccines and "boosters" the child needs, parents should consult their family physicians about the required immunizations for each child.

Trains to be featured at exhibit

The public is invited to attend the opening reception of selections from the famous Santa Fe Railway Art Collection at the Cultural Activities Center (CAC), 3011 N. 3rd St., in Temple. The reception will be held on Sunday, Sept. 8, from 2 to 4 p.m., and will be followed by a lecture entitled "Steel Rails To Temple" given by Temple Historian Weldon Cannon. The reception and lecture are free and are part of the Centennial Celebration for the Santa Fe Hospital, which is now part of the Scott & White Santa Fe Center.

Refreshments at the reception will be provided courtesy of the Visual Arts Friends and will be served by members of the National Association of Retired Veteran Railway Employees.

The Santa Fe Railway Art Collection

The Santa Fe Railway, in various ways, has been associated with the artists of Taos, New Mexico, for more than 75 years. The railroad was an important means of bringing artists west to New Mexico and Arizona.

The Collection includes paintings by artists who were a part of the original Taos art colony including works from E.L. Cousser acquired as early as 1907, Bert Phillips in 1907, E.L. Blumenschein in 1911 and others before the group was founded in 1912.

In those early years, Santa Fe was pioneering passenger service across America. To overcome the "Cowboy-Indian Wild West image" most Easterners had of the West, Simpson appealed to tourists through the beauty of the country combined with the culture and ceremonial customs of the Indians.

Since color cameras had not made their debut yet, the Santa Fe staff naturally turned to artists for their renderings of the West. This symbiotic relationship allowed the Santa Fe people to show off their country to tourists and the artists the opportunity to paint in this colorful world and have a patron for their works.

Taos became a major center for art activity. A remote village in Northern New Mexico, Taos had a rustic charm that appealed to artists. Nearby was one of the finest Indian settlements, the Taos Pueblo, which has been continuously occupied for more than 200 years.

The artists were allowed to paint whatever inspired them, about the scenery or the native Indian people. The artist, in turn, exchanged one of his paintings to cover the cost of transportation and lodging. This arrangement was changed in about 1913 when guidelines governing the exchange of transportation by the railroads for services and products were established.

Despite this change, the Santa Fe staff continued to patronize artists visiting New Mexico and Arizona. In fact, the railway for many years was one of the few patrons of Western art and many artists relied on Santa Fe not only to purchase their works but to benefit from the recognition gained through reproductions distributed worldwide.

The entire collection consists of 594 subjects with 240 featuring Indians of the Southwest, with the remaining works devoted to scenery, missions and historical points along the Santa Fe route.

Archeologists dig into ghost town in Montague County

Texas Historical Commission archeologists soon will be investigating the remains of Red River Station, a ghost town located in Montague County northwest of Nocona. Once an important 19th-century frontier town, Red River Station was adjacent to a principal river crossing for cattle bound for Kansas along the Chisholm Trail. During the era of the cattle drives, millions of longhorns were channeled across the Red River at a spot immediately upstream from the town. In 1871, a peak year, an estimated 650,000 cattle were driven through this crossing.

The investigation is part of ongoing research begun earlier this year of significant sites along the Red River. "Our primary objective in this visit is to map the Red River Station townsite and record data that the investigation turns up," said THC archaeologist Dan Prikrly.

In the late 1850s, a few Anglo settlers arrived in this area of Montague County. During the Civil War, they built a stockade at Red River Station for protection against marauding Indians. The town already had a population of 250 people when cattle herds began to arrive. By the late 1860s, it became a boom town and its population rose dramatically. Here, cowboys had a chance to restock supplies, repair gear and have fun before crossing into Indian Territory.

A series of unfavorable events soon reversed Red River Station's fortune. In 1881, a tornado destroyed much of the business district. With the coming of barbed wire, the Chisholm Trail was closed after 1884. In 1887, the railroad bypassed the town in favor of Nocona. By the early 1900s, Red River Station had become a ghost town.

Today, the only physical evidence left of Red River Station is the cemetery. Archeological and historical data gathered about the town, together with data being collected at Wichita Indian village sites at Spanish Fort, will be used to nominate these significant Montague County sites for listing in the National Register of Historic Places.

Local residents with information about Red River Station are asked to contact Montague County Historical Commission Chairman Melvin Fenoglio, Box 13, Montague, TX 76251, 817/894-2641, or Dan Prikrly, 512/463-6096.

'Volkfest Am Strand' will attract convention

With the theme "Volkfest am Strand," which means a "People's Festival on the Beach," the thirteenth annual meeting of the German-Texan Heritage Society will be held in Corpus Christi on Sept. 6, 7 and 8. German music will swing over the bay. Field trips, social events and speeches on German contribution to history and culture in south Texas will highlight the convention.

Two free roundtrip plane tickets to Frankfurt will be awarded, courtesy of American Airlines.

Though not affiliated, the German Society of the Coastal Bend and the German Texan Heritage Society will share the festival on the beach, beginning with an afternoon reception at the Holiday Inn - Emerald Beach on Sept. 6. Lectures, meetings and field trips will occupy two days. A dinner dance will be held Saturday night, with a fashion show of German Dirndls, the colorful regional dresses from various parts of Germany.

For further information, contact the German-Texan Heritage Society, P.O. Box 262, Manchaca, Texas 78652, Telephone: 512-295-5901.
