VOLUME IX

MUENSTER, TEXAS, COOKE COUNTY, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1944

A Hollywood producer planning a two million dollar epic, "The Varga Girl", announced that he is looking for a girl who is the epitome of the Varga girl featured in a national magazine.

To think that a worldly wise man would come forth with such an ideal. What he's asking for is a freak, one that's easy on the eye, perhaps, but a freak just the same. Whoever disagrees has only to ponder on the famous — or infamous, according to Postmaster General Walker — gal's specifications: legs about half a shin length too long, a calf to fit a 200 pound wrestler, a tummy tiny enough for a twelve year old kid, and other anatomical embellishments so obvious they don't even need a mention. It's safe to offer any odds they'll never find her in the flesh.

This is the cutie who slightly more than a year ago got her publisher in dutch with the postal department, eventually causing him to lose his mailing rights.

While not extolling the merits of Varga's art, Con nevertheless questions the wisdom of barring the little lady from the mails while allowing continued license to quite a few similar characters. If one publication is to be measured by standards of decency let's measure them all.

The absurdity of the Esquire case stands out even more conspicuously when considered along with some of the pornographic trash now being peddled off as literature, including a few best sellers.

There's an old saying that literature should be a reflection of life, but that does not mean it has to emphasize the sordid side of life nor seek to justify behavior that has always been considered contrary to good taste and ethical standards.

About the most adequate judgment that can be passed on such stuff was recently expressed by one person who had just finished a currently popular book: "It left me feeling filthy."

The fuss growing out of the Ohio telephone strike goes to show the attitude of some people toward their employers. Until that came up no one ever thought to complain about wages and hours. For that matter no one complained about them after the trouble started. The bone of contention was the extra inducement offered to a few.

Before getting too sympathetic about the rights of the strikers let's consider the employer's problem for a moment. He was short of help, and the only way he could get the job done was to offer a premium to emergency employees. He wasn't depriving any of the old employees. Actually he was making a sacrifice to make their work easier. And what was their reaction? Instead of appreciating his efforts the union leaders seized his predicament as a pretext to demand higher wages for every employe in the organization.

That's the trouble with the labor situation. We hear no end of claims about the rights of workers but so pitifully little about the rights of employers.

Only a few days ago this column was called to task for its attitude toward proposed amendments to ban the closed shop in three states. The critic took considerable pains to convince you truly that he was going off on a tangent, because to ban the closed shop was to deprive the worker of his right to organize and bargain collectively.

Okay, the column is happy to concede that man has a point. No fair person is going to deny that labor is entitled to the opportunity to assert its rights. At the same time no fair person will concede that labor has a right to make exorbitant demands. Let's compromise on that with an agreement that labor ought to purge its ranks of racketeers and racketeer elements and then let sound judgment take its course.

But if there has to be a choice between industry and unscrupulous racketeers as creators of labor policies this column still favors industry. After some of the abuses instigated by union bosses during the past few years it is easy to believe that business men could and would promote a more enduring economy. That's what the open shop issue boils down to — taking control away from the unions and giving it to industry.

In answer to the reminder that panel encyclicals proclaim labor's right to fair treatment this column would like to point out that those same encyclicals recognize two other elements of production — capital and management — which are likewise entitled to fair treatment. Naturally the condition to strive for is one of mutual fairness among all those elements. To accomplish that labor will have to concede some of its ad-

RAIN AND COLDER WEATHER HIT HERE; 2 INCHES OF RAIN

Two inches of rain fell in this sector last Friday, bringing November's total precipitation to 4.12 inches, according to I. A. Schoech, in charge of the government gauge here.

The rain fell slowly, doing a maximum of good and a minimum of harm. Moisture was not badly needed but will benefit grain, making good pasture. Some grain was not yet up and a small acreage had not been planted.

The lowest temperature of the season and the first ice this winter was reported Monday morning when thermometers registered 39 degrees.

Fairness requires that you do unto others as you would have them do unto you; but kindness is demonstrated when you do it first.

An honor seldom accorded a civilian was given Matthew S. Sloan, Chairman of the Board and President of the M-K-T Lines, when he was invited late in November to stand with the commanding officer of the 76th Railway Operating Battalion as that Katy-sponsored Army railway organization based in review. The photo graph immediately above shows the battalion colors being dipped in salute as they pass the reviewing group. Old Glory, of course, remaining proudly aloft. Inset is a close-up of Chairman-President Sloan and Lt. Col. W. C. Pruitt, battalion commander, in the reviewing stand. Colonel Pruitt in private life is superintendent of the Katy's Northwestern district, with headquarters at Wichita Falls, Texas, and a number of officers and many of the men of the 76th are Katy employes. In agreeing to sponsor the 76th, the Katy's President Sloan equipped the organization's band with a complete set of new instruments and also provided needed photographic equipment for its public relations department.

Tin Can Cleanup Set For Saturday If Weather Is Fair

The city-wide tin can cleanup scheduled for last Saturday could not be held due to the inclement weather and the extremely muddy roads as the result of an all-day rain Friday.

The cleanup will be held this Saturday, if the weather permits, and in the event of more rain, will take place on the first pretty Saturday thereafter.

Cooperation is requested by the sponsor group, the Civic League and Garden Club, as the trucks to be used, furnished through courtesy of the local cheese plant is available for use only in the morning. If all cans and other rubbish are sacked or boxed and placed at curbs or in alleys for pickup, the job can be finished in a half a day, it is estimated.

Minimum charge, as in previous cleanups, is to be twenty five cents for the average pickup.

Turkey Season For Christmas Opens Dec. 5

Will Buy And Ship Live Birds Only; No Packing Or Dressing Program

The annual Christmas turkey season opens officially at the local FMA plant on Tuesday, Dec. 5. Plant Manager Rudy Hellman disclosed this week. All cooperative turkeys will be received on the 5 and 6 and will be handled as during the Thanksgiving program. There will be no dressing and packing project and activity will consist in buying the birds and their shipment alive to Wilson and Company at Oklahoma City.

Cooperative members are urged to bring their birds in on the days designated as there will be available on those two days trucks to haul the turkeys.

Roy Callahan, representative of Wilson and company, was in the city this week making arrangements for the program.

The same factors that were responsible for not having a dressing and packing program here in November are again the cause for handling the program in the same manner. Chiefly the reasons are a fewer number of turkeys and the current labor shortage.

Lt. Albert Hoehn Writes Of Recent Activity

Navy Lieutenant Albert Hoehn, who was promoted from ensign to his present rank recently, has written his father, A.T. Hoehn, an interesting letter regarding activity during the past few weeks. The ship on which he serves participated in the invasion of the Philippines and he said, "I just hope that the folks who were responsible for the Lord's giving us so much help that day will continue their friendship with God for the Lord only knows when we will need His help again."

Excerpts from his letter: This ship participated in the Leyte operation, the curtain raiser of the invasion of the Philippines. We went to Leyte to give air support to the amphibious landings of McArthur's troops and we were doing a good job. The landings went off as scheduled and our ground troops were making excellent progress. Then the Japs decided they wouldn't take it lying down, and their fleet, which had been playing hide and seek (mostly "hide") since Midway came steaming along to join the big battle.

The first inking that we had that there was anything out of the ordinary was an urgent radio dispatch that some of our small ships were being shelled by a strong Japanese surface force of battleships, cruisers and destroyers. This wasn't the type of engagement we had been scheduled to play, and we weren't particularly equipped for such a battle, but we did have some hole cards. The pilots really delivered the goods and as a result of their attacks the Japanese admirals decided they had bitten off more than they could chew. They turned and started a run for cover, and when they turned so did we. From pursuit we became puruers, and defense became attack. Our ships tore through their strike and met in some telling blows. The air attack we had that afternoon was just an anticlimax but our planes soon covered themselves with glory turning back the enemy with heavy losses.

It was a good and exciting show. The whole ship worked as a real team. Every department functioned as smoothly as ever.

At the end of the day we got our reward, the one every Navy man prides so highly, the "Well Done" from those in command.

When the fleet action was over we went right back to our assigned mission, supporting the Leyte operations, the job we had started to do.

Labor leaders consider a wage reduction a capital offense.

Progress Slow In Sixth War Loan Campaign Here

Committees Being Named To Solicit Purchases Throughout Community

Organization of committees to solicit in this community for the Sixth War Loan drive is taking place this week. Chairman J. M. Weinzapfel stated Wednesday. "These members will take to the field in an effort to bring the campaign to a successful close as quickly as possible."

While response has been fair during the first week of the drive, it is slow. Approximately $10,000 of the city's $75,000 quota has been accounted for. The local quota in Series E bonds is $50,000, and about a tenth of this amount was tabulated Wednesday.

People know that bonds must be purchased in order to finance the war, and they are willing to do their part, but too often wait for a committeeman to call on them, it is pointed out. It is urged that every person make his purchase without being solicited. The job can be completed quickly if everybody cooperates.

P-T A MINSTREL AND PIE SUPPER TO BE HELD DECEMBER 8

Everything is in order for an evening of hilarity, fun, song and dance and real old fashioned black-face comedy on December 8, when members of the local P-T A present their minstrel show in connection with a benefit pie supper in the public school.

The program will begin at 8 o'clock and following an hour and a half of entertainment the pie supper will take place. Mrs. Ray Evans is directing the minstrel and included in the cast of characters are T.M. and George Hammer, Jack Robinson, Loyal Burghiel, Ray Evans, Enlow Teague, Mrs. Orlean Edelen, Mrs. Ray Evans, John Hoffman and Everett Wells.

In addition to three negro skits there will be songs and dances by selected groups.

Everybody is invited to attend and members of the P-T A extend a hearty welcome to everybody to be present. There will be no admission charge but the ladies are urged to bring pie which will be auctioned to the highest bidder, and then enjoyed with coffee for lunch.

A stage has been built at the school and proceeds from the affair will go toward buying a curtain for it and for books for the school library.

WAR CHEST DRIVE STILL IN PROGRESS

Muenster's War Chest fund is still going, and persons who have not yet contributed are urged to make their donations so that this drive can be closed, it was stated Wednesday.

The local quota is still short approximately $250, and the campaign will go on until this amount is raised.

Withholding Tax Forms Due By December 1st.

All employers are required to procure from their employes before December 1 forms showing withholding taxes which disclose exemptions, the bureau of internal revenue has announced.

Employers should keep the withholding tax information on all employes. The internal revenue office has ample supply of forms W-4.

Changes in the withholding tax will be made after January 1 and a supply of circulars giving the new tax tables are being distributed to employers for their information.

Your Home

By Frances Ainsworth

The other evening at an informal buffet supper I saw "in action" the very special convenience of a nest-of-tables. In this home there were a pair of these very decorative pieces on either side of the fireplace.

As time for refreshments arrived, I noticed there were still no signs of a table being set, although there were eight to be served, and there was plenty of evidence of activity in the kitchen.

The husband appeared with a big tray. This he set on the low cocktail table. And in a twinkling he moved out the two smaller tables from each of the "nests," placing these conveniently by the chairs the guests were occupying. Then the hostess came from the kitchen with a steaming percolator of coffee and a huge platter of sandwiches. When these were passed, each guest shared with another the use of one of the small tables from the nest. It all took place quickly, easily, and gracefully. I realized more strongly than ever why in the recent survey of Imperial Furniture Company of Grand Rapids, nest-of-tables were third in popularity among all types of tables. Since that evening I have been talking with some of my friends who have nest-of-tables in their homes, and learn other uses to which they are being put.

One woman, who has two high school age children, finds that the use of nests solves the problem of a small desk for doing home work. And she herself uses one for writing letters. Another uses one of the nests for sewing. And, of course, for bridge parties nests really shine. You can put a small table on diagonal corners for ash trays, drinks, and even score pads, keeping the card table clear for playing.

IF YOU think Japan is a pushover—you're fooling yourself, mister. Millions of fanatical Japanese are prepared to die for their country. Every American soldier, marine and sailor in the Pacific knows that he has a tough fight on his hands. You can't tell them their war is over! Even as you read these words, American men are dying in the fight against Japan.

Look into your heart and ask yourself honestly: "Have I stopped fighting? Have I stopped buying War Bonds because I think the war is about over?" You're not a quitter; your answer is "No!"

It costs billions of dollars a month to fight Japan

The fight in the Pacific calls for a highly specialized type of equipment. B-29 bombers that cost $600,000 in War Bonds; M-4 tanks with bulldozer blades that cost $67,417; "alligators" that cost $30,000; millions of gallons of gas. We need more and costlier equipment than any war has ever called for. And that's the reason for the 6th War Loan Drive. Just as long as a single Japanese aims a gun at our men—we must continue to buy War Bonds.

Once again you are asked to buy at least one extra $100 War Bond. Buy more if you possibly can. Not only is it for the final Victory—it's for your future. Sign up for extra War Bonds on the Payroll Plan. Welcome the Victory Volunteer when he or she calls at your home. Remember—the job in the Pacific is still terrific. We're out to get Japan in the 6th War Loan Drive!

YOUR COUNTRY IS STILL AT WAR—ARE YOU?

MUESTER PUBLIC SCHOOL.
 We had several guests last week from schools that had their Thanksgiving there. We enjoyed seeing Edwin and Jimmie Hamner, Johnnie D. Fisher, Duana Sue Kline, Sue Ann Teague, Paul Nieball, Julius Stelzer, La Vetta Martin and Lillian Branch.
 Another visitor that was not quite so welcome but caused a lot of excitement in Mrs. Thompson's room was a mouse. Bobbie Robertson called it a "mice".
 We are looking forward to our holidays this week. After the six weeks tests they are especially welcome.
 We have sympathized with Buddy Sanner, Jackie Robertson, Donnie Pendleton, Mary Jo Williams, Rudy Boulware, Billy Joe Nieball and J.D. Hott who have all been ill lately.
 The library books from Gainesville were very welcome. However the book reports due in the near future mar our joy.
 A stage is being built by the school board for use for school programs. The P.T.A. will use it first for their Minstrel Show. We would appreciate your attendance, because we hear that if possible the P.T.A. wants to buy curtains for the stage.
 Our school pictures arrived this week. Most of them were very good. Especially photogenic were: Alene Moore, Dorothy Sicking, Rowena Fielder, J.D. Hott, Merlin Joe Evans, Jimmie Jack Biffle

Sudan Pasture Ups Milk Production

Part of Buford herd grazing on experimental pasture.
STOCKTON, ILL.—An emergency pasture of Sudan grass and Soybeans, planted on the Buford Bros. farm near here, brought a 16% increase in milk production in the first week the dairy herd was turned into the pasture, and resulted in a gain of $50.00 in increased income and savings on grain.
 Volume of milk from the 22 Holsteins in the Buford herd increased 800 pounds over the previous week when the herd was on bluegrass, with the supplementary grain ration reduced nearly one-half.
 The demonstration was set up at the suggestion of the Extension Service, University of Illinois, and was under the supervision of Homer Kearnaghan, Jo Daviess County Farm Adviser. The Stockton plant of the Kraft Cheese Company cooperated by providing the seed.
 Approximately eight acres were seeded to the Sudan-soybean mixture, slightly below standard recommendations of one-half acre per cow. Seeding was at the rate of 25 pounds of Sudan and 1 1/2 bu. of soybeans per acre.
 In the week before the cows went on the emergency pasture, the herd produced 5,124 pounds of milk. During the first week on Sudan pasture, production was 5,917 pounds of milk, and 187.3 pounds of fat.
 John Buford reported that on the first two days, the herd foraged only a few feet from the gate, cropping heavily. Later, they wandered more and spent more time resting in the shade. After five days, the herd was put on bluegrass pasture at night, and milk production dropped 84 pounds the next day.
 After ten days of pasturing on the Sudan-soy, the herd was moved to a second-growth alfalfa field, with supplementary hay and grain feeding. Production held well with the previous week. In five days, average daily production was 823 pounds, while in a comparable period, the average for five days on the Sudan grass was 638 pounds.
 Production averaged 732 pounds per day on the bluegrass pasture in the seven days prior to use of the Sudan, with an average of 855 pounds in the first seven days on the emergency pasture. A low of 641 pounds was recorded on bluegrass with a high of 890 pounds after four days on Sudan. The Sudan low was 811 pounds on day and night pasturing.
 Farm Adviser Kearnaghan is recommending to all dairymen that they grow emergency pastures such as fall seeded rye for early spring pasture, to be followed with the Sudan-soybean combination next June, so as to increase milk yields, reduce the cost of the grain, hay, and silage feeding, and to keep the herd in better health.
 "Due to the fact that there is an extreme shortage of farm labor throughout the county, the above program will assist our dairymen because less time is required for feeding and care when good emergency pastures are used," he said.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—I receive letters every day from women who are bewildered to know just how to be sure of selecting "good quality" when choosing upholstered furniture—so much depends on "what's inside" that cannot be seen. As a guide to my readers I would suggest four simple rules.

One. Look long and carefully for the style and design that really fit in with the other things in your room, giving attention to size and scale best suited for members of your family who will most frequently use the chair or sofa you are buying.

Two. Choose the fabric just as thoughtfully as you would for a suit or coat, considering color, pattern, and material, considering, too, problems of wear and keeping clean. And look carefully to those details of tailoring and visible workmanship. They are "tip offs" of inside quality.

Three. Just as in anything else, don't expect something for nothing. Beware of "bargain prices." Rely on a store with a reputation for selling nice things.

Four. Above all else, look for the label or trade mark of a reliable maker. Among all furniture, upholstered pieces are among the most difficult for even an expert to tell good quality from poor. So much depends on the inside, unseen construction. And yet it is almost entirely on "what's inside" that your comfort, your wearability, satisfaction, and value depend. It is best to place your confidence in an expert, just as you must do when buying a diamond. Such experts are makers who back their reputation by trade marking their product.

of Sacred Heart High

Each year we celebrate one day as Thanksgiving Day. Yet, have you ever stopped to think that although we point out one day of the year should be a day of thanksgiving.

We enjoy the blessings of life, freedom of religion, liberty, and happiness. Most of us take these blessings for granted. Today more than ever, when the world lies in chaos we Americans should be grateful that we still enjoy these blessings and ask God that these same blessings will continue to be ours.

Sacred Heart football team defeated Lindsay High last Wednesday afternoon. The final score was 12 to 6.

In the first quarter Norbert completed a short pass over left end thrown by quarterback Arnold Knabe. This score carried in until the second quarter when Lindsay went for a touchdown. In the third quarter we again scored when Alvin Hartman completed a forty yard pass and went for the second touchdown.

It was an exciting game and we are looking forward for the return game.

Our volley-ball team won a victory over Lindsay last Wednesday afternoon. The score was two to one.

Gladys Wilde and Alma Marie Luke, students at Mt. St. Scholastica College, Atchison, Kansas, visited classes at S.H.S. last Friday afternoon. They enjoy their college work but find that it takes hard and persevering study to keep up with their work.

Peepin' Through
Many and varied slants of school life came into view this past week.
Henry: (losing an argument) "I'm sorry."
Florence: "How is the rest of the family?"
Leonard Walterscheid must think there is a shortage of water because the appearance of ink around his mouth seems to indicate that he is drinking ink.

Monday morning when the pupils came to school they were staring themselves in the face. Yes, the pictures finally came. The boys and girls were seen exchanging pictures. But Rosalee Muller seemed to think that the pictures would be all right if they were not so natural. We can honestly say that this time the photos were swell.

The Freshman class seems to be having trouble with their ABC's. Sounds queer doesn't it. But they were seen writing them at the board one day this past week.

Names for the exchange of Christmas gifts were drawn last Tuesday. Was it coincidence or a plan that caused Billy Joe to get a certain sophomore girl's name in the drawing. Ruben also seems satisfied now.

Mildred Wiesman earned her fifty words a minute certificate this past week in typing.

They have come and gone again. We mean those six weeks tests. Do you realize that one third of the school year lies forever in the past?

Tables are always reversed during test time. For five weeks the pupils use the phrase "I don't know" to the inquires of the teacher, but while tests are in progress it's the teacher who says, "I don't know."
We enjoyed a puppet show Tuesday afternoon.

MOOS OF THE MOMENT

BY UNCLE BOB
of the Kraft Dairy Farm Service

Eight new pieces of heavy artillery are ready for delivery to the nation's dairymen for their 1945 battle of production. These are the recommendations in the new 8-point milk production program announced recently from Washington. Stress in 1945 will be on efficiency in production, and every dairymen who wants to improve his methods will find these eight points invaluable as a guide in his operations. Here they are:

1. Grow an abundance of high quality roughage.
2. Balance your herd with your feed supply.
3. Keep production records on each cow in your herd.
4. Practice disease control methods.
5. Produce milk and cream of the highest quality.
6. Adopt labor saving methods.
7. Take care of your land.
8. Develop a sound breeding program.

Watch for Kraftsman "How to Milk" Article

Right along the line of points 4, 5 and 6, the November issue of the Producers' Edition of the Kraftsman contains an article which will be of deep interest to every dairymen. The article is called "How to Milk a Cow—and Why."

It is written by one of the nation's foremost authorities on sound dairy practices. It explains how rapid milking helps control mastitis, how it saves time and labor, produces better milk by aiding your sanitation program.

If you are not on the regular mailing list of the Kraftsman, drop me a card at 500 Peshtigo Court, Chicago 99, Ill., and I'll mail you a copy. You don't want to miss this issue, which contains plenty of other interesting items.

Avoid Late Rush By Ordering Seeds Now

I can remember a Christmas day back yonder when I shook my stocking and that jack-knife I was expecting didn't show up. It was an awful blow. It's going to be a shock to some folks next spring when planting time comes 'round and they find their supply of fertilizer or seed or both has not arrived, because supply houses are swamped with late orders.

There was a rush late last spring when many orders came in at once and some farmers had to wait to get their supplies. But, like most problems, there's a simple way out.

You'll save yourself some possible grief if you'll order now and take delivery soon after the first of the year. Probably you already know how much lime or phosphate or nitrogen you'll need, how much corn or oats seed or something else you'll want. It will help the suppliers and it will help the transportation situation if you'll get your orders in right away.

Late Pasturing May Damage Cover Crops

You remember the story about the goose which laid the golden eggs and how its owner cooked his own goose. Cover crops may not be actual gold mines but they put money in the dairymen's pocket.

However, you can overwork them and right now is the proper time to pull your cows off these fall pastures, to prevent damaging them and cutting down the "golden egg" production which you are expecting next spring.

Cover crops have done a fine job of keeping up milk production. Now they need a rest, particularly if there have not been any good recent rains and if a freeze may be expected in the near future.

Dairy specialists and the experts on pastures at the colleges tell me that the First of December is a cut-off time for cover crop pasturing. In the spring, they'll come back and you can start pasturing again. Past December 1, continued pasturing may cause severe damage.

If you still need cover crop bulletins, write the Extension Service, Mississippi State College, State College, Miss., for Leaflet No. 54, or the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, Tenn., for Leaflet No. 6.*

*NOTE: There usually is a 5c charge for pamphlets mailed to non-residents of a state; but possibly your own state has a free pamphlet on the same subject. Ask your county agent.
