Republican nomination sought by Vestal, Dixon

by Janet Felderhoff
Those who vote in the Republican Primary on March 12 will have two qualified candidates from which to choose their candidate for Constable of Precinct #1. W. Taylor Vestal and Douglas Dixon are the candidates. The winner will run against C. J. Rabenau. He is opposed for the Democratic nomination.

The duties of a constable are varied. The constable is an authorized peace officer and is the chief process server of the justice court. He has state-wide jurisdiction to execute any criminal processes, and county-wide jurisdiction to execute any civil processes. He may also execute processes issued by some state agencies.

Some of the more unusual duties that a constable might be required to perform were pointed out by Mr. Vestal. One was to obtain warrant to impound cruelly treated animals for the Humane Society. The other is, with the sheriff's department, to seize and impound animals such as cows that are out repeatedly because of neglect.

graduated from the Texoma Regional Police Academy. From 1986 to 1992 he earned the certifications of Firefighter, Intermediate Firefighter, Advanced Firefighter, and Master Firefighter. He is a graduate of Southwest Texas State University at San Marcos with a BS degree in Agriculture. While in high school Vestal achieved the rank of Eagle Scout in the Boy Scouts of America.

Vestal has served on the board of directors for Cooke County Farm Bureau since 1985 and has served as secretary for the last eight years. From 1990 to 1995 Vestal served on the board of directors for the Gainesville Riding Club.

Taylor is married to Jo Vestal. They have four children, all teenagers. Jo teaches sixth grade in the Gainesville Middle School.

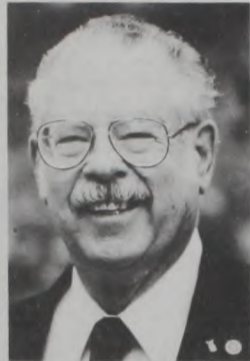

"I believe a constable must be dependable, self motivated, and a good time manager," Vestal commented. "He must be able to serve others, handle emergencies, and relate to people. As a representative of the county he should be of high moral character and be able to manage financial transactions for the office."

Taylor feels that he has the qualifications necessary to the job. He noted that his record reflects a past of serving others, he has countless hours of training from the fire department in emergency situations, is knowledgeable in handling medical and hazardous material circumstances.

Doug Dixon, a sergeant with the Gainesville Police Department, retired on January 31, 1996. He was employed there for the last 23 years. He is seeking the office of constable in an effort to continue to serve the citizens of Cooke county, and provide them with quality law enforcement.

During his 23 years with the Gainesville Police Department Mr. Dixon accumulated more than 500 class room hours in police work, including Texas Penal Code, Crime Prevention, Juvenile Law, Felony Stops, Advanced Fire Arms Training, Intoxalizer Operation and Traffic Enforcement. He has a Master's Certificate in Law Enforcement issued by the Texas Commission on Law Enforcement and Standards. Also he has earned 124 college hours and an Associate Degree in Law Enforcement from Cooke County College.

DOUGLAS DIXON

Dixon joined the United States Air Force in 1951 and spent 20 years in service as a security policeman. During that time he was stationed in Japan, Europe, and Vietnam. He was selected by the Federal Aviation Administration for special schooling at Fort Dix, New Jersey to serve as one of the US Sky Marshals assigned to Trans World Airlines to stop the hijacking of US Civilian Aircraft during the '70's. In 1971 he was honorably discharged as a Tech Sgt.

"The position of constable is a significant office. The constable carries the powers of arrest," noted Dixon. "He serves civil papers, and maintains order as bailiff in the County Court and Grand Jury. With my past experience working closely with both city and county officials, sheriff's Dept., Justice of the Peace, County and District Attorney, and Highway Patrol, I feel I am completely qualified for the position of constable."

Dixon says that he will be able to devote all of his time working full time for the next four years if elected.

BILL FREEMAN, Democrat incumbent candidate for Justice of the Peace, addresses members of the Cooke County Taxpayers Association at their meeting Thursday, Jan. 18. Other candidates in the forum were Ed Zielinski, Rep., County Attorney; Janelle Haverkamp, Rep., District Attorney; Tanya Davis, Rep., County Attorney; Larry Claxton, Dem., District Attorney; Ron Clark, Rep., State Representative, Dist. 62; Jo Vestal, speaking for her husband, Taylor Vestal, Rep., Constable; Bob Grundy, Rep., Commissioner Pct. 3; Phil Young, Rep., Commissioner Pct. 1; Mike Compton, Rep., Sheriff; Douglas Dixon, Rep., Constable; Cindy Stormer, Rep., District Attorney.

Kenny and Kim Felderhoff buy Hess Furniture as of Feb. 5

by Janet Felderhoff
Hess Furniture in Muenster will have new owners as of Monday, Feb. 5. Kenny and Kim Felderhoff purchased the business from Dennis and Kathy Hess. Billie Grewing will continue to work as a sales person in the business.

According to Kim, who will be operating the business, they will carry the same lines of furniture, accessories, and window coverings as before. They may be introducing additional lines in the future.

Kenny will continue working for Felderhoff Bros. Drilling and will help Kim as his time permits. A Grand Opening is planned for March after more new furniture has been delivered.

Kenny and Kim are pleased to be the owners of one of Muenster's oldest business buildings. The building at 202 N. Main, was built in 1889 for John W. Meurer. Meurer's hardware and furniture business was on the north side of the building. At one time the local post office was in the front of the south side and the family lived in the remainder of the building.

W. E. Scott started the business that was to become Hess Furniture in the mid 1950's. In October of 1963 Al and Antonia Hess bought out Scott's business. They added small home appliances, kitchenware, and custom window and floor coverings.

Dennis and Kathy entered the business in July, 1971 as his parents' partners. Ten years later they bought the entire business.

"We're excited to be involved in business in Muenster and welcome people to come by and visit and see what we have to offer," remarked Kim. Business hours will remain the same, Monday through Friday 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and Saturday 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

MR. & MRS. TAYLOR VESTAL

Taylor Vestal, 41, is a fireman with the Gainesville Fire Department. He works a 24-hour shift and is then off for two days. Taylor feels his employment situation will allow ample time to carry out the duties of constable should he be elected.

NCTC trustees pave way for student, faculty Internet access

North Central Texas College trustees have brought students and faculty to the head of the entrance ramp to the information superhighway by accepting a bid for installation of a fiber optic "backbone" and related equipment necessary to access the Internet through smaller local area networks (LANs) in various campus buildings.

The action was taken at the trustee's regular monthly meeting Monday night.

FOT DataCom, division of Fiber Optic Technology, Inc., submitted the low bid of $96,337 for the project and is scheduled to begin installation of equipment and cabling right away. Completion is expected around mid-April.

Once in place, the system will put the college directly online with Internet through the Texas Higher Education Network (THENet), with the University of Texas at Dallas serving as NCTC's Internet "provider." UTD is the major Internet gateway for colleges, universities, hospitals and other public agencies in the north Texas region.

NCTC will definitely have its own "home page" on the worldwide web, giving net surfers access to the college's catalog, class schedules, financial aid information and other material. Likewise, college students and faculty will gain access to a virtually unlimited array of library collections, databases and other research and information resources worldwide.

From an administrative standpoint, explained NCTC President Ronnie Glasscock, many state and federal regulatory agencies to which the college must submit reports are already moving toward an almost exclusively "paperless" electronic system of data collection and E-mail communication.

"But this fiber optic backbone was the key, the critically important first step we had to take to enable our students and faculty to access this incredibly important technology," said Dr. Glasscock. "It can lead us in so many positive directions relative to the delivery of quality instruction, to improved student services and so much more."

Toll-free calling approved to Gainesville and Lindsay

The Public Utilities Commission in Austin has reported back to Muenster on the results of balloting for extended local calling. Of the four proposed exchanges, residents of Muenster voted to approve toll-free extended calling to Gainesville. Communities not approved were Saint Jo, Valley View and Valley View East; however, Muenster will receive toll-free calling to Valley View and Valley View East exchanges as a result of balloting in those exchanges. Both Valley View and Valley View East approved toll-free calling to Muenster. This is a two-way toll-free calling. With these approvals, Muenster will automatically receive toll-free calling to those exchanges. The Gainesville exchanges include Lindsay.

The balloting came about as a result of a petition by subscribers, within the local Muenster telephone exchange, to the Public Utilities Commission (PUC). The language contained in this petition was prescribed by the PUC and indicated that service could be approved for up to five additional exchanges at a flat service cost of $3.50 for residences and $7.00 for businesses. It required each subscriber to vote yes or no for each individual city petitioned.

The additional service cost is the maximum increase that can result from approval of up to five requested cities. Once ballots have been approved, a cost study is completed by Muenster Telephone Corporation for the local service to each city approved by the ballot. This study is sent to the PUC for its review and approval of the proposed charge or a smaller charge, depending on the cost of providing expanded local calling. The cost study and an implementation plan must be approved by the PUC, but you should expect expanded local calling to begin by June or July of 1996.

The only city on Muenster's proposed list for toll-free calling, that will remain a toll call, will be Saint Jo. In checking with the PUC in Austin, Muenster Telephone Corporation has confirmed that both Muenster and Saint Jo will have to wait 18 months before they can initiate another request for toll-free service between these towns.

Persons requiring additional information on this matter may contact the telephone company for assistance.

Valley View approves toll-free calling by 70%

submitted by Doris Heying, Valley View

Patricia Pullis at the Texas Utility Commission (PUC) has announced that the petition for extended calling for Valley View East Exchange 637 passed with more than 70 percent of the voters.

Gainesville exchanges passed with 90 percent, Pilot Point and Sanger with 87 percent, Tioga with 85 percent, and Muenster with 84 percent.

This means that there is a reciprocal calling between each of these cities with the 637 exchange. Mr. Alvin Fuhrman says implementation will take place in late June or July. He says he has asked a consultant in Austin to make a study for a plan with Denton for an optional plan on a phone by phone basis. He will make an announcement in this at a later date.

Doris Heying was the coordinator for the 637 petition.

Thieves victimize Rosston VFD

The Rosston Volunteer Fire Dept. has been the victim of substantial loss by theft or vandalism, when someone stole or removed two SCBA Air Packs, in carrying cases, from the fire dept. building, approximately Thursday night, Jan. 25. The Rosston Volunteer Fire Dept. sincerely hopes this was not the act of pranksters. Special caution is noted for this case: this equipment is not suitable for scuba diving and could possibly cause fatal injuries if misused. The Rosston Volunteer Fire Dept. is offering a reward for return of the equipment. Call 768-2780 Pat Ford or 768-2255 Tom Richardson for more information.

Bishop Jos. Delaney speaks out on Catholic education

In conjunction with Catholic Schools Week Bishop Joseph P. Delaney of the Fort Worth Diocese revealed his thoughts on Catholic education. They were published in the January 27 issue of Catholic Schools, a supplement to The North Texas Catholic.

Bishop Delaney, a Massachusetts native, received 22 years of education in Catholic schools from kindergarten through the time when he was ordained. His early years as a priest were also linked closely with Catholic education. He taught for six years, became a school administrator, served as assistant superintendent of schools in Massachusetts for four years and as superintendent in schools in Brownsville, Texas for five years.

The bishop explained that Catholic education played a significant role in his life as a student and then as a teacher. It was his life until 20 years ago when he began to do other things and work in the chancery.

When asked how he felt about the resurgence of Catholic schools in the Diocese of Fort Worth Bishop Delaney responded, "I am delighted and grateful to see Catholic schools growing again. The worrisome part for me is the expense."

"People remember when Catholic schools didn't cost very much. In fact I went through nine years of elementary school without ever paying one penny. It was entirely free to parishioners. High school probably cost about $120 a year."

"However, we were living in a fool's paradise at that point. We were depending on the services of sisters and brothers who were being paid far less than what they needed to be paid. Years later those brothers and sisters have retired, and we're finding there's no money put aside to support them in their old age."

"In the United States at the present time there is an unfunded liability for retired sisters and brothers of about $3 billion. What we did back in those days was to borrow against the future. Catholic schools have always been expensive but we didn't pay then. Unfortunately, the religious are paying now and are having difficulty in finding funds to take care of the elderly and retired. Our schools today are mostly staffed by lay people -- men and women -- who are paid a salary. Naturally it is more expensive. But I think comparably, if we went back to those old days and paid the brothers and sisters what they really needed to provide adequately for their education and care in old age, we would have been paying a lot more. So Catholic schools are expensive, but they've always been expensive. We just weren't acknowledging it in the past."

In the bishop's opinion the entire Catholic community can contribute and enrich the Catholic school experience. He said, "It works both ways. I think the school is a very enriching part of parish ministry, and the parish enriches the school. I've always said a successful Catholic school has to be rooted in the community it comes from."

"Most of our schools are parish-based. A school draws strength from the parish, but it also gives a lot back to the parish. I think virtually all the parishes that have schools are thriving in no small part due to the commitment of the people in the parish toward the school. It builds community. That has always been a great quality of our schools when they've been studied to why they do so well and why kids seem to thrive in them. It's that the school is a community itself and is linked to the parish community. Children are not just going to an institution and coming home every day. The parents are involved in it -- the people of the parish are involved. It's a concern of a lot of people, and the children are surrounded by that concern."

Shoppers' caution shown in January sales rebates

"Texas consumers are remaining cautious with their pocketbooks," State Comptroller John Sharp said recently. A total of $138.1 million in January sales tax rebates was sent to 1,072 cities and 115 counties.

Sharp said cities received $125.7 million in local sales tax rebates for January, 2.5 percent more than the $122.6 million payments one year ago. County rebates were $12.3 million, down six percent from the $13.1 million payments of January 1995.

Muenster and Valley View started the 1996 year with rebate payments that were down from January of 1995. The $7,265.97 sales tax rebate sent to Muenster was 18.03 percent less than the $8,864.84 received in January 1995. Valley View's $1,768.83 showed a 12.68 percent decrease.

Gainesville received $234,304.07, an increase of 42.75 percent. Lindsay saw an improvement of 36.73 percent over last January with a payment of $5,141.26. There was a 9.33 percent increase for Oak Ridge with its $3,856.72 January sales tax rebate check.

Cooke County also noted a drop in the amount received as a rebate in January of 1996 compared to January 1995. The decrease was 6.83 percent and the amount sent for January 1996 was $88,458.96.

Haywood appointed to special interim committee

State Senator Tom Haywood (R-District 30) was appointed by Lt. Governor Bob Bullock to serve on a special Senate Interim Committee on Initiative and Referendum.

"I have taken this issue very seriously because I know that my constituents take it seriously. Many citizens of District 30 have been very active in their support of enacting I & R in Texas. Therefore I consider it my duty to do all I can to see that it gets a fair shot in the Legislature," Haywood stated.

Initiative and Referendum would allow citizens to initiate new laws or constitutional amendments and/or refer a proposition to a statewide ballot for a vote without going through the current legislative process. Haywood was a co-sponsor of Senate Joint Resolution 34 during the last legislative session, which would have allowed this process in Texas.

"During my campaign for the Legislature, I vowed to cut bureaucracy and return government to the people every chance I got. Initiative and Referendum is a key way to further involve our citizens in their government, and I'm grateful to the Lt. Governor for this chance to make it happen for the state of Texas," Haywood ended.

ACCESS TO INTERNET

college to take a truly momentous step forward."

In accepting the bid, NCTC trustees also authorized the financing of the bulk of the project through a combination of currently budgeted funds already earmarked for Internet, grant funds already received for this purpose from the National Science Foundation and a reallocation of unexpended funds in other accounts - principally two unfilled personnel slots.

The remaining $23,732 needed to fund the entire project will come, if needed, from discretionary board-controlled reserves. Dr. Glasscock pointed out, however, that chances are good that using reserves will not be necessary if college revenues end up substantially ahead of expenditures at year-end as currently projected.

The NCTC president also stressed that this financing plan was predicated upon the administration's confidence in a strategy he outlined for first covering a reduction of some $73,000 in state appropriations which were announced out of Austin after the college budget had been adopted.

Dr. Glasscock reported to the trustees that the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board is very close to enacting a new set of regulations which will compel public colleges across Texas - whether they wish to or not - to provide students and faculty access to state-of-the-art technologies. In addition to Internet, this includes distance learning through interactive video, well-equipped general access computer labs and multimedia resources.

In related action at their Monday night meeting, the college trustees also accepted bids for 27 new Pentium-processor *equipped computers to outfit a new 24-station computer lab and to meet computer needs elsewhere on campus.

"This college has come so far over the past couple of years in regard to meeting the challenges of new technology," Dr. Glasscock said, pointing to new computer labs, the installation of a fully interactive video classroom in association with the North Texas Educational Network and, now, the Internet access project.

"And that is exceptionally good news," he added, "in view of these new Coordinating Board standards that will soon be in force regarding the minimum levels of educational technology NCTC will be expected to provide in support of teaching and learning on our campuses."

Spring 1996 semester. With some late registration activity remaining to be accounted for, he said, headcount is expected to be down from the previous spring term by about 3.8 percent - reflecting what he described as "an apparent trend at colleges all across the region."

* Heard a report from Jerry Metzler, dean of administrative services, and Linda Mast, dean of continuing education, on utilization of the 24-passenger "people carrier" vehicle purchased by the college a year ago. Mast reported that utilization of the vehicle as a "traveling classroom" has been tremendously successful, with programs ranging from wildflower and wildlife tours to trips to Metroplex area art galleries, special museum exhibits and theatrical productions such as "Phantom of the Opera."

* These trips and tours have featured faculty and staff members delivering background lectures during the trip to enhance the participants' understanding and appreciation of what they were going to see. Mast reported, "The response has been overwhelming, and we'll soon be announcing a new schedule of trips for the spring." * Approved the issuance by the president of notification of professional personnel of re-employment for 1996-97.

Anniversary, birthday honorees share party

The 35th wedding anniversary of Jerry and Betty Rose Walterscheid and the 87th birthday of her mother, Mrs. Margaret Kupper, both occurring on Sunday, Jan. 28, 1996, provided inspiration for a family gathering in the home of John and Dana Walterscheid.

All the family attended Mass together in Sacred Heart Church at 10:30 a.m. It was recalled that Jerry and Betty Rose's Nuptial Wedding Mass was held in Sacred Heart at 10:30 a.m. on Jan. 28, 1961, exactly 35 years ago. There was one notable difference: that day dawned bitterly cold; thermometers showed 16 degrees, and there was ice on the ground.

The anniversary party was hosted by the Waltersheids' children and grandchildren: John and Dana Walterscheid and Anne, Sara, and Abby of Muenster; Doug and Leigh Walterscheid and Traci of Grapevine; and Ronnie Walterscheid of Muenster.

Others attending the covered dish dinner were brothers and sisters of the honor couple and her mother Mrs. Margaret Kupper; and Emmet and Eva Walterscheid, and Cyril Walterscheid of Muenster; Earline Mages of Farmers Branch; Joan and David Walterscheid of Muenster; Jimmy and Janell Kupper and Billy and Lisa Kupper, all of Valley View; Ginger Kupper of Rockwall. Only family members unable to attend were Tommy and Helen Kupper of Lewisville.

Mission is revelation to Reiter

Washing worms out of a little boy's hair and treating the infection on his scalp were humbling experiences, two of many during a 10-day participation in a medical mission to Guatemala for Todd Reiter, son of Randy and Paula Reiter of Era. Todd said it was a revelation of God's love "for even the least of these," and for him personally, it was also a confirmation of the miracles prayer can accomplish.

Through a stroke of "luck?," Todd Reiter became a member of the medical mission team into the jungles of Guatemala that was set up to include four physicians, one dentist, six nurses, two nurses' aides, a playground designer, water system's designer, Vacation Bible School director, kitchen specialist, builders and young volunteers — all to serve together in Guatemala in a remote jungle village from Dec. 16 to 24.

However, the government shutdown in November caused the passport office to be closed, and one young man from Arizona was unable to get his passport. Due to the variety of projects, someone to fill his position was needed. A doctor from Harlingen remembered that Todd Reiter had traveled to Romania in March and, therefore, had a passport. Invited to go, and with only three weeks to prepare, Todd was soon on the plane to San Salvador and then over a ridge of mountains into Guatemala.

Once there, he began helping to put a roof on a school building to house 7th and 8th grade students, where before only grades one to six were enrolled.

When the roof was finished, Todd and the other youths were rotated to help and assist in the clinic with removal of teeth as well as assisting in cleaning up small children that were infested with teaching, evangelism and baptisms continued to motivate the young into a closer look at what their studies for life service should be, and the older ones as to their ongoing commitment to God's service.

The photos accompanying this account show the light plane used to transfer from San Salvador into Guatemala — "we had to 'hop' the mountain ridge," said Todd. The pilot could risk only half-full fuel tanks on each trip to enable the small plane to rise over the peak. Once a slight overload of equipment almost prevented the plane from rising enough — those on the ground, awaiting their turn, witnessed the danger. Todd said he commented after watching this doctor work he realized that he had misjudged this man. Todd said that this was a reminder to him that God can use everyone no matter what age if we are only willing. What a blessing Dr. Crider proved to be!

To see the overloaded small aircraft make its repeated flights into the jungle, to feel the murky, surprisingly swift water in a dark bankless river in an overloaded canoe on a moonless night, to look into the eyes of gratitude from a people from another country, another church, another culture... consensus of opinions voiced by members of the team: "This was worth experiencing!"

worms in their hair and scalp. They cut the hair and cleaned the infected areas. One special little boy (note photo) had so much infection and inflammation from the worms, his lips appeared to be glued shut. After the medical team treated his scalp and infected areas on his face and mouth, the little boy could actually smile again. Before, his lips could not turn up due to the wounds that drained and then dried his lips shut. Todd said he could actually see results of God's healing hand in helping the medical team to make decision on how to treat each case.

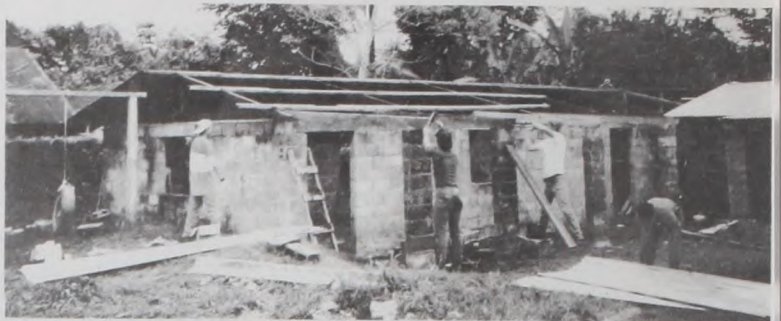

Since there were as many professionals as there were young volunteers from the U.S., the one-on-one working relationship through rotations of the building construction area, dental station, vital-signs station and food preparation area, proved to be the key in getting the youth involved and focused. Their satisfaction in finishing school walls and roofing, playground area, 300-plus patients seen and medicated, many tooth extractions, ongoing health saw it, knowing he would be in the next flight. They successfully landed at sunset, got into canoes and started the trip down the river. After darkness set in, they could see tree roots sticking up out of the water. "We couldn't risk shifting our feet because the canoe would tip and water would reach into the canoe. Twice, we had to stop at the shore, bail out the water and then go on. It was plenty scary!"

One of Todd's first thoughts as he met with the other mission team members was one of disbelief as he saw Dr. Crider, an 83-year-old physician who was also a member of the mission team. Todd thought to himself, "What can this old man do on this mission trip?" Little did he know that he would prove to be the stabilizing factor of the team. As they were taking the trip down the river and the canoe began to fill up with water, Dr. Crider calmed and assured everyone there was no need to worry. As they reached the village, he began to organize the makeshift clinic, knowing just how to set up each station so that the clinic would flow smoothly. Todd

At the end of the mission on Dec. 24, as they prepared to return to the U.S., fog came in so dense the plane was unable to take off. "We prayed, believe me," said Todd. "Almost miraculously the fog lifted" ... "Believe in angels? You bet! Believe in prayer? You better believe it!"

Todd has related many more memorable stories to his parents Randy and Paula, to his grandparents Reuben and Maxine Reiter of Era and Paul and Bernice Sicking of Myra and to his peers. He is a member of the Gainesville Seventh Day Adventist Church and is currently finishing his senior year through home schooling. He has passed all requirements with high grades and has been accepted for college entrance.

Years Ago

December 14, 1945

Main Street building gutted by fire early Sunday morning. Dating from 1889, it was town's first hotel. Called to help, Muenster Volunteer Firemen, who were just leaving the first Mass in Sacred Heart Church, rushed in to battle the raging flames in their dress clothes, bucking a freezing north wind. Joe Knabe received permission to bring a truck and personnel from Camp Howze to assist, and to protect other nearby frame buildings. Rev. Thomas Weinzapfel will be ordained to the priesthood in Sacred Heart Cathedral on Dec. 23. Anthony Luke opens new business, The Variety Store, in remodeled Schenk building. Jimmy Lehnertz buys Gulf Station from Al Horn. Henry Stelzer retires as Depot Agent for MKT Railway here, after 45 years.

Box office to open for BSP's I Hate Hamlet

Paul Rudnick's I Hate Hamlet, scheduled to debut Feb. 8, could very well be the "sleeper" of the Butterfield Stage Players '95-96 season. Theatre goers should be sure to pencil this one in on their calendar and make ticket reservations early, for this play warrants a full house for every performance. States BSP Artistic Director Thom Talbot, "Audiences enjoying past Butterfield successes such as Noises Off, Rumors, and Lend Me A Tenor will like this one-filled with hilarious moments, lots of action - and Hamlet being skewered over the barbecue."

I Hate Hamlet was inspired by real life circumstances: a few years ago playwright Rudnick answered an ad in the New York Times real estate section for a "medieval duplex." The apartment had been occupied by the Shakespearean actor John Barrymore in 1917 who had renovated the premises into a Gothic retreat which he titled "The Alchemist's Corner." Rudnick's own occupancy of the apartment resulted in his idea for the play.

I Hate Hamlet is both a ghost story and a comic tale, set in an enchanted locale that encompasses a magical tone, stylish devilry, and action that is performed with speed and unashamed gusto. The play celebrates the theatre, in all its artifice and happy dementia. The Village Voice called this "...fast mouthed and funny...It has the old-fashioned Broadway virtues of brightness without pretension..." Production dates for I Hate Hamlet are slated for Feb. 8, 9, 10, 15, 16, 17, 22, 23, and 24 at 7:30 p.m. nightly. The box office opened for BSP season members on Monday, Jan. 22 at 10 a.m. and for the general public on Monday, Jan. 29. Box office hours are Monday - Friday 10:00 a.m. - 1:00 p.m. and 2:00 - 4:00 p.m. For more information please call the theatre at (817) 665-8152.

PUT THE TRASH IN THE CAN by Kelly Rigler

From around November 16 until late February of every year, there is one constant. This constant just happens to be basketball. High schools all over the country support both varsity and/or junior varsity. Girls and boys find themselves practicing and working hard for that final goal that occurs in late February-The chance to play in the state championship game. Although this dream does not happen to every team, it is alive and kicking in all players' minds.

The games which take place on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and even Saturdays generate much fuss and pride from the school and its team supporters. The games are meant to be fun and enjoyable to all. This happens to include players. There is an event that is becoming more and more common that lessens the game for some people.

This thing just happens to be the players' language. As basketball becomes more and more competitive, the players are forced to respond both mentally and physically. A shot for the other team, weak defense, or any other mistake in basketball is cause for frustration. This frustration does not have to be dealt with through foul language. Instead of some people going to the gym to correct their mistakes, words of all types and caliber can be heard coming from the mouths of the opposing team. This is made even more

College financial aid meeting Feb. 4 at MHS

Monday, Feb. 5 from 7:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m., Kath Pennartz from Midwestern University will be at Muenster High School to present information about college financial aid. She will not be at the school to recruit students for Midwestern, but will be there to give information and answer questions. Ms. Pennartz is Director of Financial Aid at Midwestern and is an excellent resource for parents of high school juniors and seniors as well as any post-high school students needing help with financial aid issues.

For further information, call Mrs. Perry at the high school at 759-4614.

frustrating when the referees hear this language and do nothing about it.

A coach was asked if there is a rule concerning this bad language. The correct procedure to follow if the player is heard using foul language is an automatic foul, if not a technical foul. This rule gets little use, however. In all of Sacred Heart's games this year, there has not been one call against the use of bad language.

To most people this does not seem like a big deal. The effect and reason for a basketball game is ruined for the players. Here is an example. A player works hard on defense and manages to steal the

Fourth Grade

Kristi Schneider's 4th graders learned about land formation and deterioration. Each child made a paper model of Florida's land changes in the Science Lab with Becky Scott. Back in the classroom the entire class took part in making a clay model. All models show the different forms of Florida since early times. Information received through the Jason Project enables the fourth grade to learn more about how scientists used the scientific method to increase their understanding of land formations. Kristi Schneider's fourth graders use the newspaper to learn basic skills and learn more about the world around them. A Dallas Morning News sponsored activity using current events and headlines increases student language, writing, science, and social studies skills. Fourth grade students also develop a better understanding of current events and news.

Kinder News - Sharon Ledbetter

During the week we studied "F", we read many "Franklin" books, put froot loops on our F's and painted fish. We also learned a song called "Funny Fish." We used a fast track phonics program as a supplement to our everyday language and phonics. We also began a great unit on fairy tales and made lots of neat stuff. During our study of the letter "R", we will concentrate on rhyming words and reading three letter words. Kindergarten students who complete the 600 minute reading program sponsored by Six Flags earn Six Flags Tickets. Kindergarten students who complete the Book It reading program sponsored by Pizza Hut earn free pizza. Congratulations to everyone who met their December reading goal. Keep up the good work.

Kindergarten - Rosemary Dankesreiter

Kindergarten students enjoyed singing songs associated with each letter and playing Match Letter to pictures. Kindergartners have studied most of the consonants in the initial position and have also learned to recognize and write these letters. Upon learning vowel sounds, students were pleased and excited to put letters together to form words. They are enjoying reading simple sentences and stories.

Timelines

by Jonathan Sicking

Leigh Hale's fifth grade class is doing an American Revolution timeline in Social Studies this six weeks. We are doing a timeline as we learn, so we know and can see when the events happened. Megan Lippe is doing the Battle of Concord and Lexington. She likes it, but she would like to do the Battle of Yorktown. She thinks she will do well on it. Ricky Endres is doing a timeline of the Boston Massacre. He said "I will do well and I like it."

Fifth Grade Cartoons

by Megan Lippe

Muenster Elementary School fifth graders are drawing cartoons in their art class. Mrs. Dorothy Fleitman is teaching the art class. Right now they are working on drawing characters. Megan Lippe is drawing a girl and a baby. Kami Klement is doing a cheerleader. Justin Hess is doing a baby and a diaper. Other students are doing babies, toddlers, children, teenagers and adults. Many people including Shanna Jones, Michael Endres, Amanda Felderhoff, Jonathan Sicking, and Megan Lippe say art is their favorite activity period. Kami Klement said, "Art is my favorite activity period, but I also like P.E."

Although many are not aware of this problem, it does exist. The only knowledgeable solution is for the team captain to remind the referees gently of the "foul". This may help eliminate the bad language and "put the trash in the can" where it belongs.
