Attorneys are drawing up a timeline to show how the deal will progress over the next year. It should be ready by January, There will be a joint meeting of the boards to discuss it in January, said Endres.

An 18 member board of the entity that runs the interlocal agreement has been suggested. All would meet jointly each month. There has been some reticence on the part of some of the Gainesville Board, said Endres. Another possible option would be a nonprofit corporation which would be formed by the interlocal agreement and jointly managed by the two boards. There are some questions about this, he explained.

Board President Don Flusche noted that he's heard few negatives on the proposed merger. "I think that the county is in favor of this." Endres remarked. "I think that when it's explained that we can do revenue bonds anyway but we're trying to save the county tax payers some money by doing general obligation bonds — when your choice is vote it down and we'll do it anyway, except it will

According to LISD Principal ry Hamilton, an extensive ility study by architect Fred hs supports the Boards' lings that this expansion of ilities is necessary. "Several eks of committee meetings, surveys, student and personnel interviews, and various proposals have led the Board of Trustees to ask the voters of the District for a Multi-Purpose Center and Gymnasium Complex," said Hamilton.

An enrollment of 500 students ranging from kindergarten to twelfth grade who use the sole gym for physical education, extra curricular basketball, cheerleading, and drill team workouts. Scheduling can become quite a problem at times according to school officials. PE classes are held during the school day so basketball players must practice outside regular school hours. Lindsay has approximately 150 junior high and high school basketball players. This requires that some practice before school and that some evening practices go as late as 8 p.m.

"When the weather is nice, we don't have too many problems, but with winter and basketball season, gym usage doubles and even triples," Hamilton said. He noted that the District rents gym time from NCTC and transports students to the college to help get in enough practice time.

NCTC Regents swear in newest board member, Ann Kemplin

Winstead who passed away in July.

Mrs. Kemplin and her fellow board members also will carry a new designation following action at Monday's meeting. Rather than "trustees," the college's governing board will be known officially as the North Central Texas Community College District "Board of Regents."

The reasons for adopting the designation 'regent' are many,' explained Dr. Ronnie Glasscock, president, "not least of which is the fact that this is the most commonly used title for a governing board member at most other institutions of higher education around the state and indeed the entire country.

higher education around the state and indeed the entire country.

"This more proper designation will cut down on misunderstandings which can occur with various state and federal agencies, foundations and other entities who often equate the term 'trustees' with boards of secondary school systems and proprietary schools."

Cooke County Judge Bill Harris was on hand at Monday's meeting to swear in Mrs. Kemplin. As required by statute, she will serve as an appointee until May 2000, at which time she must stand for election, even though the late Mr. Winstead's unexpired term runs through 2004. She indicated, however that she does intend to be a candidate for the Place 7 seat.

Also expiring in May 2000 will be the terms of NCTC regents Neil Tibbetts, board secretary, and Charles Draper.

In other business, the NCTC Regents heard and approved a report on the 1998-99 financial audit from Tom Schalk, representing the Gainesville accounting firm of Schalk & Smith. Schalk termed the audit lone of the cleanest we've ever done."

Schalk also complimented Heidi Ellis, dean of financial services, on the "outstanding, highly professional job" she and her staff have done in maintaining the college's financial records. "Those records stood the test of what we consider to be an especially thorough and rigorous audit process."

Dr. Glasscock said the audit report is indicative of the increasingly healthy financial condition of the college, and he too congratulated Ellis and her staff on "the excellent results of their hard work, high level of competence and diligence in managing our finances."

The NCTC Regents also greeted members of the Presidential Ambassadors, the college's newest student organization whose members appeared outfitted in their distinctive blue blazers, which will feature an identifying patch.

The 16 students making up this elite group came from a large field of nominees submitted by faculty, staff and administration, according to Djuna Forrester, a member of the college's public information office staff and advisor to the group.

Forrester reported that the members were chosen after a langthy and rigorous screening process which included interviews, submission of letters of recommendation and assessments of grades, interpersonal skills, demonstrated leadership abilities and involvement in both school and community service activities.

The NCTC Presidential Ambassadors will serve as hosts at various public college functions, participate in outreach and recruiting activities, carry out community service projects, conduct leadership programs for area high school students and perform other related functions.

Turning to other items on a relatively heavy agenda, the NCTC Regents:

• Appointed Karon Sullivant, vice chair of the board, to serve as its representative on the

After her retirement this month Joan plans to do what she has wanted to do for years and years, she said. She will open her own business as a diabetic consultant. She has done diabetic education for the last several years. Joan has been a certified diabetic educator for seven years. She plans to work out of her home, but will work with the Muenster Hospital, Gainesville Memorial Hospital and the new hospital after the merger. There will be a bonus in the MMH employees' Christmas checks again this year. The Board was unanimous in its vote to award the bonuses which will cost an estimated $7,075.

Endres reported that the recently purchased x-ray film processor should be installed some time this week. At the administrator's request the Board ratified the purchase of a DATASCOPE cardiac telemetry monitor. For $30,000 the hospital will receive three ambulatory telemetry units and one bedside monitor with telemetry capabilities. A $20,000 gift from the Stelzer family will be used for part of the purchase cost of this system.

St. Richard's Villa will be getting about $4,000 worth of improvements in the line of equipment. There will be six new geri chairs, 12 overbed tables, and four wheel chairs. "We're going to try to do a little each month to get rid of the stuff that's banged up and doesn't look good," said

Muenster Memorial's Y2K baby will be gifted abundantly. Endres told the Board that they were currently gathering gifts. Just arrived was a gift from Representative Ralph Hall. It was a flag which was flown over the capitol and a congressional calendar.

the Special Ed Co-op, joined by Lindsay last week. Cooper noted that Gainesville will have their own program and Lindsay plans to go to Gainesville. "In my opinion we should stay in the co-op. It should not cost anymore. Gainesville just wants to call their own shots."

Discussion on the "bus barn" or maintenance garage continued. The district already budgeted $5000 to the project, which is not enough. Two bids were submitted, Structures, Inc., and CK Steel Building, for a 20'x30' building with a 12' door, to possibly be built on the north side of the Ag shop. Rick Walterscheid, head of maintenance, requested a work bench and lockable "cage" for tools that would be a nice addition. He noted that the building could also be used for extra storage and would like it a little larger, may be 30'x40', so there is room to work around the buses when pulled in for mechanical work.

"We need a maintenance shed for minor repairs, not a bus barn, big enough to put the

Cooper had three items on the superintendent report.
Paving the school parking lot, roughly 150'x600' long has an estimated cost of $22,500, which doesn't include prep work if needed. The county commissioner has agreed to do the labor, with a bid from Cody Williams at $2.25 a square yard for labor, chip and oil.

Cooper also noted that the student parking was moved off of Seventh Street and onto the campus lot. On Dec. 7, the drug dog returned, hitting on 10 automobiles, sniffing out some marijuana seeds and a piece of drug paraphernalia in one vehicle in the parking lot. Decisive action was taken on the one student.

In executive session, the board hired Shana Haverkamp and Toni Dittfurth as bus drivers, discussed a few personal needs, and discussed the superintendent search.

Consider hosts' responsibilities

responsibilities

If alcoholic drinks are on the menu for your holiday party, make it your duty to help guests imbibe responsibly.

Experts note that simple planning can help keep the celebration happy for all. Suggestions include stocking up on non-alcoholic beverages, serving plenty of filling foods, post numbers for cab companies next to the telephone and recruit "designated drivers" in advance.

If you notice a guest drinking too much or too quickly, don't hesitate to ask if they would like some fruit punch or soda.

Lindsay ISD opts to join Gainesville's Cooperative

by Janet Felderhoff Lindsay ISD will no longer be a member of the Cooke
County Special Education
Cooperative as of September 2000. At the Dec. 14 regular meeting of the Lindsay ISD Board of Trustees, Board members acted or Superintendent Travis Winn's recommendation and voted to withdraw from the Cooperative and to accept Gainesville ISD's invitation to be part of a new Special Education Cooperative.
Gainesville ISD had decided to withdraw from the County Cooperative and form one of its own. All school districts in the county were invited to join them. Winn said that GISD will take about 55 percent of the Cooperative's finances
when they leave.
"I feel like our District can best be served by going with Gainesville," Winn told the Board. "It's going to be more expensive for everybody no matter what. I'm not sure if the Cooperative can continue to exist if it loses assets." By withdrawing Lindsay will lose its share of equipment.

Winn listed Gainesville's close proximity to Lindsay as one reason for the move. He felt that would be better for the students. The decision had to be made by January 1 to be effective in September 2000.

An agreement could not be made by trustees on which soft drink vendor to contract with.
Some wanted to go with Coca Cola because of the large sum of up front money and yearly contributions offered. Others said students should have a choice in soft drinks. Some wanted to re-contract with Fleitman Drink Sales, Inc.
After much discussion and consideration, the agenda item was tabled.

A $750 grant from Texoma School-to-Work group was accepted by the Board. This program helps students make the transition from school to the workplace. It involves student/modustry partnership.

An update was given on the progress of the District's negotiations to purchase land adjacent to the school property. The closing date was rescheduled.

Action on a possible maintenance and operation tax rate election will wait until after the Bond election. At this time the cap is $1.25. That was set in the '70s. Most school districts have a cap of $1.50. That is the most allowed by the state.

During the Principal's Report Mr. Hamilton informed the Board of an eight week Science course which is being offered beginning Jan. 12. It will be held one day per week on different themes. There are 123 students signed up. It will be taught by LISD teachers who volunteer their time. Students will be charged a small fee which covers set up costs.

From My Side of the Fence by Ed Cler

Kennesaw, Georgia is a beautiful town that has had a population growth from around 5,000 in 1980, to 13,000 by 1996, the latest estimate.

For the last 16 years the city has had an ordinance requiring most heads of households to keep at least one firearm in their homes.

Since the ordinance has been in effect, crime has taken a truly drastic plunge.

This all helps bear out the fact that criminals respect guns in the hands of honest people and tend to move to safer areas. Thugs muchly prefer to ply their trade where there is a much less danger of their being confronted by firearms in the hands of their intended victims.

It is pretty much a fact that areas that have made it legal for honest people to own and carry firearms, have much lower crime rates.

Why does the liberal media spout so many words about all the bad things that are done with guns, but totally ignore the things that reduce crime?

Our Administration is gleefully joining in the push to sue the gun manufacturers.

They should know that the only real gains in this rush to apply the same technique used against the tobacco industry, to the Arms manufacturers, will be to a host of lawyers who are salivating in anticipation of the grand fees they will collect.

But let's not forget who will be saddled with a great part of the cost - we taxpayers.

A story making the rounds these days goes like this: Bill Clinton awoke to a noise one night, to see a specter of George Washington standing at the foot of his bed.

"What must I do to improve our country?" he asked, and the apparition replied Don't lie, be straight forward and patriotic.

Next he was confronted by the ghost of Thomas Jefferson. Again he asked the same question and was told to be honest, uphold the constitution and the laws of the United States of America.

A short time later the ghost of Abe Lincoln appeared, and again Clinton asked, 'How can I improve our country?" Abe's quick reply "Attend the theater!"

MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL.

theater!"
MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL.

Hospital directors respond

4) What and how much say, if any, will county residents have in the plans being made by the two boards for the future health care in this county?

Khawaja Anwar – As much say will be given to the residents as they want/reasonably possible. A radio/televised conference/debate will be a good idea in my judgment.

David Hutcherson – County residents will have all the opportunities for input they want. This will be the county residents hospital with local control not some out of county for profit provider.

Doug Lewis – I plan on listening to concerns/opinions/suggestions as do the other board members from both boards. I think we have tried to anticipate concerns and questions; but ultimately we will have to decide final plans.

Karla Metzler – No response.

Jerry Parr – Residents of Lake Kiowa and Gainesville I have visited with are all very positive on our plans. We will use the Town Hall. Meetings in all communities in Cooke County to solicit community input. We are always open to individual and group discussions.

Mike Paulson – No response.

Earl Russell – County residents will have every opportunity to give us their ideas and share concerns and solutions. There will be additional Town Hall meetings in every community in this county.

Dave Sanders – Input and comments are welcome from any of our citizens.

Larry Sears – No response.

Chas Bayer - Many public forums will be held all around the county in order to collect information to help us make our decisions. I have been elected by my constituents and I plan to listen to their views and wishes on making a decision for better health care in our community.

Werner Becker Jr. - Both hospital boards and administrators are open for suggestions and comments on this project. There will also be town meetings starting in January to be held all through the county. The purpose of them is to inform the residents and also for their comments.

Phil Endres - As announced, there will be a series of Town Hall meetings which will allow citizens to air their concerns.

Don Flusche — Our boards are soliciting comments, suggestions, questions for anyone wishing to participate in evaluating what services are required, wished for and nice to have. Also, these comments, suggestions, and questions will be addressed with a consulting firm specializing in State—of—the—Art hospital equipment and facilities.

Lora Hennigan — The board meetings are open to the public. Everyone is welcome to come. The board of directors make the decisions on behalf of everyone in the district. I encourage everyone that has a comment or an opinion to contact a board member or come to our meetings.

Gerald "Jerry" Hess — I think the people will have a lot of suggestions and input as we proceed with this venture. As board members we represent the people.

Duane Knabe — County residents will have two major ways to express their views for the future health care of this county beside a number of other methods. One method is through the elected directors. We have heard numerous times that we need to contact our representatives in order to voice our opinion. The Muenster hospital district's representatives are the directors and we would very much like to hear your views. The second major way is that before the two taxing entities become one, there will be a county-wide vote required.

Jack Murdock — A great deal. There are plans for reversal forums around, the county to give residents.

Jack Murdock — A great deal. There are plans for several forums around the county to give residents opportunity for questions, comments, and input. The Board of the new hospital will have elected representatives from each section of the county.

Margie Starke — First as a tax payer of either district you elect your board members and in so doing trust your board members to make the decisions for best health care in your area for now and the future. You will continue to vote for all future members of the board of the new facility.

She celebrated her 90th birthday on October 23, after returning from a pilgrimage to the Marian shrines of Spain, Portugal, and France.

While teaching in the schools of San Antonio, she earned her first college degree in Chemistry in 1936, and later, while studying at the Catholic University in Washington, D.C. she earned her master's degree in Biochemistry.

While teaching at Our Lady Of the Lake College in San Antonio, with the help of college-student-aides, they taught religion to children where there was no Catholic school. "We taught in beer joints, in the cemetery, in school yards and restaurants, wherever they would let us gather."

Now she holds a Doctorate in Theology, indeed a challenge, because at that time women

DRUGS FOR COLDS AND FLU GOOD NEWS

The common cold and the flu account for a significant portion of the respiratory problems that affect people of all ages. So, a new drug to fight these miseries and promising research into other remedies is good news, indeed. The most common cause of colds is the human rhinovirus. Scientists have developed a drug, AG7088, that has worked against 46 types of the virus in lab tests. With respect to the flu, an inhaled drug called Relenza (zanamivir) and an oral drug called Tamiflu (oseltamivir) were recently approved by the Food and Drug Administration. These are drugs that treat both the A and B strains of influenza, but they are most effective if taken within 30 hours after the onset of symptoms.

Every year, some 20,000 to 40,000 people in the U.S. alone die because of the flu. Yet, many of these deaths could be prevented if people would just get flu shots. The best time to get vaccinated is around October or November, although getting the shot at any time during the

Lucky 13 party and dance honors Adam Vinson

honors Adam Vinson

The KC Hall upstairs room was magically transformed into a disco Saturday night, Dec. 11, when Adam Vinson and 60 of his "closest" new friends from in and around Muenster gathered to celebrate Adam's upcoming 13th birthday, which is actually New Year's Eve. In addition to dancing the night away to Joey Wilson's Audio Experience from Lindsay complete with laser lights, strobes, and disco balls, these middle school students made a sizable dent in supplying non-perishable food items to less fortunate families of Cooke County. In lieu of gifts, Adam requested each invited guest bring a food item to donate to his designated charity, VISTO, Volunteers In Service To Others. VISTO" distributes donated food items to the hungry residents of Cooke County and is officed in the Cooke County Courthouse. Everyone attending made generous donations with Sean Fuhrmann and Teresa Greathouse bringing the most items individually donated. Both received an oversized sports water bottle for their generosity.

The theme of the party was "Lucky 13," symbolizing the good fortune of each guest in being able to share with those less fortunate and Adam's 13th birthday. In good faith, each arriving guest had to walk under a 10 foot ladder to enter the party/dance! Each guest was also asked to bring his or her good luck charm to compete with her green glass frog, and Ryan Hennigan was the boy's winner with his green plastic.

The "Happy Birthday" song was sung for Aunt Bertha for her Dec. 5 birthday, and for all celebrating birthdays in December. St. Nicholas Sylvan and Theresa Mae Walterscheid were hosts in their home on Saturday, Dec. 4 for the annual celebration of the Feast of St. Nicholas of the Tony and Theresia (Danpelmayr) Felderhoff families. With special guest, Aunt Bertha Fleitman, there were four generations present.

Every family member looks forward to this observance begun generations ago by the ancestors of early Muenster pioneers, Joseph and Theresia Dangelmayr, in their native Germany, brought to Texas and continued as a family tradition.

The evening began with the singing of Christmas carols. Ruth Felderhoff played the organ and Christy Hesse led the singing. Many carols especially for the children, religious and German carols. Set. Nicholas visited with every child, posed for family portraits holding the staff/crosier of the late Bishop Dangelmayr, prayed and sang with the children. He then joined hands with all family members in a circle of prayer for healing power and strength for family members were also remembered.

Proper-fitting shoes needed
Finding kids' shoes that look good and feel good can be a challenge.
"Parents may not realize that improperly fitted shoes worr in childhood can contribute to or exacerbate adult foo problems," said Dr. William Phillips, chief orthopaedi: surgery at TCH in Houston.

Make sure your child's feet are measured regularly. When trying shoes, have your child wear appropriate socks and asl him or her to walk with both shoes on. Select shoes that accommodate the shape of your child's foot and provide adequate toe room. Look for shoes that are lightweight and flexible with non-skid soles. Leather or canvas uppers argood choices because they allow your child's foot to breathe.

Institutional Advancement Debbie Pounds commended the Spaeths for their willingness to support the college.

"David (Spaeth) told me some time ago," said Wright, "that he planned to contribute funding to the college. I am so thrilled that this vow has now been accomplished. Having watched his father collaborate with members of the community to benefit the foundation, he is certainly aware how worthwhile it is to give a scholarship. I think the finest thing someone can do is to give as scholarship. I think the finest thing someone can do is to give something that will last forever."

Pounds echoed similar sentiment, saying she was overjoyed that the Spaeths were willing to make a commitment to the educational excellence of others.

In making the contribution, the Spaeths are upholding strong family traditions as benefactors to the college. David's father, Henry Spaeth and his mother, Mickey, endowed a scholarship during his eight-year affiliation as a member of NCTC Foundation Board. His aunt, Frances Ann Spaeth, also established an endowed scholarship with the college.

Lou Ann Spaeth's parents, Gilbert and Mary Endres, have also supported educational advancement with an endowed scholarship.

Santa Claus comes to town on Artic cold front, bringing holiday cheer to Cub Scouts Directly from the North Pole, Santa Claus came to town on an Arctic cold front, Monday, Dec. 20 for the Cub Scout Pack Christmas party. He arrived at the VFW Hall just as the Cub Scouts were singing carols. In addition to bringing holiday cheer and talking to each child present, he gave the scouts pine wood derby kits. The boys will use these kits to build model cars to race at the next pack meeting in January.

Also, in the spirit of the season, every boy attending brought a teddy bear to be given to the Muenster Fire Department. The firefighters

Eating out may not be as clean as eating at home college Station — In 1999, the National Restaurant Association reported that almost 50 billion meals are eaten in restaurants, schools and work cafeterias each year.

The problem with eating in someone else's kitchen, though, is that you never know how clean it is or how the food is prepared.

Girl Scouts participate in two events

The Girl Scouts of Cooke County participated in a Country and Western "Hoe-Down" at the John and Dana Walterscheid residence. The 42 scouts enjoyed line dancing, the Macarena, and many other country songs. They also engaged in a basketball game and playground activities. They were treated with sodas and snacks.

Dec. 18 was a perfect evening for a hayride and Christmas caroling. The 38 Cooke County Girl Scouts and parents stopped by many local houses in Muenster to spread some Christmas cheer. "Santa Claus Is Coming to Town," "Jingle Bells," and "Rudolph" were among their favorite songs.

Texas Wildlife

We want big bucks to breed does!

Big bucks breeding does can produce big bucks! Small, inferior bucks can produce small inferior bucks. Are we the hunters of the state of Texas shooting the big bucks and leaving the inferior ones? After I got a great eleven point buck this year, I kept my eyes peeled for a great ten pointer that I had seen before the season opened. I have not gotten him yet. I have passed up numerous bonafide cull bucks. Please don't throw rotten tomatoes at me. I am only telling the truth. I did purchase and release three genetically superior whitetail does from a scientific breeder and turn them out on my property. They have big red ear tags. I have asked my hunters not to shoot them. One of the does eats corn above my house on a regular basis. She raised twin fawns! Praise the Lord!

What are you doing to Taised twin to the control of the white tail deer on your ranch or lease? What can you buck to get out of the herd! I don't want full grown four point bucks.

You can purchase and release genetically superior whitetail does from Scientific Breeders. You can call me at 1-830-234-4120 for more information on how to do this. This might be an expense that a number of hunters could pool their money on. It would sure get you Brownie points from the area landowner(s). A single doe costs about $700. A wild doe is worth about $100 for hunting. Maybe you could sell seven and get one. You can ask your game warden and state representative to support Scientific Breeders anyway they can! I am not a Scientific Breeder so I am not looking for support for myself. Hopefully the laws can be streamlined so that it will be easier to raise genetically superior whitetail by breeders

Twenty inches - ten points

Twenty inche
These words will make the serious deer hunter squirm in his chair! Why is this?
It is easier to ask this question than it is to answer it. Every serious whitetail buck hunter would like to take at least one whitetail buck in his life that had a twenty inch spread with ten good points. Once this is accomplished he can rest in his easy chair and pass up hunting on a real cold morning. He can go to the family reunion on November 10 and not cry about missing a good day of hunting. He can let his son shoot and he will sit in the blind with him.

Why is this? If he has a twenty inch ten pointer, then he has done it. As the saying goes "He has been there, seen it, and bought the t-shirt."

I used to be a rabid deer hunter. I lost girlfriends in high school because I left town every weekend for two months to go sit in a deer stand. They got tired of waiting on me.

How did I get my twenty inch ten pointer? It is a gift hunt from a dear friend. My high school friend Robin French asked me to go hunting on their family ranch. It was 21,000 acres under high fence. They did not lease it out There were big bucks everywhere. His father hunted with me. He found me a buck that had a twenty one inch spread with twelve points. I dropped the big buck with or shot. It was more than twenty inch ten point! I was sexcited! That was 30 years ag and I still remember it like was yesterday. My dream we not met by my hunting abilit It was met by getting to hui as a guest on an awesom ranch. Thank you Robir I have hunted much mor casually since then. The gornews is that this season wi see many twenty inch te point bucks taken in the Texchill country. Well spaced rai earlier in the year produce great food which produce exceptionally large racks of the whitetail bucks. In twenty inch the point of food. The dreather could make dee hunting easy then. The twenty inch ten pointer will tooming to your feede

Plant identification web site available

Ever wonder if that's poison oak or Virginia creeper growing by the fence? Or what's that weed threatening to take over your lawn? Maybe you'd like to figure out what type of beautiful tree is growing on the corner.

beautiful tree is growing on the corner.
Plant identification for the southern Oklahoma and northern Texas region has been made a lot easier with the presence of a new plant identification gallery currently featuring about 2,400 photos of approximately 600 area trees, grasses and forbs.

The gallery was compiled by two specialists with the Noble Foundation, a nonprofit organization in Ardmore concentrating on granting and agricultural, plant biology and forage biotechnology research. Authors are Chuck Coffey, a forages specialist, and Russell Stevens, wildlife and range specialist.

The gallery will continue to expand and there are plenty of plants left to ID - it's estimated there are almost 5,000 species of plants in Texas and 3,000 in Oklahoma.

Texas native trees web site

A new web site in Dallas has gone on line with an authoritative body of native plant research and photos collected over more than 30 years by Texas A&M researcher Benny Simpson.

"This new Texas native trees web site preserves Benny Simpson's nationally recognized collection of native plant research that would not have been usable as it was," said Dr. Wayne Mackay, research horticulturist at Texas A&M Dallas. The web site, developed by Mackay and Dallas Arboretum plant curator Leslie Finical with a grant from the Texas Forest Service, went on line in late October.

Service, went on line in late October.

Benny Simpson, often called a "plant hunter," roamed his native Texas searching out wild trees and shrubs. When he died unexpectedly in 1996, he left more than 30 years of work and 8,000 slides in his collection. But they weren't catalogued or identified and might have gathered dust in a storage closet. This cooperative effort took more than a year just to identify and digitize the slides to create the web site of 780 photos representing 227 species of trees.

The native trees website is http://aggiehorticulture.tamu.edu/natives/

The gallery can be accessed through the Noble Foundation's web site at www.noble.org.

People living in the Noble Foundation service area (a 100-mile radius around Ardmore) will be most likely to match the plants in their area with those in the plant ID gallery.

The two co-authors of the project said the plant gallery offers advantages not found with other ID sources: 1) each plant is represented with several photos featuring close-ups of bark, leaves, fruit, stem, flowers, etc.: 2) the photos are in color for easier identification; 3) a variety of plant types are covered; 4) plants are identification is easier without having to go to an herbarium for plant classification; and 6) the gallery is user-friendly for both the novice and professional.

Work officially began on the ID project in 1994. Since then, Coffey and Stevens estimate about 24,000 photos of plants have been taken.

Year 2000 flexibility payments explained

Production flexibility payments are available to farmers for 2000.

Farmers can get money in one or two installments next year. Because FY 2000 began Oct. 1, farmers can opt for payments from now until Sept. 30, 2000. If farmers don't state a preference, they won't receive their full contract payments until the end of FY 2000.

USDA will provide a total of $5.1 billion.

Here's a breakdown: wheat, 58.8 cents per bushel; corn, 33.4 cents per bushel; oats, 2.8 cents per bushel; barley, 25.1 cents per bushel; barley, 25.1 cents per bushel; upland cotton, 7.33 cents per pound; and rice, $2.60 per cwt.

Workshops to analyze calf crop performance

Ranchers interested in completing a Standardized Performance Analysis (SPA) of their 1999 calf crops can attend workshops beginning in March.

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service is giving ranchers in the state the opportunity to complete this production and financial analysis by offering workshops in seven locations.

The workshops include one

The workshops include one on April 26-27 in Ardmore, Oklahoma.

on April 26-27 in Ardmore, Oklahoma.

The opening session will begin with an overview of the Texas Cow-Calf SPA. According to James McGrann, extension agricultural economist, ranch managers use the SPA to measure performance and manage improvements of their cow-calf operations. Presently, data for 151,000 cows are maintained on 215 Texas herds through this analytical tool.

Throughout the day, district extension specialists and county agents will assist producers in organizing their data for the analysis and using SPA production and financial software.

The registration fee is $150

The registration fee is $150 per ranch and includes the software and educational materials. The fee is $100 for ranches who have completed the analysis in the past. Registered operators will be sent forms to organize their data before the workshops.

For further information and to register, contact James McGrann at 409-845-1861 or jmcgrann@tamu.edu.

Avoid lower prices at market

To get the best price for your feeder heifer, take several precautions in preparation for sale.

Cattle feeders avoid light carcasses, preferring medium-framed heifers; make sure your heifers are open; use management practices such as dehorning, preconditioning and we aning. Marketing characteristics such as lot size, fill weight and uniformity also affect price.

PESTICIDE APPLICATORS EDUCATION CREDITS

PESTICIDE APPLICATORS

Pesticide applicators have several options for getting the continuing education units (CEUs) necessary to renew their license. Many pesticide applicators face a February 28, 2000, renewal date. Producers need to look at their license for proper renewal dates. The term of the license is posted. The Texas Agricultural Extension Service and several private vendors offer traditional classroom CEU courses. However, Susan Combs, Texas Secretary of Agriculture, and the Texas Department of Agriculture are exploring more convenient ways to help applicators keep current on changing regulations and products. The Ag Ed Group and Advanced Professional Education made home study an option a few years ago. Private applicators can take classes via video for 10 hours but must complete the other five credits in a classroom.

commercial pesticide applicators car get all their credits this way, they may use the on-line option only every other year.

Private applicators must renew their license every five years and obtain 15 CEUs during that period. Two credits must be in integrated pest management, and two in law-and regulations. Applicators must self-certify their credits by listing them on the renewal form they should receive by early January.

Private applicators cannot simply retest to renew their license. A license must have been expired for a year before an applicator can take the private applicator training course and test.

Commercial and noncommercia applicators renew each year and management advises pesticide applicators to check with their county Texas Agricultural Extensior Service office for courses offered or call the Texas Depart ment of Agriculture at 1-800-TELL-TDA or (512) 463-7548 for a list of approved courses. A list of CEU courses is available on TDA's web site at (www.agr.state.tx.us/pesticide/ceuhome.htm).

Shortcomings in WTO agricultural agenda make lack of agreement a relief

Since a commitment to protecting the interests of America's family farmers and ranchers failed to make it into the World Trade Organization (WTO), the fact that no agreement was reached is a relief according to the Texas Farmers Union (TFU).

TFU said future trade negotiations must recognize a government's right to provide an adequate farm safety net, address the trade-distorting effect on producers of currency variances and fluctuations, address the price-depressing effect of large world stocks and recognize the non-food benefits of agriculture.

"The agricultural trade agenda negotiators put forth in Seattle was far from perfect and more closely represented the interests of multinational corporations than those of family farmers and ranchers, said TFU.

Holidays are merry, but be frugal with your alcohol consumption to make them even more joyful. Teetotaling not only prevents traffic accidents, it may safeguard your heart. "Too much alcohol is one of the factors, along with fatty food, that cause blood vessels to narrow. The alcohol acts like a poison," says Dr. Richard Lange, a cardiologist at UT Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas. "In addition, alcohol can directly damage the heart muscle, a condition called cardiomyopathy."

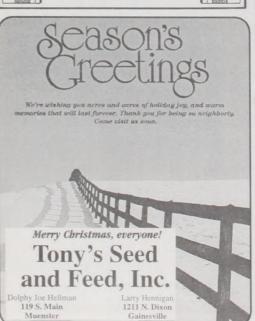

Once the heart is injured this way, it may beat dangerously fast and can cause a heart attack or heart failure, Lange says. A recent study reported that deaths from heart disease rise dramatically after Thanksgiving and peak around New Year's Day. Researchers believe that this may be at least partially due to overindulgence in all the holiday goodies, including alcoholic beverages.

You can just bet, that at the North Pole, two Santa Claus' right-hand helpers are a veterinari and an animal health inspector, It only mak sense, because, while elves fashion toys, dre dolls and paint racing stripes on new toy cars, the animal doctor stays busy, making certain the Santa's eight tiny reindeer are properly fed, care for when they're sick and are prepared for that : important all night flight Christmas Eve.
"Flying reindeer require special care,"

Max Coats, deputy director of animal heal programs for the Texas Animal Health Commission and a reindeer specialist. "Rudolph has speci nutritional requirements to keep his nose glowin And the veterinarian enlists elves to craft spec booties to protect dainty hooves from injury rough rooftops. The animal health inspect carefully examines the harnesses and rigging f the sleigh, so each reindeer will soar safely a comfortably.

Throughout the year, Santa's veterinarian chec with other animal doctors at the North Pole, w observe wild or captive reindeer in other herds t signs of Chronic Wasting Disease, or CWD. This ra infection, which has never been seen at the Nor Pole (or in Texas), ruins a deer's chance of flyi again, because the disease affects balance a coordination. "But, CWD is a reportable disease, surveillance is required. A case of CWD at the Nor Pole could wreak Santa's transportation system said Dr. Coats.

As early as Halloween, Santa's vet begins prepare for the big flight. Each deer is tested t tuberculosis (TB), a bacterial disease. The anim: will have two TB tests, at least 90 days apart, sa Dr. Coats. This will ensure that states and countri around the world won't keep Santa from I appointed rounds. Just days before the flight, to vet will draw a blood sample to test for brucelloss, another bacterial disease

'If you've ever seen all the sacks and packages n Santa's sleigh, you can guess that at least one bg is full of the pile of paperwork needed to make te Dr. Coats moaned. Every country has en regulations and some require special tests. This there are the copies of the certificates fueterinary inspection, or 'health papers' Santa his to carry for the deer. Because nearly every state requires an entry permit for reindeer, the vet a d animal health inspector will call ahead to gather the special coded numbers they'll copy onto 1 e health papers.

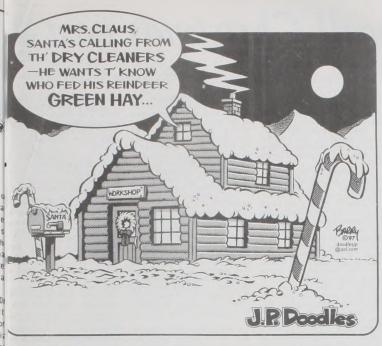

As if this isn't enough, the vet has to make specal arrangements for the reindeer to come hole Christmas morning. After all, said Dr. Coats, 1 deer have been many places, there's always a remote chance they could have been exposed to a disease or pest. "The veterinarian and inspector request special rule waivers, so the reindeer can be quarantined in their own stalls, until they (it follow-up health exams."

"To add to the responsibilities," commented r Coats, "Santa's diet usually fails sometime in Juj so each year, the veterinarian, animal hea h inspector and most of the elves team up to host big guy" into his sleigh. There's been talk if adding two deer to the string to pull the ex a weight. Gee, it's no surprise that, every couple if years, veterinary journals run a notice, advertis ig for a new North Pole doctor. Next to painting the racing stripes in a straight line, the veterinar in and animal health inspector have the toughest just at the Pole.

Christmas Memories My Christmas Memories

by Michelle Fuhrmann
I have always loved excitement of putting up the decorations, the anticipation of waiting for Christmas morning to come, or just the holiday spirit, this season is my favorite time of year.
For as long as I can remember, my family has done the same things every year. Two weeks before Christmas, we decorate the house and trim the fake tree. The last two years, though, we went back to the old tradition (before I was born) of tree hunting for the perfect, real tree. Last year, like the year before, my family has succeeded in bringing home a tree that was too tall for our house; but only because it was the "perfect" tree. And even though the top had to be trimmed off, it was nevertheless a beautiful Christmas tree when we were finished decorating it.

O the night before Christmas, we attend Midnight Mass. I remember that my sisters used to tell me to take a nap so I would not fall asleep in church; sometimes I actually took their advice. After Mass my dad drives my family around town to view all the pretty Christmas lights. When we get back home, we drink hot chocolate and make sure our stockings are out for Santa Claus. Only thing is we have to drape them on the couch since we do not have a chimney. Then we go to bed and wait for the morning to come.

by Jessica Koesler

Everyone has at least one Christmas memory that has stayed with them throughout all of their life. It can be the smallest, most insignificant memory, such as the smell of freshly baked Christmas cookies or the taste of homemade hot chocolate. To others, it may be the last time they sat on Santa Claus' lap. Whatever the memory, it is special to the individual. My memory is a little different. It is the year I became terrified of Santa Claus.

I will never forget that year. It was the first Christmas I celebrated with my new baby sister. I was seven years old. I was so excited. I could not wait until Christmas morning, when I would run into the living room to see all the presents under our Christmas tree. It was the first year I got into the "giving" mood. I went to Wal Mart and bought my little sister a pink Minnie Mouse doll (actually, my mom bought it, but it is the thought that counts, right?). I wrapped it up and put it under the tree. I could not wait until Christmas morning.

A few mights before Christmas Eye my family

When I was younger, two of my sisters and I would arise at seven o'clock, or earlier, to be the first ones in the living room to find what Santa had left for us. We would sneak into my other sisters' rooms, with toys in tote, and joyfully, yet carefully, attempt to wake the older ones and get them out of bed. Then we would proceed to our parents' room and show them what Santa had left under the tree. After they had seen our toys, we went back to living room and sampled the candy that we found in our stockings.

Now only one of my sisters and I wake up before eight o'clock and we carry on the tradition of waking up the others. When every one finally gets out of bed, we begin making a breakfast of scrambled eggs, bacon or sausage, perhaps cinnamon rolls, and orange juice. After we eat, most of us help wash the dishes while dad feeds the cattle. Then we wait for dad to return home so we can open the presents from each other. After all the presents have been opened and admired, we clean up the wrapping paper and Mom puts the ham in the oven for dinner.

Even though my family does the same things each Christmas Day, I look forward to every one. I may be too old to receive toys, but that is obviously not what Christmas is. It is a time to spend with my family and to enjoy the delicious homemade candy that we make every year.

One part of the season that I love is the smell. Have you everbeen able to "smell" Christmas? The evergreen tree, delicious Christmas food baking, and the risp winter air with the scent of burning wood are all familiar smells of Christmas time. I think that these smells create a major part of the Christmas atmosphere each year. This is a part of Christmas that I love.

My family has a very strong Christmas tradition. We put up the stockings, lights and tree about the third week of December. Every Christmas I remember baking cookies and decorating them. I can also remember helping my mom make fudge and, my favorite, chocolate pizza. After school was let out, my brother, sisters and I spent the days before Christmas singing along to my mom's old Christmas records. At night we would always play our favorite game. "it was called "Presents." We chose one person and they went out of the room while the rest of us picked the gift we wanted to be and got into character. We turned out the lights and turned on the colorful lights of the Christmas tree. Then we curled up under the tree with blankets as our wrapping paper and called for the person outside the room. When the person entered the room, he or she would act like a surprised child on Christmas morning finding beautiful gifts for him or her As the surprised child opened each gift, the blankets were discarded and he or she would the gift to get it started. The room was filled with toys such as nutcrackers, ballerinas, talking dolls, and various animals. After acting bed. It was beautiful. It was pink and had ruffles along the edges. On the bedspread was a picture of Holly Hobbie. Laying on the bed was a note from Santa with a peppermint in each corner. I could not believe it. Santa Claus had actually been inside my room! It was amazing. Needless to say, I went straight to bed that night in my brand new canopy bed.

On Christmas Eve, I crawled in to my new bed. My little brother wanted to sleep in my room that night, so my mom tucked us in and kissed us good night. I closed by eyes and drifted off to sleep. I woke up at some point during the night. Right as I woke up, I heard "Ho! Ho! Ho!" coming from the living room. To this day, I swear I heard it. I was terrified. No matter how excited I had been earlier about Santa Claus, at that moment I was completely terrified. For the rest of the night I struggled to sleep, afraid to close my eyes at the thought of Santa Coming into my room. From that year on, I was terrified of Santa Claus. I would be alright until Christmas Eve rolled about. On that night, I would cry and cry until my parents would finally just lay with me until I fell asleep. Those years were quite an adventure, especially for my parents, who had to deal with a terrified little girl. They would explain to me that there was nothing to be afraid of, Santa was just a jolly old man who would not harm a fly. And I would believe them, until Christmas Eve. On that night, I would cry myself to sleep.

Why was I so afraid? Who knows. Most children love Santa, but I was absolutely terrified of him. As I grew older, my fear slowly went away. But even today, I can remember how I felt when I heard that, "Ho! Ho! Ho!" come out of our living room. And by the way, I REALLY DID hear Santa Claus on that Christmas Eve.

out their toy for a while, my brother, sisters and I voted on the best one. This person then left the room to be the next one to open presents. The game would go on for hours as we used our imaginations to come up with new characters to act out.

As Christmas gets closer everyone anticipates it with excitement. Every Christmas Eve my family goes to 5 o'clock Children's Mass. My dad always stays home cooking the Christmas dinner so he goes to Midnight Mass. When we come home from church, we sit down to a delicious dinner of roast beef, potatoes, carrots, peas, and dinner rolls. After dinner we watch the movie we watch every Christmas Eve: It's a Wonderful Life. While we watch the movie we drink hot chocolate and eat popcorn and Christmas cookies (but we always save the best ones for Santa Claus). After the movie all of the younger children go to bed, too excited for sleep. My parents and my older siblings stay up sitting around the smaller kids are bouncing around with excitement. I crawl out of bed and find my dad up making blueberry muffins: the breakfast we eat every Christmas. As the muffins are baking, we feel each others' stockings trying to guess what surprises they hold. After we are excused from the breakfast table we rush to the living room and get our stockings down from the mantle. When the stockings are emptied, we line up in front of the room that has the Christmas tree in it. we line up youngest to oldest. My parents get out the video camera and ask the younger children and sister, pass out the gifts.

After spending the morning the stockings down from the mantle. When the stockings are emptied, we line up in front of the room that has the Christmas tree. John and Valerie, my oldest brother and sister, pass out the gifts.

After spending the morning trying out our presents, we go over to my Grandma Yosten's house for lunch. There we sit and talk for hours catching up with each other. Later we go out to the deferous to none the back bedrooms where we evit and talk for hours catching up with each ot

The holiday season has always been my favorite time of the year. I love everything about Christmas, the decorations, the Christmas music, the wonderful Christmas cookies, and many other things. When I think of Christmas, I remember many memories of my childhood. I have many good memories, but I also have some bad memories.

My family has very special Christmas traditions that we do every year. As a child, I always loved to help my parents decorate the house for Christmas. We would spend a whole day making the house look perfect. While my Mom and I decorated the inside of the house, my Dad decorated the outside of the house. We would make cookies and listen to Christmas music all day.

Every Christmas my parents

Every Christmas my parents took me to see Santa Claus and the Christmas Parade. I remember being so terrified of that big, old, hairy man. My Mom would put me on his lap and I always cried and I would throw a huge fit. I used to try and hit or kick Santa Claus. As I grew older, my fear of Santa Claus completely disappeared.

Each year my family spends a whole day to find our Christmas tree. We go to the woods and start a campfire. We would eat lunch and roast marshmallows. After our meal was completed, we began to hunt for the perfect tree. After we chopped down the tree, we would bring it home and make hot chocolate a d popcorn.

On Christmas Eve, 10 got to open one present each. After we opened presents 11 d had lunch, we began to 21 ready for the Christmas Ite Mass. We always went to Mss early, so we could get a sea in the front. After Mass, 10 e always go to my Grandma 1 d Grandpa Hartmans house. Ite opened many presents, at a wonderful meal, seg Christmas songs, and pla d Christmas games. Evely Christmas Evel, we went to a dearly so Santa Claus would come and give us presents. Christmas morning was such a wonderful day. My fanly would get up and and open ar presents from Santa Claus. Ity Dad made us a wonderful breakfast and we ate it vry quickly. Then we visited ity Grandma Clara and open d more presents. When the 11 y was over, I was always vry tired.

A few nights before Christmas Eve, my family decided to go Christmas light looking. When we left, I left my old, plain bedroom as I always did. We drove around for probably about an hour, "oohing" and aahing" over all the pretty lights. When we returned home, I walked into my bedroom, and there it was. In the place of my old bed was a big, beautiful canopy bed. I started screaming, "Mommy! Mommy! Come here!" The whole family rushed into my bedroom and gazed at my new
