

One of the short items in a recent digest magazine tells about a farmer who took the blue ribbon for corn year after year at his state's fair. Asked why he always shared his best seed with his neighbors, he gave an answer that is worth remembering.

He considers his help as not only a friendly gesture but also a means of helping himself. If he encourages them to use his prize seed he has the assurance of better corn across the fence, and the pollen carried to his crop by the wind will be of a better grade, hence he has a better chance of maintaining his own quality and yield. If he were satisfied to permit inferior grades in adjoining fields the quality of his own corn would gradually deteriorate.

This is a policy that applies in many other ways. It is only one version of that well known passage about the hundred fold return of bread cast on the waters. Circumstances, the laws of nature or call it a manifestation of Divine approval—something somehow provides a generous return for most every helpful act.

In a farewell note before hanging himself, Robert Ley states that the German people have forgotten God and therefore they are forsaken by God. A wise observation. Too bad the thought was not realized and heeded long ago. It might have saved a lot of trouble.

Divine laws are uncompromising. No person or nation can flaunt them for long without ending in disaster. A lot of nations that are not cooperating with the Divine will could well afford to think over the Nazi criminal's dying words.

Whether we like it or not we may as well reconcile ourselves to the thought of peace time military training for youngsters. President Truman's recent recommendation to congress on that may be regarded as more than an expression of his personal preference. It is a carefully considered conclusion based on expert knowledge of international conditions.

To many of us it seems deplorable that this move is necessary. No sooner do we emerge from the costliest and bloodiest war of history than we make plans for another such war. Actually that is not our intention. We hope by this means to discourage others from beginning another war, but just the same we are getting ready to fight. What makes the idea more distasteful is the thought that it isn't even our own choice. Other nations are forcing us to it. In self defense we have to regiment our kids and pay additional billions in taxes to do it.

Regardless of what anyone says there was a better way for nations to handle their security problem. By mutual consent they could have arranged to be equally unprepared for another war. Confident in the knowledge that others are weak every nation could have felt safe with only a small fighting force.

Such an arrangement requires cooperation, however. If any one country refuses to adopt it all others have to arm in self defense. And in the end the uncooperative nation discovers it has no advantage after all. That's the ridiculous part of it. Even the nations that cause world armament gain nothing by it.

Anyway, that is the predicament we face today. Nine tenths of the people in America hate militarism but practically all will agree that we haven't a choice left. We have to keep pace with other nations.

For a while there was a belief that a fair sized standing army bolstered by reserves from the war just ended would constitute an adequate protective force. But President Truman apparently has other ideas. His recommendation is equivalent to the statement that we need even more trained men to feel safe. A sad commentary on the state of world affairs, especially while the memory of war horrors is still so vivid in the public mind.

So youngsters of 17 and 18 will be herded to camp. At the very time when they are most in need of restraining influence they will be thrown into an environment where a boy is a piker if he observes the standards he knew at home. At the time when they should be acquiring constructive ideas they will be specializing in destruction and killing. At the time when they should begin to realize the meaning of democracy and freedom they are suddenly plunged into an atmosphere of regimentation.

Social leaders are quite generally agreed that the service is not (Continued on Page 4)

Hot Lunch Program Seems Assured For Sacred Heart School

Sponsored By PT-A, Project Expected To Be in Operation By Dec. 1

A hot lunch program seems assured for Sacred Heart school pupils. Sponsored by the Sacred Heart Parent-Teachers' Association, the project is expected to be in operation by December 1, it was announced this week.

The PT-A made plans for the program at a recent meeting and last week called a general community meeting in the parish hall to determine how many parents of the students were in favor of the plan. The large assemblage voiced unanimous approval at the session and the PT-A went forward with its work.

The meals will be prepared in the parish hall kitchen and served to the children in the hall. Almost 400 students will take advantage of the offer. The cost to each child will be 10 cents per meal; this amount is supplemented by the War Food Administration Commodity Credit Corporation which contributes an additional 9 cents per child.

The meal to be served will be Type A which includes a balanced ration: meat, vegetables, bread, butter, and milk to drink. Present activity of the sponsor group is centered on the appointment of four cooks to prepare the meals. Several applications have been received and others are welcomed. Anyone interested in the work is asked to make application in writing, to Mrs. Rudy Hellman, president of the PT-A, or to Mrs. J.M. Weinzapfel, corresponding secretary.

The purchase of a large refrigerator is the next step and installation of new stoves in the kitchen will follow.

Mrs. Hellman, Mrs. Ben Luke and Mrs. Al Wiesman visited during the past weeks at county schools having lunch programs to become familiar with operation and management of the project. The hot lunch program was favored here in 1941 but was not introduced at that time although considerable work was done toward the project. At that time there was too much expense involved in remodeling the parish hall kitchen. Since then the kitchen has been enlarged and modernized by the parish and meets all specifications with the exception of enough food storage space for which the additional refrigerator will be purchased. It will be installed by the time other details are completed so that the first meal can be served on Dec. 3, according to present calculations.

Muenster public school students are invited to take advantage of the program, but this week it was not announced as to whether or not they intended to participate.

Miss Anna Klump of Dallas spent the weekend with her sister Mrs. Joe Knabe and family.

Rotary Club Views 'Synthetic' Calves Of Local Dairy Group

'Synthetic calves' are no pipe-dream, Gainesville Rotarians agreed, after paying a visit to the Muenster Dairy Herd Improvement Association headquarters east of this city recently.

Jack Biffle is in charge of the laboratory and the four fine bulls belonging to the group, which is said to be the only association of its kind in Texas. Since May 5 this year, through an ingenious method, the four bulls have serviced 400 cows and it is said that by the end of the fiscal year, 1,000 cows will have been served, if that number of calls is received. Members of the association, which comprises the fine dairying section around Muenster, pay a fee of six dollars for each cow served. At present only three breeds of dairy cattle are handled by the artificial method.

This system has many advantages that mean saving of time and money for the association members, which were explained to the Rotarians during their visit.

NEW FORD IS BEST EVER MANUFACTURED SAYS LOCAL DEALER

See the Ford in your future! That's the invitation extended by Ad. Herr, owner of Herr Motor company in this city, in whose show room the new 1946 model is on display.

"We've never been personally more enthusiastic about a new Ford model," Mr. Herr said. "Without doubt it's the smartest Ford ever built, and as far as performance is concerned, please note that the 1946 Ford, the first post-war model, contains more engineering advancements and mechanical improvements than were included in any previous year-to-year model. The answer of course, lies in the four years of stored-up research results, and the advancements which came out of the Ford Motor Company's intensive participation in the manufacture of war products."

Outstanding features are a more powerful engine, better performance longer life, improved economy and a better ride.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Swirczynski and children, Herbert and Alene, and Herbert's friends, Jack, Alene and Fred Giesler, all of Dallas, spent Sunday here with relatives. They were dinner guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Swirczynski, and had supper with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J.S. Horn. Inbetween they attended the picnic in the parish hall. On Monday Herbert left for Houston to begin his training with the Merchant Marines.

War Chest Campaign Coming Up

Solicitors To Canvass City and Rural Areas For Contributions

This community is getting geared to swing into the annual war chest campaign next week. It was announced Monday by J. M. Weinzapfel after he received notification from County Chairman G.D. Bell that he had been chosen as chairman for Muenster.

Elsewhere the drive is coming to a close but in Cooke County chairmen have been delayed in getting it underway.

The quota for the county is the same as last year, making this community's goal likewise the amount designated in last Fall's drive.

Every business block and all residential districts as well as every farm sector is to have a soliciting committee. It was stated. These workers will be notified by the end of the week and can get their supplies at the Muenster State Bank.

Some 20 agencies participate in the drive and contributions are distributed among them for relief here and abroad. The agencies also include relief to stricken war-torn countries. The minimum contribution suggested is two days wages, but many persons will want to boost that figure.

SHOE RATIONING ENDED NOVEMBER 1ST

Shoe rationing ended November 1, OPA announced.

Other developments on the rationing front include: Butter cut from 12 to 8 points a pound.

Passenger tire rationing to end late in December.

Truck tires to come off the list by late November.

A NEW LINE

A new line, a complete coverage, of all gasoline, oil line and compression fittings has been installed at Ben Seyler Motor Company. Another new line of merchandise consists of a complete coverage of battery cables for all makes of cars.

To Follow Same System Used for 7th Drive; County Quota $825,000

Cooke county citizens will be asked to put the Victory Loan campaign over the top in a one-day "election" on Tuesday, November 20, it was decided by the County War Finance committee, meeting Friday afternoon at the call of John S. Hardy, chairman.

The same plan that made the Seventh War Loan campaign last Spring such a success was adopted by the committee, and all the committee members who served in the previous drive were reappointed.

Cooke county's over all quota in the drive which began officially on Oct. 29 and closes on December 8, is $825,000, chairman Hardy was advised by Nathan Adams of Dallas, state chairman.

Muenster's quota figured on the usual basis of one-tenth of the county goal, will amount to $82,500, and Mayor Weinzapfel has been appointed local chairman. He stated that plans for the one-day sale here will be announced as they develop. And meanwhile all persons purchasing bonds will be credited for their investments on the local goal.

The state, county and local chairmen point out the importance of this last bond drive urging full cooperation of all citizens because "With the fighting over we certainly must not fail to back our country in victory with our dollars. Costs of demobilization, care of wounded and contract termination are tremendous. We must finance this final phase of the war in the same sound way that we have the actual period of hostility. It is a great duty and a privilege to invest in victory."

Though officially closing on Dec. 8, the drive will include tabulations on Series E, F, and G saving bonds and series C saving notes through December 31.

Last Spring's one-day bond sale was conducted at the public school, the regular voting box for Muenster, and the rally on November 20 is to be held at the same place.

SUBIACO BENEFIT HELD HERE SUNDAY IS BIG SUCCESS

The annual benefit social sponsored by the North Texas district Subiaco Alumni here in the parish hall Sunday was an outstanding success as to attendance and financial receipts to be applied to the Subiaco building fund.

Hundreds of persons from the county and other cities near and far joined hundreds more from this community for the occasion. The affair began at 2 o'clock and continued during the evening hours until near midnight.

Various concessions, games and refreshments were featured, and the local youth band gave a concert. Alumni members from the district, assisted by members of the four parish societies, supervised the work and helped at the various booths and stands.

Visiting clergy included the Rt. Rev. Paul M. Nahlen, abbot of Subiaco; Rev. Fathers Louis and Michael of Subiaco; Rt. Rev. Edward Buerger, Windthorst; Rev. Edward Devers, Decatur, and Rev. Conrad Herda, Lindsay.

The five war bonds that were given away were won by Rev. Father Herman and Alphonse Hoenic, Muenster; Nick Block, Lindsay; Mrs. Castenelli, Little Rock and Mr. Ziehlman, Windthorst. Mrs. Wm. Walterscheid drew the hand made scarf.

Miss Frances Nieses of Houston spent several days of the week with her aunt, Mrs. Frank Seyler and other relatives here and her cousin, Mrs. John Mosman at Saint Jo. Also visiting Mrs. Seyler during the week were her daughter, Miss Catherine Seyler, and Carol Johnson, chief petty officer with the Navy, both of Dallas.

Mayoroddities

By J. M. Weinzapfel
Muenster Mayor

With the view to participate in a contest sponsored by the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs, a report was compiled by the local Civic League and Garden Club giving an outline of improvements made in Muenster during the past year. Miss Mame Roberts of the Howe, Texas, chairman of the Civic Planning Committee, received Muenster's report and a gracious acknowledgment from her informs us that the contest was extended to some time in the Spring of 1946.

Parts of her letter, written to me as mayor, are quoted here in an effort to encourage our citizens in the beautification of the town including the business as well as the residential district. Thereby you may know we are recognized for our efforts so far and I hope everyone will plan to do the best possible after reading these inspiring expressions:

"I have read so carefully the report of progress of your civic improvements in Muenster, and I want to congratulate you and your progressive citizenship on your great work to improve your town.

A great Texan once said, 'The small towns are the backbone of Texas' economy', the small towns are also the heart of Texas' beauty.

Will you Mr. Mayor, give me your view of the value of this work in our small towns? Give some outstanding examples of the work in your town — tell me something of the cooperation of your citizenship. Do you have a special finance plan which might help other towns? Do give me some of your future plans, municipal improvements as well as plans to make your lovely little city even lovelier.

I have read your Mayoroddities and they are fine. Please, as Mayor, give me your view and hopes of the work being carried on in your town to make it ever so much better.

I have never read a better prepared report, and it has been filed for the Spring judging. I am sure you read the article in Sunday's Dallas News, that owing to the weather and the war the awarding of the prizes has been postponed till Spring that more work might be done — give me more time for development of plans. If every town were like Muenster, which has gone ahead in spite of every obstacle it would have something to report.

My congratulations to the Ladies Civic League and to every individual citizen who has done such a grand job. It is not the size of the town, it is the size of the people in it.

The prevailing trend of large cities at this time indicates planning for community and civic centers where modern developments are adopted, thereby the citizenship receive the benefits of closer coordination by cooperative action. In a small community the advantages are available also if we only plan along these lines. Beautification efforts tend to improve our surroundings and give every individual pride in the ideal for any accomplishment to that end.

For consideration at this time a cooperative hospital and medical center is suggested. Recent legislation and experience give us courage to promote such organization that will be presented to you now in a short time.

THE TRUE GLORY

The War Department's picture, "The True Glory", will be shown at the Relax Theatre next Sunday and Monday, Nov. 4-5. This picture is a "must" for all Americans. It is a patriotic film which tells the powerful drama of the war from the time of the invasion of the Normandy beachhead to the final surrender. It is told from the point of view of the common soldier and sailor.

General Eisenhower gives the introduction, and after that the commentators are American soldiers, Scotsmen, Englishmen, Canadians, Australians, Frenchmen and Poles. They say what they have to say in their own way. It is the story of World War II from D-Day to V-E Day.

In connection with "The True Glory" the Relax will show "The Bull Fighters", with that popular comedy team, Laurel and Hardy.

The September-October Kraftman included a fine barn chart, printed on heavy paper, which is just the thing you'll want to keep track of each cow's record. If you did not get the issue, write Uncle Bob at 500 Peshtigo Court, Chicago 90, Ill., and ask for a barn chart.

There are some things which need a scrub, barn floors, barn walls or maybe boys' ears. But one "scrub" we can get along without is a scrub cow.

Some years ago, the USDA estimated that there were ten million scrubs in United States dairy herds. They figured these cows cost dairy farmers a billion dollars—half of it in the cost of feed and the other half in labor, housing, equipment and so on. Return from these cows probably didn't equal anywhere near this cost of feed, care and shelter.

That's a lot of cash to go down the throats of low-producing animals. You can't go out and knock ten million cows in the head, but every dairyman can improve his own situation, by eliminating boarders from his herd or replacing these scrubs with better producers.

All the colleges have figures which show that the high-producing cow is the cheapest cow to own, in the long run. Take Idaho's figures, for instance. Careful check of many cows showed that a cow with an annual fat production of 150 pounds cost $46 to feed and returned $27 above this to pay for labor, shelter and all other costs.

A cow producing 200 pounds of fat had a feed cost of $50, returned $45 over this cost. So it went in each fat production bracket until we get to the 450-pound cow. This animal cost $75 to feed, but returned $134 over feed cost and for every dollar's worth of feed brought its owner $2.80! The owner of such a cow gets a good return for his labor after paying all expenses.

Somebody figured out a few years back that in view of labor and equipment shortages it would be impossible for dairy farmers to produce as much milk as was needed during the war. But the dairy farmer didn't know it was impossible, so he just went ahead and did it.

So now that this job has been done, we can all turn to the next one—supplying a lot of consumers who gladly cut their consumption during the war years, in order to help supply a bigger need, and who are hungry now for high quality dairy products.

With the large production of milk now available for civilian use we have an opportunity to boost consumption of dairy products a lot higher than ever before. Authorities on nutrition tell us that the American people never have used as much milk and dairy products as they really need.

High quality dairy products will do much to encourage greater consumption. There's no surer way to bring the consumer back for more cheese, more milk, more butter, or more ice cream than to give her a product with a flavor and quality she can't resist.

Quality of dairy products of course starts on the farm so in the next few issues of this column I am going over again the step-by-step program of producing quality milk which we've talked about before. Sanitation and proper handling are the two points which tell the story.

Clean barns, clean cows, clean utensils and clean workers, proper cooling and handling are some of the things we'll bring up again, with some new angles and some new literature to talk about on these important points.

Uncle Bob

You don't have to be any better at figuring than I am to see clearly that these better cows are the ones to have in your own herd. There's a lot less work to milking ten 350-pound cows than there is to milking twenty 175-pound cows. Total butterfat production would be the same in these two cases, but total profit would be much greater with the ten heavier producers.

We still need lots of milk but in view of the feed and labor situations on farms, now would be a mighty good time to check each cow in your herd, find out which ones are returning very little over cost, and get rid of such boarders.

a desirable place for a teen age boy, but there again we run into a problem of what to do about it. Since training is necessary the boys have to put in their year some time and the younger age seems preferable as the lesser of two evils. Later training would interrupt business or family careers.

One thing that can be said in favor of a training program, besides national security, is the possibility of a partial solution for economic problems. More than a million men taken out of circulation every year will allow some relief for unemployment. At the same time thousands of other men at home will find employment in providing the vast store of supplies and materials the trainees need. At least it is a substitute for relief agencies, though probably not a bit less expensive. Regardless of how much or how little a military program will burden us, or how necessary it is as an international policy, the fact remains that it is contrary to our national policy and we don't like it. Over here the individual is supreme. Except in a national emergency, in which personal rights are subordinated for the public good, the country has no right to demand his services. We resent any action of other nations which creates such an emergency.

For the present we have to admit that an armament program is our best assurance of security. We must prepare to meet force with force. But it still isn't too late to encourage a more sensible course. We can tell the chief offenders that we're not a bit scared, in fact we are confident we could whip them in case of war. Hence, since nobody gains by all this saber rattling and since in case of a fight even the victor will come out with a lot of scars, why not cut out the militarism altogether. History furnishes plenty of testimony that nations get farther by following the golden rule than they do by following the war path.
