Foreign Sales Limited By Foreign Purchases

Our volume of exports, or the things we sell to foreign countries, is limited by the volume of our foreign purchases, according to economists of the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service. This is one of the things which influences the unit price as well as the total income of our agricultural commodities.

The chart shows that while we have consistently sold a slightly larger volume of goods to foreign countries than we bought, we seldom are able to sell much more than we buy.

Foreign countries must have dollars with which to purchase our goods. The principal way they get money is by selling goods to us. That is why the value of our imports and exports have followed each other so closely.

Other ways foreigners can obtain dollars from the United States include loans by Americans, services such as those rendered by foreigners to American tourists, and gold sent to the United States from abroad. With the exception of services to tourists, none of these items is a permanent source of money.

America has almost ceased to lend money to foreign countries. That was the way our trade balance was maintained during and immediately after war, when the United States changed from a debtor to a creditor nation. And foreign countries cannot indefinitely continue to ship their gold to us.

Even in the case of services to tourists, the amounts involved have never been enough to substitute for imports of good into the United States. During the 1920's when our tourist expenditures reached a record level, the net amount of money spent in foreign countries did not, in any one year, reach as much as 15 per cent of our payments for imported goods.

Sawdust To Be Used In Hopper Fight

Common sawdust, preferably weathered for a year, is being drafted as shock troops for the campaign farmers and Federal and State entomologists plan to wage against threatened grasshopper infestation this year.

It isn't cricket, or in other words, it's a dirty trick to make condemned grasshoppers eat sawdust in order to die, some fair-minded people say. But members of the Texas Grasshopper Control Committee, meeting at Texas A. & M. College recently, figured a grasshopper killed by any means is better than a live hopper, especially when the hopper tribe will endanger crops on some 3,900,000 acres of fertile Texas land this year.

Entomologists have found a combination of sawdust, mill run bran or "red dog" flour, and sodium arsenite will kill the hoppers almost as effectively as more costly mixtures.

For Ladies Only

BY MIGNON

Redbud
Light your little lamps
And keep them burning
A signal
Of another spring's Returning.

A dear friend, knowing how I love the redbud, brought a big beautiful bouquet of the lovely blossoms to me this week and they have been on my desk a rosy pool of loveliness.

But flowers to me are like songs, they have personalities all their own. The redbud is not just a "flame through smoke" nor just a "purple swarm" . . . not just a "signal" for Springtime, it is a dear and much loved someone . . . that someone who went through the rain and wind of another spring to bring back a whole armful of delight for me.

Speaking of Springtime and friendships, I have found both this week in a column by Dusty . . . my neighbor over at the Beckham County Democrat. Them's my sentiments, too, Dusty!

Promise

"If I shall never see another spring,
Come flying to a fading winter's
kiss,
I shall not moan the sudden
whims of fate.
If I can only make the most of this."

Hey you poets! Don't forget Bess Truitt, End, poetry chairman of the Federation is offering a prize for the best lyric submitted to her before April 5th. 100 word limit. Bessie knows her poetry and will announce the winners at the state council meeting this spring. Bessie has recently won first prize in the coveted poet's corner in the Atlantic City News. It wasn't all just honor either . . . she got a fat check. Hurrah for Bess!

Ah woe is me . . . Ah woe is me
I act like a poet alphabetically
At the P. E. O. or the O. E. S.
Or the A. A. U. W. in a long tailed dress
But papa's threats are not so few
If I don't stop it P. D. Q.

A beautiful little gift edition done in faun colored felt and profusely decorated called "Hill Tops" has been on my bedside table for some weeks now. The author, Vola Ruth Martin, of Chandler sent it to me soon after I'd met her at the Writers in Oklahoma City. At first I read it and kept it here at the office but it is one of those delightful little books that you want to pick up and read again and again and so I took it home. The poem is the loveliest one:

"Let me build my house on a hilltop high
On a hill that towers to meet the sky
Where the sun may send his first red ray
As morning wakes with the breath of day."

That is only a sample of the poem that ends like this:
"Let me live in a world above and
apart
From the smaller things that dwarf
the heart."

Others follow that express what you have been wanting to express but never have been able to find just the right word. "A friendly house", "Friends of Mine,"

Dinner is in . . .
Three P. M. and mother has just placed her dinner in her electric cooker. She has a four-pound roast and three vegetables in the cooker. She started the cooker pre-heating at twenty minutes of three, she will now leave it on high heat twenty minutes longer. There was really little work to getting this meal in the cooker.

Mother is free . . .
Mother's sewing club meets at 3:30, so she dresses and prepares to leave the house with a free mind. There is not the slightest danger of fire from the electric cooker. Cut to low heat it will not burn her food, even if she were an hour or so later than her usual dinner hour. And, she knows her meal will be deliciously pleasing to her family. This, she feels, is real freedom from kitchen cares.

Dinner is Ready to Serve . . .
At a few minutes to six mother returns home. She is unhurried. Without changing clothes (slipping on an apron) she sets the table and at 6:15 "Dinner is Served!" And what a delicious dinner. Tasty. All the food value of meats and vegetables retained. Full-bodied flavor that brought exclamations of delight from the family. Mother was happy. So is every mother who cooks electrically . . . the economical electric cooker way! It costs approximately one cent per meal to cook in an electric cooker.

Beauty Expert Lists Summer Glamor Tips
By Alice Hart

DON'T, during the months ahead—
Pile mascara on your lashes for daytime glamor.
Forget to buy tooth paste or hand lotion until the old supplies are entirely gone.
Try to look like any motion picture actress.
Ignore chipped nail lacquer. Or refuse to use cuticle cream at least two nights a week.
Wear flat-heeled shoes to tea.
Swear off girdles. Every mature woman, regardless of her size, needs foundation garment.
Decide perfume isn't worth the bother.
Let your nose touch your book when you are reading. Or read in poor light. Or refuse to get glasses if you need them.
Try to make your hair "do" a few extra days.
Go to sleep even once without undressing your face. Or go one single day without a bath.
Tolerate uneven hemlines. Or think for a second that paying a tailor to take in waistlines, replace snaps and hooks and give several costumes a thorough going over is a waste of money.

Nelson of Lubbock, candidate for Lieutenant Governor, and Judge Ralph Yarbrough of Austin, candidate for Attorney General.

Senator Nelson, an advocate of a unicameral (one house) legislature for Texas, stressed the importance of the office of Lieutenant Governor. "Why all this talk about the relative unimportance of the Lieutenant Governor's office," he said, "isn't it time that the people of Texas knew that the Lieutenant Governor can, through his appointment of committees, greatly influence the passage of legislation, or the defeat of same?"
Judge Yarbrough stressed his service in the Attorney General's office. "When a man asks for your vote for Attorney General, why not say, 'Never mind promises; what have you performed?'" Judge Yarbrough has had extensive experience in the Attorney General's department. He also has served on the Colorado River Authority board, was lecturer in the University of

Woman Gives Views Of What Girl of 20 Should Know Today
By Ruth Millett

If you had a daughter twenty, what things would you want her to know?
I asked one of the New York's smartest young women that question, and here is how she answered: "First of all," she said, "I would want her to be preparing herself to earn a living. And I would want her to plan to support herself for a few years, not marrying until she was 25 or 26. By then she could have a chance to prove herself."
"I would want her to be free of envy for the things that other people have. To have achieved the habit of looking at the success of others without coveting it."
"I would want her to know how to choose becoming clothes—and how to wear them well. So that she would always be 'well turned out' no matter how flat her purse."
"Of course, I would want her to be feminine—in the best sense of the word. Pulsed and soft-voiced, sensitive to the moods and feelings of others, and at heart—a homemaker.

"I would want her to know how to take men lightly—for the world is not much fun for the woman who is heavily serious in her casual association with men."
"If she knew all that at 20, I don't believe I would ever worry about her much."
