In reviewing some of the things accomplished during this time, he said that the county had been re-districted as to commissioners precincts. Each princint now has about the same number of voters and all are centered with Brownwood as the heart. Each precinct where there is a highway has the whole length of the road from Brownwood to the county lines. This re-districting had made the county a single working unit instead of four he declared.

He also reviewed the road work in the county and told of the accomplishments. There will be two concrete roads and other roads that are to be built for permanence. Judge Davis has helped to secure 800 pieces of right of ways so that the highways could be built straight. During his term he has helped to secure 157 pensions for Confederate soldiers. TENOER RESIGNATIONS

AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 30.-(UP)-Resignation of two employes in the store here as co-managers. state health department has been were sent to the local store followmously adopted by the board at its first part of the month that the conduct by the board.

'We do not find moral turpitude or dishonesty on the part of Mr. Eggert. We do feel, however, that state employes should be like Caesar's wife, above suspicion," read

Trouble in the state health department apparnetly arose from the fact that Eggert's wife is a stockholder in a company dealing in apwhich Eggert is employed. The board observed that purchases from this company "could" have been recommended by Eggert.

Resignation of Carl Martin was likewise requested as a matter of public policy, without prejudice as to his honesty as a citizen and ma for his efficiency as an enginee and sanitarian. No specific charge

Mr. Eggert said that his resigna-tion followed activities of State Auditor Moore Lynn in questioning a number of people, including Mrs Eggert's father. Mrs. Eggert years ago received an inheritance of stock of a sanitary appliance company and is joint owner of some of the stock with her father. They said they understood the inquiry was directed at a contention that the ownership might have influenced the attitude of the retiring official

"There is of course absolutely nothing to that." Mr. Eggert said Mr Egegrt said there was no relation between his retirement and any other proceedings of the board. His resignation recited that he had previously discussed with Dr. J. C Anderson, state health officer, his plans to go into private practice of sanitary engineering. He already has plans perfected for his private practice, he said. His letter of resignation made no mention of the proceedings of the board Monday.
