These children have healthy teeth. They are a lot better off than most American children. Right now, according to Dr. Walter H. Scherer, president of the American Dental Association, children between 6 and 18 years of age in the United States need more than 244,000,000 dental fillings, many millions of extractions and vast amounts of other corrective work.

Communities, states and the federal government must share with parents and dentists in the responsibility of providing sound dental health for all children, Dr. Scherer points out.

The ADA has a national program calling for (1) expanded research to find the causes of and new means of preventing dental diseases; (2) dental health education for all; and (3) dental care projects for every community, particularly for all children.

World's New Champ Milk Producer

TONIA, MICH. — With the production of 22,526 pounds of milk and 714.8 pounds of butterfat during the year ending February 1, Ionia Ormsby Queen of the Ionia State Hospital farm has added the title of world's champion milk producer to her 12 records, displacing Essex Suzone April Belle, who was announced as a new champion only last November.
 The Holstein-Friesian cow's lifetime herd test record, over a period of 15 years, shows the tremendous production of 252,563 pounds of milk and 8,071 pounds of butterfat, with an average of 35 1/2 days per lactation. Her highest individual record, at six years, shows 23,866 pounds of milk and 771 pounds of butterfat, milking three times daily, 365 days. Four of her records are over 700 pounds of fat and all over 500 pounds, with nine of her marks topping 20,000 pounds of milk.

chosen by the bride, with the exception of short, puffed sleeves. It was white, printed with tiny pink roses, and the net skirt was worn over the same material. She completed her costume with a shoulder length veil of white net attached to a head dress of white rose buds. Her flowers were a corsage of pink carnations.
 Alois Rohmer attended his brother as best man.
 Little Misses Juanita Wieler and Carol Ann Voth, cousin of the bride and niece of the groom, respectively, were the bride's junior attendants. They wore frocks of white satin and flower headresses. The latter carried the wedding rings and the former carried the bride's white prayer-book and pearl rosary.
 As a bit of sentiment and for "something old, borrowed and blue", the bride attached to her rosary an antique blue and sterling miraculous medal medallion which has been in her mother's family for many years.
 Mesdames Felderhoff and Rohmer, mothers of the couple, wore ensembles of black and white and navy and white, respectively, with corsages of white carnations.
 Immediately after the church rites, the bridal party had breakfast at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Felderhoff. The all-white wedding theme was noted in decorations and table appointments.
 At noon immediate members of both families were guests at dinner in the home of the bride's their powers, during the war years under the guise of necessary expediency, and pretty much concerned about the one-sided (borrowing) now that the fighting is over.

"The realization is growing that the purse strings — and the control of the people which results — are in Washington. They want their purses back. It is now most eight months since the close of the most awful war in history, at an enormous expense of men, money and material. We should have gone a long way toward reconversion, but still we seem, to be hopelessly bogged down in a maze of alphabetical set-ups, so many in fact, it would be impossible to mention them all. Chief among which is the OPA, PAC and the LHM (John Lewis, Sidney Hillman and Philip Murray) — they are the three key men, for they are the gentlemen that sign the orders and pull the signals but that is to be listed among the effects.

"In order to get a clear understanding of the situation, let's take the cause, for without a cause there can be no effect. Back in 1932, when the present administration came into power, the following planks were adopted and made part of our national platform: 'An immediate and drastic reduction of governmental expenditures by abolishing needless commissions and offices, consolidating departments and bureaus and eliminating extravagance, to accomplish a saving of not less than 25 per cent in the costs of federal government.' One need only read the major planks to realize how fully they have been repudiated. Instead of the promised 25 per cent cut in federal expenditures, they rose 69 per cent in the next four years — with no war for excuse. For the fiscal year ended in June, 1939, federal spending was more than double any former administration.

"Today with the fighting ended for more than seven months, the federal civilian payroll is bigger than ever before. Prospects for federal economy and a balanced budget are low. Some administrative leaders talk economy and at the same time call for new and bigger expenditures, some of these expenditures might easily involve 'the improper use of money in political activity', as those of relief agencies did a few years ago. It is time now to get back to the sound principles of the Democratic platform.

"There is now pending before congress a bill to continue the life of the OPA; however there have been many amendments offered to the bill, one of which is a bill to permit a parity to farmers to meet the increased cost of production, due to increased cost of labor and materials. The president has declared that if the parity amendment is approved by the congress, he will veto the bill. Continuation of OPA for a limited period in order to restrain runaway inflation seems so basic a matter of reconverting wartime control to our familiar competitive market that it is astonishing so much opposition has developed to it, or would be, were it not all too obvious that much of this effort to end OPA comes from the bitter experience of business and industry penalized by the fallure of the administration to face the issue squarely from the first and freeze wages and prices alike at the level that existed when the war crises arose. Producer, manufacturer, wholesaler and retailer with perfectly sound grievances in various fields can hardly be blamed for viewing OPA as all bad. It would be poor economy, however, to throw open the doors and let price competition run wild until there is assurance of enough production to meet demand, if there is unwise opposition to OPA from some who have suffered from it and from others who want to take advantage of the presence of more buying power than goods to buy. No less unwise is the plea of chief economic advisers to retain OPA as it is. There are many fields in which OPA should release its control. There will certainly be price structure changes created by such factors as higher labor costs and higher material costs, which justify elevation in ceilings, which OPA will be slow to authorize unless forced to do so.

"There are certain inalienable rights that belong to the state over which wartime measures have taken precedence. Now that the war has been won our next objective is to win the peace. To accomplish this objective will require the united effort of us all. This can best be accomplished by our state legislatures working jointly and in harmony with our national congress, each having an equally important duty to perform.

"If elected as a member of the 50th legislature of Texas, I would advocate the following:

"Fewer laws and better enforcement. Thomas Jefferson said, 'people that are governed least are governed best'. An economical government is a sound government, an extravagant government is a dangerous government. The people should be governed only by constitutional laws, to be enacted by their duly elected representatives.

"Increased pay for school teachers. Raising the constitutional limit on spending for the benefit of the old folks. For a raise of .10 per barrel on the price of oil at the well. For a uniform registration fee of $3 for all passenger automobiles. For rigid traffic laws and strict enforcement thereof. Better farm to market roads. If congress passes the wage-hour law the farmers should receive a parity sufficient to meet the increased cost of production. For redistricting the state.

"Against any law, regulation or decree that impugns moral law. Against continuation of OPA, unless our national congress very clearly defines its duties with some very restrictive measures limiting its broad powers, without any it's, and's or but's.

"Just a personal word. I was born in Georgia, and when I was six years old my parents moved to Cooke county, Texas. They bought a farm on Rock creek in Cooke county. I was reared on the farm, was educated in Cooke county, and the Gainesville schools, have been a resident of Cooke county and Gainesville since coming to Texas, except for 13 years from 1919 to 1932, at which time I was employed by the State Livestock Sanitary commission and the U.S. Department of Agriculture Bureau of Animal Industry, and during that time I maintained my home and legal residence in Gainesville, although my duties carried me throughout Texas. Since 1932 I have maintained a real estate office in Gainesville. My principal business has been farm loans and farm service, four years of which I represented the Home Owners Loan corporation and two years I represented the Production Credit corporation, making loans to stockmen and farmers. I feel the experience gained during the past 26 years in making and servicing the many type loans would be of material aid in passing on matters to be considered during the next session of the Texas legislature.

"I have never been a candidate of any office, I have always been a Democrat, and I submit to the voters of Cooke county, my candidacy for your consideration subject to the Democratic primary in July, 1946. If nominated I promise to give fair and impartial consideration to all matters coming before the legislature.

Respectfully,
R. J. SMITH"

CATHOLIC THEOLOGIAN RAPS PRINCIPLE OF SOCIALIZED MEDICINE

NEW YORK, April 22.—The protection of health is basically an inescapable individual responsibility which the government can assume only in emergency and never by compulsion, the Rev. Alphonsus M. Schwitalla, S.J., said in an address here tonight.

It was the first time in the current debate on the subject that an authoritative speaker had expounded a Catholic theological view on compulsory government medicine.

Father Schwitalla, dean of St. Louis University School of Medicine, spoke at a meeting in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel sponsored by the National Physicians Committee for the Extension of Medical Service as a rally of opponents of the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill. The bill, which its antagonists charge would be the beginning of the nationalization of medicine, is now on hearing before the Senate Committee on education and labor.

The same meeting heard Dr. Edward H. Cary of Dallas, Texas, chairman of the committee, picture the American physician as a "radical" by reason of the fact that he is a scientist, unafraid of revolutionary change, but fighting government medicine as a change for the worse. The third speaker was Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, who said that establishment of government medicine would mean converting the great American medical profession into a "routinized, clock-watching bureaucracy."

"Health care is the individual's responsibility," said Father Schwitalla, "which, within the limits of his circumstances, his finances and his strength he must carry for himself and his dependents. This is the real ethical basis of the patient-physician relationship."

"On account of social conditions however, and their personal limitations, society's resources must be called on to assist the individual in carrying his basic responsibility without releasing the individual of that responsibility unless he becomes incompetent to carry it.

"Government, as an agent of society, must sometimes step in to facilitate society's functions in health care, not as a substitute for, but only as an aid to, the individual's efforts. Hence government does not assume the individual's responsibility, but only facilitates the exercise of that responsibility.

NATIONAL BABY WEEK

"Say, Mom—and Dad too—we sure love all the fuss you're making over us during National Baby Week. But, please, could we get in a gurgle or two, straight from the cradle? About that daily bath, for instance . . .

"Now, I like to get all prettied up and smell sweet and clean, same as you do. My daily bath time can be fun, too, if you'll just remember a few simple things that I have trouble getting across: "I like my bath in a nice warm room, with the water just the right temperature.

"When it comes to soap, I like that mild white floating kind most doctors recommend. It cleans my chubby wrinkles and creases and it's so soothing and relaxing. (You really ought to use it for my clothes, sheets, blankets and diapers, too, so my skin won't get irritated.)

"Just use plain water on my face, please, 'cause I can't seem to keep soap out of my eyes and nose and mouth.

"Please hold me firmly, and don't let my head get under water. You know how I holler when that happens; scares me about my bath for days to come.

"Dry me with a soft absorbent towel; pat, if you don't mind. Dry all my little folds and creases so they won't chafe. Top me off with an antiseptic baby powder.

"That's about the ticket, Mom, for a beautiful, healthy me. Do these things and then watch me coo myself off to a sound, restful sleep."

Washington Notes

By Congressman Ed Gossett

Washington, D. C. April 19 — The President this week signed the so-called Petrillo Bill. This law was long overdue. To some extent it clips the wings of James Caesar Petrillo head and czar of the American Musicians Union. It will prevent Petrillo from exacting royalties on each phonograph record used in broadcasting. It will keep him from forcing theatres, radio stations, and entertainers from paying union musicians even when they do not use them. It will stop a lot of racketeering which Petrillo has carried on for years.

The House this week passed a bill extending OPA for nine months. This bill will be severely criticized by columnists, radio commentators, and others. Two extreme schools of thought prevail concerning OPA. One group says we cannot get along without OPA control of everything. Another group contends that we cannot survive under OPA operations. Perhaps a middle ground would be more nearly correct. The House bill in general does three things. First, it provides that price controls shall be released when supply equals domestic demand. Second, it provides for the gradual termination of subsidies. Third, it allows producers reasonable profit.

During the last several years we have spent $6.5 Billions in food subsidies. Among subsidies requested by OPA for the next fiscal year are $15 Million for dairy products; $260 Million for flour; $715 Million for meat, for example, will be paid to packers and producers to hold down prices. These subsidies simply require the next generation to pay for today's grocery bill. They are added on to a national debt of almost $300 Billion during a time when it is said we have too much money in the country.

Another view of OPA operations which honest men and good citizens must face is the black market. When most of a commodity moves in the black market, the legitimate operator, the one who observes regulations, is penalized and injured.

Again, none of us can expect the farmer, the manufacturer, the worker, or anyone else to produce at a loss. We must have voluminous production if we are to have prosperity. We can more easily share in an economy of abundance than of scarcity.

In today's mail I received an article from the Southern States Industrial Council. Among other things it states, "We need statesmen in this country with courage enough to tell the people the truth. We need statesmen in our government who will stand up for what is best for the next generation rather than what is expedient for the next election." Most of us will agree wholeheartedly with that statement. We have a great many men in government who live up to this principle. Those who have concern for the present and the future know we cannot prosper long in a completely regimented society. One should want his neighbor as well as himself to prosper. If a man, through hard work, thrift, and managerial ability, accumulates money or property, power to him, so long as he operates honestly. One can certainly be happier and have better opportunity in a prosperous community than in an impoverished one. Of course we will always have dogs in the manger who will feel that shackles on his neighbor is in some way beneficial to himself.

Some weeks ago I made complaint on the House floor about extensive construction of commercial buildings in the City of Washington. Numerous theatres are under construction. I learned when home on March 2 that fourteen theatres were then under construction in Dallas. I am glad to see that Housing Expediter Wilson Wyatt is now trying to prevent this sort of building in order that scarce material may be used in the building of homes. The House yesterday took a ten day Easter recess. Most members have left for home. I shall follow suit as soon as our children recover from the measles and mumps now plaguing our household.

LINDSAY VISITOR IS PARTY HONOREE SUNDAY

LINDSAY.—Miss Helen F. Spaeth, who has been serving as a member of the Marine auxiliary, visited relatives here during the past week. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Spaeth of San Antonio, and expects to be at home there after May 1. She has just received her discharge from the service.

YOUTH SOCIETIES OF LINDSAY TO APPEAR IN THREE ACT COMEDY

"It's in the Bag," a three-act farce, will be presented by members of the Lindsay young men and young ladies societies next Sunday April 28. A special children's matinee will be given at 3 o'clock, and the night performance will begin at 7:30.

Directed by Robert Kupper, the comedy of the situation is evidenced from the opening lines and continues to the final curtain. It tells the story of Gloria, who comes from Montana to visit her Aunt Augusta. Gloria has a boy friend but they can't marry, according to the terms of her father's will, until Aunt Augusta is married. Auntie, by the way is 43 and very modern. So the niece sets out to marry off her aunt, who is already secretly married. Augusta has a jolly time of it until she finds her maid sitting in her husband's lap, and that's another tangle to be unraveled, according to members of the cast.

Augusta is portrayed by Louise Hermes and Mary Louise Benzer is Gloria. Others in the cast, are Al Bengfort, Augusta's secretary; Jack McClean, in love with Gloria; Bobby Benzer; Joe Hurd, the family lawyer; David Sturm, a gay old blade; Vincent Zimmerman, a retired widower; Elfrida Hermes, the housekeeper; Catherine Benefort, the maid; Leonard Bengfort, the watchman.

The play will be presented in the Lindsay hall and everybody is invited to attend.

LINDSAY SCHOOL TATLER

Do you realize that Graduation Day is just around the corner? It seems to peek in along with the rosebuds and other spring flowers. We, the juniors of Lindsay High, think it our duty to introduce to you our coming graduating class. So here's the list.

That happy go lucky senior with the laughing eyes and dark hair is none other than Lu Ella Arendt. She is the gay, friendly type of girl who likes everybody and everybody likes her. She has been voted the most studious pupil and the best singer of her class. Having been an active president of the 4-H Club, she ran for Gold Star Girl. After graduation she plans on going to college. We are sure she will make "good" there, for she has done well in high school. Keep on Lu Ella!

Gertrude Bengfort is one of those "seen but never heard" seniors. She is the "intelligentsia" of the 1946 class—hence "the val-dictorian." Her personality is captivating. She is the only typical blonde in her class, five feet five inches tall, has sky-blue eyes and weighs 126 pounds. Her favorites are: movie star, Van Johnson; singer, Bing Crosby; hobby, collecting snapshots. Gertrude also is planning on going to college and may be leading her class there too!

Serious-minded, sparkling blue eyed girl—one of those dashing seniors whom God seems to have rationed on height, is Dorothy Beyer. Yes, she is the smallest in height, but by no means in ability, for her average for the four years of high school is second highest. Dorothy is the best typist in school, having reached the speed of 73 words per minute. She was voted the most popular senior. She likes music, dancing, and banana splits; her pet peeves are onions and gossip. If there is a job to be done, Dorothy will be right on the spot and carry it through. She intends to continue her education by going to Business College. No wonder Dorothy has been so devoted to her beloved typewriter.

Sixteen years old, tall with short legs, rather slim, brown eyes, brown hair, nonchalant disposition—that's Weldon Benzer. During his high-school years he has proved himself to be a go-getter. He is the vice-president of the 4-H Club, treasurer of the Junior-Senior Club, and treasurer of the senior class. Whether Weldon is doing his "official" duties, studying or playing his favorite game, it's always the same spirit of doing a splendid job. Constant application to study has kept him in good spirits, so much so that he plans to go to Texas A & M College to study Agriculture. If any of you ever get the blues, call on Weldon. He will soon have you laughing.

The rest of the senior class will be introduced to you in next week's issue.

Miss Miriam Koessler of Sherman spent Easter with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Koessler.

Confetti---

They only want to work out a plan that will be beneficial to both groups of children. It's a matter of cooperation, not consolidation. Catholic support will enable the public school to expand and in return offer parochial school pupils advantages that the parish itself could not afford.

Should their plans fall through the trustees have an alternative that will give them some relief but create a sad situation for the parochial children. By cutting off two or three buses and hauling their own children only they could save several thousand dollars a year and make substantial improvements in their own system.

Just now the purpose of the trustees is to feel out community. They also want other people to understand that the gymnasium, athletic field, auditorium, and buses will be available to children of both schools.

And for the benefit of those who fear a merger of the two schools they say emphatically that they have no such intention on their proposal. If the reaction is encouraging a vote on consolidation will follow soon. Then it will be up to neighboring districts to decide whether they want to cast their lot with Muenster and build a first class school. It will be up to the parochial parents of Muenster—who have the voting strength to swing an election—to decide whether they favor the higher tax which will make other facilities available to their children if they don't intend to favor the tax they should vote against the merger in the first place. It would not be fair to defeat in one election a provision that was taken for granted in a former election.

There's no exaggeration in saying that the decision on this subject is about the most important one the community has ever faced. If the plan is approved Muenster stands a chance of developing the best school system in the county—a fully equipped, A-1, affiliated public school in addition to urgently needed facilities for the already affiliated parochial school. If it is rejected both schools will continue to struggle along under a handicap. The community's chance for continued progress will get a tremendous boost or a tremendous jolt when the decision is made.
