Watch your belongings – area plagued by thefts

By Janet Felderhoff

In recent weeks, there has been a rash of thefts in and around the Muenster area. Muenster Police Chief Bob Stovall confirmed talk of purses being taken from vehicles belonging to the nursing staff of Muenster Memorial Hospital. There have also been thefts from businesses in rural areas.

Stovall said that there were two incidents of cars being broken into and purses taken at Muenster Memorial Hospital (MMH). Glass was broken to gain access. The first occurred on Nov. 10 when one purse was taken. The second took place on Dec. 11. The two purses were stolen from vehicles in the Hospital employee parking lot and a third from a car at St. Richard's Villa. An attempt was made to burn one of the vehicles on the MMH parking lot, said Chief Stovall.

The Police Chief reported that three suspects had been arrested in Wise County and it is thought that more people were involved. The three taken into custody are from Gainesville. Some of the articles stolen were recovered. Items have also been taken from cars in hospital parking lots in Nocona, Bowie, and Wise County.

On the night of Thursday, Dec. 28, trailers belonging to Bert Walterscheid and Dale Klement were broken into and tools taken. The locked trailers were parked at a rural construction site west of Muenster. Gates to the property were locked. The locks were cut to gain access to the equipment.

The construction site is on the old Antonetti place which is now owned by Ryan Hess. It is along CR 351 near Hwy. 82. A reward of $1,000 is being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for stealing the tools.

Cooke County Sheriff Mike Compton also reported the theft of 100 barrels of oil from Gary Wolf on Dec. 31. That location is on CR 379.

"Any new building site is vulnerable," warned Sheriff Compton. "Once the copper is in, cover it up with concrete as soon as possible. Thieves will pull it out of the ground."

"Be watchful! Stealing copper is going on all over the County."

The Sheriff also said that rural construction sites are vulnerable to thefts. "Folks need to be on the lookout," he noted. "The only guarantee against theft is to stay with it. The safest way to do that is to be sure your presence is known. Have someone stay in plain sight. Trying to hide and catch them is the dangerous way."

When it is obvious that someone is on site, a thief will just drive by. "The best is prevention. Thieves won't go where there are people. They like to pull up in their car with flashlights and break in," said Sheriff Compton.

According to Chief Stovall, some Dr. Peppers and peanuts were taken from R&R Pipe recently. He suspects that youths might be involved in that.

Virgil Hess heads Commissioners Court meeting

By Janet Felderhoff

For the first time in his 16 years of service on Cooke County Commissioners Court, it fell to Precinct #4 Commissioner Virgil Hess to conduct a meeting of Commissioners Court. As senior commissioner, Hess led the Dec. 26 meeting in the absence of County Judge Bill Freeman.

At the meeting's conclusion, Hess bid Precinct #2 Commissioner Bill Cox farewell and thanked him for his eight years of service. "I enjoyed serving with you," he told Cox. This was the last meeting that Cox would serve after being defeated in the March Primary Elections by Steve Key.

A television donated to the County by Dee Dee Martin was officially accepted. The set valued at $900 will be used to view films at safety meetings held for the County.

Sealed bids were opened for road materials for the next six months. Southern Asphalt and Petroleum was the sole bidder. Bids were approved as follows from that company: MC-250, $2.09; MC-800, $2.05; MC-3000 priming oil, $2.03. There is a pump charge of $95; minimum freight is $600; demerge for the first two hours is free and then $100 per hour. The contract is from Jan. 1 through June 30.

In other business, Commissioners Court:

Truck damages Main Street building

By Janet Felderhoff
Failure by a truck driver to set his bobtail truck's parking brake led to quite a commotion on Muenster's Main Street late Tuesday morning.

According to a report by Muenster Police Chief Bob Stovall, the driver of a Columbia Packing Company, Inc. truck parked on the south side of Fischer's Market about 11:45 a.m. Tuesday. He went inside the business. The truck started to roll, traveling through the intersection of Main Street and crashing into the Brookes-Reynolds building at 223 N. Main.

Fortunately, nobody was injured in the incident. Chief Stovall said that the building received structural damage, but the extent of it was unknown at press time. Rufus Henscheid owns the building. Apparently items in the store were not harmed in the crash. Rick and Sidney Reynolds are owners of the Brookes-Reynolds business.

Beavers cause damage to Weinzapfel Lake trees

By Janet Felderhoff

In just a short time it seems that the trees around Weinzapfel Lake west of Muenster Memorial Hospital have incurred a great deal of trunk damage. The culprits are beavers that reside there.

Juanita Bright's home is located on property that skirts the lake's northwest side. She said that her only sighting of the resident beavers transpired early one morning as she set out on a walk. "I saw a creature from a distance that was too big to be a squirrel or cat," she remarked. "It came from Torcellini's and crossed Sixth Street going to the Lake." She discerned that it was a beaver.

Juanita said that almost every tree around the Lake has suffered damage from the beavers. They have not yet bothered trees in yards of homes near the Lake at this time, she reported. She said that the beavers have a huge dam where an old dock was located. There is a clump of trees and a shallow peninsula where the creatures have fashioned a cave-like dam for their home.

Henry Weinzapfel, Juanita's brother, also lives west of the Lake and has observed the nocturnal comings and goings of the beavers for the last two years. He said that they haven't been a problem until recently. "It hadn't been until just this winter that they really got destructive," he noted. "Now nearly every tree has been cut down." He worries that the trees in their yards will be next. He said that the beavers are also going to the little pond on the Torcellini property north of the Lake and eating his reeds.

"I would like to get rid of them," said Juanita. "I've talked to Henry about it, but we have made no definitive decision. It is just scrub willows that they've damaged, but at least the trees looked nice and offered some shade for fishermen."

Henry agreed that something needed to be done and he invites suggestions and good ideas from anyone who might help, including environmentalists and soil conservation people.

Two years ago is when neighbors first saw the beaver dam being built. Juanita said that there were two beavers at that time and they got rid of them. The current crew is building a dam that gets bigger and bigger, she said. The damage to the trees around the Lake wasn't noticeable until two or three months ago.

Henry said that he has only spotted this beaver crew early in the morning or at night when he might see them towing a limb across the water to their dam. The first beavers were seen some in the day, but this group is more cautious and remains nocturnal.

The beavers built on the Lake's west side and according to Henry, now have a number of tunnels built in the side of the Lake.

"Kids come and watch the construction work that is done," said Henry. "They are fascinated at how intricate it is." He expressed amazement at the large wood chips that beavers bite off and how powerful their jaws must be to do so. "It is amazing how fast they can chew a tree down," he marveled.

An adult beaver can weigh as much as 40 pounds. Their favorite foods include water lily tubers, clover, apples, and leaves and green bark from fast growing trees such as willows and cottonwoods. After eating the leaves and green bark, beavers use the peeled sticks to build their lodge-like house and dam on the shore.

Beavers mate for life when they are three years old. They usually have one to four babies or kits that are born in the spring. The young beavers stay with their parents for the first two years. The yearlings get the job of baby-

Damage to trees along the shores of Weinzapfel Lake is swiftly changing the landscape's appearance. Beavers built their home on the west shore of the Lake (bottom photo). They gnaw down trees and branches eating the green outer bark and using the limbs and branches to fashion their above and below water home. Sharp teeth and strong jaws help beavers make short work of various size trees. At left, the shores of Weinzapfel Lake now have mostly gnawed and broken trees. sitting their younger siblings. One article stated, "Beavers ability to change the landscape is second only to humans." Using live traps to catch beavers for relocation is considered a humane method of ridding an area of the busy critters. But, it was also noted that when beavers move out or are gotten rid of, others come to replace them. They are known to migrate over 10s of miles and to reproduce more abundantly when endangered. Some solutions to save trees in beaver territory is to have tree companies drop off branches trimmed from other trees; encircle trees with metal cylinder cages to a height of about three feet from the ground; place electric fencing around trees; paint mature trees with a sand and paint mixture; or for groups of trees put up a small fence around the grouping.

Muenster ISD clarifies statement

Muenster ISD would like to clarify a statement made during the Dec. 13 School Board meeting that appeared in the Dec. 22 edition of the Muenster Enterprise. The statement made during the meeting was that "science" had been identified as an area of concern at the beginning of the 2005-2006 school year followed by a misinterpreted statement, "The Elementary now has a science teacher, not just a teacher teaching science." However, by the end of the school year we had achieved our goals, especially in elementary science, with a 97% passing rate, as identified by the Spring 2006 TAKS (Texas Assessment of Knowledge and Skills) results.

MISD utilizes a departmentalized setting for teaching science in grades 4 through 6, whereas, most schools our size use self-contained classroom settings.

To the Editor:

One cold night at 2 a.m., a 911 call is received by the dispatcher. The dispatcher answers: "911. What is your emergency?" The caller answers: "My husband is having a heart attack. He is not breathing." Dispatch: "Do you know CPR?" Caller: "I think so." Dispatch: "Start CPR. I will get an ambulance enroute."

The dispatcher then tones out an ambulance and first responders. About two minutes later, an ambulance and fire department first responders are enroute to 599 County Road 605, grid L2. Emergency crews get somewhere in the area of the rural call and are watching for road signs. They come to a county road intersection and are looking for the road number that was given to them by the dispatcher. But the sign is not there. Now what? Time is running out!!!! This patient will need oxygen and possibly an automatic external defibrillator, better known as an "AED."

Rescue to Cooke County dispatch: "We are unable to find the road number; can you give us a name please?" Dispatch gives a name, but rescue is not familiar with the name. (Time is running out for the patient). First responders and EMS search for the house. Did they get there in time?

911 addressing is one of the greatest things that has ever been accomplished as far as emergency response goes. All residents in the county and cities have a house number along with a road number, be it county, farm to market, state highway, or interstate highway. There are road number signs for every intersection in the county, identifying each road. There are over 200 miles of county roads in Precinct #4 and well over 100 intersections with at least two signs on every intersection.

Years ago, when a 911 call was answered, we knew everyone and we went by name. Today, with fire department, EMS, and law enforcement, we have maps laid out in grids with all the correct addresses. The Cooke County sheriff dispatcher receives all 911 calls. The call is listed on a computer with the address and grid number.

The dispatcher gets as much information as fast as possible from the caller. Next, the dispatcher tones out via pager or radio to the respective fire department, EMS, or police agency.

The department then responds using the maps along with the road signs with the road numbers on them at the intersections. When the road signs are missing, this can cause a delay in response time because of unnecessary hunting for the right road. Time is one of the most important assets we have and when time is taken away, we all are hurt by it.

The problem is that signs are being removed from some of the intersections. Some are removed from the poles they are mounted on, and others with the poles are being completely pulled out of the ground and dragged off.

This past year, Precinct #4 has replaced about 150 of these signs. It takes three or four crew members about three days to put these signs up. This has to be done about four times a year. Think about how much it costs for this, not to mention the possible loss of life and property. The Muenster Volunteer Fire Department takes much pride in our response time, but we need help in keeping these signs up.

Some may ask, "Has this ever happened again? Has the Department ever needed these signs?" Just last week this very thing happened. The road number was there, but someone has been removing the house numbers. The house was about 200 yards off the county road and was hidden behind many trees and brush, and was in a desolate part of the county.

Some people may think it is cool or neat to have these signs hanging on their walls, but there could be a penalty with this. Charges from a misdemeanor to a felony could come with the removal of these signs.

The Muenster Volunteer Fire Department is asking residents to help in keeping these signs up.

Joe Paul Fuhrmann 1922 - 2006

Joe Fuhrmann

Fuhrmann of Lindsay; and several nieces and nephews. Preceding him in death were his parents; son Norbert Fuhrmann; brothers Henry Fuhrmann and Bill Fuhrmann; and sister Anna Mae Stoffels.

Grandchildren assisting at the Mass of Christian Burial included Mass servers Travis Krahl and Jason Schumacher, with Kimberly Schumacher, Joe Otto, Lucy Lusk, and Catherine Lusk presenting the Offertory Gifts.

The eulogy was written by Lucy Krahl, and read by Fr. Nicholas, who said in part: "Joe Paul... was the second of 11 children. The family was raised in a small farm house north of Lindsay."

"Joe was drafted into the Army in November 1942, where he served as Sergeant in the Signal Corps, receiving and translating Morse code... Joe Paul was discharged in November 1945 - he was awarded a Good Conduct Medal.

"Joe Paul found his vocation raising a family. They had 11 children... Joe and Marie took pride in raising a good Catholic family with a strong work ethic... Joe worked hard to support the family - spending days in the fields and tending to cattle, and when necessary, working shifts at the flour mill in Gainesville. And of course, there was the garden... Joe kept up a huge garden well into his late 70s...

"Joe loved to fish... had more patience for fishing than almost anything - which wasn't much. On one of his many trips when he thought the fish weren't biting, he coined the Joe-ism "Y'all fish as long as you want - I'll turn the pick-up around."

"Every Sunday was filled with volleyball, baseball, basketball, or football. Later, when everybody got too decrepit, this changed to croquet and horseshoes... In the winter months, cards and dominoes...

"Joe never knew an enemy... Joe's life was simple, but rich... He treasured his Catholic roots and legacy..."

Pallbearers were Glenn Fuhrmann, Kevin Fuhrmann, Weldon Schmidkofer, Victor Schmidkofer, Ronnie Wachsmann, and Philip Reiter. A Rosary was held Friday, evening, Dec. 29 at Clement-Keel Funeral Home.

from the Muenster Historical Commission

- * Arriving in the new settlement on Nov. 14, 1889 were Koll, Derichsweiler, Hesse, Koesters, and Finken.
- * Schutzenfest flourished in Muenster from 1889 to 1913. The shooting competition of a carved bird ended with prohibition.
- * Before Muenster got a depot, those wanting to stop did so at a water tank stop called Lazarus, about three miles west of the new settlement or they stopped at Myra. The first depot was built in 1891.
- * Passenger train service discontinued in Muenster on May 15, 1959, after 72 years.
- * Most land around the new settlement sold for around $10 per acre.

- * The first business in the new colony was the Flusche Brothers land office.

Local Catholic Daughters Court helps proclaim the Right to Life

On Dec. 8, the feast day of the Immaculate Conception, Father Kyle Walterscheid and the Catholic Daughters hosted a Pro-life reception following the 6 p.m. Mass. The gathering celebrated the arrival of a beautiful professionally designed pro-life billboard in Cooke County!

The billboard is designed to catch the eye of a woman experiencing a crisis pregnancy. It depicts a pretty young woman with the caption "Pregnant & Scared?" It then gives an 800 number that links to a national hot line where help is available 24/7. If appropriate, a woman can also be referred to a local crisis pregnancy center in her area. In Cooke County, that would be ABBA Women's Center located in Gainesville.

The idea of a pro-life billboard originated with Catholic Daughters of the Americas of Muenster. The billboard project was funded by Catholic Daughters, the Knights of Columbus of Muenster, St.

Anne's Society of Muenster, the Knights of Columbus of Lindsay, St. Anne's Society of Lindsay, the Knights of Columbus of Gainesville, ABBA Women's Center, and The Cooke County Pro-Life Organization. It became a reality through the joint efforts of the Lamar Advertising Company of Sherman and Care Net of Sterling, Virginia.

The billboard is currently located on Hwy. 82, approximately 0.1 mile east of Interstate 35.

Watch acetaminophen intake

With the cold-and-flu season under way, doctors at UT Southwestern Medical Center note it's important to keep track of how much acetaminophen you're taking in.

Acetaminophen is the main ingredient in pain relievers such as Tylenol or Excedrin, many popular sleep aids, as well as many over-the-counter cold-and-flu remedies, such as Nyquil, Sudafed or Theraflu. It is also found in some prescription painkillers.

"It is easy to lose track of how much combined acetaminophen you're consuming when taking combinations of medicines, particularly for different ailments, such as arthritis and perhaps a cold," says Dr. William Lee, director of the Clinical Center for Liver Diseases at UT Southwestern.

Too much acetaminophen in the system at one time or over an extended period can cause serious liver damage or lead to liver failure and even death. About 100 people die annually of accidental acetaminophen poisoning and another 15,000 end up in the emergency rooms.

Avoid more than 4,000 milligrams combined per day, and no more than 2,000 mg to 3,000 mg for those with liver problems like hepatitis or those who drink regularly. Also remember that alcohol makes acetaminophen more toxic while depleting other substances that protect against liver damage.

GANDER MOUNTAIN TIPS

Quick tips for deer hunting

Always keep the wind in your favor (work into or quarter into it). If at all possible, use scent-blocking clothing and scent-killer odor sprays. They will eliminate human odors or keep them very low.

Your bow or firearms should be covered with a camo cloth tape or have a dull finish to prevent any reflection from the sun. When using your bow, sound-dampening equipment should be incorporated into your hunting system so that when you make the shot, the animal will not hear it coming.

Use a scentless face camo to help keep the shine of your face concealed. While stalking your prey, do not be in a hurry. Wait for your prey to make the mistakes, and then capitalize on them. A lot of times, you can get too anxious to get the shot and actually "blow" an opportunity very easily.

Use the landscape to your benefit and never silhouette yourself.

Use a powder device to constantly check the wind direction.

And always remember that one set of eyes is a lot easier to stalk up on than several sets.

Move S-L-O-W

The most fundamental mistake most of us make in the deer woods is not watching the wind. The second most serious mistake lies in moving too fast. It doesn't matter whether you're hunting from a stand or still-hunting, pussyfooting slowly through good cover. It also doesn't matter whether you're in head-to-toe camouflage or blaze orange (although camouflage, where legal, always helps!). If a whitetail gets your wind he's gone, but if the wind is in your favor the next most likely thing to spook him is movement.

Sudden movement is the kiss of death, but sometimes you can get by with slow, steady movement. Just because you can't see a deer doesn't mean there isn't one nearby, so concentrate on keeping all movements slow and steady, all the while looking around—moving only your eyes as much as possible, and keeping head movements slow.

If you see a deer (or think you do) and you can see his head, then he can see you. Freeze. Do not bring up your binoculars or your gun or bow until the head is completely hidden, and then move slowly and deliberately. Sometimes you have no choice but to go for it, but don't let a deer startle you into rapid movement. As long as he's stationary or moving slowly, take your time. The best way to turn an easy shot into a lost opportunity is to bring your gun or bow up too fast.

Feather light

When hunting from a treestand, it is essential to be aware of where your scent is traveling. Wind checkers are great for the immediate area around your treestand, but another great choice is as close as your local fly shop!

A small piece of marabou feather can show you where your scent is being carried well beyond your stand. By ripping off a small piece and letting it float away, you can identify changing wind currents for several yards! Try it and you may be surprised!

Deer season will end in 200 counties in Texas on Jan. 7.
