including some of the history which began as Decoration Day after the Civil War. People remembered the fallen by decorating each gravesite with a flag. Over the years, it evolved into Memorial Day. Commander Martin stated, "It is up to us, the living, to uphold their legacy with respect, reverence, and heartfelt gratitude. All too often, we as Americans forget the responsibility we have to keep the memory of those brave men and women alive... Because of them, America remains truly the home of the free and the land of the brave."

Christy Hesse sang "God Bless America," followed by the playing of TAPS by Ronnie and Tina Weinzapfel as a final salute to the valiant men and women who gave their lives in defense of our country.

Ben Bayer, nephew and Godchild of Dorothy remembered his simple, straight forward relationship with Dorothy. Ben found his Godmother kind, compassionate, humble, intelligent, wonderful with children, courageous, and loving.

Dorothy's nephew Trey Russell recalled that "Aunt Dorothy was a loving person.

She liked playing games...
never gave up... was considerate... liked to read... loved family... Aunt Dorothy was my favorite aunt."

Bill Russell spoke of Dorothy's life. He said in part,
"...As long as Anna and Trey can remember, Dorothy would come over on Wednesday evenings for dinner...
usually meant a game night
or swimming in the summer...
Dorothy loved children. She was very artistic... so if there was a school project that needed some art 'assistance,' Dorothy was always pleased

The Church's Love Letter to the World by Rev. Richard John Neuhaus Part 3 of 12

Prophetic humanism knows that the choice is not between the will of God and the well-being of humanity. Rather, the will of God is for our well-being, and our well-being is in doing the will of God. Jesus said, "I came so that they might have life and have it more abundantly" (Jn 10:10). This is the great truth of prophetic humanism that gives such urgency to the love letter that is Evangelium Vitae: "May these words reach all the sons and daughters of the Church!" the encyclical declares. "May they reach all people of good will who are concerned for the good of every man and woman and for the destiny of the whole of society!" (no. 5)

Angela Schad named National Merit Finalist

nate Word High School (IWHS) in San Antonio, has been named a 2007 National Merit Finalist, school officials have announced. Angela is the daughter of Elaine and E. J. Schad of Valley View and the granddaughter of Elaine and E. J. Schad of Valley View, and is the great-granddaughter of Ethel Kammerdiener of Gainesville.

Angela joins a group that represents less than 1% of all U. S. high school graduating seniors to attain the National Merit Finalist distinction. She is eligible for one of about 8,200 National Merit Scholarships to be named later.

About 15,000 scholastically talented high school seniors are named National Merit Finalist annually based on their exceptional academic promise as determined by scores on their preliminary college-level entry testing, officials said.

Angela attended Sacred Heart High School in Muenster her freshman year, where she was a member of the dance team, played softball, and was involved in many other activites.

Since transferring to IWHS, Angela has been involved in many activities, including, National Honor Society vice president, president of the INternational Thespian Society. Angela has been in theater for three years, garnering lead roles in her senior year, and she is a member of the University of Incarnate Word Community Orchestra where she plays the violin.

Angela Schad

Angela graduated May 20 during ceremonies at Incarnate Word High School. The ceremony was attended by her father, E. J. Schad, and her brother, Ed Schad, of Los Angeles. Since her brother Tommy was graduating on the same day, her mother and sister were at Notre Dame!

Angela plans to attend the University of Notre Dame in South Bend, Indiana, where she has been selected as a Notre Dame Scholar. She plans to major in chemistry.

Medical tip

Choose hospital advo-cates. If you're staying in the hospital, line up your most outspoken friends and family to stay with you. Hospital care varies depending on the quantity and experience of staff, and you may not be able to monitor your own care. Don't worry; you'll be able to return the favor someday.

Zach Dostart, 24, grandson of Mary Sicking of Gainesville, and nephew of Cliff and Kathy Sicking of Muenster, and of Myra residents Bryan Sicking and Bill Sicking, has received two graduate degrees from Pepperdine University in Malibu, California. Zach is the son of Paul Dostart and Joyce Sicking Dostart, of La Jolla, California.

Dostart, of La Jolla, California.

On April 14, Zach received his Masters of Business Administration degree, with a concentration in Finance, from Pepperdine's Graziadio Graduate School of Business and Management. Zach received the Juris Doctor degree from Pepperdine's School of Law on May 18. Both ceremonies were attended by Zach's parents, his younger brother Sam, and many friends.

While in law school, Zach was elected managing editor

Laura said, "Every one of us has endured our own personal struggles. We have cried over boyfriends or girl-friends, fought unmercifully with our parents, debated over which college to attend, and sunk into the depths of severe senioritis. Separately we have survived the tedious life that is high school. Together, however, as a class we have managed to attain a level of excellence unsurpassed by any other. As if the State Basketball, Track, One Act Play, and UIL Academic championships weren't enough to prove this, how many other classes have students that even though they have a grade of 98.5, they still aren't in the top 10% of the class."

The class was described by Laura as having, "kind, ambitious, competitive, eager, and energetic qualities that set them apart as a group with irrepressible spirit."

Laura thanked people who had helped her in high school, including some of her teachers. "These teachers drove me to countless UIL meets, practiced with me for hours after school, and provided priceless laughs and memories along the way." One thing she learned, "relax and take life as it comes, don't worry about stressing out about every little detail, just have fun doing what you love to do."

The graduates then recognized their parents. Principal Hall presented the senior class and Dr. Ceyanes certified them.

TEXAS GAME WARDEN FIELD

The following are excerpts from recent Texas Parks and Wildlife Department law enforcement reports.

Speeding citation only skimmed surface — April 19, a Freestone County game warden stopped a reckless driver who had been issued a speeding ticket by a state trooper less than 20 minutes prior. The subject was arrested for driving with a suspended license, possession of methamphetamine, and reckless driving. When the warden asked why his truck was in such bad shape, the driver said he had intentionally run over four deer because his friends needed the meat.

Later, the individual gave a videotaped statement about two of the four deer and implicated two other people. Apparently unaware of the consequences, the arrested subject also made a statement to the jailer about throwing a bag of marijuana out the window before he was stopped. Sure enough, when the warden returned to the scene, he found the ditched bag of marijuana. An additional felony charge of tampering with evidence was filed. The investigation regarding the dead deer continues.

Reckless recreation endangers neighbor — A Schleicher County game warden responded to a call from a shaken individual who stated that his vehicle and house had been shot. The warden visited the caller's residence and then proceeded to the property in the general direction from where the shots had come. There, he encountered two men and a woman. They admitted to shooting in the general direction of the complainant's house, which was clearly visible, but stated they did not think the bullets would travel that far. They had also shot numerous holes into a nearby vacant house. The warden picked up 179 empty 9mm shell casings and counted 79 holes in the wall of the vacant house.

Dear Parents, Parishioners, Alumni, and Friends of Sacred Heart Catholic School,

Dear Parents, Parishioners, Alumni, and Friends of Sacred Heart Catholic School, The Sacred Heart Catholic School Senior Class would like to thank all of the people who have given of their time, talent, and treasure to ensure our great education. Thanks to the contribution of peoples' time, our school now enjoys newer technology, a more inviting appearance, and improved facilities. These people who give their time to our school deserve more thanks than we could ever give, but we want to assure them that their gifts are fully appreciated. Many thanks also go out to those who have given of their talent. We are lucky to have a wide variety of highly skilled alumni, parents, and friends who give back to the school. Without you, we would not be able to make any advancement whatsoever. Another generous gift we are very appreciative of is the gift of treasure. Thanks to the charitable donations of so many, our school has made the transition into the new era with new technologies, curriculum, and facilities. The detail most often overlooked is that without each other, each one of these gifts is nearly useless; but when all three are present, the result is something we can all be proud of. The Senior Class is proud to say thank you to all those who have supported us in our educational journey.

Cleaner manure burns hotter

Clean manure may sound like an oxymoron, but Dr. Brent Auvermann is working with feedyard owners to help them get the most "spark" from it as a fuel source.

Auvermann, a Texas Cooperative Extension engineering specialist, hosted "Producing High-Value Manure for BioFuels and Fertilizer" recently in Hereford. The meeting outlined work by Texas Agricultural Experiment Station researchers to determine best management practices for scraping manure from the feed pens.

"We're doing something that has never been done before," said Arles "Bugs" Graham, Panda Energy International's general manager for the Hereford plant. Graham spoke at the meeting.

"We're using your manure as an energy source," he said. "It's a very complex process." After starting up the plant with natural gas as the boiler fuel, Panda Energy will eventually use manure as a fuel source when producing ethanol for an £10 fuel blend, Graham said.

The plant will initially process corn for ethanol, although the company is looking at alternative sources of starch to make the ethanol, and it will produce distiller's grains as a by-product.

"But manure is our future," Graham said, estimating each plant will use 1,500 tons a day.

Jim Adams, Panda Energy vice president-fuels, said the plant will begin asking yards in June to sign up for a percentage of their manure.

now to ensure a steady supply.

Adams said the plant will use manure on a six-day basis, requiring 70 to 80 truck-loads per day. Panda's contractor will collect from the pens when they are dry enough, but will need to pull from stockpiles when pen surfaces are too wet.

Quality is the biggest issue, Auvermann said. The manure needs to burn at a minimum rate of 2,758 British thermal units per pound of manure. That number changes according to the amount of pollutants – moisture and dirt – included when the pen is scraped.

If all the water and contaminants were removed from the manure, the highest quality would be 8,500 Btu, "but we can't do that, because we can't take the ash out completely," he said.

Manure from soil-surfaced pens may not always meet the minimum heating value on an as-received basis, Auvermann said. Feedyard operators will have to take some steps to improve it.

The timeliness of collection and depth of scraping will be key to keeping dirt content below 60% and moisture content below 20%, he said.

"Paving the pens with a crushed ash or a fly-ash material (from coal-fired power plants) will end up returning to you in the form of heating value – big time," Auvermann said.

by burning Texas lignite coal, he said.

Feedyard owners should consider the process as "harvesting manure" rather than cleaning pens, Auvermann said. The ultimate goal is to have a hard, smooth, well-drained corral surface.

Implementing good practices will pay at the bottom line, he said. Conscientious manure harvesting can result in higher fuel and fertilizer values, reduced feed requirements for cattle, improved pen drainage, and reduced odor, dust, and flies.

As gasoline prices continue to increase, so will the cost for those caught cheating Texas drivers. Agriculture Commissioner Todd Staples announced recently the Texas Department of Agriculture (TDA) is increasing penalties for any fuel pump found out of tolerance in the state. This is the first time since 1996 TDA has increased the penalties for weights and measures violations.

Gas prices are high enough without consumers getting shortchanged at the pump. Commissioner Staples said. "Drivers need to have confidence they are receiving exactly what they are paying for every time they fill up."

In accordance with specifications published by the National Institute of Standards and Technology, TDA tests fuel pumps using a tolerance of six cubic inches – about six tablespoons – per five gallons. The new penalties for first and subsequent offenses are based on how much a pump varies from the tolerance level.

The penalties are:

More than twice in excess penalties for weights & measures violations

More than three times in excess of tolerance (18 cubic inches) – $150 per device for the first offense and $300 for each device for the second offense; and

More than four times in excess of tolerance (24 cubic inches) – $250 per device for the first offense and $500 for each device for the second offense.

the first offense and $500 for each device for the second offense.

TDA has 72 weights and measures inspectors throughout the state checking more than 68,500 fuel pumps a year. An inspector pumps a year. An inspector pumps are year. An inspector will place an "out of order" tag on any pump not dispensing the correct amount of fuel within the allowable tolerance. An entire station can also be tagged out of order if a majority of the pumps are dispensing fuel in favor of the station owner, even if the pumps are within the tolerance level. The owner or operator is responsible for having a pump fixed and re-inspected by TDA before the pump can be further used to sell fuel. This is in addition to any penalty the owner or operator may incur. "At TDA, we take our con-

"At TDA, we take our consumer protection efforts very seriously whether inspecting eggs, grocery store scales, plants from nurseries, or gas pumps," Commissioner Staples said. "Since we oversee many regulatory programs that directly impact a consumer's pocketbook, our inspectors are on the frontlines, helping ensure shoppers are getting both high quality and accurate quantity for the products they are buying."

In addition to fuel pumps, TDA is also increasing fines for non-compliant commodity scales and pricing discrepancies at the checkout counter. All of the new penalties went into effect May 25.

United States Agriculture 1920

The annual loss of buildings in the U.S. from fires in 1920 was estimated at $330,854,000, which included a large amount of wood.

The annual drain on our forests is four times as great as the amount of wood grown each year, nearly twice as great as we could grow under crude forestry.

Favorite Since 1947 Oxygen depletion and fish kills

fish kills

Is your pond in danger of oxygen depletion, or some other risk factor that would cause a fish kill? Asking yourself the right questions after a fish kill could help you determine the cause if a fish kill occurs. Asking the right questions before a fish kill could help you to avoid the event. According to Dr. Billy Higginbotham, Texas Cooperative Extension wildlife specialist, the following questions should be made to help assess your risk level.

1) How many different species are dying? What you are trying to determine with this question is that if more than one species of fish is dying, you probably are faced with a water quality problem (i.e., oxygen, ammonia, nitrites). If only one species of several species present are dying, it may be a disease/parasite problem, but not always because different tolerance levels for water quality parameters. If only one species of fish is in the pond and a die-off is occurring, you need more information.

2) Have any pesticides been used recently that were introduced into the pond? This could include pasture insecticides washing into ponds or even cattle that were treated with an insecticide standing in the pond to escape the summer heat.

3) How big is the pond? The pond owner usually thinks the pond is 2x to 3x larger than it really is. Walk them through the process of estimating surface area in acres by dividing square footage by 43,560. Remember, excessive depth does not make up for lack of surface area when it comes to fish production!

area when it comes production!

4) How many pounds of fish are present? Once you know the surface acreage, try to determine the pounds of fish present by asking: (1) for an estimate of fish stocked (minus those caught out) and (2) the average weight of the fish present. This will help you estimate the total poundage of fish present.

If the total pounds of fish exceed 1,000 pounds per surface acre (that's only 100 pounds in a 0.10 acre pond), you are probably dealing with an oxygen depletion. This accounts for about 85% of all fish die-offs in Texas farm ponds!!!

When the fish standing when the fish standing crop exceeds the 1,000 lbs/ acre carrying capacity during the hot months, the stage is set for a die-off. Why the summer months? Because warm water cannot hold as much oxygen as cool water, yet the fish need more because their metabolism (and therefore their oxygen requirements) increases as water temperature increases.

1) A couple of hot, still cloudy days in succession that reduce photosynthesis and therefore oxygen production,

tion,
2) Aquatic herbicide treatments in hot weather that kill too much vegetation in too short a period of time resulting in an oxygen debt
