

MUENSTER ENTERPRISE

VOLUME X

MUENSTER, TEXAS, COOKE COUNTY, FRIDAY, AUGUST 9, 1946

NUMBER 37

Another paragraph for that mythical volume entitled "It's a small world." Last week the Enterprise received a letter from Elbert Haling, the Home Town Editor of KRLD, acknowledging receipt of the first copy of this newspaper. In the letter Bert wonders whether yours truly is a high school acquaintance of his, and goes on to mention several names that should be familiar to both. He guessed correctly. Con remembers him as well as the fellows listed.

Those who listen to the Home-town Editor at noon on Saturdays probably noticed that last week was the first time the Enterprise has received a mention. In the future we hope they'll hear it every week. At least the Enterprise staff will cooperate by submitting a copy of each edition.

Haling has a good idea in his program. Knowing that most people like to hear their home towns mentioned he can count on a fair sized audience, everybody hoping of course that the item about his own home town will be the best on the program. They like to have the word know that their community is a wide awake spot worthy of recognition.

The Enterprise staff has had plenty of opportunity to observe this trait in individuals. People who do something worth while are usually very pleased to get credit for it. Of course most of them are modest about their achievements. When questioned they say it really isn't worth writing about, and too frequently, because of their modesty, the item isn't discovered at all.

That's just one of the handicaps a paper has to contend with. The most constructive bits of news are hardest to get because people don't want to appear to brag on themselves. The situation reminds us of the fellow who said that showering praise on him is like pouring water on a duck's back. It runs right off — but the duck enjoys it.

Incidentally, there is a convenient solution to the difficulty of getting news from these modest people. Their friends and neighbors can remember to tell us. So, whether or not you're reluctant to tell about yourself, give the good news about somebody else. And chances are you'll get a boost from the other fellow.

As far as we are concerned, constructive news about our residents has a value besides giving credit where credit is due. Added together these items mean that Muenster is on its toes, a fact which we like to see recognized both here and elsewhere. Not telling the Home Town Editor how to conduct his program, but this column does suggest that listeners around here will be most pleased with selections that indicate the progressive and cooperative spirit of the community.

We wonder how many voters in the primary election a couple of weeks ago knew who they were voting for when they came to the State Commissioner of Agriculture. If the situation here is a fair sample of the rest of the state, a lot of people scratched the man they wanted.

Con has spoken to several who said they wanted to vote for McDonald, the present commissioner of agriculture, but when they found two McDonalds on the ballot they did not know which was their man, and many guessed wrong.

This column doesn't go so far as to say that the incumbent would have polled a majority had the confusion been removed. But it does hint that there is some significance in the fact that two McDonalds are in the run off. Apparently the name has become rather popular with Texas voters and it doesn't seem too far fetched to assume that the present office holder is due credit for much of the popularity. There hasn't been much opportunity to hear about the other, not in recent years, anyway.

To shed a little more light on the contest, J.E. McDonald is the man now in office. He's the man so widely recommended for a purge by the state Democratic committee because of his refusal to fall in line with New Deal agricultural policies. He's been denounced as a party bolter because of his refusal to support the Democratic nominee for president. In other words, he's a man with courage enough to stick with his principles rather than give his rubber stamp approval to party policies. Whether he's right or wrong in his convictions is a matter for individuals to decide by their own standards. Whether he's a cour-

City Asks County To Furnish Truck For Fighting Rural Fires

Following recommendations recently made at the state firemen's convention and a firemen's training course, the city council in regular session Monday night passed a resolution to petition the county for a fire truck to fight rural fires and also serve as an additional protection for the city. Several counties in South Texas are already providing such trucks, according to reports brought back from the firemen's convention by Elmer Fette and Gerald Steizer. The usual arrangement is to have the truck maintained by firemen of the city in which it is located. Muenster men have already expressed a willingness to take care of a truck if one is placed here.

The proposed truck would carry a 500 gallon water storage tank with a booster pump and also a connection to fire hydrants. Under present conditions the city is unable to help in rural fires. It is tied down by state insurance regulations requiring that a fire truck be available in the city at all times, and the truck itself has no storage tank or booster pump. It is useless when out of reach of a fire hydrant. The addition of a truck would provide help outside the city while leaving one truck here to abide by regulations and it would more than double local fire protection. With a booster pump it would be more efficient than the truck Muenster has.

Meeting To Start GI Training Course Gets Poor Response

Muenster's course in vocational training for ex-service men got off to a disappointing start Monday night when only five men met with County Coordinator Euline Shaw at the K of C Hall to become acquainted with provisions of the class. And only one of the five submitted his application for enrollment.

The principal reason for present lack of interest is that enrollment would keep men from participating in other GI benefits. Men in business for themselves can now take advantage of the federal government's guarantee of $100 per month income for 2-5 months. Unemployed men can draw $20 per month compensation for a full year. When terms of eligibility for those benefits expire the number of prospects for the GI course is expected to increase considerably.

In spite of the poor response Mr. Shaw urged that everyone interested apply for enrollment as soon as possible and even encourage eligible friends to join. If the class is not organized soon, there is little chance of finding a teacher. Furthermore he saw a possibility of grouping men from several communities into one class. Myra, he said, has some applicants, and a class might be organized for Lindsay, Myra and Muenster.

The scarcity of instructors is the result of rigid requirements. Only Smith-Hughes trained men are qualified and the number of them in the state is limited. Hence a class that organizes late may not be able to find an instructor.

REPAIRS UNDER WAY IN WOLF HOTEL BUILDING

A series of improvements in the Wolf Hotel building, which had been under way at a leisurely pace for several weeks, are nearing completion this week, according to a report from Lou Wolf.

Formerly consisting of two separate buildings, the two parts, one above the barber shop and cafe, the other above the theatre, were connected by means of a door where a window used to be. Originally there above the theatre was used for offices and has been used as a hotel only in recent years.

Additional work consists of converting some of the former offices into apartments or rooms adding another bath and making minor repairs.

FORMER LOCAL PHARMACIST DIES IN DALLAS

Friends here learned this week of the death of M.R. Collins in Dallas last month. He succumbed to a heart attack.

Collins was pharmacist at the Kaiser Drug store for several years before moving to Dallas. He is survived by his wife.

COLONY OF BEES AND LOTS OF HONEY FOUND IN PAROCHIAL SCHOOL

An unknown colony of bees that has thrived in the eaves of the parochial school for no telling how many years was discovered Monday afternoon by workmen repairing and painting the building. Its store of honey amounted to almost fifteen gallons.

It is believed that the bees have had their home there at least five years. Men who worked at the school that long ago recall seeing the insects buzzing about but had no idea where they were located. But Monday when men saw them crawling up the brick wall into the eaves cavity then heard the familiar humming inside the secret, finally came to light. The location was at about the center of the north side of the building between two rafters, well hidden and protected by the facing lumber at the underside of the eaves.

George Gehrig and two companions volunteered to remove the honey, but according to workmen, they left the worst part of the problem unsolved. The bees are still there and their temper discourages any additional work around that part of the building. The object now is to get rid of them.

INTERIOR RENOVATING AT SISTERS' HOME

The home of the local Benedictine Sisters is receiving interior repairs, fresh paint and new wallpaper. The work got under way Monday with members of the Saint Anne's Society assisting in the program by helping with preliminary painting and in removing old wallpaper.

The work is expected to be finished by the time the nuns return to Muenster for the opening of the next school term.

Jim Ratliff of Lubbock is visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Fette and other relatives here.

Erosion And Flood Caused By Unsound Land Practice

These contour ridges built on a pasture near Denton on the Rose M. King farm are one effective means of aiding flood control. Water so handled has a chance to filter into the ground instead of swelling nearby streams with mud and debris. The picture shows strip cropping and contour cultivation in the background.

Very little land in the Trinity watershed falls in the fourth group. In recommending changes to farmers and ranchers cooperating in the watershed flood control program, consideration will be given to the supply and demand for the products that the various kinds of land are capable of producing safely, and to the preferences of each landowner.

The four major uses of land in the watershed are the production of cultivated crops, production of grasses, production of timber, and production of wildlife. It is desirable that all types of production should be in balance. Except for the production of large game animals on ranch and timber lands, wildlife can be produced as a supplementary crop connection with each of the three other uses.

Only relatively minor changes will be required on the average farm or ranch to convert the lands to their best possible use for controlling erosion and retarding run-off. About 15 percent of the cropland in the Blacklands, and only 4 percent of the cropland in the East Texas Sandy lands need to be retired (Continued on Page 4)

Ball Fever Stages Comeback, Lights On Field Being Repaired

In spite of a well advanced season, Muenster will probably see at least a little softball this year. Since the beginning of this week several of the local enthusiasts have been spending their evening hours repairing lights and installing new netting on the backstop. The first game will be played Thursday — if the men can complete their preparations.

Reflectors were also taken down and given a double coat of white enamel and all wire connections were checked. And all bulbs had to be replaced, most of them having been shot out by BB guns since their last use.

The most ardent workers on the project are Walter Becker, Gene Schmitz, Bill Derischweiler and the two Knabs — "Big Buck" and "Little Buck". All played on pre-war Muenster teams and at least some will be on the contemplated city team.

The men hope to get into a league, but if unsuccessful at that they will match exchange games and try to organize a tournament. Prospective opponents are Saint Jo, Howeville, Dennis Platts, Dye Mount and Caps Corner.

According to plans most games will be double headers, the openers to be played by girls' teams.

Refinery Resumes Operation

After a two months' shut down for repairs the Muenster Refinery is back in operation this week. With six crude storage tanks filled to the brim, Manager John Ewell estimates that the plant will operate continuously for three weeks, and perhaps longer, depending on the volume of crude received during the time.

Mr. and Mrs. T.E. Stennett are the parents of a son born at the local clinic Tuesday morning.

SOIL CONSERVATION OFFICE ESTABLISHED AT MUENSTER AUG. 1

Since Thursday of last week Muenster has had its own soil conservation office providing personnel to assist local cooperators in their soil conservation activities.

The unit, located above the box office of the theatre building, consists of five persons with H.W. Wright, work unit conservationist, in charge. He is assisted by T.H. Nelms, H.B. Armstrong, T.M. Baggett and Wilmer Luke, who will do clerical work and assist in field work. Another man is expected to join the group soon.

These men will assist cooperators of the Muenster district, which extends south as far as the county line, east as far as Myra, north to the division of Trinity and Red river watersheds and west about 6 miles into Montague county.

At a unit meeting to be held here soon, F.M. Shaw, district conservationist in charge of several North Texas units, will define exact boundaries and send individual notification to all cooperators of the area.

Personnel of the unit employed by the Federal government under provisions of the Trinity flood control appropriation, work under the direction of the district board of supervisors.

Activity this week consists of terrace work on the farms of W.H. Endres, Paul Endres, Danglemyr Brothers, Al Fleitman, Felix Becker, Joe Starke, Henry Pels and William Becker.

For the present the men are confining their work to farms provided with proper outlets, such as pastures, sodded outlets and sodded channels. Otherwise, Mr. Wright explained, water leaving terrace outlets will cut channels and carry away large quantities of soil.

County 4H Club Boys And Girls Have Encampment At Hill Campbell Ranch

Final plans for the county wide 4-H encampment for boys and girls have been released by the Home Demonstration Agent and County Agent. This encampment will be held at Hill Campbell's Ranch five miles west of Gainesville on Highway 82 on August 8 and 9.

The program will include swimming, baseball, boxing, washer pitching, motion pictures, magicians, ring games, and educational demonstrations.

Each person attending will have to pay $1.50 to cover cost of meals. Everyone will bring their own bathing suit, bed roll, toilet articles, plate, fork spoon, and cup.

The Agricultural Committee of the Kiwanis Club is helping the Agent's sponsor this encampment. Letters have been sent to all 4-H club boys and girls whose addresses were available. All other 4-H members failing to receive a letter are also invited and urged to attend.

Mrs. H.P. Hennigan and her mother, Mrs. Frank Seyler, left Tuesday afternoon for a vacation visit in Colorado. Mr. Hennigan took them by car to Bowie where they boarded a train for the remainder of the trip.

Joe Weinzapfel, Jr. flew Emmet Fette's Aerona Champion to Texarkana Monday and was accompanied home by his brother, Rev. Thomas Weinzapfel, who is spending this week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J.M. Weinzapfel and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Endres are rejoicing over the birth of a son at the local clinic Wednesday morning. They have one other child, a daughter. Mrs. Endres was Miss Clara Henschel before her marriage and the grandparents are Messrs. and Mmes. Albert Henschel and R.R. Endres.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Carter and daughter, Peggy, stopped here for brief visits with friends Monday afternoon enroute to their home in Seymour after a several days' visit with relatives in Missouri and Arkansas. The Carters formerly resided here. Gene being employed with the Muenster Enterprise.

Among local persons attending the Nocona rodeo Friday night were Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wimmer, Andy Wimmer, Miss Celia Walterscheid, Joe and Albert Danglemyr and their guest, Most Rev. Augustine Danglemyr, of Dallas, Misses Louise Felderhoff and Emily Fette, Misses Betty, Dorothy and Loreta Hartman, Leonard Hartman, Mr. and Mrs. Alts Trubanbach.

Another Election Is Needed To Continue District School Tax

Another tax referendum to furnish revenue for operating the Muenster school district buses will be held in the near future, Herbert Meurer, secretary of the school board, disclosed this week.

Consolidating with Hays several weeks ago automatically cancelled the previous tax arrangement, he explained. That circumstance is the result of a state provision which guarantees members of a newly added district the right to vote on tax rates.

Because of previous shortages in their fund the board members are requesting a 5 cent increase in the tax rates. Accordingly the district will vote for or against a tax "not to exceed 30 cents" per $100 of property valuation. This will permit trustees to reduce assessments when a sufficient balance is carried forward to the next school year but provides adequate income in case there is no carry-over.

In recent years it has been necessary to supplement the transportation tax revenue with money from the per capita fund. Because of increased expenses this year — the building program, addition of courses and equipment, and addition of another teacher — it is believed that the per capita fund will already be in a strain.

Few, if any, will feel the additional 5 cent tax, Meurer said. The reduction in state tax, already announced, will more than offset the proposed increase in district tax. The exact date has not been set. However, it is known that the revenue provision must be made before the buses can resume operation for the next school term.

PRICE OF GASOLINE HERE BOOSTED ONE PENNY PER GALLON

Muenster motorists are paying higher prices for gasoline at all the major oil stations in the city since last week as the result of recent price advances in crude oil.

Car owners are now paying 21 cents per gallon for premium grade and 20 cents for regular grades, an increase of one cent per gallon.

The advance in prices is allowed under the new OPA extension bill which President Truman signed last week. By the terms of that bill the petroleum industry is free from price controls both on crude and products at least until August 21.

HELM AND MCCOLLUM TIE FOR 2ND PLACE; HELM ENTERS RUN-OFF

An official count of votes in the Democratic Primary July 27 reveals that Si McCollum and Luther Helm were tied for second place honors in the tax assessor collector race. Early reports gave Helm a 3 vote lead and he was accepted as the candidate to oppose Tom Hayes in the August 24 run off.

When Helm and McCollum discovered they were tied each declined to concede the run off privilege to the other — hence it was up to the County Democratic Committee to decide who would appear on the run off ticket. Helmwon with a lucky draw out of the hat. As assumed before the error was discovered, he will be in the run off against Hayes.

Announcement has been received here of the birth of a son to Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Carter of Lubbock. Mrs. Carter is the former Miss Virginia Gehrig of this city.

Soil Conservation

Land use conversions proposed in the watershed flood control program do not vary greatly from changes now being made by farmers cooperating with their soil conservation districts in the Trinity watershed. A recent study by the Soil Conservation Service of 464 farms covering 72,700 acres in the Blacklands shows that cropland has been reduced 10 percent and grazing land increased 63 percent. More than 2,400 acres formerly idle are now being used productively. Seventy to 100 percent of the planned conservation program had been in effect two or more years on all these farms.

In the East Texas Sandy Lands, 269 farmers who operate 55,917 acres had reduced cropland 6 percent, increased grazing lands 35 percent, reduced farm woodlands 28 percent, and had put approximately 3,450 acres of idle lands into production as a result of their soil conservation work.

One outstanding result of making these land use conversions and then applying the right combination of conservation practices has been greater yields per acre. The Blackland farmers harvested an average of 21 percent more cotton, 37 percent more corn, 13 percent more grain sorghum, and 16 percent more wheat an acre. Their pastures produced 37 percent more forage per acre.

In the East Texas Sandy Lands, the conservation farmers grew 16 percent more corn, 31 percent more cotton, 45 percent more peanuts, 18 percent more legume hay, and 25 percent more of other hay an acre. Production of forage on pastures rose 73 percent.

These results are significant and should help other landowners to decide whether they wish to cooperate with their soil conservation districts in the watershed flood control program for the Trinity.

(The sixth of this series will discuss the use of vegetation in the flood control program.)

ANNUAL TOLL OF DIABETES IN TEXAS RUNS INTO HUNDREDS

Austin, Texas. — Despite the fact that modern medicine can do much to help the diabetic live out of normal life span, nevertheless diabetes took a toll of several hundred lives in Texas during the past year, according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

"While the communicable diseases such as typhoid fever, malaria, diphtheria and smallpox are annually causing a decreasing number of deaths in this country, diabetes is still taking a tragic number of human lives each year, especially in the middle aged group," Dr. Cox said.

"Until recent years diabetes was not noted as a major health problem, but it became accepted as such in direct ratio to the development of medical laboratory procedures, which made the disease more easily diagnosed."

Dr. Cox said that diabetes is generally recognized as a class disease. It seems to attack the white collar class of indoor men and women much more frequently than it does the outdoor person whose work is more vigorous and calls for more exercise. Whatever the actual cause of the disease may be, vocational and economic conditions are factors, since it seems a fact that those who do not indulge in luxurious living and whose occupations call for manual labor are not frequently affected.

Texas Dairy Products Take Over 97 Million Pounds of Milk in June

Austin, Texas. — The total amount of milk used by manufacturers of dairy products in Texas in June, 1946, totaled 97,482,000 pounds, according to a report released by the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Texas. This was 1.9 per cent more than was consumed in May of this year but 25.8 per cent less than used in June, 1945.

Ice cream production totaling 3,354,000 gallons was 28 per cent greater than for the corresponding month a year ago and nearly 4 per cent more than was produced in May.

Production of creamery butter continued to decline. The 1,719,000 pounds reported for June, 1946, was 48.7 per cent less than was manufactured a year ago and about the same was reported for

May, 1946. American cheese production in Texas for June showed the greatest decrease of any type of dairy products with 49 per cent less cheese than was produced in June, 1945 and nearly 7 per cent less than was reported for May of this year.

A special message from the Kraft Dairy Farm Service

You can save feed and boost milk volume

Small grains for fall and spring pasture will make you money both ways... and help you answer the call for "More Milk"

"More milk, more milk"—the whole marketing end of the dairy industry continues to shout for it. Demand has not slackened; it's getting greater. While certain areas have gone a little above last year's production, there still is a shortage of milk and the products of milk. You'll be particularly fortunate if you can produce more this fall, winter and early spring when there's likely to be a slump in volume, as there was last year.

Remarkable returns from small grains pasture

You can hold your milk production higher by planting Balbo or other approved rye, barley and wheat to use as pasture for your cows.

Prepare native pastures now, too

Plan now to prolong your next year's grazing season by starting your native pasture renovation program in the next few weeks.

Application of lime and fertilizer at this time of year will show results in more and better grass next summer. A dollar spent for fertilizer now will return several dollars in increased milk production next year.

Use a spring tooth harrow or disk to rip up your native pasture sod, in preparation for seeding next spring. Consult with your County Agent as to the amount of lime and fertilizer to apply. He can advise you also next spring as to the best grass and legume mixture to seed in your old pasture.

Plant them from mid-August to mid-September (your County Agent will tell you the best time for your locality) and you'll have lush, green, high-grade pasture this fall... two to four weeks more green forage after your native pasture is done for the year... extra weeks of low-cost feeding.

And 48 hours after you turn your cows into your small grain pasture you'll be getting your reward in 20% to 30% more milk! Production increases like that, and many much higher, are the common experience of dairymen who have put in small grain pasture.

But that fall flush isn't all. Next spring your cows will have good green forage another four weeks or more before your native pasture is ready to use. Again you'll save on production cost and increase your income on volume.

Act now. See your County Agent

Seed at least one acre per cow on a firm, well-prepared seedbed, sowing 1 to 2 bushels per acre depending on the crop. Drilling the normal seeding each way will give an extra heavy sod that can be pastured in wet weather. Application of from 200 to 400 lbs. of fertilizer will increase the forage yield. (Get your County Agent's recommendation as to seeding rates and what fertilizer and how much to apply.)

Rye, barley and wheat are recommended for this area. In addition, the winter clovers, ryegrass, vetch—all these can be seeded in the near future and used to produce more milk at less cost in months to come. The small grains can be pastured when the crop is from five to seven inches high; other crops at from six to eight inches.

Take this tip on small grain pasture. You'll get more milk in the fall and more milk in the spring. You'll help your cows, your pocketbook and the national milk program by using this high-grade and inexpensive pasture. And for every day of additional grazing you get you will save many dollars worth of grain and other scarce feeds.

KRAFT FOODS COMPANY

More milk; more money... they've proved it!

G. C., Missouri—I planted rye last spring. Cost $27 for seed and fertilizer. Got it in late, but used the plot for a week last fall and for four weeks this spring. I figure the gain in milk volume at just under $90.

L. H., Tennessee—Seed and fertilizer on a trial plot cost $10 per acre. Milk returns totalled $142 per acre in one season. The plot was checked against an equal size acre which did not get fertilizer and which returned $97 per acre. Fertilizer made the difference—and a cover crop proved its value.

W. E., Mississippi—Barley and winter vetch seeded for winter grazing raised milk production at least a third. In addition, the cows did not eat as much grain and silage. Figuring the greater milk volume and the savings in grain, I believe profit can be measured at better than $100 per acre.

The need for MILK has never been met-

POTATO LIQUOR — BUT YOU'D NEVER KNOW IT

Washington. — American beer and whisky drinkers soon may be quaffing large quantities of potato liquor—but they'll probably never know it unless they glance at the label.

The Agriculture Department disclosed that it has sold approximately 21,816 carloads of surplus potatoes to distillers. The potatoes were part of 22,964 cars bought up under the department's price support program.

The large-scale government purchases were the result of a bumper early potato crop which totaled about 75,000,000 bushels as compared with an average of about 48,000,000 over the past several years.

Experts said the potatoes purchased by distillers should add up to about 15,000,000 gallons of "spirits" if they all go for that purpose.

LETTER FROM NORWAY ACKNOWLEDGES COAT GIVEN IN RELIEF DRIVE

A coat given in a clothes drive for European war sufferers more than a year ago has brought a thank you letter from Norway to Rosa Driever, who had included her name and address in the garment.

Neatly written in Norwegian, the letter awaited translation for almost three weeks before it was discovered that Mrs. Alma Johansen, executive secretary of the Cooke County Red Cross chapter was familiar with the language. She translated it into English. It stresses the fact that the people of Norway are very grateful for the kindness shown them by the American people. The complete letter follows:

"I should like to send you a hearty greeting from Norway, with a sincere thanks for the gift we have received. I found your name and address in the cape and have a desire to send you a greeting. Yes, you should have been here and seen how many happy people think kindly of you. We wish that you on the other side of the world could see how we of the north feel toward you. We had a difficult time during the war years but we are glad that we again have our freedom and liberty and that we again have permission to get together with our own people. There were many nights with no sleep when I used to wonder what I would give my children to eat the next day, but I am so glad that now it is beginning to look brighter for all of us. It is still very difficult to get clothes and therefore we appreciate even more what we received from you. I wish again to thank you heartily.

I have two boys, one ten and the other a year old. The larger boy tells me that when he grows up he is going to America to thank all of the nice people that live there. I wish to send you a hearty greeting from my husband, my children, and myself. It would be nice if we could hear from you.

With sincere greeting,

At the age of 29, Harry Jackson is the last master of a vanished art. He is a whipcracker.

From 21 feet, he whips a tiny bit of paper out of your hand. All you feel is a mild vertigo. He knocks cigarettes from your mouth, leaving no scar. At 10 feet, he strikes a light on a match in your hand.

The razor-sharp Australian stock whip can be one of the deadliest weapons in the world. But in the hands of this slim, dapper, peace-loving young man it has never raised a welt on friend or foe.

He got his first whip when he was eight and began practicing straight falls, side-arms and back-hand cracks. Like all amateurs, he thoroughly and painfully lashed himself in the back. Finally, he could pick flies off walls.

At 13, the youngster joined his father's Australian wood-chopping act. Since then he has whipped himself around the world.

On the side, Whipcracker Jackson huris axes. At 51 feet, he neatly splits an apple with a five-pound chopping ax. Harry can prove it — did it for the movies.

Husband: "Why is it that we haven't more money in our savings account?"

Wife: "Do you suppose it's because there's so many ways to spend it and only one way of saving it?"

As a rule, women diet to retain their girlish figures or their boyish husbands.

Confetti---

ageous man is no longer open to question.

The qualifications and policies of R.E. McDonald, on the other hand are not nearly so well known. Perhaps he is a good man deserving of the office, but that does not alter the fact that his name on the ballot only served to confuse many voters.

So, in the run off primary two weeks hence it will be well to have those two identities in mind. If a man wants to keep the present commissioner of agriculture, J.E. is the man to vote for. If he wants a change in the office R.E. is the man.

A hobby that stands a good chance of developing into a thriving business is Bert Fisch's newest pride and joy. Telling about it here last week he was as enthused as a boy with a new red bike. It's a registered Jersey farm down Cleburne way and Bert is determined to develop animals on it that will make dairy people of the Southwest sit up and take notice. Starting with strains already noted for high production, he's depending on scientific breeding tricks to keep improving the herd's record and eventually enable him to get the really fancy prices for his stock. For the present he's pleased with a grade A rating, allowing a premium price for milk, and above the average prices for calves he offers for sale.

Bert's partner in the venture, and farm manager, is a graduate of the animal husbandry course at Texas Tech, which means he's had Lmith-Hushes training and is familiar with the latest developments in agricultural science. The man's rating, which is tops among agriculture instructors, qualifies the farm to secure approval for a GI On The Job training program and the partners feel confident they'll soon have the official OK. Bert has already expressed his preference for a Muenster man to fill the spot. Always conscious that this is his home town, he's partial that way, and he also believes that a man so trained could become an asset to local dairy interests.

Well, we're wishing Bert the best of luck, and a hat full of blue ribbons to show for it. We're also hoping that a local youngster will take up the proposition and come back with lots of constructive ideas on herd improvement.

Something that could stand a lot of talking up around here is a lake to serve as a recreational center. We're miles and miles from a good place to fish or swim. Even the few who are lucky enough to have membership in the Katy lake at Saint Jo are a little too far off for convenience. Non-members have to go as far as Sherman for good swimming and to Red River for good fishing.

That subject was being discussed on the street last week, and fellows were wondering why some desirable spot near here could not be dammed to make a good lake. Surely there must be a place not so far from town that will hold 10, 15 or 20 acres of water.

And when it comes to financing such a venture Muenster certainly would have no problem.

Muenster

Plenty of people around here, be ample. A prosperous, progressive town like Muenster deserves 100 dollars just to have a good recreation spot nearby. As for think a ny super-salesmanship maintenance thereafter a small fee 'or fishing or swimming would let's start thinking about it.
