CLARA MAE MOSMAN AND FRANCIS WIESE UNITED MONDAY AM

The marriage of Miss Clara Mae Mosman and Francis A. Wiese, Jr., was solemnized Monday morning at 8 o'clock in Saint Mary's church, Gainesville, with Rev. Peter Molloy, pastor, officiating at the double ring ceremony and at the nuptial mass. Rev. Mr. Fred Mosman, uncle of the bride, from San Antonio, was present in the sanctuary and acolytes were Richard and Bobby Mosman, brothers of the bride, Bobby Wiese, brother of the groom, and Paul and Joseph Schmitz.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Clara Mosman, Gainesville, and the late Nick F. Mosman, and Mr. Wiese is the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. F.A. Wiese. The grandparents are Mrs. Fred Schad and Mrs. Anna Wiese and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mosman, all of Lindsay.

Wedding music was presented by the church choir with Miss Mary Helen Hutton at the organ.

and Mrs. Adolph Dudenhoeffer sang Millard's "Ave Maria" as a pre-nuptial solo.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Nick F. Mosman, Jr. She wore a lovely gown of white satin and lace, fashioned with a bodice of "satin and the skirt formed by layers of illusion, falling into a long train. The skirt was appliqued with satin flowers and the satin bordered yoke of illusion was outlined with seed pearls. Her finger-tip veil of net was edged with lace and fell from a Mary Stewart headpiece. She carried a pearl rosary belonging to her mother and a white prayer book topped with gardenias and white streamers. Her only ornaments were a gold cross and chain given her by the bridegroom and she carried a white lace handkerchief, a gift from her aunt, Mrs. C.J. Curran of Dallas.

Miss Marjorie Mosser, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing a frock of blue net fashioned with sweetheart neckline, fitted bodice and full skirt, topped with a peplum. Her long gloves were of matching color and she wore a white gladioli head-dress and carried a bouquet of white gladioli.

Miss Virginia Butts, close friend of the bride, was bridesmaid. Her gown was of pastel pink lace and net, fashioned on similar lines to that worn by Miss Mosser, and she completed her costume with matching gloves, a white gladioli head-dress and a bouquet of white gladioli.

Paul Wiese attended as his brother's best man and another brother, Leonard Wiese, was groomsmen. Ushers were Charles R. Mitchell and Robert Pulte.

The bride's mother wore a dress of beige linen lace with brown accessories and the groom's mother was attired in a costume of aqua alpaca with black accessories. Both wore corsages of salmon pink gladioli.

After the ceremony, breakfast was served in the home of Mr. and Mrs. F.A. Wiese, Sr. The table was centered with an arrangement of rainbow asters.

Mrs. Mosman, the bride's mother entertained in her home with a reception. The bride's table was laid with a lace cloth and was centered with a bouquet of late summer flowers, flanked by white tapers. At one end of the board was a three-tiered wedding cake and at the other extreme was the punch service. Gladioli surrounded the services. Mrs. Floyd V. Jones of San Antonio, aunt of the bride, was in charge of the guest book and cousins of the bride and groom assisted with the serving.

In the afternoon dinner was served in the Mosman home to the bridal party, immediate members of both families, Father Molloy, Rev. Mr. Mosman, and grandparents of the newly married couple. The table was set with Pistoria crystalware.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiese left during the late afternoon on a wedding trip to Colorado where they will spend two weeks. For traveling the bride wore a soldier blue suit with matching accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiese are both graduates of Saint Mary's school. She has been employed in the Gainesville National Bank in the bookkeeping department for several years. Mr. Wiese served in the armed forces for two years and nine months, 17 months of that time in the Asiatic-Pacific theatre as a technical sergeant top gunner on a B-29. He is employed by an aircraft corporation in Garland.

OUT OF TOWN RELATIVES AT MOSMAN-WIESE RITES

Curran, Dallas; Mrs. Floyd Jones, Mrs. Edgar Mosman, Miss Lucille Beizer, Sister Anna Rose, Sister Catherine Henry, all of San Antonio; and Rev. Mr. Fred Mosman of Dallas.

TURKEY PROBLEM: HOW TO FEED THEM AND NOT LOSE MONEY

The question being asked by turkey raisers in Texas now is "How am I going to feed my turkeys and not lose money?" Ted Martin, poultryman for the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service, lists four of the most important steps to be followed in feeding that will help the turkey raiser to get more birds to market.

BEHIND THE EIGHT BALL

By NATE COLLIER

First, the poultryman says, turkeys should get all the green feed they will eat. Sudan grass is a good summer pasture, but if green feed is not available on the range, then baled alfalfa may be fed. To eliminate waste, a whole bale should be put out, and the turkeys allowed to pick out the leaves.

A supply of cool, clean water is a must. Turkeys will not endure the summer heat without it. Turkey raisers should consult their county agricultural agent for a plan on range waters. There are two different plans, and both are inexpensive and easy to build.

A third necessity is good shade for the turkeys. If there are no trees on the range, a simple shade may be constructed. Posts five to six feet high will make a good frame for the shade. Wire netting may be stretched over the posts with brush or straw on top of the wire. Such a shade may be moved easily when the birds need clean ground, which is often.

The fourth point the poultryman brings out concerns feed. Turkeys cannot be raised, he says, without plenty of good feed. Although feed prices are extremely high, he advises raisers not to cut down on amount of feed the birds eat. If raisers do cut down on feed, more feed will be required for each pound of grain. It will take longer to get the turkeys ready for market, the birds will not be top quality, and consequently will bring less per pound. The turkeys should be fed all they will eat, Martin says, and if the first three steps he mentions are carried out, the amount of feed per pound of grain will be reduced.

Changes and improvement in hosiery machines will make ladies' stockings fit better, be more sheer—and greatly increase their production.

F. J. SCHENK RAISES 308 TOMATOES TO DATE ON GIANT PLANT

Jack-and-the-Bean-Stalk has its real life counterpart in the story of F. J. Schenk and his tomato plant. Schenk, who lives at 1610 Lucile in Wichita Falls, has watched one of his 10 tomato plants grow from a seedling to a towering, prolific eight-foot plant.

Schenk has gathered more than 300 tomatoes from this spectacular vine, and it is now loaded with an estimated 100 green ones, and many new blooms. It was planted along with six others during the first days of April, and was fertilized with superphosphate and commercial fertilizers.

Schenk is not sure as to the variety of the tomato plant. It was obtained with some seeds of the Bison variety, though the grower is sure that it's not a Bison.

The ground was broken for the plant in the early spring and a tablespoonful of 20 per cent superphosphate was mixed into the soil. Then, after setting out the plant, he dug a trench around it at a distance of six inches and placed another spoonful of superphosphate.

The total job of fertilizing was completed when, during the summer, at three different times he added a handful of commercial fertilizer.

This year of 10 plants Schenk has harvested more tomatoes than he had previously realized from more than 35 plants. This despite the unfavorable weather conditions. He says that he has never raised such large tomatoes, and his harvest for the 10 plants has been approximately five bushels.

Prior to moving to Wichita Falls in April, 1945, Schenk had been a druggist for 40 years in Muenster.

POST WAR LET DOWN CAUSES INCREASE IN DISEASE, DEATH RATE

Austin, Texas. — In discussing the possible danger of inflation to the American way of life, Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, has declared that he believes one phase of this menace which should not be overlooked is the danger of inflation in the incidence of disease.

"Just because we have won a war is no reason why we should allow the disease and death rates in the country to become higher than in recent peacetimes," Dr. Cox said. "Indeed, it is an urgent reason why we should sharply reduce these rates among our people and use every effort to keep the health levels among our civilian and military population at their highest possible peak."

The State Health Officer emphasized once again, as he has often done in the past, the necessity for using the more easily accessible, common-sense safeguards of health. Immunization against several of the more killing diseases is available to all, at little or no cost. Such protection should not be neglected and the person who allows himself or his family to suffer from a preventable illness is, whether he realizes it or not, actually handicapping the nation's reconstruction effort. Another health precaution which can and should be practiced in every home and community is careful sanitation: clean clothes, a clean body, and

—F. J. Schenk, 1610 Lucile, Wichita Falls, almost has to climb the "tree" to gather his tomatoes. In the accompanying picture Schenk is sitting beside one of his tomato plants, a towering eight-foot vine which is still growing. He has already gathered 308 tomatoes from it, and at the present time it is loaded with more than 100 green tomatoes.

Average Person Eats 1,236 Pounds A Year

Assuming that you, gentle reader, are an average American, you may expect during the next 12 months to eat 1,236.4 pounds of food — plus 365 eggs, one for every day in the year.

You're something of a pig, it seems. Perhaps you aren't aware of the fact but best of all you like milk and cream. During the year you'll drink 430 pounds of the stuff. Next come fresh vegetables — 247 pounds of 'em.

Wheat, meat and fresh fruits follow in that order. 157, 150 and 148 pounds, respectively. Then you'll do a header. You may like chicken and turkey better than you do fresh vegetables but just the same you'll eat only 28.6 pounds. And you'll take a mere nibble of such food as rice, butter, cocoa, tea, etc. Coffee? Seventeen pounds.

Twelve hundred and 38 pounds is a lot of food. As a matter of fact, it's too much even though everyone else in these United States will devour a corresponding amount. So here's a suggestion. Cut down on your food consumption by 36 pounds or more. You would be surprised how far that amount would go toward keeping life in the wasted body of some Greek or Polish or Chinese child.

Stated bluntly — Don't be a pig all your life.

Soil Conservation

production. By applying and maintaining conservation practices, however, most of the acreage on the more gentle slopes can be safely cultivated. These practices include the use of conservation crop rotations, cover and soil-improving crops, strip-cropping, terracing, contour farming, proper management of crop residues, establishment and proper management of pastures, meadows and forests, and gully control.

A conservation crop rotation includes the growing of cover and soil-improving crops in proper sequence with the clean-tilled or erosion-permitting crops. Crops such as hubam and biennial sweetclover, vetch, Austrian winter peas, bur clover, sorghums and small grains all fit well into such a rotation.

Results at the Tyler Experiment Station show that three-year rotations and strip cropping, which include cover and soil-improving crops, reduce soil loss to as little as 20 percent of the loss from continuous clean-tilled cropping.

Strip cropping has proved effective in reducing soil and water losses. It is simply the planting on the contour of erosion-resistant crops such as small grains, legumes, or grasses in alternate strips with erosion-permitting crops such as cotton or corn.

When used in connection with terracing, strips can be conveniently planted in alternate terrace intervals.

Leaving crop residue on the surface of the soil, or working it into the soil where it acts as a sponge in absorbing water also helps to reduce run-off and soil loss. Cotton stalks, corn stalks or grass residue should not be burned or overgrazed. Cotton stalks should be turned into the soil rather than left on the surface, in order to help in the prevention of the boll weevil and boll worm.

Thousands of acres in the Trinity River watershed cannot be cultivated safely, because of the kind of soil, degree of erosion, or steepness of slope. This land can be used safely and more profitably for pasture or forest. Bermuda, buffalo, bluestems, grama grasses, bur, sweet and white clovers, black medic, and lespedeza are all adapted to various soils within the watershed. Farmers cooperating with the many soil conservation districts throughout the watershed have proved beyond question that highly productive pastures can be established. Management practices such as mowing, fertilizing, proper stocking, rotation grazing, and protection from fire are essential to the maintenance of improved pastures. Much of the native grassland within the watershed has been badly overgrazed, and for a time a low rate of stocking will be necessary to permit the desirable grasses to become re-established.

Much land in the watershed is badly gullied. These areas should be protected from over-grazing, so they may revegetate themselves. In some instances, gullies will need to be seeded or sodded to grasses or other types of vegetation. A large acreage of the Trinity watershed is in forest. So that these areas may be of most value in the prevention of soil loss, in flood control, and for maximum sustained production, they should be protected from fire and over-grazing. Selective cutting of the timber should be practiced to maintain good growing stocks and to permit maximum production of merchantable trees.

Planting of trees will be necessary on those areas being converted to woodland from other land uses. Trees such as red cedar, pines, oaks, black locust, and bois d'arc are adapted to various soils and conditions within the watershed.

Vegetation will play a major role, along with the necessary mechanical treatment, in the restoration and maintenance of a protective cover on uncultivated lands, and in the application of conservation measures on cultivated lands. As a result of this vegetative treatment, the quantity and rate of run-off from drainage areas will be reduced, there will be an increase of ground water supply which will tend to regulate stream flow, and soil erosion will be reduced. This in turn will reduce the rate at which silt is deposited in control structures such as reservoirs, waterways, and the shoaling of stream channels.

(The seventh of this series will discuss the necessity for the purchase of some lands in order to achieve flood control.)

WATCH YOUR STEP

Wild-eyed schemes of all kinds are now being hatched by slick, smooth-tongued salesmen to separate the people from their money. Advertising fakes, preposterous claims and changes for services four or five times what they are worth are not uncommon. Business men in a fairly large city not fifty miles from this town were recently taken for a "ride" on an advertising proposition, and there have been others closer home. Investigate before you invest and permit some high powered salesman to separate you from your money. — Deport Times.

So, you shake your head when you read the news about brutal murders, racket wars, juvenile delinquents and fiends? But did you know that thousands of Texans appear yearly in traffic courts? And probably most of these thousand's are otherwise respectable law-abiding citizens — like you! Motorists must get it through their heads that breaking traffic laws and safe driving rules is a crime — and our shameful traffic toll each year shows that this kind of crime does not pay either! Don't be one of the lawbreakers!

THANK YOU
for waiting for delivery of your
NEW CHEVROLET

We are doing our best to see that you get your new car as quickly as possible

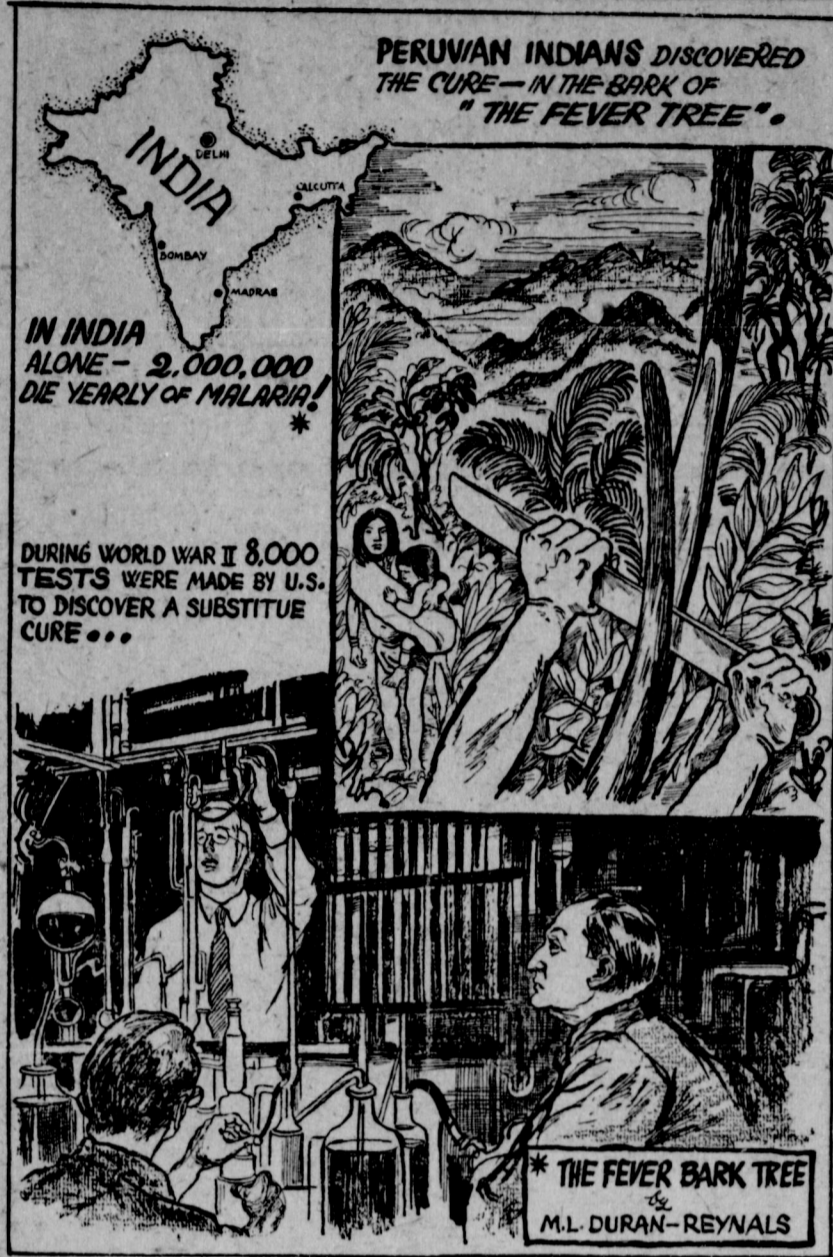

We want to thank our customers and prospective customers for your friendly patience while awaiting your new Chevrolets.

We know it is a hardship to wait for needed transportation; but we believe you will understand that we, and Chevrolet, are as eager to deliver cars as you are to obtain them. Unfortunately, production so far this year is far under expectations. Chevrolet Motor Division sums up the situation thus:

"Even though our rate of production normally exceeds that of any other manufacturer, we have been able to build, up to July 1, only 12.4 per cent as many cars as we had built up to that date in 1941. Production is still far below normal, because of frequent shortages of essential materials and parts. Strike after strike at the plants of our suppliers has seriously impeded our progress toward full production, and the cumulative effect severely hampers every manufacturing and assembly plant. In June we were able to build only 29.2 per cent as many cars as we produced in the same month in 1941."

While production is restricted, so—in proportion—are shipments of cars to us. As production increases, we are assured of getting our proportionate share of the total—and as quickly as cars are received, we will speed deliveries to our customers.

CIO Leader Tells How A Few Reds Rule Big Unions

New York — Resigning as president of the United Furniture Workers (CIO), a small but influential union, in protest against Communist control, Morris Muster declared recently that "less than 1,000 Communists control the 42,000 UFW members."

Reporting his interview with the man who had headed the union for nine years, Victor Riesel, nationally-known labor writer, gave Muster's version of how the "comrades" had accomplished their mission.

"He pointed out that first they had planted 'well-screened' girls in the office as switchboard operators and secretaries," Riesel said. "This assured the Communists of an interoffice espionage system."

"Then they put a trusted pro-Communist in as secretary-treasurer. This gave them a detailed knowledge of the union's inner workings.

"The Communists also made certain to put their man in the educational director's spot so they could control the propaganda machinery and union newspaper. Then they set about taking over regional offices and delegations to the key national conventions.

"Here are typical examples of their techniques:

"1. In two cities the Communists assigned women to 'befriend' — as good a word as any in a family newspaper — local furniture workers' leaders. The girls succeeded. The officials voted right.

"2. The comrades would plant young men in various towns where these promising 'future leaders' would be found accidentally. At one union conference, for example, an unknown apple-cheeked, curly-haired youngster speaking for Bloomington, Ind., furniture workers, delivered a terrific, tear-jerking speech.

"Everyone said 'there's a lad we must develop.' Later investigation showed that he was picked out of the Coney Island (N.Y.) Communist Club and sent to Bloomington for 'discovery.'

"3. One active Communist in the UFW never handled a stick of furniture. He's a fish handler in a New England meat market. He unionized the men there and then went to the regional furniture workers' headquarters asking that the UFW take in the market union because no one else would touch it. The UFW did, and the fishworker became an important UFW leader.

"4 In other instances the Communists spent lavishly on parties entertaining union members. Every jamboree featured sweater girls. . . . That's the story—except that the handful of Communists came early to all meetings and stayed late. So it was that 150 dues payers controlled the affairs of locals with 7,000 members."

GOV'T CORPORATION STILL IS FIGHTING FIRST WORLD WAR

Washington — When Congressman Walter Norblad, of Oregon, was a 10-year-old lad, back in 1918, he noted with interest the creation out in his tall-tree country of the U.S. Spruce Corp. by the government — to help win World War I.

Recently the Congressman, now a grown man, was even more interested to find out that the government-owned corporation still was fighting the First World War.

"What's worrying me is this," said Mr. Norblad. "If we can't get rid of a World War I government-corporation in 26 years, then what's going to happen to our billion-dollar World War II corporations?"

"They'll still be with us when my grandchildren are old, white-whiskered gentlemen!"

Seems that while no airplane ever was built of the corporation's World War I spruce, for which Congress originally spent $23,500,000 each spring since 1922 Congress has been appropriating $10,000 to liquidate the lumber company.

It's not liquidated yet. The government corporation, operating on a government basis, paying no taxes on its stands of timber, its railroad or its sawmills, is run by a retired Army colonel and other employees — including a government chauffeur to drive the Colonel to his office in a government car!

Danger lurks at every crossing — danger to you! Sometimes there is a friendly warning "Bad Corner", but sometimes there is not. Overconfident drivers often find that blind corners are death-traps. The experienced driver approaches every intersection at such speed that in an emergency he can stop before a collision occurs. Accidents don't pay—ask the man who had one!

ALAN SHIVERS IS PEOPLE'S FAVORITE

Senator Allan Shivers, in thanking the voters of Texas for the heavy lead they gave him in the July primary to make him the favorite candidate for lieutenant governor, also warned citizens that attempts will be made by "scheming minority pressure groups" to defeat him in the August 24 runoff.

The Jefferson County legislator, lawyer and farmer, pointed with pride to the overwhelming support which he received in his present home county and in the county where he was reared to manhood. Shivers, a World War II combat war veteran (the only veteran in this race) polled approximately 75 per cent of the votes in Jefferson County, his present home, and was a 25 to 1 favorite over his runoff opponent in Tyler County, where he spent his youth. Senator Shivers led his runoff opponent by approximately 100,000 votes in Texas.

"I am deeply grateful for the confidence the people of Texas have shown in me and the progressive program for Texas which I advocate," Shivers said. "I shall strive even harder to work for the welfare of Texas."

"Because I represent the masses of people, there will be those in the runoff campaign who will conspire to defeat me," Shivers predicted. "I will not be swayed by these radical, minority groups — the C.I.O. noisemakers in particular. My opponent is welcome to the support which they are giving him. I will continue to fight for the right and welfare and progress of our people who make up the backbone of Texas."

Student of Retreat

In Louisiana maneuvers, one captain was having unusually rough sledding with his problems. His outfit was flanked time and again, forcing him to withdraw.

One day, a private in his company was "captured," but later managed to escape. The captain asked him about the "enemy's" movements.

"They're retreating now," the private said.

The captain was dubious. "Do you know what a retreat looks like?" he said.

"Well, sir," drawled the late captive, "I've been with you all through these maneuvers."

telling a worker "you earned your week's pay but we're giving it to a fellow who needs it worse." Even the man who has shown his need gets his benefit in dribbles. It isn't wise to pay in a lump because then the person may spend it unwisely. That's what the Washington boys say, though its a fair bet they are more interested in perpetuating their jobs than in guiding the veterans' spending habits.

As a consequence we have millions of men who insist — and rightfully — that, income or no income, they are as much entitled to the gravy as the next man. They went through the same experience. They earned it as much as he did. So we can't blame them so much for what they are doing. Justice is on their side if the law isn't. If they must chisel to get their share they are not as much at fault as the government which forces them to chisel.

How much simpler and fairer it would be if the government had paid every man a discharge bonus based on the nature and length of his service. So much for every month plus so much more for every month overseas. If something on that order, let that be the end of it. That's the fair and democratic settlement. What's more it would have prevented present phenagling and saved the present tremendous administrative cost. The way it is set up now we wonder whether Uncle Sam saves enough on veterans not claiming GI pay to support its army of administrators.

Yes sir, the GI Bill of Rights, originated to help the ex-soldier, is getting as thoroughly messed up as the other new deal brainstorms. And all because of the screwey socialistic promise that compensation must be based on the extent of need rather than the service rendered, and that other silly assumption that citizens haven't the sense to take care of themselves so it's the government's duty to nurse them along.

Nuts! Let's give those dumb ideas back to the Russians and start living like Americans again.
