NUMBER 32

The Democratic Party of Texas in convention last week was principally concerned about who would carry the party's banner in the coming election. It was a rather discouraging experience of deciding which of two discredited leaders will seek to defend the wide assortment of poor policies that have prevailed the past four years. The convention definitely is not one of the more memorable of the party's state history.

By contrast the Republican convention, held simultaneously, was a pleasant uplifter to all party faithful and a cheering sign for the rest of the campaign. Backing up Reagan's decisive win in the primaries, delegates supported him unanimously as their nominee, two of the big backers being Bush and Connally, who were eliminated in the primaries.

However the enthusiastic unity in support of Reagan is only one of many good signs, all of which can be identified as really constructive recommendations to the party's platform. Those resolutions feature a lot more than just campaign appeal, they present a solid program for improvement of our government.

One of the resolutions opposes the Equal Rights Amendment. It's a praiseworthy contrast with the Administration's policy, which millions of Americans regard unfair at least, and probably unconstitutional as well. Provisions now relating to ratification permit extending the customary time limit of seven years, as specified in the ERA bill, and refusing to let a state vote down its previous ratification. The recommendation to remove both of those policies is presented for the GOP platform.

ERA's unfairness was pointed up last week when the state of Illinois had another annual legislative vote on ratifying the amendment. Fortunately it was defeated again. But it's not dead. It can be brought up any number of times until passed. However, if passed the state is stuck with it, as indicated by the fact that states which approved do not get the chance to change their vote. Doesn't it appear that this policy needs changing?

Other platform recommendations oppose homosexuality and abortion, which are pushed by the ERA people and the Administration. One proposal opposes acceptance of the gays into normal society on grounds that their private lives do not concern others. GOP is dead right in refusing to accept that policy.

It's reasonable to assume that those characters, who defy the law of God and live like pigs, are something less than us other people. They are unfit to teach our kids or to be trusted with sensitive positions. They do not have the right to rise above the degraded level they choose for themselves, and we do not deserve to have them imposed on us.

The platform plank proposing a Human Rights Amendment is a long step toward changing the official attitude toward abortion. It states that abortion on demand violates the right to life, however it is reported as "toning down an earlier version against abortion on demand except in cases of rape, incest or when the life of the mother is in danger." While it seems the GOP policy will regard abortion justifiable in some cases it does propose an end to the scandalous laxity now being allowed.

The resolution on energy condemned the Carter administration's energy policy and proposed repeal of the windfall profits tax and all federal control. Of all the country's loused-up

BIG Ag Group Visits Here

Some 40 agricultural and agri-business people, representatives from several Texas counties participating in the North Texas tour of the Blackland Income Growth organization, were in Muenster Tuesday for a tour of the Muenster Cheese Plant.

Before the tour the visitors, along with members of the Muenster Chamber of Commerce and cheese plant personnel met under the pavilion at the city park for a luncheon. The menu consisted of Fischer's sausage, AMPI cheese and hot potato salad and kraut from Rohmer's Restaurant.

The hour-long tour at the AMPI plant showed the visitors the entire process from start to finish. They began in the receiving room where trucks bring the milk in and moved then to the silo room to view storage of the milk.

The next phase was the pasteurization of the milk to begin the production process. After the production the visitors were shown how the cheese is stored in 600 lb. boxes to age. When the aging is finished, most of the cheese is sold to Kraft.

The visitors also toured the powder plant to observe the whey-drying process. The dried whey is used in caramels, cookies, baby food, cake mixes, and also animal food.

The Blackland Income Growth is one of seven organizations in Texas whose primary concern is economic development. The BIG program was initiated in 1960 and since then the economy of the BIG area has grown from $330 million to over $1 billion in cash receipts.

This bus tour by the group to view some of the strong economic centers in this part of the state was the first tour of its kind since the start of the program in 1960. Ernest "Bobo" Jaska, a former Muenster resident, was the director of the tour.

After leaving Muenster the group toured the Matlock-Rose horse ranch and the Cooke County College bull weight study center in Gainesville.

The group also toured manufacturing plants in Sherman and the Agricultural Research Center in Dallas before returning to Waco.

Saint Jo Bank Bandit Arrested

The case of the Saint Jo bank robbery was practically closed last Saturday with the arrest in Nocona of a 60 year old man with a cap pistol and almost all of the $4500 that had been stolen.

Joseph Virgil Cornelison, a Bowie native, was apprehended by Nocona Police Chief Robert Stoval and two other lawmen shortly after being recognized by a local citizen. Just before the arrest he tried to escape on foot but gave up when exhausted.

The robbery of Saint Jo's First National Bank occurred at 2:20 p.m. Wednesday when the accused, with what appeared to be a .38 pistol, entered the bank and ordered Stan Field, bank president, to fill a sack

Lake Permit Extended

Another step in the development of Muenster's lake project was completed Monday when the state water board approved extension of Muenster's water rights until November 1981. Henry Weinzapfel, president, and Don Fleming, engineer, of the Muenster Water Board were in Austin to attend the hearing and the approval.

Requirements of the permit are that the project must be under construction before the expiration date and must be complete a year after expiration. It means, Weinzapfel said, that local paper work should start immediately and proceed with the least possible delay.

First step in that direction was taken last week when the local water board adopted a watershed plan agreement, and the next step is expected next Monday when it is submitted to the city council for approval and signature.

Further procedure requires a tax plan for the financing, which requires a tax bond election. Cost of the project will be shared by the Soil Conservation Service for the lake's flood and recreation facilities. The local share of the cost will be divided between a revenue bond, to be paid out of water sales income, and a tax bond, to be paid out of tax revenue. The tax bonds, to be approved in a local election, will be issued by the water board, and taxes to liquidate it will be collected by the board.

Another detail in the financing is the size of the project. The permit allows the city to use 500 acre feet of water a year, so that is the minimum size considered. However the maximum size allowed ... to provide for population growth, emergency and flood control... could provide 999 acre feet per year.

The water board's estimated cost of its share is $1,159,560 for the large lake and $824,000 for the small lake. The size to be built will probably be between those figures but the amount specified will be the maximum to assure that the bond authorization will be ample.

When all that information is complete it will be submitted to the Soil Conservation Service as the basis of its application for appropriation to finance its share of the cost.

Oil Leases Feel Nature's Wrath

Two of Jimmy Jack Biffle's leases felt the wrath of nature in last Thursday night's stormy weather. Both were in the Hood community separated by about two miles.

On the Butcher lease high wind pounding a work over rig set up a whiplash in the tower with its 1400 feet of upright tubing stands. The action is the rhythmic swaying motion that causes power lines to snap, that amazed the world several years ago by causing the destruction of a big bridge in the Pacific Northwest. Because of this motion marching soldiers are ordered to break cadence in walking across a bridge.

In this case the securely guyed rig was more than a match for the whiplash. The rhythmic motion eventually tore up the guy anchor, toppling the tower and tubing. As it went down the lower part of the tower fell across a power line near the rig.

The end result is that every unit of the tubing was bent, the tower totally wrecked and the power lines damaged but not beyond repair. Tubing, however can be salvaged by special equipment which takes out every bend. The cause of the fire was lightning in a spectacular electrical storm on the Martin Trubench lease. Two storage tanks, one full and the other near empty, were hit blowing the roofs off both and setting them afire. Volunteer firemen from Muenster, Myra and Era arrived early and put their spray nozzles to work, but to no avail. Then Gainesville firemen came with foam and smothered the flame in short order. Loss in each tank was comparatively small.

Early Friday new tanks were installed and the remaining oil transferred to them. That was not the end of storm damage, however. Oil pump motors in several areas of the Muenster field were knocked out by lightning. United Electric estimates the number at 25.

Father Bonaventure Koelzer Celebrates Fiftieth Anniversary in Hereford

Father Bonaventure Koelzer was honored on June 1 by St. Anthony's Parish of Hereford, in observance of the 50th anniversary of his profession in the Franciscans of the Atonement. A basket dinner was included with the festive event. He was presented an etched glass plaque.

As Louis Koelzer, he was born in Muenster on March 18, 1912, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Koelzer. He attended Sacred Heart

School until February 10, 1924 when the family moved to Hereford, and finished grammar school at St. Anthony's there. In the summer of 1926 he went to Graymoor, N.Y. to the Franciscans of the Atonement to begin his studies for the priesthood. On February 13, 1938 he was ordained as Father Bonaventure Koelzer in Amarillo by Archbishop Robert E. Lucy. Sometime later he served as Graymoor's Superior at St. Onofrio's Church in Rome, Italy. In 1960 he was elected Superior General of all the Graymoor Friars.

A celebration hosted by the Friars this Saturday at Graymoor, N.Y. will observe his golden anniversary, and that of several other priests. Among them will be Father James Salvi, who was assistant pastor at Hereford for a time and visited in Muenster several times.

Father Bonaventure will return to the missions in Jatai, Brazil, where he has continued on page 4...

Water Rationing Still Urgent

Water rationing is still urgent, in spite of some 1.5 inch of moisture within the past week. The problem is that benefits of light rainfall do not last when subjected to temperatures of near 110.

The official temperature here is not being recorded this week while Steve Moster is on vacation. However readings of 108 and 109 degrees were observed at the bank. Possibly it went higher.

Consequently water consumption has sky-rocketed. Wayne Tate says that Monday's total was 560,000 gallons and Tuesday's was 610,000. Considering that total production of the city's four wells is 500,000 gallons a day, this means that the level of storage is dropping daily. Assuming that tanks were full (400,000 gallons) on Monday morning, the total was down to 230,000 gallons in two days. Two more days at that rate would leave an inadequate level in case of a fire.

To meet the emergency, residents are asked to continue their voluntary rationing. That is: outside water use by even number houses on even calendar days and odd number houses on odd calendar days. In addition, the larger systems, with lines of 1 inch or more, are asked not to water between 5 and 11 p.m. Still another request is to refrain from outside watering all day Saturday and Sunday.

NEED TO UNDERSTAND COMMUNISM

It is a fact that the reason why America must keep herself armed to the teeth is because our security and the peace of the world is threatened by the massive arms build-up of the communism menace, the Soviet Union. It is a fact that many billions of dollars are siphoned from potentially peaceful, creative purposes because of this Soviet threat. It is a fact that the people of Nicaragua, El Salvador and Afghanistan are in the process of being enslaved by the Soviet Union and their surrogates, the Cuban Communists. It is a fact that the threats to world peace in Africa, Angola, Ethiopia, Somalia, Afghanistan, the Middle East, and all of Southeast Asia are directed by the Soviet Union. It is a fact that the U.S.S.R. is a communist nation and is in fact the world headquarters of the international communist movement.

As concerned citizens we voluntarily gave millions of dollars over the years to study infantile paralysis in order to understand it and be able to find a cure. As a result a cure was found and the scourge has been virtually eliminated from the earth. Likewise, we are now studying cancer, heart disease, sickle cell anemia and various other dread diseases in order to understand them and be better able to seek a cure. As dear to man as are health and life, dearer still to him is freedom. This is why communists must erect "Iron" and "Bamboo Curtains" to prevent people from gaining freedom by fleeing from communist tyranny. Witness the recent incident where some ten thousand Cubans of all ages and stations in life crowded onto the grounds of the Peruvian Embassy in Havana — seeking the most precious gift of life — freedom from communism.

With such a highly-prized condition of life at stake, shouldn't we be studying communism and its doctrines in order to remain free and help others whose freedom is in jeopardy or has already been lost? It would appear that to fail to study and understand communism as a threat to our freedom would be just as suicidal and irrational as to fail to study and understand cancer or heart disease as a threat to our health.

It is long past time to bring communism out of the closet. It's time to recognize communism and communists for what they are — subversive conspirators bent upon, sooner or later, liquidating or enslaving the United States — exactly as they have done in every nation they have ever taken over. And it's time to face up to the realization that the Soviets and their communist allies around the globe fully intend to control this nation together with all other nations in the world.

As a result of our government's policy of "detente" coupled with the Soviet policy of "peaceful coexistence" a study of the communist menace has been largely eliminated from the Armed Services, governmental departments and the schools and colleges of America. As a consequence millions of young adults are assuming positions in life with no understanding of the nature of communism and how they are seriously threatened by the ideology. Naturally they are unable to discern the pro-communist and pro-Soviet proclivities of those politicians they select to represent them. Thus our policies often are against our own best interests. It is imperative that once again we shine the spotlight of truth on Communism!

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—House Speaker Bill Clayton's hopes for the political future apparently depend on whether he can speedily clear himself of indictments in the Brilab scam before the general election in November.

Clayton was indicted last week on charges of bribery and other charges, along with three other men. Mister speaker expected the indictments and had told reporters weeks ago, that if he were not cleared of charges by around Labor Day, he would step down from the platform which controls the Texas House of representatives.

Following the indictments, Clayton hasn't had the opportunity to say much: U.S. District Judge George Cire issued a gag order to prevent the case from being tried in the press.

Clayton's lawyers indicated that unless the case is thrown out following a series of pre-trial motions, he will not get the speedy trial he desires. Come November, an indicted speaker may well be a political liability to some members seeking re-election in the House.

Bryant Goes Public

Clayton's nemesis, Rep. John Bryant of Dallas, is seeking to replace Clayton whether he resigns or not, and is taking his campaign to the speakership campaign to the public. His friends are conducting a letters-to-the-editor campaign and were to have introduced pro-Bryant resolutions in the Democratic state convention last weekend. Bryant plans to go on statewide television with an appeal to voters.

However, Gov. Bill Clements said last week that Clayton's indictments virtually assure he will not get another term as speaker, but that his successor will be United States that they were finally free.

Busy Attorney General

Texas Attorney General Mark White's office let no grass grow under their feet last week.

White filed a federal court lawsuit in Houston to recover costs of cleanup and damages from an oil spill resulting from a tankerfreighter collision off Galveston last fall. In that accident, the Burmah Agate spilled 20,000 barrels of oil into the Gulf.

White's office also sued a group of Beaumont fight promoters to bar the "Texas Tough Guy Boxing Contests" without a license. Serious physical injuries to participants and questions surrounding the purse prompted that suit.

Profits Tax Challenge

White also said the chances are slim that Texas will join other states in challenging the new windfall profits tax in court.

Texas and other oil-producing states might be unable to prove they had been harmed by the new law and thus will lack position to sue successfully, he said.

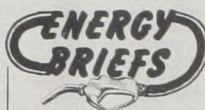

Currently, the state does not have proof that overall petroleum production from fields in the state was diminished by the tax.

Rep. Gib Lewis of Fort Worth.

Texas Highways

Texas highways lobbyists are claiming that the highway system is deteriorating and they will seek additional legislative appropriations in 1981.

The state's shrinking tax base is caused by the weight-based motor vehicle reg-

Tips on saving fuel and money from experts at Mobil 1, a motor oil that saves gasoline.

KEEP YOUR COOL

While all the power-driven accessories on your car affect fuel efficiency, most of them are beyond your control. Air conditioning is the exception. You wouldn't have paid for it if you didn't want to use it. But use it sparingly, at a moderate temperature setting.

At speeds between 30 and 50 m.p.h., use of air conditioning can reduce gasoline mileage by 10% to 12%. Idling with the air conditioner on is even more costly. But remember this, too: driving at highway speeds with the windows open also costs you extra fuel.

Open windows at high speeds increase wind resistance and cause drag. Closed windows make the use of the "laminar flow" for which the automobile's contour was designed. On mild days, your best bet is to drive with the windows closed, using the internal flow-through ventilator for cool, fresh air.

Congressional Comment

WASHINGTON, D.C. — During heated debate on the floor, the House recently approved a $75 million economic aid package for the government of Nicaragua. The House had, earlier, rejected military aid for that country.

While opposing United States military aid to this Central American country, I supported economic aid to Nicaragua because I feel that this aid is, in the long run, in the best interest of our nation.

Opponents of the Nicaraguan aid bill argued that the United States should not supply aid to the alleged "communist regime" in that country. In my opinion, there are definite leftist leanings in the Nicaraguan government; however, there is still a chance that a democratic society will form in that nation, the largest country in Central America. Though this chance may be a slim one, I feel that it is vitally important that the United States Congress take this risk because the potential benefits of preventing the spread of Marxism to Nicaragua are much more important than the possible "loss" of the aid funds. Others are also helping. Mexico and Venezuela are giving more monetary aid to Nicaragua than we are.

In light of the increasingly expansionist attitudes of Cuba's Fidel Castro, it is extremely crucial that we take every opportunity to prevent the spread of communism to other areas. If we do not take a chance on Nicaragua by giving them this aid, we stand the entire realistic threat of allowing communism to develop throughout Central America — and very possibly — into Mexico. This aid could very well be just what is needed to stem the tide. Spokesmen in Nicaragua for the church, the press, businessmen, and opposition parties to the Sandinistas have told the Congress that the $75 million aid loan from the United States is the single most important contribution in the effort toward the establishment of political liberty in Nicaragua, as well as to improving relations between our two countries.

Our policy of friendly diplomacy stands to enhance the image of the United States in the eyes of all Latin American nations at a time when American prestige in foreign capitals is in dire need of this improvement. In the future, Latin America will probably be the most important area of the world to the United States. This region has the fastest-growing population in the world, and they buy more American products than any other area. They also sell more of their products to us than any other segment of nations.

Admittedly, the chances of a free society in Nicaragua are not as good as we would like, but, at present, opposition parties in that nation still speak out. Also, the press still enjoys a measure of freedom, and the strong middle class remains an important factor in maintaining internal stability and democratic sentiments.

The general conclusion in Congress is that most of the people in Nicaragua do not want to be dominated by Cuba or the Soviet Union. They want to live in a free society, and I am convinced that this gesture of aid from the United States is the proper move in order to assist the people of Nicaragua at this critical time of decision and to assure a more favorable position for the United States in our relations with Central America.

LIGNITE COAL.

Saving TP&L customers millions of dollars each year.

In the late 1960's Texas Power & Light Company began reducing its dependence on natural gas and oil by planning and constructing generating plants that use lignite coal as fuel. Lignite is cheaper than gas or oil and it's readily available right here in Texas.

Today, TP&L has eight lignite-fueled generating units in operation and others are under construction.

For TP&L customers, this means that even though the fuel portion of electric bills has increased in recent years, bills would be millions of dollars higher each year if lignite were not being used.

Moreover, TP&L's use of lignite coal is helping reduce our national problem of dependence on foreign oil. Lignite now accounts for more than 50 per cent of the electricity TP&L generates for its customers. And, we plan to use more lignite in the future.

MILESTONE IN THE PRODUCTION OF ELECTRICITY

In March, 1971, the first ton of lignite was mined for the new Big Brown generating plant near Fairfield. In May, 1980, the 100 millionth ton of lignite was mined by the Texas Utilities system — a milestone in the production of electricity in Texas.

31 To Receive CPR Certificates

The community's first course in cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) ended last week Wednesday with 31 persons qualifying for certification cards, which will be awarded as soon as they arrive.

Joan Walterscheid, coordinator, said that the course was very popular and several persons have indicated a desire to enroll for the next class, which is likely to start in late July or early August.

However, future classes will have to be smaller, she said. With 31 previously enrolled, the last two classes were moved from the hospital meeting room to the VFW Hall. Future enrollment will be limited to 16.

The CPR course was sponsored by Muenster Memorial Hospital and the Cooke County Ambulance Service in corporation with the Hospital Auxiliary and the VFW Auxiliary. A certified instructor of the ambulance service was the teacher and Mrs. Walterscheid was the coordinator.

She said that since CPR is among the most vital of first aid treatments, the training is highly recommended. Dates of the next classes will be published as soon as they are known.

Rene Stelzer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pat Stelzer was named the High School Voice Winner when she performed for the Texas Music Teachers Association at their state convention on Saturday, June 7 in the Shamrock Hilton Hotel in Houston. She sang at the first general session, along with five other Texas winners.

Her selections were "Danza, Danza, Fanciulla Gentile", "Andenken", "How Beautiful Are the Feet" and "Loveliest of Trees."

As the High School Voice winner, Rene was presented a Certificate of Merit and a check for $125. Andrew Miholso, vice president of TMTA made the presentation.

She attended several of the other performances at the TMTA including the Piano Concertos, the Baldwin piano auditions, and the Ensemble contest which had many entries from the North Texas area.

Rene and her mother, Mrs. Pauline (Sis) Stelzer also attended the American Nurses Association (ANA) Convention while in Houston. They were then the guests of Mrs. Stelzer's brother and sister-in-law, John S. and Billie Jean Myrick, who took them on a tour of Houston.

Investment Office Has New Manager

John Bachmann, managing partner of Edward D. Jones & Company, has announced the appointment of a new representative for the firm's Gainesville, Tx., office. The office is located at 801 E.

California Street.

The new registered representative is Ken Floyd, age 35, a resident of Manhattan Ks., for the past four years, who most recently served as a Financial Consultant with Wadell & Reed in Kansas City, Mo. His career includes 10 years in the financial consulting field. Since joining the firm, Ken has undergone an intensive training program to prepare him to properly handle the needs of conservative investors.

For more than 108 years the people of Edward D. Jones & Company have built a sound business based upon a conservative investment philosophy. The firm's registered representatives sell decidedly low-risk securities; including federal tax-exempt bonds, government bonds and trusts, corporate bonds and trusts, municipal bonds and trusts, and common stock of companies with histories of solid growth and sound management.

The firm is currently involved in installing a new communication system which will greatly increase the speed with which orders can be transmitted to the various offices of Edward D. Jones & Company. Quotations on stocks and bonds can be obtained and research information and news affecting the markets can be received more rapidly.

The firm takes pride in having been able to improve the position of many investors, particularly in relation to bond issues. After realizing that bonds are generally designed with the institutional investor in mind, Edward D. Jones & Company is continually persuading a large number of corporations to restructure their bond issues with the needs of the individual investor as the primary consideration.

These special bond features include the estate benefit whereby when the holder of the bond dies the surviving holder or heir can redeem the bond at full cost plus interest with no penalty. Our firm has also underwritten bonds providing for early redemption which allows the holder to cash in a bond after two years and receive full face value plus interest. ## First Round of Pictures Snapped Picture taking for the pictorial directory of Sacred Heart Parish is complete for the big majority, but a few are still missing.

Persons who missed it in the first round or happen to need a retake are reminded that the next picture date is Sunday July 20, 11 a.m. to noon and again after 12:30.

Appointments for that date can be made by calling Dorothy Fisher, 2751 or Lucille Lutkenhaus, 2962.

Appointments for selecting proofs will begin on July 7. Hours and dates for these appointments were selected when pictures were snapped, and each family received a card. In case the card was misplaced, duplicate reminders will be mailed shortly before proof date.

Family Vacations In Arkansas

Michelle and Bryan Kleiss vacationed in Arkansas for three weeks, spending most of the time with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Al Kleiss at Subiaco. They were accompanied by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Kleiss who spent the first weekend and attended the annual Subiaco Academy reunion.

Bryan remained with his grandparents for two weeks and then attended the annual Subiaco Boys' Summer Camp for one week in the 7-12 age group. In boxing competition he received a first place ribbon. There were many projects to fill the days, and playtime included go-carts, target practice, swimming, fishing, water games and skiing on a zip sled. Bryan says they also learned to wash their own clothes.

Michelle visited with her grandparents, helped them with duties at Subiaco where both are employed and went swimming every day. She was also a guest in the home of Peggy and Gene Kleiss at Hilltop, Arkansas near Paris. Mike and Betty Kleiss returned for their children during the past weekend and visited with relatives in Subiaco before returning home.

important phase of the 1980 census. It is conducted in an effort to insure that no one is overlooked. If a family is missed in the address checks and doesn't send in a Were You Counted? form, they'll be "missing persons" for 10 years until the next census.

"A final check is now underway to make sure that we have a completed questionnaire for every household," Mr. Yarbrough said. "Soon we will be able to turn over to local officials the population counts for their communities."

Purpose of the Local Review Program of the census is to give local government officials an opportunity to spot errors while census workers are still in the field. "Local Review" and the "Were You Counted?" campaign," says Mrs. Yarbrough, "should contribute significantly to the accuracy and success of the census. If you didn't get a questionnaire, be sure to send us the "Were You Counted?" form from the newspaper."

Loyd does this around her and Henry's abode. By the way, if you need some cats - Loyd says she has some extra.

energy answers

from the Texas Energy Extension Service

I need to devise some strategy for blocking out the sun on my west-facing windows this summer. I have investigated solar film and solar screens, but would prefer to try something else. Have you any suggestions? T. G., Dallas.

In addition to solar film or screen, there are other means to provide protection against the sun for west-facing windows. Vines, trellises, trees, and shrubbery properly located provide an effective and attractive means of blocking out the sun. Deciduous trees, which shed their leaves in winter, are most helpful since they provide shade in the summer and admit sunlight in the winter on the south, east, and west.

One of the most beneficial shading devices is the roof overhang, but this would be difficult to incorporate on an existing structure. Patio covers, however, may serve a useful purpose here.

Other exterior shading devices include louvered screens, roll blinds, shutters, and awnings.

Interior devices may also be used. Such devices include venetian blinds, drapes, roll shades, and shutters.

The general rule of thumb governing a decision between exterior or interior shading devices is that exterior shading is about twice as effective as interior shading for the same window.

How often should the filters on my central air conditioner/heating unit be changed? H. T., Livingston.

Disposable filters should be changed about once a month, and permanent filters should be cleaned once every month and replaced when torn or excessively dirty.

Changing or cleaning dirty filters regularly is extremely important to the efficient operation of your unit. A dirty filter will retard air flow across evaporator coils, reducing the ability of the evaporator to function properly. Air motion within the house will also be affected. This in turn could prevent proper thermostatic operation and control.

When replacing a filter, make sure that the new one fits properly and has the same thickness as the old one.

If you have a question about energy conservation around the home, send it to ENERGY ANSWERS, Texas Energy Extension Service, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843.

Mon. June 23 that the town of Sweetwater was almost out of water, their lake was dry, they hadn't had any rain to speak of in nearly a year. So one evening last week all the towns church people met at the town-square. They knelt, held hands and prayed for rain. The very next night they got 5 inches of "sweet-water" from the heavens above. Her full length veil of English silk illusion was encircled with matching lace and was caught to a caplet of lace and seed pearls.

The bridal bouquet was a cascade of white silk roses, white forget-me-nots and lily of the valley, and blue tiger lilies and blue and white streamers.

In keeping with tradition, for "something old" she wore a gold wedding band that had belonged to her late grandmother, Mrs. Anna Sandmann, and "borrowed" from the

Ushers were Rodney Townsley, groom's cousin, Alan Cravans and Mike Boswell. Mass servers were Jeff Sandmann and Mike Hermes, bride's cousins. Host Guests

Mr. and Mrs. W.J. Miller and Mark are entertaining two grandsons and nephews this week. They are Shawn and Chad Miller, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Miller of The Colony. Other recent house guests for four days were Mrs. John O'Dowd and daughters Mary and Margie, all of Shreveport. They also visited other members of the John Walter relationship.

Wilfred Sicking's Entertain

Mrs. Keith Clegg and daughter Pamela of Gainesville spent a recent five day vacation with her parents, the Wilfred Sicking's. It was the first long visit on a farm for two year old Pamela her first opportunity for a ride on a horse, and for long walks with her grandmother. The scourge of grasshoppers gave a rough view for the youngster. Another guest was a six year old grandson, Dalas Cunningham of Whitesboro, son of the Glynn Cunningham's. He stayed about eight days. During this time Keith Clegg visited also as a supper guest. On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Sammy Sparkman and one year old son, John of Gainesville were guests of her parents.

Vacation In Valley

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Hess and family, accompanied by her parents Mr. and Mrs. Paul Walterscheid, have returned from a nine day vacation in the South Texas area. They traveled more than 1800 miles; spent 5 nights at Rancho Viejo near Brownsville, driving from there each day for sight-seeing. Places visited included Harlingen, Matamoros, Mexico, South Padre Island and Corpus Christi. They also visited with Paul's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Walterscheid of Rio Hondo. The group returned to Muenster last Monday.

How does a daughter lift the spirits of one 'stranded in a foreign land'?

"The land is changing," my aging father says forlornly as we drive slowly through the countryside. It makes him sad.

"See there on the old Allison place? He points with a gnarled hand that has hammered countless plowpoints into new sharpness and welded thousands of broken pieces of machinery into new life. In a field a bulldozer is pushing stumps, shrubs and great clumps of moist, rich earth out of an old fencerow. It leaves a naked area of land two miles long and three miles deep.

"When the storms come there will be no windbreaks between the fields. The house and barn are fully exposed," Dad says. His fingers grip the head of his cane tightly, knuckles white and the skin like a thin sheet of dry rubber.

He seems to shrink visibly, as if the hedgerow being ripped away is a chunk out of his own soul.

I look at the huge square farmhouse and it does seem naked and defenseless atop its knoll.

"They didn't do things like that when I was a boy," he adds. "They planted windbreaks then, didn't tear everything out."

No. There's been a multitude of changes in his 70-odd years on earth.

"I grew up there," he says. I look obediently, just as I have looked countless times before, at the weathered yellow house.

"There used to be a swamp back in the woods where we ice-skated during the winters." He pauses, then adds with a sad shake of his head, "They drained the swamp years ago to make new farmland."

His sadness transfers itself to me. I gaze across the gently rolling fields that my father fertilized with his sweat, walking over the lumpy ground behind a team of straining horses.

Later, he rode across those same fields on the forerunner of the modern tractor, jarring his body and spine to pulp on a steel seat long before rubber tires were put on machinery... before he "moved up" in the world to become a village blacksmith.

These were the fields where he and his nine brothers and two sisters worked and played away their childhood.

There are only four of those children left now. And I can see the lonely longing in my father's eyes as he traces the long grown-over lanes and paths of his "homeplace."

We pass a corner where an elm tree (only the rotten trunk remains) causes Dad to recall, "I caught the fattest 'coon you ever saw in that tree."

It is hard for me to imagine the tree vibrant and alive as it must have been 60 years ago.

The car moves slowly down the curving gravel road. A cloud of dust obscures my vision to the rear.

Dad names the people who used to live in the big white farmhouses we pass. I've heard him speak of them many times before, but most of them died long ago, some before I was born.

We come to an old cemetery. The church building has long been removed - it's now a henhouse on a nearby farm - leaving the stone slabs kneeling and covered by dry lichen.

Here are buried many of my father's ancestors. Above the car's idling engine I hear birds warbling in the trees and crickets singing in the grass. All else is quiet and lonely across the fields.

"Do you want to stop?" I ask.

"No. Go on," he answers shortly. There is a haunted look in his eyes now.

My heart clenches painfully in sympathy for him. And I find a new understanding of maternal grandfather, whom my mother used to take on these same rides in search of youth and memories.

At that time, though, I was a bored child, unwilling or unable to comprehend what grandpa was going through in his old age.

I know now. My father is searching - like my grandfather searched - for a place to come home to. For a peg to hang his heart on that is familiar and comfortable.

But Dad's old homeplace has changed just like all the land around it. Life marches us forward whether we want to travel with it or not. And it leaves some old men alone, clinging to a past where they are comfortable.

My father resents change and so did my grandfather. It takes away a part of the life that he clings to tenaciously, leaving him alone to fend off loneliness and isolation during his last years. Mother is gone, as are many of his siblings and old friends. He must feel stranded in a foreign land.

My heart cries out all this to my father, but we sit silently. He wears a barrier around him that refuses anyone's entry into his private thoughts.

I understand now that the barrier is not of pride or aloofness or even of causticity as I once believed. No. It is to protect his butter-soft and aching heart.

For if I tried to talk to him of these thoughts and feelings, show him I do have a modicum of understanding for the pain and loneliness he feels, he would cry. And he was raised on that old saw that "little boys and men do not cry."

It is time to head back to the apartment my husband and I have invited my father to share. My soul shrinks within me. Will my old age be so lonely? Will I outlive my family and friends and become confused in a new society?

The dust cloud behind us moves across the fields, coating plants with a fine gray-white powder. And I realize that even though it is in a constant state of change, the land beneath us is still the same as the land my ancestors buried in that cemetery walked upon.

My soul finds a certain comfort in that new insight. The footpaths may be different, but my grandchildren will walk the same foundation, feel the same earth run through their fingers, see the same sun and wide sky and feel the same breezes upon their faces as I do now.

I have to accept this as enough, as it should be. For it is as God planned it.

Bag worms are still working on Cedars and Hackberry trees. You need to control now while they are still small with Sevin or Malathion.

Spider mites are invading gardens on tomatoes and green beans. Control these with a Kelthane spray. Also squash bugs are showing up on vegetables. They are best controlled with Thiodan dust.

USE YOUR HEAD TO PROTECT IT

Wearing a helmet won't prevent you from having a motorcycle accident. It won't guarantee you won't be injured. But, says the Motorcycle Safety Foundation, helmets and other protective gear minimize your chance of serious injury.

You're three times as likely to sustain a head injury in an accident if you're not wearing a helmet. Helmets can't keep you from having an accident but they do help prevent injuries!

Cottonseed flour gives junk food a protein punch

Swimmers Face Pool Perils

The terrors of the deep are not confined to murky ocean mysteries. "The deep" can be a few feet of water in the neighborhood swimming pool or area stock tank.

The hazards of these calm waters are revealed by Texas Department of Health statistics that show swimming pools and tanks claimed about 45 percent of the 585 people accidentally drowned in Texas last year.

Major dangers of these seemingly safe waters are swimmers' carelessness and overconfidence, the Texas Medical Association (TMA) says. If they do not take simple precautions such as checking the depth before diving and watching where they are swimming, even experienced swimmers can hit their heads on pool sides or bottom. Submerged trees and rocks add to dangers in tanks.

Diving boards are another springboard to danger through carelessness or overconfidence. But even the best swimmers can be injured if a diving board is slick or in bad repair.

Overconfidence in estimating swimming ability often plays a role in drowning because of exhaustion, which is another big cause of swimming pool drownings. Stepping or falling into deep water, cramps and losing a flotation device such as a raft or inner tube also are major causes of pool drownings, according to a federal survey.

Knowing how to swim could save many people in such situations but often drowning victims, especially young children, do not know how to swim even well enough to get to the nearby shore. Alcohol adds to problems, can confuse even a good swimmer and contributes to some pool drownings, TMA says.

TMA recommends

everyone learn to swim at least well enough to survive falling in water and that adults keep a close watch on young children in the vicinity of a body of water. Teaching youngsters about wise water behavior is another important task for adults because it can help prevent the perils of overconfidence and carelessness when the child is older.

All-Star "Double Plays"

Cincinnati's Joe Morgan and former New York Yankees star Mickey Mantle share the record for hitting safely in seven consecutive All-Star games.

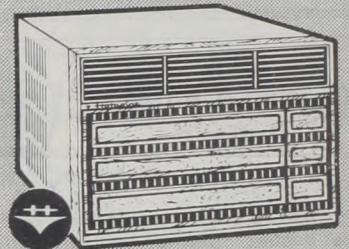

Due to player enthusiasm for the game, two All-Star games were played annually from 1959 thru 1962. The second 1961 game ended in a 1-1 tie due to rain. The National League won five of the seven games played to a finish.

The only player to win the All-Star game Most Valuable Player award twice is Los Angeles Dodgers' star Steve Garvey. He won it in 1974 and in 1978.

Sparkling defensive play won the 1979 All-Star game Most Valuable Player award for Pittsburgh's Dave Parker. According to A-T-O Inc.'s Rawlings Sporting Goods Company, manufacturer of official American and National League baseballs, Parker won the honor for two outstanding throws from the outfield, helping the National League to a 7-6 win.

Noted Engineer-Conservationist Offers Advice on Saving Energy And Money

Solar energy has been running an important applicance for millions of Americans for years, a noted chemical engineer and conservationist said recently.

It's called a clothesline. Dr. John J. McKetta, E.P. professor of chemical engineering at the University of Texas at Austin, was a recent speaker at the Energy, Environment and Economics Seminar at North Texas State University.

Dr. McKetta has been an avid conservationist since 1952, he said, and in 1954 convinced his wife to dry all the clothes by solar power -- i.e., a clothesline. Since 1965, he said, he has never used a car air-conditioner.

He has a list of voluntary conservation steps which Americans can take to conserve up to 3.5 million barrels of oil a day -- which he says won't save the country, but it will get us used to going with less and it will keep consumer bills down.

Among his suggestions: 1. Eliminate the use of air-conditioning in automobiles. (Which will save fuel, since no sane Texan is going to travel across the state in August without air-conditioning, if he can help it.)

2. Keep thermostats at 62 degrees in winter -- 60 if you can stand it -- and 78 in summer -- or better yet, 80 degrees. (With inflation, a lot of consumers are already doing this.)

3. Don't use clothes dryers, but use clotheslines instead. 4. Cut out the use of escalators and cut down the use of elevators -- and shut down airport escalators during off hours. 5. Stop buying items in disposable containers.

6. Buy smaller, more efficient automobiles (McKetta admits he made this list a long time ago and has stuck with it. It's a good list, he insists, since a lot of the suggestions are being followed.)

7. Increase car pooling tenfold. 8. Increase mass transportation threefold.

9. Retain 55 m.p.h. speed limit. (A conservation, he points out, of lives as well as fuel.)

10. Use re-refined lubricating oil instead of first grade. (McKetta said oil companies are now doing so, primarily at his nagging through the years.)

11. Make sure new buildings are well insulated. 12. Make sure the new office buildings have windows that open.

13. Burn solid waste and garbage for fuel in communities (using bio-fuel to make gasohol, for instance, reduces the demands on oil.) 14. Raise the legal age of car driving to 18 years of age. (Go ahead; raise the limit. Increase unemployment for high school parking lot attendants.)

15. Decrease use of cars on Saturdays and Sundays. (Splurge instead on some new lawn furniture and a few trees for the back yard.) 16. Decrease highway driving to absolute necessity only.

The government, however should match voluntary effort with some changes of its own during the crisis, he said.

McKetta claims, for instance, that the country can't afford the expenditure of gas for forced busing of school children until the country is energy self-sufficient -- which everyone agrees will be a long time.

The chemical engineer says catalytic converters are not needed anywhere in Los Angeles, New York City and Chicago, and in fact, cause poor fuel efficiency which the United States can't afford.

Put the lead back into gasoline, he suggests.

McKetta favors deregulation of Interstate Commerce Commission laws on trucks, particularly to allow trucks to travel, loaded, both ways en route.

He wants regulations eased to encourage energy production, including tripling coal consumption by 1990. He also favors approval of nuclear reactors, opening more federal lands for coal mining and producing 10 to 15 percent more oil and gas by 1990.

McKetta calls himself not "pro-industry" but "anti-government" and supports theories of classical economics, or free enterprise.

He was chairman in 1970 of the National Energy Policy Committee under Richard Nixon, and in 1975, won the National Service to Society Award for his efforts to inform the public on the need for a reasonable balance between environmental protection and free enterprise.

McKetta is currently serving as energy advisor to Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan.

Student
Social Security Benefits

If you receive benefits on a parents record-as a dependent or student-you need to keep track of your earnings for the year. If you are under 18 or a student 18 or over, earnings affect you in a different way than they did prior to 1978.

In 1980 you can get all 12 monthly benefits if you earn $3,720 or less in the calendar year. If your earnings go over $3,720-Social Security will withhold $1.00 from your Social Security check for each $2.00 you earn. The earnings of the parent on whose record you receive Social Security benefits may also affect your checks.

Social Security is requiring verification of school attendance for each student-regardless of type of school attended. The form is being mailed to the students, who are to complete the form as instructed on the reverse of the form. Students are to complete section A & B and then give it to their school registrar to complete section C and return to the address shown in the top center of the form.

To keep the checks coming without interruption, be sure to complete the form immediately.

YOU CAN BANK ON IT!

There are two advantages to having a savings account at your local bank. The first and by far the most obvious advantage is . . . you put your money to work for you. It earns more money 24 hours of every day . . . and does so without risk (deposits are now insured by FDIC to $100,000.00).

The second advantage is less obvious but perhaps as important as the first. You see, your money not only works for you, it works for the entire community.

Part of your money may help a neighbor build an addition to his house for the new arrival expected soon. Part of it may help a new business coming to town get its doors open. Part of it may help finance a local farm operation to increase fertilizer application during a critical growing period. Part may go to an established business to help make a special inventory purchase. All these things can be important to you. The business making the special inventory buy will probably pass those savings along to customers, the farmer will help keep prices low by producing more, the new business may be where your daughter gets a job, and the neighbor . . . well, that's just being a good neighbor. It all makes a better community and a better place for you to live. You can BANK ON IT!

Texas Department of Agriculture
Reagan V. Brown, Commissioner

TEXAS REMAINED THE NATION'S TOP CATTLE STATE in 1979, although this should not come as much of a surprise, reports Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown.

"The latest surveys show Texas retained its No. 1 ranking in a number of categories, most notably cattle and calves," said Brown. "However, we really have no close competitors, since there are almost twice as many cattle and calves in Texas than in Iowa, the next highest state."

Brown noted that there were 13,200,000 head of cattle and calves of all types on Texas farms and ranches at the first of the year. This was down five percent from the same time last year.

Other categories of livestock in which Texas leads the nation were cattle on feed, beef cows, sheep and lambs and Angora goats. Texas also ranked as the nation's leading state in cattle slaughter.

Statistics from the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service show that Texas is the nation's ninth largest dairy producer, based on size of dairy herds. As of Jan. 1, 1980, there were 315,000 milk cows in Texas.

TEXAS' SMALLEST LIVESTOCK — honeybees — continued to be big business in 1979, with over 11.4 million pounds of tasty honey being produced from 190,000 colonies statewide, according to Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown.

Texas beekeepers found 1979 to be a much more favorable year for honey production than the previous year, noted Brown. Number of colonies in the state, yield per colony and total honey production were up substantially. The 11.4-million-pound 1979 honey crop was a sharp improvement over the 8.7 million pounds harvested in 1978.

Texas currently ranks fourth in the nation based on number of bee colonies.

EGG PRODUCTION in Texas last year brought poultrymen over $151,515,000, a substantial increase over the preceding year, notes Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown.

"Texas egg producers increased their output to over 230 million dozen, and this accounted for a large part of the increase in cash receipts, since egg prices were up only slightly," said Brown. "Cash receipt figures reflect only gross income, and are not an indication of industry profits."

Texas Folklife Festival

An old cowboy pauses from telling a take and drops a plug of tobacco behind his lips, then continues his oral recreation of early ranch days in Texas.

A silk trouser-clad Lebanese dancer hikes her pants legs to give herself more kicking room while doing the "fais to-do" to Cajun music.

Two gospel singers, one black and one white, compare singing styles in the cool of the brush arbor.

This grab bag of activities is a typical scene from the annual Texas Folklife Festival, a program of the University of Texas Institute of Texas Cultures. The characters are four of more than 6,000 volunteer participants who travel to San Antonio to stage a celebration of their heritage and culture.

One hundred and eighty towns and cities will be represented by these Texans-turned-teachers July 31 through August 3 when they congregate on the downtown HemisFair grounds of the Institute.

Because of the Festival's spirit of sharing, visitors become active participants in the Festivities. Some roll up their sleeves, seize a saw and help build an outdoor kitchen. Others sit at the feet of a gray-haired grandmother and learn a style of tating that is generations old. Others with culinary curiosity create a platte of foreign foods by combining a Norwegian potato specialty, a country-style chicken fried steak, Lebanese taboole and an iced drink.

Youngsters can be found discovering the games of their pioneer forebearers in "frontier playland", an area that provides hay to jump in, games to play and farm animals to pet. Other demonstrations also are for children. Toy makers let the toy players help create a wooden whirlingig. An old wagon pulled by a gentle horse circles the grounds with a load of young trail blazers. Muzzle loaders show youngsters how the old guns were loaded and fired.

Sitting under a tree lazily watching sheep being sheared or dancing to music from the German oompah band may seem an unusual way to learn your state. But Festival organizers believe that first-hand experience with the people—their music, dance, games, contests, arts, crafts and folk tales—best shows the origins of Texas' colorful history. The diversity of the settlers, and their sharing of skills, has made the modern-day Lone Star State an exciting, unusual place to live.

The common elements that helped early settlers seal the bond of friendship that created a state also become more apparent. For example, the lack of refrigeration forced all settlers to learn canning and preserving food. The teaching of that skill was a German contribution to the state's homemakers and at the Festival, visitors can learn the art from a first-generation German Texan.

The Festival offers a 15 acre tour that equals visits to the better part of two continents. Eight stages scattered across the grounds spotlight music and dance. Every style and form of entertainment can be sampled. From a fiddlers' contest to a Czech family band and a Polish royalty dance to Spanish flamenco.

Chefs from 31 ethnic, cultural and national groups vie for the visitors' attention with their exotic blends of homestyle cooking. And they all share recipes. Those with small appetites can sample as many different dishes as their heartier friends because cooks offer 20 to 40 cent samples along with the larger, full-priced portions.

Festival visitors can have their fancies tickled by the numerous storytellers who tell yarns while rocking in oversized wooden chairs placed under shade trees. Not to be out done, most of the craftspeople, demonstrators and artists are as skilled with their tongues as they are with their hands, and tell funny, adventurous stories. Klement Baptism

Laura Jane Klement, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Klement was baptized in Sacred Heart Church Saturday evening, June 21, with Father Cletus Post officiating. Her godparents were Doug and Lynda Yosten. The baby wore the same christening robe used by her father and all members of the Gene Klement family. It is particularly treasured because it was handmade by the late Mrs. Frank Klement, Laura Jane's great-grandmother. The baptismal cap was a gift from the Herb Millers.

A christening supper followed at the Andy Klement home. Guests included the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Klement and Mrs. Vera Conrady of Lindsay, Father Stephen, Father Camillus of Subiaco and Father Cletus and a group of relatives and friends.

economic policies, its energy program is about the worst. Of course the Ford Administration has to accept responsibility for failure the first few years after 1973, but after that it was Carter's problem and it got progressively worse.

While acknowledging an urgency to strive for energy independence, it has allowed the program to be obstructed by environmentalists and nuclear cranks. And the biggest obstruction of all is the windfall profits tax which further discourages any expansion of oil production. The entire energy fiasco is a burden on the economy and a threat to national security. In case of war an enemy could cut our oil supplies in half in just a few days.

Of course our first problem in national security is the deterioration of our fighting forces. The country's policy for years has been guided by detente and SALT, resulting in a steady decline of our strength and increase of Russia's. In the process we have provided Russia with expert equipment and technology presumably for its industry but converted to its war machine.

Other important issues are likewise included in the Republican platform proposals. One opposes school busing, which was intended to provide equal educational opportunity for the races but was a disaster from the start. This thing has lowered the average learning level instead of raising it, and has undermined parent participation in school affairs by moving students out of the home neighborhood.

One has to wonder whether this scheme is a part of the national education program to take schools out of local control. Other great faults with busing are the waste of students' time, the waste of tax money and the waste of critically needed gasoline. Of all the useless and wasteful and exasperating things done in Washington in recent years, busing must be one of the worst. The proposal to abolish it is one of the most attractive planks of the GOP platform.

Still another recommendation relative to education is to allow voluntary prayer in schools. It's high time for more basic changes of thinking about schools. We the people know there is a God and it's wrong to banish Him from school. Furthermore, elementary common sense tells us that the fundamentals about God, and right and wrong, and responsibility to God, belong in education. It can be taught without promoting any special denomination, henceforth without violating the principle on separation of church and state.

One thing's for sure, Texas Republicans submitted some fine ideas for the party platform. If put in practice they could be the beginning of restoring American greatness.
